THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT
FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Chapter I.
COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter III.
INFRINGEMENT AND REMEDIES.
Chapter IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.
Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as "the Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

MELBOURNE, Jan. 30.—Princess's Theatre.—Romeo and Juliet has been drawing good houses at this theatre, and will run up till the end of the current week. Miss Tistell Brune's acting in the balcony and potion scenes is particularly effective. The Romeo of Mr. Greenaway and the Mercutio of Mr. Roy Redgrave are parts which are played most interestingly. Mr. Atholwood deserves a special word of praise for his clever impersonation of the apothecary.

Her Majesty's Theatre.—The revival of The Geisha is proving a source of delight to lovers of a bright and musical evening's entertainment. Miss Florence Young is pleasing in the part of O Mimosa San, using her fine voice to advantage. Miss Evelyn Scott makes an admirable Molly Seamore; Mr. Haigh Jackson is excellent as Lieut. Fairfax; and Mr. Lauri, as the crafty Wun Hi, revels in the musical comedy.

Theatre Royal.—Sinbad the Sailor continues to attract good houses, though it has now entered upon its sixth week. Miss Ravensberg still continues prime favourite with her audiences, her two songs, "My Home Girl" and "The Lily of the Valley."

Opera House.—A large and enthusiastic audience assembled at this theatre on Saturday evening. Hackenschmidt, who closes his season next Thursday night, appeared in his "poses plastiques," showing the marvellous muscular development he possesses, afterwards wrestling Mr. Gus Rennert, strong man, from Sydney, in the catch-as-catch-can style. An interesting bout lasted nearly ten minutes, when the Russian managed to throw his opponent. Another popular turn is the harp and violin playing by the Frasettis, who are also excellent performers on the xylophone. Gregson and Goodfellow contribute a new musical comedy sketch, entitled the Stony Tourist, which evokes roars of laughter.

Gaiety Theatre.—Mr. Martyn Hagan, Irish comedian; Miss Lucy Fraser, vocalist; and Victor, styled the "canary," made a successful first appearance here on Saturday evening. New pictures were shown by the Biograph, and a farce, entitled North-East Lynne, created hearty laughter.

SYDNEY, Feb. 1.—The Best of Friends is Mr. Bland Holt's latest success at the Royal, and its wealth of incident and general picturesque colouring made it intensely attractive. Miss Frances Ross has little but "masterly inactivity" to exercise in depicting Mercia, the heroine, whereas Miss J. Pollock has a congenial task in depicting Speed Spangles, the vivacious circus girl. Miss Harrie Ireland was Lady Aline Redwood, and got all possible value out of the character. Mr. Walter Baker was the Earl of Amesbury; Mr. Max Maxwell, Paul de Latone; Mr. Arthur Styan, the Boer commander; and Mr. Albert Norman, the Duke of Richborough. The circus proprietor, Ketoff, gave Mr. Charles Brown his opportunity, and the chief villain was played by Mr. Harford.

"The Pirates of Penzance" attracted a large audience to Her Majesty's Theatre, and its bright music and easily understood plot were much appreciated. A "rousing" welcome was accorded Mr. Howard Vernon, who played Major-General Stanley admirably. Miss Celia Ghiloni's Ruth was a delightful inpersonation. Mr. Walter Whyte was Frederick, and sang carefully. Miss Alexia Bassian made Mabel a grand opera character, and Mr. Ralston was a capable Samuel. Mr. Frank Wilson made an impression as the Pirate King. Miss Vinia De Loitte's singing as Edith was charming, whilst the Misses Sara Hyman and Ruby Armfield were well suited as Kate and Isabel. Mr. Ernest Fitts was as good a Police Sergeant as we have had, and the "Policeman's Lot" was thrice encored, as was the trio, "The Paradox." M. Leon Caron conducted, and Mr. Henry Bracy staged the revival, the most important of the series.

The Tivoli has lost Madame Marzelle and her birds, but has gained Bonita and Cleopatra, two attractive turns. The former is a smart rifle-woman, and the latter charms snakes and other reptiles. Fanny Powers has added new imitations of celebrities, and the rest of Mr. Harry Rickard's company fills an interesting bill.

The news of the death of Mr. William Rignold caused universal regret here, for, apart from his undoubted ability as an actor, the deceased was personally beloved by all who knew him, and they were legion in Sydney. Miss Marie Rignold is now on her way here as a member of the Van Biene company, engaged to Mr. Musgrove.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The concert at the Guildhall School on Wednesday evening opened with selections by performers on guitars and mandolines, pupils of Madame Waldahoff and Mdlle. Polyxena Crinos, followed by a song entitled "En Sourdine,' by Tellam, the vocalist being Mr. Edwin Lewis. He sang well, but the guitars and mandolines accompanying were not quite so harmonious as might have been desired. Nor did Mr. D. F. Charrington entirely succeed in "The Message" of Blumenthal. He was not in good voice to begin with, and if he had been recollections of Mr. Sims Reeves would have inevitably acted to his disadvantage. The violin solo of Miss Dorothy Linnell was a creditable effort. Her execution of two movements from the 9th concerto of De Beriot displayed her own talent to great advantage, and also showed how skilfully she had been trained. Mrs. Edwin Bennett sang "The Barley Sheaves" of Miss Needham with much grace, and Miss Evelyn Bendy was applauded with considerable warmth in "Le Jeune Patre," by Goring Thomas. Miss Grace Wigginton may be congratulated upon her rendering of Schumann's "Fantaisie stucke," Nos. 2 and 7, which were given with neatness and decision. A romance of Davidoff for violincello was carefully played by Miss Kathleen Holbrooke, and Miss Enid Cummings sang "Solveig's Song," by Grieg, with effect. Other vocalists of merit were Miss Olive Godwin and Mr. George Dryden, and Miss Helen Squire was set down for Heller's transcription of "La Fruite." The accompaniments of Miss Kate Ward were excellent, as usual, and Miss Ada Castiglaine, a clever pupil of Mr. Allan Beaumont, recited with admirable results "The Woman of Mumble's Head," and an amusing sketch, "Over the Fishpond to Fashion," by Cotsford Dick.

THEATRICAL PATENTS.

The following applications are specially drawn for The Era by Messrs Hughes and Young, patent agents, 55 and 56, Chancery-lane, London, W.C., who will give advice and assistance free to our readers on all patent matters.

23,960. William Goulton, 114a, Chancery-lane, London. New illuminators applicable to electric or other theatrical stage sights, or for forming electric or other letters, signs, or the like illuminative displays.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.—New Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews.—The management here is providing a good variety programme. Madamoiselle Santoi and her 6 Merry Japs are heartily applauded; Levaini and Middies submit an interesting show; and Dan Arline also gives a good account of himself. Miss Freda Indor, male impersonator, is well received; a smart turn is provided by Wragg and Wragg, military athletes; Miss Bessie Hemming is a successful contralto vocalist; Harley and Hardon are good comedians; Hurman is an expert juggler; and the St. Louis Girls are clever exponents of the art of dancing.

Palace Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Will Gregory.—The chief turn this week is supplied by Mr. Charles Coborn, who, during his time on the stage, keeps the house in excellent humour, with his songs and sayings. The Moxon Family of foot equilibrists perform some excellent feats; and Brady and Johnson's company, in the sketch, Turning the Tables, causes roars of laughter. Vere and Royal, vocalists and dancers, are popular, and the same may be said of the Weimars. Hadden and Clyde, in their laughable act, are appreciated; Heltha, in his hoop speciality, shows himself to be a clever artist; Miss Bessie Travis is a good lady ventriloquist; and Miss Marie Mayfield, serio-comedienne, and Sydney Dolf, mimic, also add to the evening's entertainment.

Public Hall.—Professor Barber is delighting huge crowds with his hypnotic entertainment, and Lloyd is a clever handcuff manipulator.

ABERDEEN.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah, C.A.—A Chinese Honeymoon is played this week by Mr. George Dance's company. Miss Vera Vere gives an exceedingly amusing representation of Fi-Fi; and Miss Nellie Wigley wins much applause by her smart dancing and clever singing as Soo-Soo; Miss Jose Collins is successful as Mrs. Pineapple; and Miss Alice Drummond makes a commanding appearance as the official mother-in-law. Mr. Philip Haydn, as the Emperor; Mr. Allerton Turner, as the Lord Chancellor; Mr. Leonard May, as Hi-Lung; and Mr. Percy Yorke, as Tom Hatherton; and Mr. Foster Courtenay, as Mr. Pineapple, all put in excellent work.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing Director, Mr. Ernest Sheldon.—Mr. John Alexander and his combination of clever comedians are appearing with much success in an amusing sketch; and The Sisters Warwick show extraordinary agility as acrobatic cyclists; Sibb and Sibb contribute an interesting gymnastic exhibition; Primaveri delights the audiences with his juggling; and a capital performance is also given by Miss Effie White, danseuse; The Sisters Jonghman sing charmingly; Mueller and Coyne are comedians of great resource; The Volbeoque Sisters are equally pleasing as vocalists and dancers; and Mr. Harry Barker, comedian, also secures a favourable reception.

Hamilton's Diorama.—This entertainment, which is now in the third week of the present visit, continues to be well patronised. The war pictures and the turns of the variety artistes are of the highest interest, and the orchestra is admirably conducted by Mr. J. W. Eccleston.

ABERTILLERY. — Theatre Metropole. — Lessees, Messrs. Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Ventom; Stage-Manager, Mr. Fred Thomas.—The boards here are occupied this week by Mr. C. Finch-Hatton's company in the successful realistic drama, When London Sleeps. As the villainous Captain Rodney, Mr. W. H. Wilson is quite realistic; Mr. Albert Wray, in the rôle of David Engleheart, plays with vigour and manliness. Mr. Edward Vivian, as Mr. Farnaby Fuller, is exceptionally good; as also is Mr. Paul Graydon as Bob Jones; Mr. Chas. Digby, as the hon. Bertie Broomhead, causes much mirth as Queenie Carruthers; Miss Mabel Cluer is quite a favourite; Miss Hilda Clyde, as Hilda Carode, plays the part for all it is worth. Miss Evelyn Clare, Miss Nellie Birchenough, Little Lily, and Miss Marie Kelway are all good in their respective parts. Mr. D'Arcy Kelway, as Sammy Blyth, also deserves special mention.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—On Monday Messrs. Northway and Garrod's company opened here with the Sledge Hammer. A very creditable performance of the part of Mathew Derrick is given by Mr. Charles Herbert; Mr. Maxwell Davison must be complimented upon his performance as Cornelius Derrick; Mr. Frank Litchfield as Tom Walker is effective, and Messrs. W. V. Garrod, A. Northway, and Laurence Konrad are good in their respective rôles of Everard Derrick, Jacob Derrick, and Simon Derrick. Miss Bertha Kingston as Rose Maywell proves herself a capable actress, and Miss Elialine Thorn is amusing as Catherine Henniss. Martha Derrick is well played by Miss Fanny Thorn.

New Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Wilmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker.—Martin Conway heads the bill here, and on Monday brought down the house by his performance; Kit Keen is a smart coloured comedian; Irvin must be complimented on his success; Harry Hayton is an amusing coon; the Wynfords, barrel jumpers, are very good in their line; Lozelle is both neat and clever; the Kimberley Boys met with due appreciation.

ALDERSHOT.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—A capital interpretation of Sergeant Brue is being given this week by Mr. Frank Curzon's company. In the name-rôle Mr. Victor Widdicombe is responsible for a large amount of the fun created; as Crookie Scrubbs, Mr. T. A. Shale is excellent, his talented conception of the humorous criminal being wonderfully good; Mr. E. Percy Rogers sings and acts well as Michael Brue; Mr. Cecil Burt's impersonation of Crank, the magistrate, is a capable one in every way; and Mr. Albert Sealy, as Lawyer Habbishom, does well. A charmingly played rôle is Miss Violet Dene's Lady Bickenhall; Miss Constance Lait is a capital exponent of Aurora; and Miss Eliza Earle does well as Daisy.

ALTRINCHAM.—New Pavilion.—Proprietors, Messrs. Budd, Howe, and Taylor.—A new and interesting programme has been provided this week. The Werners perform some daring and clever cyclist tricks, and their teacup track proves too much for many local champions of the wheel. Enjoyable double turns are given by The Percys, The Padleys, and Warner and Wilson. Miss Florrie Claribell, comedienne, is a favourite in song and dance.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—The new musical comedy, The Earl and the Girl, the joint production of Mr. Seymour Hicks, Mr. Percy Greenbank, and Mr. Ivan Caryll, is being presented here this week by Mr. William Greet's company—one of all-round efficiency. Mr. Reginald Switz scores in the matter of absurd humour as Jim Cheese, a dog trainer. He is exceedingly droll, especially in the second act, where he impersonates the Earl at a fancy-dress ball. As Dick Wargrave Mr. Alec Fraser proves himself a vigorous exponent of character, and Miss Mary Fraser is a charming heroine as Elphin Hayes.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident-Acting Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—The management here have again provided an attractive programme for the current week. The head of the programme is occupied by those remarkable musical comedians, patterers, and marvellous dancers, the St. Johns. Both their musical specialities and their expert toe-and-heel performances elicit approving cheers. Duncan furnishes some interest to the spectator as a manipulator of the clubs. Arthur Albert, as actor-vocalist, gives a really good turn, and Martinetti and Goosi, in their funny Continental novelty act, astonish the audience with their artistic cleverness. Fred Rose is a very quaint comedian, and Oswald astonishes with his wonderful handbalancing speciality; Harry Maxam, comedian, and Hall, clever mimic give very acceptable turns. Perhaps the feature of the week's bill is the Andos famous troupe of Happy Little Japs, acrobats, jugglers, wire-walkers, with real Japanese dancing and music. These artists are undoubtedly most expert and nimble, and perform some astounding acrobatic and juggling feats. The animated pictures are popular.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Claude Seaton.—Once more pantomime holds the sway here, the boards being occupied by Mr. Charles Chard's well-balanced company with Goody Two Shoes. In the title-rôle Miss Annie Casey is seen to advantage; Miss Ida Gladstone plays with dash and finish as Roland; and as Simple Simon Mr. Charles Chard is irresistible, his humour being spontaneous, and his songs well received. Mr. Sydney Dean as Dame Freckles has a congenial part; Mr. James Kurry is highly diverting as Sammy Sops; Messrs. Bliss and Bliss are a couple of excellent comedians; and Messrs. Pete and Juno, as the Baron's coloured servants, are responsible for a good share of fun. Baron Grab is well played by Mr. Arthur Stratton; as the Fairy Benevoltia Miss Isa Steel is good; so also is Miss A. Marsden as Mephisto. Interesting specialities are introduced by the Sisters St. Julian; Messrs. Bliss and Bliss, Pete and Juno, and the Mikado Troupe of dancers. Mr. Haydn Reano is an efficient musical conductor, and Mr. Ernest Hartington is the general manager of the company.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Gibbons.—Heading the bill this week is Carl Mysto, who gives a clever and exciting exhibition as a handcuff expert; Frank Boyce's descriptive songs are well received; the Two Rubies, international dancers, are good; Vincent, acrobatic table expert, gives a novel show; Robert Gilbert's dogs and cats show careful training; red Lloyd and Co. submit a highly interesting and amusing sketch entitled The Blind Spinster; Mark Tapley is a good comedian; and Messrs. Blake and Clayton present an excellent series of pictures, including lifeboat work, by means of the Palace Bioscope.

BACUP.—New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—Mr. Peter Eland's pantomime, Little Red Riding Hood, is here this week. The company is a strong and well-balanced one. Miss Mabel Manley, a sweet Red Riding Hood, acts charmingly; Miss Dolly Hook enacts well the rôle of Robin Oakapple; Miss Rita Vincent is a graceful Bluebell Buttercup; Mr. H. Flockton Foster is a clever exponent of the Baron; and Mr. George Boyle infuses a good deal of humour into the rôle of Widow Bailey. Master Lennie Ankers and Mr. O. Mountain, as P.C.'s 9 and 10, are an active and mercurial pair of officers; Mr. Charley Howarth is particularly funny as the Baron's Page; and Mr. W. Raynor, as the Wolf, is a success. The Fairy of the Hood has a graceful and picturesque representative in Miss Jenny Whitehead. Specialities are introduced by the Florodora Girls, The Maros, triple bar comedians; Mexican Mac, sharp shooter; Syd Mountford, the modern magician; and Eastwood and Watson, the Japanese cake walkers. The scenery is pretty and the music attractive.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Messrs. Carson and Granville's company, in The Heart of a Hero, is paying a return visit here. The Jem Resdale of Mr. Fred W. Goddard is a good one; the Mark Marl of Mr. A. B. Mackay is capital; and Mr. Chas. E. Johnson plays with distinction as Wilfrid Marl; while Mr. Hugh Brady does good work as Timothy Heighno. Mrs. Ryder is well portrayed by Miss Beatrice Hudson; and Miss Cissie St. Elmo gives a clever and powerful delineation of Nell Resdale.

Tivoli Theatre of Varieties.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi.—The premier turn here is Alfred Barker and Miss Rozsika with numerous and varied performing animals, whose intelligent performance excites much wonder. The Two Cavaliers prove themselves skilful and pleasing musicians; Miss Minnie D'Aubyn is a capital serio and coon vocalist; Jimmy Shields, a great favourite, again pleases; Joe Humphries shows himself a smart comedian; Edie Grey and White Coons are highly appreciated; Fyne and Hurley create much amusement in the clever scena, The Coster and the Dude; Nellie Vanderbilt contributes an entertaining turn; and Vernon's Bioscope, with a good series of pictures, completes the bill.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—The first visit to Bath of Mr. George Dance's chief company, with The Cingalee, is unquestionably one of the biggest attractions of the present season. The artistes engaged acquit themselves with distinction. A great personal success was made by Mr. Lauri de Frece, a clever young comedian, who, as Chambhuddy Ram, literally sprang into popularity, his singing, dancing, and acting being remarkable for its freshness and energy. In much of his heavy work he has a charming associate in Miss Mabel Sealby, as Peggy Sabini, their several scenes and duets being received with rapturous applause. Mr. Fred. W. Patrick has a congenial part in that of Boobhamba, his song, "Persuasion," with up-to-date verses, gaining numerous encores. Sir Peter Loftus is acted by Mr. F. W. Ford in a fussy and amusing fashion; Mr. Kenneth Wynne makes an efficient Harry Vereker, singing a couple of baritone ballads with care; Mr. George Mudie, jun., puts plenty of life into his rendering of Bobby Warren; Miss Ethel Negretti further enhances her already high local reputation as Nanoya, her telling vocalism arousing great admiration in the effective and pretty "Cinnamon" scena. Lady Patricia Vereker is well impersonated by Miss Nancy Freyne, who is the fortunate possessor of a pleasant soprano voice which she displays to advantage in her one solo. Miss Poppy Wilkinson leads the tea girls with animation, her companions being Miss May Curtiss, Miss Iris Grosvenor, and Miss Minnie Muir. A charming impression is made by Miss Trissie March, whose dancing is graceful and skilful. The large chorus and increased orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Edward H. Whitehall, deserve high commendation for their share in a delightful performance.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. W. Trussell.—Especially varied is the programme this week, supremacy of position being held by the Lukushima Troupe of Japanese equilibrists. Albert Wyndham scores a legitimate success with his Shakespearean episode, Prince Arthur, receiving capital support from Miss Rose St. John, as the imprisoned Prince. Albini, after a long absence, presents his latest wonder, "The Lady in Black." Ryde and Beeman are an agile pair of grotesque acrobats. Martin Henderson, the well-known blind concertina artiste, is accorded a big reception. The Sisters Clive are refined comediennes and dancers, who have some taking numbers. Carr and Rose in their vocal comedy act, Their First Quarrel, command approbation.

BATLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Whitty; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. M. Hirst.—Miss Lena Stanton's company opened here on Monday with the musical comedy, The Belle of Bangalore. The title-rôle was undertaken by Miss Lena Stanton, who played it in a charming and artistic manner. Mr. Bruce Green rendered some capital songs, and was well placed as Rajah Roo. Mr. George James was good as Rum Omyo; and Miss Marie Gerrard admirably acted the part of Small Sing. Little Keeno, as it, a Mystery, was well placed. Mr. Harry Jay made a typical Pat Murphy. Some capital specialities were also introduced by Little Keeno, Jay and Ginger, the Cecil Troupe of Dancers, the Musical Melbahs, La Belle Esma on the silver thread; and Joe Pauletti, acrobatic French cycling clown.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—For the first three nights of this week the boards were occupied by Mr. Julian Malvern's company in I Defy the World. Mr. Roy Fortescue submitted a powerful rendering of Leon Darville; Mr. Richard Vane cleverly interpreted the evil designs of Count de Beaulieu; Mr. Charles Conway admirably impersonated Laroche, a blackmailer; Mr. H. Creagh Hunt made an excellent André; and Mr. Charles W. Julian as Samuel Wozzle, Miss Lillah Shelton as Marie Wozzle, Mr. Harry Emmerson as Najac, and Mr. A. Raymond Shaw as Bochon, well sustained the humour of the play. Miss Maud Malvern gave a womanly and pathetic representation of Blanche Darville, and Miss Trixie St. Albans made a sweet Pauline Delaport. Miss Flo Bevan, a clever little actress, met with the sympathy of the house as Fanchette. On Thursday and Friday The Dainty Doctor was presented.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James McCann.—Mr. Frank Curzon's company opened here on Monday with the successful musical comedy, Sergeant Brue, which met with a cordial reception from a good audience. The cast is a powerful one. Honours are due Mr. Edward Kipling, who, in the title-rôle, acted very cleverly, his humour being fairly irresistible. A delightful and charming impersonation of Aurora Brue was submitted by Miss Hilda Antony, her rendering of "Under a Panama" being exceptionally pleasing. The rôle of Michael Brue was assumed by Mr. Charles Hanbury, who kept the audience much amused. His songs were encored and his dancing was voted first-class. An impersonation of decided cleverness was that furnished by Miss Hebe Bliss as Lady Bickenhall, and, undoubtedly, she quite captivated many admirers. Miss Bliss delighted all with her pretty dances, while her song, "Instinct," was capitally rendered. Mr. Thomas Holding was admirable as Gerald Treherne; and Mr. George Barrett created roars of laughter with his inimitable impersonation of Crookie Scrubbs. A splendid impersonation of Mr. Crank, the magistrate, was submitted by Mr. Campbell Bishop; and Mr. Paddy Dupres was the Inspector Gorringe to the life. Others parts were smartly undertaken by Miss Gladys Desmond, Miss Margaret Savile, Miss Marie Norma, and Messrs. Harry Turner, W. H. Page, Ivor Harvey, and Percy McLeod. The chorus was exceptionally powerful.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. John P. Beardmore.—The chief attraction this week is provided by Mr. Frank Gerald and company in The King's Highway. Mr. Gerald impersonates Dick Turpin in dashing style; and other rôles are cleverly sustained by Miss Evelyn Vaudray (charming as Eleanor Mowbray), and Messrs. Fred Rolls, C. Newton Buckland, Harry Prince, &c. Mr. Will Onda's company appear to great advantage in their pantomimical absurdity, entitled A Quiet Night, which has created roars of laughter. Grey and Welford provide a fund of amusement with their burlesque boxing act; and the cultured vocalism of Miss Lilian Travellie has been much admired; the Four Marsono's provide a very novel musical performance, their manipulation of several unique articles being decidedly clever; Jubal and Joyce, comedians; Mr. Sam Dalton, a first-class character comedian, author composer; and the accomplished Alhambra Quartette of lady vocalists and dancers complete the bill.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Brock.—Collins and Hart head the bill and have been very successful with their humorous acrobatic act; the Four Royal Welshmen have been accorded a splendid reception for their capital rendering of several songs; Mr. Albert Whelan, the popular Australian comedian, provides a first-class entertainment; and Messrs. Rackett and Hazard appear to immense advantage in their refined and clever musical act. The Proveanie Troupe of cyclists repeat last week's success, many of the feats being marvellous. The fine baritone voice of Mr. Geo. Adams has been much admired; and also appearing are Martin and Quigg, eccentric comedians.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The Ross Clyde company provide the chief turn here and evoke much merriment with their excruciatingly funny sketch, I Must Have It. The cultured vocalism of Miss Elsa Joel has been much enjoyed, and Mr. Will Dalton is a very humorous comedian with a good style. Much interest has been centred in the attractive vocal scena staged by Major Moss and Son, entitled Grandad's Birthday. La Belle Lily is a daring trapeze performer, and is assisted in her act by Albert, a very droll clown. The new pictures introduced by Weisker Bros.' unequalled Bioscope are certainly very realistic, and form a decidedly attractive entertainment. Also appearing are Miss Ethel Loftus, comedienne and mimic; the Two Wambas, in their capital musical act; and Mr. Bert Lytton, swell comedian.

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—Mr. Charles H. Phelps has brought his latest piece here entitled One Woman's Wickedness. It is styled a musical comedy-drama, and includes songs, dances, and specialities. Foremost in the cast we have Mr. Phelps, as Jem Craggs, the escaped convict, assisted materially by Miss Florence Lloyd, the reprehensible Janet Raymond. Then the hero and the heroine have interesting representatives in Mr. Lawrence Brien and Miss Amy Dalby. Mr. Brien was applauded for his painstaking Philip Beaufort; and Miss Dalby fairly fetched the sympathy of the audience. We congratulate Mr. George Byrne on a good portrayal of Lord Fitznoodle; and in the still lighter rôles, Mr. Arthur Ferris, as Larry; and Miss Ethel Astbury, as Jenny Jiggles, fairly convulse the house.

BIRKENHEAD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Mr. Charles Marsh's company is appearing here in The Priest of the Temple to the evident satisfaction of large audiences. Mr. Marsh earns premier honours by an able and powerful interpretation of Valerius. The important part of Appius Herdonius is cleverly treated by Mr. Henry Moxon; and Mr. Percy Ballard is well placed as Denis Fronton; Praestantia is charmingly and skilfully acted by Miss Marie North, and a numerous cast includes other efficient artists.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Bella and Bijou, talented vaudeville artistes, are on a welcome return visit; Miss Carrie Laurie's Kindergarten act is also a leading feature, the troupe of clever juveniles giving an interesting and entertaining turn. Harry Mountford and Maude Walsh are a great success in their capital speciality act; and Miss Lily Sharplin is an expert mimic; Mr. Walter King, an amusing comedian, is also here, and an excellent company includes Jack Lane, the Yorkshire rustic; the Paragon Trio of speciality vocalists; Mr. Will Musgrave, character comedian, and the bioscope.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The last week of The Babes in the Wood has been attended by a great influx of patronage, and there is every indication that the pantomime will have a merry wind-up to-night. The military veterans, and other deserving bodies, have been invited to witness the performances this week.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE, LIMITED.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—The last week of Forty Thieves has been marked by a succession of enthusiastic scenes, and a grand finale for to-night (Saturday), is assured. On Tuesday, Messrs. Brown and Le Clerq took a well deserved benefit, being assisted at a bumper house by the principal artistes from all the music halls and theatres. On several occasions lately the management has, with thoughtful generosity, invited the poor people and children of the various institutions to food and entertainment, besides giving them gifts of money. Needless to say, as in former years, all this has been richly appreciated.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—Messrs. Gerald Alexander and Galwey Herbert's company has supplied light and excellent fare in that most diverting comedy, Facing the Music, and large audiences have rallied to their support. Mr. Ernest Cossart, as Mr. John Smith, of the laity, keeps the house merry; Mr. George Percy, as the Rev. John Smith, adds a clever quota to the fun-making; and Mr. Chas. Fancourt as Dick Desmond, Mr. Gerald Alexander as Col. Duncan Smith, and Mr. G. Nelson Wallace as Sergeant Duffell, act well. The ladies, who appear to charming advantage, include Miss Katherine Parry as Mabel, Miss Eve Erskine as Nora, Miss Dolly Beaufoy as Miss Fotheringay, and Miss Rosa Carew as Mrs. Ponting. My Lady Help has preceded the comedy.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—Mr. Collingwood's production, Dick Whittington, continues to meet with hearty goodwill at every performance, the theatre being crowded nightly.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Walter Melville; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Mr. Herbert Hollister's company is here in The Lights o' London, which continues its hold on the public in the fullest degree. Mr. Henry Lonsdale is greeted with tumultuous cheers for his strenuous acting as Harold Armytage; Miss Jeannie Burgoyne elicits praise and compassion in the character of Bess; Miss Ina Grant scores in the repellent rôle of Hetty Preene; Mr. Riddell Robinson depicts the evil course of Clifford Armytage with notable distinctness, and Mr. Herbert Hollister is seen to genuine advantage as Seth Preene. Mr. Percy Compton as Jarvis, Miss Emilie Dawson as Mrs. Jarvis, and Miss Gladys Murray as Shakespear Smith, are also successful.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben Sydney.—Messrs. Fred Moule and Alfred Denville's company is engaged here in the powerful play, Bigamy. Miss Grace Lester, by her clever acting as the bigamist, is a potent factor in the success and interest of the play; Miss Cynthia Mathews as her antithesis, Sylvia Dresden, acts with much taste and sympathy; Miss Lydia Mannington as the "strong woman," Lilian Lambkiss, sustains the humour of the play in a successful way, and is well aided and abetted by Messrs. Alfred Denville and Francis Serle as Cherrybull and Voltaire respectively. Mr. Chas. Burdon shines as Frank Merrivale; and Mr. Monson Thorpe as Sir Charles Dresden, and Mr. Kenneth Smith as Lionel Craven, are among other successful ones.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; Manager, Mr. Dan Barnard.—Messrs. E. Hill-Mitchelson's and Harris Fineberg's company is doing duty here in that excellent and elaborately mounted play, The Traitor. Mr. John C. Carlyle acts the hero, Prince Rudolph, and is rewarded with showers of applause for his fine, romantic performance; Miss Ruth Shepherd as the avenger, Zula, thrills the audience to the core with her power and fervour; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan, as the traitor, submits a clever performance; Miss Lily Roselle presents a fine picture of the Countess Zicka; Miss Anena Walton portrays Cen Cen in a charming manner; Miss Hettie Senior wins sympathy and esteem as Elsie Duprey; Messrs. Edward Cowril and Frank Sutherland provide much entertainment in the comic rôles, and Miss Isabel Hunt, Mr. T. W. Hirst, Mr. F. Day, and Cyril Maitland do well.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—An interesting turn is Rousby's electrical panoramic views of Paris, while Tilly Bebe performs with her lions in a daring manner. Elsie Roby returns to delight her audience in her low comedy musical entertainment. Tom Stuart, in his character impersonations of Martin Harvey, Wilson Barrett, &c., is clever. Rich and Rich, The Howards, G. W. Foster, and Ella Retford complete the excellent programme.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Professor Inman Hockinge is causing quite a furore with his electrical apparatus for the cure of paralysis and rheumatism; Lady Julia, the midget monkey, dresses, eats, drinks, and smokes like a human being; Tennyson and Wallis are exceedingly amusing in their songs and patter; while Tom and Marie Motramo are both humorous and musical. Rose Harvey and Alma Obrey are encored for their songs, as also are E. J. Sheldon, Maxwell and Francis, and Bob Baxter, all smart comedians.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The principal item this week is a sketch of the Cromwellian period, The King's Hat, which is thoroughly well played by Miss Ethel Cunningham and company. A clever musical entertainment is that of The Harmony Four; The Bounding Pattersons, in their flying bar act, and The Sands, in an acrobatic display, are smart; Mons. Amiel (contortionist), Mdlle. Lillian (trick cyclist), Edith St. Claire (descriptive and burlesque actress), Fred Curran R. Anderson, and Mollie Doon add to the success of the entertainment.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident Manager, Mr. George Foster.—A humorous entertainment of a high order is presented by Nelson Jackson, which is well appreciated; while a smart Society sketch, The Entr'act, is acted by Kitts and Windrum. Jennie Belmore is always a favourite. Lilian Lowe, whose sweet voice is heard to advantage, is encored. Other excellent turns are Dion Wade, Billy Hobbs, and Delmore and Wilson, comedians; Hale and Frances, hoop and globe act; and Fred Wilson, ventriloquist.

CURZON HALL.—Hamilton's Excursions are drawing larger audiences than ever. The entertainment is highly interesting, while the variety turns are well applauded.

BLACKBURN. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Business-Manager, Mr. Reginald Yorke.—Mrs. T. Morton Powell's company, in A Woman's Devotion, is appearing here this week. As Gilberte Le Grande, Mrs. T. Morton Powell is seen to advantage. Miss Maude S. Drewry gives a pathetic rendering of Maisie Loyale; Mr. George Davis is natural as Richard Chesney; and Mr. Frank R. Robertson is a powerful Philip Dangerfield. Cora Eversleigh is well sustained by Miss Alwynne Ermon; and Mr. Edward Mervyn and Miss Dot Seilby also render good service as Bob Savage and Mrs. Savage.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—Messrs. Griffin and Drake are presenting Dick Whittington here. Miss Lily Jackson works hard as Dick, and Miss Emmie Hands is good as Alice. There is plenty of good fun for which Mr. Mark Lane, the Cook; Mr. Will Dennis, Idle Jack; and Mr. Ben Ford, Alderman Fitzwarren, receive much appreciation.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—The programme here includes: The Brothers Horne in their amusing sketch, The Biter Bit; Clemart, with an excellent ventriloquial turn; John Holland and Co., in their sketch, My Friend, Boots; The Lannous, high pedestal dancers; D. W. Watson, cornet soloist; Harry Thurston, mimic; Eller and Rose, comedians and dancers; and Janet H. Reynolds, vocalist.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. Alfred B. Cross and company are paying a return visit here with The Manxman. Mr. Cross gives a fine performance of Pete. Kate Cregean finds a suitable exponent in Miss Minnie Waterford, who earns high honours. The difficult rôle of Philip Christian is handled by Mr. William Burchill with marked success, whilst Mr. Henry Heller gives a clever impersonation of Cæsar Cregean. Mr. Edward McLean, as Loss Christian, and Miss Nancy Mitchell, as Nancy, also play their parts well.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—In the Ranks, played by Messrs. Arthur Carlton and H. Armitage's company, is the attraction here. Mr. Edward Lloyd gives a skilful interpretation of Ned Drayton, and Miss Edith Blair-Staples contributes a pleasing portrayal of Ruth Herrick. Mr. Cecil Morand, as Joe Buzzard, and Miss Harriet Russell, as Mrs. Buzzard, are responsible for the merriment, whilst several other parts are in efficient hands.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Mr. Edwin Boyde is probably the favourite of many excellent turns here this week. Lily Lena is a vivacious comedienne, whose songs are well received, whilst Griffin and Marks find favour as acrobatic comedians. Imro Fox is a clever conjurer; Eileen Douglas sings nicely; Mamie Cannon is successful in a little sketch, entitled Life in a Flat; and Arthur Stacey and Harry Nation are both good comedians.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. G. E. Good.—A capital attraction has been provided here for the first four nights of the week by Mr. Fred J. Kirke and company, with the musical comedy drama, The Naval Detective, Mr. Kirke appearing with success in the title rôle. On Friday, Our Sailor Lad was presented.

ALEXANDER HALL.—Proprietors, Blyth Theatre Co., Ltd.—Comical Bob Anderson, an old favourite here, opened on Monday with a good array of variety talent, including The Four Andys, Risley artistes; Branche Haddon, vocalist; Bob and Bob, patterers; Walter Payne's living pictures; McAskell, comic ventriloquist; Bert Denstone, comedian; and Rappo and Ella, equilibrists.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Hermann.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company (including Mr. George Harvard, Mr. Fred. G. Evison, and Miss Mildred Carr), is here with The Midnight Mail, a drama from the pen of Mr. Arthur Shirley.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—A capital programme is presented here this week, the chief attraction being Lockhart's elephants, introduced by Miss Mabelle, trainer. Also in the bill are Bijou Russell, sand dancer and coon singer; the McConnell Trio, in a laughable comedietta, A Musical Mistake; the Sisters Marion, juvenile vocalists; the Seabornes, equilibrists and acrobats; Miss Emily Adair, comedienne; Baker Melphor, baritone vocalist; the Wedburns, vocalists and comedians; Andy Fagan, Frank Cumminger, and the Imperial Bioscope.

BOSCOMBE. — HIPPODROME. — Owner and Licensee, Mr. F. Mouillot; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Ball.—Captain Gerrard, with his lions and tiger dogs, tops the bill here this week with a capital turn. Another popular item is the acrobatic performance of the Abdullah Arabs, including Little Fatima, a wonderful child. Will Driscoll, comedian; the Davenports, magicians and illusionists, and the Sisters Judge, with their parrots and cockatoos, are also much appreciated; as are the turns of Arthur Lawrence, actor vocalist; and Leo, the Australian variety picture artiste. Ruffell's bioscope continues to please with a new set of films.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Mr. Charles Macdona's principal company, in Three Little Maids, opened here on Monday, and proved very attractive. As the three little maids, Miss Elsa Brettingham, Miss Beatrice Fitzgerald, and Miss Shelley Calton were quite excellent, and the three protegées of Lady St. Mallory were well represented by Miss Laura Wright, Miss Rita Narcelli, and Miss Jay. Mr. Arthur Longley as Lord Cheyne was very droll, and thoroughly sustained the interest which properly belongs to the part. The Cupid of Mr. Gus Oxley was to the liking of the audience; and Miss Laura Wright was particularly excellent as Gretchen. Appreciation may also be expressed of the remainder of a clever combination, among whom Miss Maud Shelton, Mr. Frank Lincoln, Mr. Charles Leverton, and M. Alex. Chentrens stood out prominently. Special praise is due to Mr. Julian Rutt as conductor of the orchestra.

BRADFORD. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Pemberton.—The present week is finally announced as the last of the successful run of Mr. Hart's delightful pantomime, Cinders. Mr. Carlton's entertaining spoofing has extended to great proportions, and he is perplexing the audiences nightly with his marvellous illusion, "Kwerry?"

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Messrs. Harris Fineberg and John F. Preston presented on Monday for the first time here the realistic drama, The Voice of the People. Barry Phelps, a man of many parts, is a notable effort by Mr. J. Monkhouse. Mr. W. Howard Barlow is effective in the rôle of the villain, Steve Morris. The outcast, Liz, is cleverly played by Miss Gertrude Bonsor; Miss Violet Lawson is effective as the interesting working girl, Mary Maynard. Mr. Harry Rutland, in the character of a Sweater; Mr. Dan F. Roe, as a Society Swell; and Mr. J. Duncan, as the Rev. Meredith, accentuate the interest; and Miss Madge Nelson and Miss Annie Thomas well supply a large fund of humour.

EMPIRE. — Lessees, Moss' Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. J. Kelly.—A welcome return visit is being paid this week by Alexandre and Hughes, who are as popular as ever with their music and humour. Daisy Ray is seen to advantage in coon songs and sand dances; in comic song and manipulation of the hat, Chris Richards is diverting; the Burnellys are very clever acrobats on stilts; a delightful Romany scene by charming Gipsy Woolf and pretty gipsy maidens earns much applause. The Tramp on the piano, James Stewart, is original and funny; there is much humour in the sketch, Two Old Rogues, by Driscoll and Beattie; in an equilibristic and hand balancing act, The Three Navarros give a wonderfully clever performance; Paul Mill's comic vocalism is an acceptable item; and The Sisters Meredith's contributions in the way of Indian songs and quick change vocalism are tuneful and humorous too.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. E. Berry.—The strong attraction here this week is Aga, the suspended maiden, a remarkable illusion, which is clever and perlexing; The Foros are clever rifle shots, and they are unique in their equilibristic feats with picturesque surroundings; The Brothers Les Bois do some diverting tricks as jugglers; Alicia Mayne's illustrated songs are pleasing; Olga gives a good trapeze performance; in finished style, Belrose and De Velin sing popular duets; Ida Ross contributes smart Tyrolean songs; Starr and Jerome's duets and sand dancing are acceptable items; and the vocal and instrumental turn by the Darktown Entertainers is a contribution in comedy which, in its line, is diverting.

BRIGHTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Messrs. Charles Frohman and Arthur Chudley's company is here this week with The Duke of Killicrankie. Mr. Scott Craven imparts many artistic touches to his portrayal of the Duke; Mr. Arthur Grenville gives a very humorous impersonation of Mr. Henry Pitt-Welby, M.P.; Miss Doris Templeton makes a charming Lady Henrietta Addison; and Miss Aida Jenoure is an admirable Mrs. Mulholland. Among those who render able support, special praise is due to Mr. Pat Newall as Mr. Ambrose Hicks; and Mr. Guy B. Watson as Alexander MacBayne. The farcical comedy is preceded by Barbara. At Thursday's special London matineé, the St. James's Theatre company gave a performance of Mollentrave on Women.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—Mr. Frederick E. Philpott's company opened here on Monday with The Girl from Japan. Mr. Frank Sherlock afforded much amusement as Bingle; Mr. George Hudson was well suited as Lord Allenbury; Mr. Charles Lupton, as Sir Mulberry Flippington; and Mr. Colet Dare, as Horation Binks, submitted admirable impersonations; Mr. Percy Baverstock's General Baugh was a clever character study; and Mr. H. Carlyle Pritchard made an entertaining Rev. John Smith. Miss Rita Tomkins, a charming Polly Perkins, sang with marked success; Miss Dorothy Glenton was a bright and winsome Violet (the girl from Japan); and Miss Florence Nelson was effective as Lady Flippington. Miss Jean Van Dalle contributed some graceful dancing. The choruses were well sung, and the duties of conductor were ably carried out by Mr. Harry Richardson.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—Maggie Duggan gives her amusing songs with distinct success; Los Hermanos Granada, South American wonders, are clever performers, their sensational leaps and somersaults arousing much enthusiasm; Lydia Dreams is well received in her ventriloquial production, The Last Call; Alice Lloyd achieves great success in her latest London répertoire; The Golden Michalinis are very comic equilibrists and jugglers; The Sisters Lunelle (Louie and Nellie) are charming vocalists and dancers; the McKays are responsible for a clever turn of dry comedy and wet paint; Fielding and Hull are capital vocal comedy entertainers; Alice Digby is a charming comedienne and graceful dancer; Woodhouse and Wells are humorous comedians and patterers; and the Alhambra pictures are interesting.

WEST PIER.—Secretary and Entertainment Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Miss Ina Rozant and company are here this week with The Designers. Mr. W. Hargreaves gives a fine representation of John Huggins; Miss Ina Rozant is thoroughly artistic as Miss Rachel Huggins; and Mr. William Luff, as Wilfrid Fry, merits unstinted praise; Miss Dorothy Sidney is a pleasing Mabel; and Mr. Herbert Lloyd's Roodge is well played. Other parts are effectively sustained by Mr. E. O'Grady, Mr. Arthur Dennis, Mr. Frank Lester, and Mr. Gerald Clarke.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The Barrasford Operatic company (Mdlle. Bertrin, Mdlle. Lozini, M. Cauveren, and M. Auguste Delcoin) are here for the third week, and are highly successful in selections from Il Trovatore; Mons. Ernesto is a very skilful juggler and musical equilibrist; Bertha Pertina, the dancing phenomenon, submits a very clever turn; the Brothers Lavelle are very smart and amusing acrobats; The Toreadors appear as burlesque bull fighters; The Vaudeville Trio are excellent vocalists, comedians and dancers; Gus Harris, Hebrew delineator, is warmly applauded for his rendering of "There may be some good in a Jew"; Harry Granton's company, including Mr. Edmund Campbell, evoke hearty laughter in the farcical comedy, Packing Up; Smaun Sing Hpoo, the famous Burmese Midget, excites much interest; Harry Drew, the well-known Welsh basso, is an excellent vocalist; and the programme concludes with animated pictures. Last week the sale of oil paintings, executed by V. J. De Henau, the armless wonder, realised £6 19s.; Mr. J. L. Toole contributed £1, and Mrs. Barrasford increased the sum to £10, a cheque for that amounted being forwarded to the Women's Hospital, West-street, Brighton.

COLISEUM.—Manager, Mr. C. Smith-Wilkes.—The Three Sisters Sprightly (Maud, Florrie, and Lily) are very popular, bright, brisk and up-to-date comediennes; Edward Ind, comedian, sings in capital style; Frances Manners, burlesque actress, is a charming vocalist; Jason and Jones, comedy duologue artistes, afford great amusement; Barrington is a clever trick pianist; Nellie Randall is a dainty and winsome comedienne; Charles Barko, the human lion, gives imitations of animals, birds, and musical instruments; the Itrams are admirable gymnasts, acrobats, jugglers and equilibrists; and the Coliseum pictures are highly interesting and amusing.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—There was a good attendance here on Tuesday at a flying matinée by Mr. George Alexander, assisted by Miss Margaret Busse, Mr. Leslie Faber, Mr. Herbert Dausey, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Miss Constance Drever, Miss Kate Rooney, Mr. Harold Montague, and Mr. Frank Boor. The leading attraction was a one-act play by W. J. Locke, entitled The Flower o' the Rox, in which Mr. George Alexander and Miss Lilian Braithwaite distinguished themselves, the other parts being capitally played by Miss Margaret Busse, Mr. Leslie Faber, and Mr. Hubert Dausey. Mr. Alexander gave several recitations in his best style; Miss Kate Rooney sang with much expression, "Out on the Rocks" and "The Lost Chord"; Miss Constance Drever charmed with the "Jewel Song" (Faust), and "April Morn"; Mr. Frank Boor successfully contributed "I'll sing thee songs of Araby," and two old English melodies arranged by H. Lane Wilson; and Mr. Harold Montague gave an entertainment, "Impressions of a Musical At-Home." Mr. Frank Mummery presided at the piano. The matinées provided by Mr. Chute are much appreciated, they are always enjoyable, and so attract large audiences. This is the last week of The Sleeping Beauty. The attendance during the run has been well maintained, and the opinion is unanimous that Mr. Chute has again beaten his own record for magnificent and tasteful staging. Miss Lil Hawthorne had a very successful benefit on Friday in last week; the house was packed in all parts, and there were extra attractions. Miss Hawthorne has worked very hard throughout, and is deservedly popular. Miss Zena Dare's benefit is announced for Friday, and Mr. Horace Mills is billed to appear.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter.—On Monday Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's company appeared here in the new Oriental drama, A Traitor Prince, by a local author, Mr. George A. De Grey. The play is nicely staged, the final scene representing the Sacred Temple of Yama, God of Death, India, which is stated to be an exact representation of a temple now in existence in India. The principal characters are carefully taken by Miss Lilian Roseberry, Miss Beatrice Western, Mr. O. M. Montanini, Mr. Alec Temple, Mr. E. Carter Livesey (who produced the piece), Mr. Austin Mortimer, Mr. William Artrand, Mr. Frank Fuller, Miss Jane Massey, and Miss Cissie Cleveland, who also scores in a song and dance.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Kelly and Gillette do an excellent turn of acrobatics, &c., in their speciality billiard table act. Robertus and Wilfreds, assisted by a well-trained fox terrier, are very expert in the manipulation of india-rubber balls. Mdlle. Aladina has some highly trained cockatoos, which are both clever and amusing; the O'Leary's are smart acrobats and hand balancers; Charles West is successful as an impersonator; V. I. De Henan does some quick landscape painting with his feet, his pictures being really good, and he also performs various difficult acts; Miss Carlotta Leoy scores with her latest success, "The Gambling Men"; Sid Bandon, comedian, pleases all parts of the house; and Bob Hamilton, Scottish comedian and concertinist, does a good turn. The entertainment, two shows a night, concludes with some good animated pictures.

PALACE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Livermore Bros.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Secretary, Mr. F. I. V. Welchman.—The Alfonso Trio present a smart juggling pantomime, it is both expert and amusing; Margaret Ashton, American comedienne, has some pleasing songs, which go well with all parts of the house; Mdlle. Yvette has some highly trained dogs and ponies; Dolly, Agnes and Maud, singing cardboard boxmakers, please and amuse; the Five Whiteleys have a good pot-pourri act; Belle Braham, pictorial songstress, obtains applause; Nelson Hardy is a capable ventriloquist; Tom Johnston, actor vocalist, &c., does an agreeable turn; and Harry Bedford, comedian, is popular. The performance concludes with a selection of animated pictures.

BROUGHTON. — VICTORIA, LTD. — Managing Director and Licensee, Mr. James W. Haworth; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. B. Astin.—The realistic sporting play entitled Rogues of the Turf attracted a large house on Monday. The theatre is near the Manchester Racecourse, and the piece having several incidents in the locality forms an attractive entertainment, showing as it does the shady side of a great national sport. Mr. John F. Preston as Joe Flaxman, an old trainer, plays in his usual masterly style. The acting of Miss Hilda Shirley as the unscrupulous bigamist Marion is excellent. Mr. Hamilton Deane as Captain Dudley Clifton and Mr. H. H. Rignold as Moses Solomons are successful in portraying the chief rogues. Mr. Ernest R. Allen is an excellent Arthur Somerton, and Nellie Flaxman is charmingly presented by Miss Maude Stewart Drewry. The comedy business of Miss Mabelle F. Barlow as Phillis and Mr. Harry Benson as Sam Flaxman is duly appreciated. Mr. Hardy Macro as Sir Gerald Heathcote, Mr. Charlie Jackson as Peter Dawson, Mr. Alfred Wade as Steve Burton, and Mr. A. Hartley as Jem Strongarm give adequate support.

BURNLEY.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Culeen; Manager, Mr. James E. Culeen.—The Shadows of a Great City, played by Messrs. Mitchell and Belton's company, was warmly welcomed on a return visit to this popular house on Monday. Tom Cooper is well presented by Mr. Howell Travis, his acting being easy and natural; a popular representation is that given by Mr. Harry Tilbury as Jim Farren; Mr. George Mitchell as Arkwright is well suited to the requirements of the character; Mr. Horatio Sinclair as George Benson presents an ideal villain; Miss Mary Dawson gives an exceedingly good portrayal of Biddy Rooney; Miss Belle Tilbury possesses all the power and pathos necessary for the dual-rôle of Annie and Nellie Standish; Mr. John Belton proves a satisfactory Abe Nathan; and Mr. Ed. Hill and Mr. Frank Harvey render good support as Crouch and Downey.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—Mr. Leslie Norman's company in the musical comedy A Trip to Chinatown is the attraction here this week. Mr. Chas. Sequin is a decided success as Welland Strong, and Mr. Jerrold Manville is amusing as Ben Gay; Mr. Leslie Norman as Rashleigh Gay, and Mr. Oswald Gray as Saxon Blood, both sing in good style; Mr. Will Smith and Mr. S. Champion as Noah Heap and Slavin Payne respectively render valuable aid. A droll little fellow is Mr. W. Atom as James of Chinatown. Miss Harriet Fawn, as Mrs. Guyer, makes a charming widow and is heard to advantage in her various musical numbers; Miss Daisy Revitt is dainty and chic as Flirt, and the rest of the parts are in capable hands. The Three Canadian Belles give some clever dances.

BURY (LANCS).—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Dan the Rake, a musical play, occupies the boards here this week. Mr. J. Rice Cassidy, who takes the part of Dan, is exceedingly funny, and is ably assisted by Miss Lilian Clare, as Madge. Mr. Norman Hall scores in the part of Achille, a French cook; Mr. Frederick is sufficiently villainous as Captain Cooper. Mr. Frank Orchard, Mr. Frank Copeland, Miss Florence Halton, and Miss Ada Roscoe are also in the cast.

OLYMPIA CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—The star turn here this week is Charles Morritt, the clever conjurer. Others are Ruby Bijou, dancer; Albert Brasque and Cora Duncan in a sketch entitled A Dressing Room Romance; The Two Neros, acrobats; The Autos; and the Boris Fridkin Cossack Troupe, singers and acrobatic dancers, who are all good.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. Broadhead.—Dr. Carl Herman, hypnotist and electrician, is here, and his operations upon rheumatic and paralytic subjects have so far been successful. Other turns include Keene and Adams, comedy entertainers; The Three Dorians, gymnasts; and Emma Don and company, vocalists.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—The stage here was occupied on Monday and Tuesday by amateurs, who gave performances in aid of the Cambridge District Nursing Association. The first piece presented was The Ladies' Battle.

HIPPODROME.—Mr. Anthony Powell announces this, as his concluding week here. The stock company, including Miss Marguerite Doris, Herr Footit, Mdlle. Eva, Mons. Harry, Lilian Sivado, Miss Duchess, and the Hippodrome pictures, have been successful, while Handy Andy and the Bros. Austin keep the audience well amused. Mr. Powell is an efficient ringmaster.

CARDIFF.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—Veronique is being exquisitely presented here by Mr. George Dance's company. It is beautifully mounted, elaborately costumed, and superbly acted. Miss Ruth Lincoln, in the title-rôle, gives a charming portrayal; her captivating manner, combined with her sweet voice, making her performance perfect. Miss Lena Maitland, as the Countess, displays her vocal ability to great advantage; and Miss Maud Boyd, as Agatha, also wins approbation for her excellent singing. Mr. Leslie Holland, as Coquenard, receives an enviable welcome, and adds to his already wide reputation by his excruciatingly amusing impersonation; Mr. Ivan Berlyn does exceedingly well as Mons. Loustot; Mr. Scott Russel sings and acts with conspicuous success as Florestan; and Mr. Tom Shelford is particularly well suited in the part of Seraphin. A delightful little actress and dancer is found in Miss Gracie Sinclair as Denise. The chorus work, like that of the principals, is exceptionally good.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Bateman; Business Manager, Mr. Robert Sawin.—A London Actress is being well presented here by a company of talented artistes, including Miss Emma Litchfield, the clever authoress, and Mr. Stuart Cleveland. Good business is being done.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—The celebrated impersonator, Ludwig Amann, is making a welcome appearance here; Paul Sandor's entertaining miniature circus; the well-known musical Grimaldis; the Bros. Webb; Unthan, the armless wonder, more astonishing than ever; and Selkirk's novel juvenile spectacle, The Handy Man, are all capital and well applauded turns, while other excellent performances are given by Walker and May, eccentric coloured singers and dancers; Pat Carey, the refined Irish comedian; Boy Glen, an interesting racontour; Johnny Gilmore, the quaint comedian; Signorina Verera, the charming Italian chanteuse; and the American bioscope, with an excellent display of pictures.

CARLISLE. — ALGIE'S HIPPODROME. — Proprietress, Mrs. P. E. Veitch; Manager, Mr. C. Algie. — The habitués of this popular place of amusement are well catered for this week. Mons. Courto still tops the bill, and his jockey act meets with enthusiastic commendation. Miss Maud Dewey is paying a return visit with her marvellous imitations of well-known birds; Mr. Dan Noble keeps the house in good humour by Singer, magician and illusionist, introduces many novelties; Ada Seale, vocalist, contributes two good songs; Loudoun Cameron, spectacular magician, also gives a clever turn; and Rita Resdan, an impersonator of male characters, is most successful. Sandy and Carl, speciality comedians, are good; and Long Amos, comedian, creates much fun.

COVENTRY.—Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Bennett.—The powerful drama entitled The Passion of Life was accorded an enthusiastic welcome here on Monday. Mr. Hugh Carmichael is capital in the rôle of Horace O'Neal; Miss Nelson Ramsay shows capability as the hero's wife, Belle O'Neal; Mr. Talieseyn G. Davies deserves credit for his representation of the adventurer, Ralph Flint; while Mr. Harry Delmar is equally successful as the confederate, Abdullah. Miss Agnes Collier is a charming favourite as Princess Nitra; Mr. Herbert Fuller and Miss Emily Lewis are responsible for the humour, as Dan Grouts and Tilly Tripp respectively.

CREWE.—Lyceum Theatre.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor.—Mr. G. T. Sante and company have been appearing here this week with The Life of a Showman. Mr. Sante, who plays the title-rôle, exhibits some clever feats with heavy weights; the Bros. Testo produce a comic musical interlude with success; the parts of Dickie, as played by Master Harry Warden, and Lynette by Miss May Warden, are greatly appreciated; Mr. Sam Arthur as Hendrick Marais gives a good portrayal of the heavy villain, being well supported by Miss Amy McNeill as Agatha Winter. Miss A. Granville is suitably cast as Angelina Mutton.

CROOK.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Wallace Davidson, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Wallace Davidson.—An agreeable change is made this week by the engagement of Mr. A. E. Smith's company in the pantomime, Aladdin. Miss Elsie Douglas makes a graceful and dainty hero, her singing and dancing being excellent; Miss Maud Bettison, as the Princess, displays a good voice; Miss Fanny Douglas is a smart Pekoe; and Mr. Fred Ramsdale is clever as the Widow Twankey. Foremost amongst the specialities is Madame Helen Godfrey, a clever lady instrumentalist. Miss Elsie Douglas, an exceptionally good rag-time dancer; the Snowdrops, expert dancers; and Arnold, in a wonderful illusion act.

CROYDON.—Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Lawrence.—Mrs. Lewis Waller and company are winning golden opinions here this week, the attractions being Zaza, Vilma, and The Admiral's Lady. In Vilma, Mrs. Waller gave a well-thought-out impersonation of the title-rôle, which was full of skilful touches. Mr. Eric Mayne distinguished himself as Lieut. Count Alexis Souvaroff; the parts of Lieut. Vladimir Olitsky and Lieut. Nicholas Boroff, were safe in the care of Messrs. Edgar Coyne and Edmund Waller; Mr. J. Hennessey acted earnestly as Colonel Mazoff; Mr. Strickland was commanding as the Grand Duke Ivan; Mr. Frederick Jacques was efficient as Fadei; and Mr. H. Gomer May spoke his lines with effect as Peter Varensky. Miss Rosemary Rees acted with judgment and taste as the Countess Souvaroff; Miss Ethel Warwick's Baroness Olga Boroff was full of interest; Miss Minnie Rayner was a womanly Madame Varensky; and Miss Kate Kearney was of valuable assistance as Natouchka.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company is giving commendable renderings here of Her Wedding Day and Her Fatal Past. In the last-named, Mr. Percy Bell acts with skill and ability as Mark Desmond; Mr. Charles H. Lester gives a graphic portrayal of Gilbert Farnside; Mr. T. Edward Ward provokes hilarity as Jonathan Buckstone Nobbs; Mr. Reginald South is capital as P. C. Smithers; and Mr. Victor Mason is well placed as Dicky Bird. Miss Ward is quite in touch with her audience in the rôle of Honor Symes; Miss Marguerite Thorne is satisfactory as Martha Springwell; Miss Amy Maitland is praiseworthy as Kitty Springwell; and Little Holly Hazlewood is clever as Leonard.

Palace Theatre of Varieties, Limited.—Resident General-Manager, Mr. Eustace H. Jay.—Mr. Jay is being complimented on the excellence of his programme here this week. Peggy Lennie and Walter Hart bring down the house in their novel fantasy, The Sea Nymph; Rosie Lloyd, comedienne, is very good; Espinosa and Neilson are smart speciality dancers; Forrest and King are expert eccentric dancers; Horace White, ventriloquist, shows great skill; Tots Davis, comedienne, is a warm favourite; Maud Venn is a frolicsome comedienne; the New Macs are knockabout comedians and dancers, who would be hard to beat; the Raies, comedians and dancers, are received with approbation; Fanny Robina scores with her ditties, "Don't fly away Robin," and "My Little Baby Boy"; Stern and Stern are a unique pair of comedians; the Sisters Dorrell are fascinating duettists and dancers; Silent Tait is capital in a comic juggling act; Pattie Bella is a bright serio; and Mr. Fred. S. Partridge's orchestra works well together.

DARLINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Manageress, Mrs. T. W. S. Jennings.—The boards here this week are occupied by Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company in Bound to Win. Mr. F. G. Kimberley appears successfully as Harry Lyndon; Mr. Sydney Rennef contributes some good acting as Squire Forbes; Mr. F. Strickland is excellent as Philip Ayre; Mr. James Hont is quite at home as Ned Oakley; as Horatio Buffit Mr. Edgar Morgan puts in some capable work; Mr. Horace Custine is smart as Willie Wilkins; Mr. Fred Tenaur makes a good Joe Blake; and Master Harry Hont deserves praise for his "turn" in Act III. As Marion Forbes, Miss Lottie Addison (Mrs. F. G. Kimberley) is seen to advantage; Miss Kathleen Eckhart is well suited in the part of Gladys Orme; and Miss Edie Macklin, as Winnie Oakley, is a great favourite. A special feature is the introduction of two thoroughbred horses.

DARWEN.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. E. L. Ormsby.—Mr. Charles Harrington's company in Uncle Tom's Cabin is the attraction here this week. Uncle Tom is capitally depicted by Mr. J. Carr; Mr. J. H. Renney gives an excellent impersonation of Phineas Fletcher; Mr. Charles Harrington renders the rôle of Mr. St. Clair with good taste; Mr. Guy P. Ellis makes a clever exponent of George Harris; and Mr. J. H. Rodgers is good as Legree. Mr. Fred Charles is funny as Marks, making the most of his opportunities. Eliza Harris is capably portrayed by Miss Hetties Johnson; and Topsy is cleverly undertaken by Miss Sylvia Stella; who dances and sings with excellent taste.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—This week local playgoers are being treated to a third spell of pantomime. The Babes in the Wood is the title, and the company has been organised by Mr. H. A. Jordison. Miss Ada Martine plays Maid Marion exceedingly well, and is, moreover, a charming vocalist and dancer; Miss Madge Daley, as Robin Hood, gives a dashing assumption; Miss Edie Dunker is a delightful Venus. The Two Babes are impersonated by Miss Dolly Cullen and Miss Elsie Jordison, who are in every way highly praiseworthy. The Misses Ethel and Bella Brookland in their respective rôles are responsible for some clever and graceful dancing; and Miss Kitty Caffrey is an attractive Marjorie. Messrs. Cullen and Carthy, who enact the two robbers, are extremely diverting, their jokes and patter having the merit of a comparative newness. Mr. Edward Avon, who plays Baron Toodle, is, in his particular way, unique, and he shines both as a comedian and dancer. Mr. Rowland Hill does well as Peggy, the Schoolmistress, making the most of his opportunities. A special word should also be given Little Cluley, whose impersonation of the Chief Constable is most humorous; indeed, he is as funny a little fellow as has been seen locally for many a long day. Several remaining parts are all well handled, and there are some capital turns by the Jordison Empire Troupe of dancers. Mr. Geo. Chanti gives his illustrations of the national dances and costumes of various peoples of the globe, with quick changes of scene and costume. His performance is as surprising as it is admirable. The production is thoroughly well staged.

Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—The attraction here this week is the Imperial Boys' Orchestra, under the conductorship of Herr Wilhelm Linde. Their renderings of several selections are heartily appreciated. Charles Ulrick, described as The Barrel King, also gives a clever performance; The Fitzroys, society gymnasts, are skilful and graceful performers on the trapeze; Ralston Bros., introducing their chorus sensation, are clever and entertaining. Beatie Foster is successful as a descriptive vocalist; and Wallace Whitney, eccentric character comedian, and Jack Manley, comedian, both merit praise. The animated pictures add largely to the success of the programme.

DEWSBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Resident Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—Florodora, under Mr. Wentworth Croke's management, is paying a third visit here. As Dolores, Miss Leonora Grieve sustains this rôle admirably, and is also heard to advantage. Miss Daisy Byford, as Angela, is distinctly good, and receives much support from Mr. Derick Knowles as Arthur Donegal. Miss Rene Steadman adds materially to the general success by her careful handling of Lady Holyrood; and Mr. T. Ellis-Buxton, as Gilfain, is consistent throughout. Mr. Albert Bruno, a new Tweedlepunch, evokes much genuine mirth. Frank Abercoed, in the hands of Mr. Cyril Dare, receives careful treatment. Mr. P. Howard Sturgess returns as business manager for Mr. Croke.

Hippodrome.—General Manager, Mr. G. Weldon.—A distinct success is being attained here by Gillin, a really clever and original ventriloquist. The O'Malleys, in their eccentric comedy act, are smart; Carrie Leslie, ballad vocalist, has sensible songs; Calmon, the wizard of the wheel, shows his skill as a trick cyclist; and J. T. Willcox, comedian, has a taking and refined turn. Senorita Fillis, globe performer, is distinctly clever; and Cohen and Page, society artists, with Louis Murray, actor-vocalist, and the Bioscope, worked by Mr. Harris, make up a sound and attractive programme.

DONCASTER.—New Grand Theatre and Opera House, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Ample delectation is provided here this week by a variety combination. Staig's motoring in mid-air causes a furore; Barney Noble, character comedian, is effective; Olive Poole, comedienne and clog dancer, is excellent. Mannering and Anderson, in the farcical sketch, The Other Charlie, convulse the house. George Wyres, a quaint comedian; Reg Bolton, comedian and patterer; Jay Lawrier, in the laughable sketch, An Extra Turn; and Billy Kass and Co., in The Hot Member, are all well received.

DOVER.—Theatre Royal.—Mr. J. D. Hunter's company opened here on Monday with Aladdin. The pantomime is staged with all the careful attention to detail so long associated with Mr. Hunter's production, and the whole performance is full of life and go. The cast has been carefully selected. Miss M. Sadie makes a dainty and captivating hero, and renders her songs in capital style, being repeatedly encored. She is considerably assisted by the excellent acting and charming personality of Miss Elsa Brull as the Princess Balbroubador, their numerous duets being particularly pleasing. Miss Vera Dudley, as Pekoe, proves herself a smart dancer, and Miss Ivy Bolton, as Nicey Picey, plays the part with unusual vivacity and animation. Miss Gertie McQueen's cultured voice is heard to advantage in a song entitled, "Always"; and the Four Sisters McQueen deserved commendation for their portrayal of the parts of the Genii of Lamp and Ring. Mr. J. D. Hunter, the possessor of a rich vein of suave humour, is irresistibly funny as Widow Twankay. A clever comedian, Mr. Dick Tubb is entrusted with the part of the Vizier and is exceedingly amusing; Mr. Fred Boulton, as the Emperor, is genuinely humorous; and much laughter is caused by the antics and practical jokes of Mr. George Mayer and Ben Boden as Wishee and Washee, two Chinese constabulary. Mr. Victor Vernon is mirth provoking as Abanazar, the magician, and wins success with his admirably rendered comic songs. The specialities include Mdlle. Bartenelli, an exceedingly graceful contortionist; the Verona Jap Quartet of Lady Dancers; the Four Sisters McQueen, operatic vocalists, and an extremely pretty spectacular finale, The Feast of Lanterns.

DUBLIN.—Gaiety Theatre.—Lessees, Michael Gunn, Limited; General Manager, Mr. Charles Hyland.—Mr. C. W. Somerset and company opened here on Monday with The Sorrows of Satan. Mr. C. W. Somerset gives a realistic impersonation of Prince Lucio Aramon, and Mr. Talbot Homewood appears with success as Paul Carruthers. Mr. Richard Norton admirably portrays the part of Crafton Lyle, and Miss Agnes Russell is effective as Margaret Forster. Lord John Wellington Burrows is played in an able manner by Mr. Keith Fraser, and as Mary (Margaret's child), Miss Daisy O'Neill is excellent. Mr. W. Rotherham, as Peter Wurrell and Mr. J. Malcolm Watson, as the Rev. Mr. Starkie, are both capital in their respective parts; and Miss Leah Marlborough makes an efficient Lady Delia Dragnette. Mr. Louis Downs is good as John Grabley, and the rôles of the Hon. Ethel Cholmondeley and Mother Wurrell are well sustained by the Misses Geraldine Somerset and J. Burnside.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot.—A farcical comedy, While the Cat's Away, and Heart of Gold, a one-act play, were produced here on Monday evening. Notices of these new plays will be found in another column.

Queen's Royal Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Whitbread; General Manager, Mr. Kennedy Miller.—Mr. Kennedy Miller's annual benefit took place here on Monday night, when an attractive programme was presented to a large audience. The popular Irish drama, Kathleen Mavourneen, was played by Mr. Kennedy Miller's company, with much success, and the variety artists from the Empire and Tivoli theatres, together with the local talent who appeared, added considerably to the night's entertainment.

Empire Palace Theatre.—General Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. S. Figgis.—At this popular establishment, the principal item is supplied by the Boisset Troupe, in The Wild West, which causes roars of laughter. The Sisters Neilson, comediennes and dancers, have many admirers; and Harry Grey, the Australian nugget, is well received. The Two Bostons, comedians, score a success; and Miss Helen Martin, ballad vocalist, merits applause. Victor Travers, eccentric comedian, is going strong; and Lulu Gould, who remains from last week, is as pleasing as ever. My Fancy is an expert dancer; and the Empire pictures are also good.

Tivoli Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hughes head the bill here this week, and meet with a warm reception. The musical turn of Silvo is appreciated; and Johnny Chippendale, comedian, is well received. The Narow Bros., knockabout cyclists, meet with success; and Carlotta Mayson is a capital comedy vocalist. Onda and Leon, conversational gymnasts, meet with approval; and Mamie Iris sings and dances in pleasing style. Harry Nelson is an amusing comedian; and Alec Aubrey, gymnast, and Mdlle. de Vena, club juggler, are also appearing.

World's Fair and Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The company engaged here includes Madam Hypa, clairvoyant; Abe Laxey, comedian; Sivane and Fieldon, comedy duo; Prof. Anderson, ventriloquist; Eugene, palmist; and Oreste, musical clown.

Samuels' Exhibition Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels. — The following artists are appearing here: Leon and Leoni, musical eccentrics; Kitty Lacelles, serio; Paul Pryde, comedian; Miss May Ashton, ballad vocalist; George Harcourt, instrumentalist; the Widerauxs, illusionists; and Sheelah, palmist.

DUDLEY.—Opera House.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—The Village Blacksmith is paying a first visit here this week. Mr. Samuel Livesay, as John Armstrong, acted in a bold and convincing style; Mr. Jos. Carter, as Captain Leo, made a typical stage villain; Mr. Fred Wells did well as Lucas Marlow; Mr. George Campbell worked hard as Billy Twigg; and Miss Laura Walker gave a powerful portrayal of the much persecuted heroine, Kate Strong.

Empire.—Managing Director, Mr. Tom Pritchard.—An exceptionally strong programme is provided at this house this week. The Elliotts, in addition to their marvellous musical abilities, give a bicycle turn that has never before been equalled in this town, each member performing with grace, ease, and agility tricks that appear impossible. The Two Leons are clever duettists and dancers; and Billy Williams is an Australian comedian with some good patter. Marie Reeve is a pretty little comedienne, who dances cleverly; Newham and Latimar are amusing duettists; George Formby is aptly described as a favourite comedian; and Mitzi, a Japanese juggler; and Melita, international dancer, complete the bill.

DUMFRIES.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Mr. Henry Eglington's company under the direction of Messrs. J. C. Vaughan and Edward Heanley, opened here on Monday in When the Lights are Low. Mr. Edward Heanley was successful as Guy Goldsworthy; Mr. Dick Seddon was humorous as Willie Wilkens; Mr. Edward Millins, as Donald Macpherson, was well received. Miss Grace Baring was natural in her portrayal of Nan Christie; Little Mabel Ronald, as Stella Goldsworthy, played the part in a very pathetic manner. A Fool's Paradise was billed for Thursday and Friday.

DUNDEE.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; General-Manager, Mr. Sandon Perkins.—Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer and company are located here this week. On Monday, Mary, Queen of Scots was produced, in which Mrs. Palmer, in the title-rôle, again proved herself to be a most artistic and painstaking actress. Mr. F. Skein made a capital Lord Leicester; Mr. S. Bland was a courtly Lord Burleigh; and Mr. Boyd Pearson a most excellent Sir Amyas Paulet. Mr. E. Grogan, as Sir Edward Mortimer, created a good impression.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—A capital company is at present playing here, headed by Mr. Harry Starr, the well-known author and actor. The play is entitled, Otto, the Outcast, in which Mr. Starr, in the title-rôle, gives a very clever performance throughout.

Palace Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Will Parker; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. Alf. Ross.—The premier position here is occupied by Park's Eton Boys, who repeat their success of last season. Mr. Jack Lorimer has scored a success with his songs and mimicry. Professor Vox again submits his smart ventriloquial entertainment; Raffin's monkeys go through a clever act; the Three Sisters Victoria are capable song and dance artistes; and Walter Wallis, comedian, takes very well. Annie Langley and Feather's cinematograph are also in the bill.

EASTBOURNE. — Pier Pavilion. — Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Langhorne Burton and company are appearing here in Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace. Miss Frances Davie has much to do as Mrs. Gorringe, and her bright, vivacious acting makes her a complete success. Miss Kathleen Russell wins all hearts by her sympathetic rendering of Isabel; Miss Viola March does good work as Mrs. Jardine; and Miss Haidee Hemsley is an animated girlish Vicky. Mr. Langhorne Burton gives a fine rendering of the part of Captain Mowbray, his performance being most finished throughout. Mr. Langdon Bruce, in the difficult part of David Cairne, contributes a careful study. Mr. T. S. M. Stewart is a realistic and amusing Colonel Jardine and Mr. Brember Wills does well all that is necessary as Detective Jernigan.

Devonshire Park Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. Standen Triggs.—Mr. Charles Frohman's capital company is appearing here in Merely Mary Ann. Mr. Alexander Calvert, as Lancelot, contributes a well-defined and very capable performance full of point and interest. Mr. Reginald Dance is a frank and humorous Peter; Mr. Fred Grove is an amusing Rev. Samuel Smedge; and Mr. Frank Lacy does excellent work as Brahmson and Tottenham. Mr. Eric Fenton and Mr. George Belmore are efficient helpers in the smaller parts. Miss Grace Armytage Noble claims a large share of the honours of the evening for her artistic, unaffected work as Mary Ann. Unqualified praise must be accorded to Miss Alice Esden, whose performance as Mrs. Leadbatter is conspicuously clever. Miss Mabel Garden is an effective Rosie, and good help is given by the remaining members of the cast.

The Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Barton and Ashley head the bill here this week, and return to again triumph with their original business and sketch, Canal Boat Sal. Miss May Henderson is an extremely smart step-dancer, and her quick, vigorous work is heartily applauded. The Langdons, in illustrated songs, provide a popular turn; Miss Mabel Hind sings sweetly in a pretty Japanese scena; Miss Beattie Bloom is a favourite as a comedienne; Whisper is a juggler with funny novel business and tricks; Mr. E. W. Selman scores as a comedian, and the Hippodrome pictures and Joko and Koko, with performing animals, complete the programme.

Ebbw Vale.—King's Theatre.—Sole Lessees, Messrs. Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; Manager, Mr. Arthur Knight.—Mr. Horace Stanley's company is here in The 10.30 Down Express. Jack O'Malley is powerfully taken by Mr. Harry T. Wood; and Mr. Wallace Campbell makes the most of the part of James Inderwick; Mr. Fred Cooper, as Seth Coombes, Mr. Horace Spencer, as Sam Wagstaff, and Mr. Arthur E. Francis, as Blotherby, fill in a particularly strong comedy cast. Miss Effie Bartlett scored as Bessie Leigh, and Miss Kate Kilpack, as Peggy Potts, is one of the successes of the performance.

Eccles.—Lyceum Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Potasch and Warale; Manager, Mr. P. Potasch; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Ryan-Smith.—Mr. Peter Thompson's pantomime, Babes in the Wood, is paying a return visit here this week. Miss Maude Beaumont makes a dashing Robin Hood; Miss Molly Hackett does well as Maid Marian; and the comedians include Messrs. J. Templar Ellis, the Danbys, and Fred Danvers. The Sisters Grahame play the parts of the Babes. Specialities include the Achmed Ibrahim Troupe of Bedouin Arabs, a truly marvellous troupe; N. Y. Kioto; and the Yankee Quartette of Dancers.

Edinburgh. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Limited; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Hollister.—Sherlock Holmes is the attraction at this theatre, and presented by Mr. Charles Frohman's excellent company, it thrilled a large audience on Monday. The main burden of the performance fell on Mr. H. F. Saintsbury, who, in the title-rôle, thoroughly realised the ideas of the authors. His imperturbable bearing and quiet nonchalant style were admirable, and by intense earnestness and carefully-finished acting he held the rapt attention of the house. Mr. Lawrence Leyton played Dr. Watson with notable ability, and the cool villainies of Professor Moriarty were vividly portrayed by Mr. W. F. Stirling. The character of James Larrabee was powerfully sustained by Mr. Leslie Carter, while Mr. J. Poole Kirkwood made a first-rate appearance as John Forman. Other parts were carefully filled by Messrs. Pelham Rayner, James F. Anson, and Gissing Walters, Mr. Walter Hicks causing much amusement as Billy. Miss Vera Longden gave a charming and sympathetic embodiment of the persecuted Alice Faulkner, and Miss Maud Linden was a sufficiently bold and crafty Madge Larrabee. Miss Lilian Locke proved a smart Terese, and Misses Clarice Doncaster and Ethel St. Leger completed a capital cast, as Mrs. Faulkner and Mrs. Smedley respectively. The play was elaborately staged.

Lyceum Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Limited; General-Manager, Mr. G. T. Minshull.—Charming Miss Ada Reeve paid a return visit to this theatre with the successful musical comedy, Winnie Brooke, Widow. Miss Reeve's realisation of the title-rôle is one of her most radiant triumphs, and she displays in her acting as the fair and fascinating widow a mastery over the whole gamut of comedy, which proclaims her a consummate artiste. On Monday night Miss Reeve, though suffering from a cold and throat trouble, pluckily played her part, and played it to the entire satisfaction and manifest delight of the audience, who by the vigour and heartiness of their applause rose to the occasion as thoroughly as did the actress by the spirit and vivacity of her acting. Despite her cold, Miss Reeve sang with never-failing expression and remarkable effect, and after each act she had the warmest of receptions. Miss Reeve received valuable support from a well-chosen company. As Dudley Mayne, Mr. Charles Weir was excellent in all his scenes with Winnie Brooke, the way in which the would-be woman-hater gradually succumbs to the wonderful widow's charms being ably depicted. Mr. Edgar Stevens was the right man in the right place as Reginald Frampton, and as singer, actor, and dancer, acquitted himself well. Exceedingly humorous was the Julian Croft of Mr. L. Ashton-Jarry, whose comic by-play was of a high order. The Rev. Elihu Garside was impersonated by Mr. Frederick Tyrrell with a keen sense of the ludicrous side of the character, and the Hercules Grant of Mr. Donald Price Evans was a little gem of comedy. Mr. Ulick Broke was sufficiently crusty as Toby Blossom, and the genial Montague Brent of Mr. Harry Halley was a delightfully funny and finished creation. Miss Drusilla Wills was very droll as Honoria, the cockney laundry-maid, making the most of her opportunities; Gracie and Nora had comely exponents in Miss Mabel Murray and Miss Ruth Hazelwood, Mrs. Charles Maltby being admirable as Hannah, the housekeeper.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Eade Montefiore.—The pantomime of Dick Whittington continues its merry run here, and John Tiller's sparkling extravaganza has been received nightly with unstinted applause. The dancing is a great source of attraction, and the comic side is not neglected, Mr. Bob Selvidge keeping things humming with his bright sallies and humorous quips. Miss Gracie Graham makes a dashing Dick, and has become quite a favourite, and no less popular is Miss Fanny Harris as Alice, whose singing is most successful. The dancing of the various troupes is most attractive, and the more elaborate ballets are full of Tilleresque grace and animation.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—Mr. Malcolm Scott, fresh from his pantomime triumphs at the Theatre Royal, in this city, appeared here on Monday, when his admirers assembled in force. His humorous discourse on things historical was as novel as it was amusing, and his many original remarks were received with loud applause. The Brothers Leslie combined comedy with music in diverting fashion, and the Two Butterflies showed remarkable agility as gymnasts, their act being characterised by neatness and grace. The Albert and Edmunds troupe are old favourites here, and were welcomed in their lively and laughable sketch, A Trip to Boulogne, in which all the members of the company distinguished themselves. Messrs. Palles and Cussick, with their burlesque boxing business and clever patter, caused much laughter; Miss Florrie St. Clair sang and danced with acceptance; and Miss Katie Butler was well received in her comic studies of humble life. Liszt's Bears remain over from last week; and Harry Clifford and T. C. Callaghan, both vocal comedians, complete the company.

Pavilion Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Tom Ellis.—Mr. A. W. B. Kingston's company appeared at this house on Monday in the powerful drama, A Man in a Thousand, which had a hearty reception from a large audience. Mr. Victor Millard played the hero, Owen Penrose, with due effect, and other parts were well sustained by Messrs. James Sommerville, T. Alfred Duncan, and Will Oswald, whose comedy was first class. Miss Fanny Mathews was highly successful as Hester Penrose, the hero's mother, and Miss Vera Moseley also appeared with éclat.

EXETER. — Theatre Royal.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Fred Pollard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Messrs. Parrington and Dew's company in that successful musical comedy, The 'Varsity Belle opened here on Monday. There was no doubt that both the play and the players were appreciated. Miss Florence Brandon was very smart as Gaye Sparkleton, and her rendering of "I would like to be a boy sometimes," coupled with her captivating style and charming manner, added much to the enjoyment of the musical farcical comedy. As Professor Septimus Stone, Mr. Henry Chichester was extremely funny. Mr. Harry Collier, the old Drury Lane clown, who is well known in the West of England, had a warm reception. He gave an intensely amusing rendering of the travelling actor-manager (Mr. Theocritus Ward Sparkleton). Mr. John R. Val, as the college scout, was a typical character. Miss Estella Despa scored as Mrs. Barker; and Miss May Cardew (the Professor's loving wife) and Miss Muriel Lochner (Bertie Perrin's intended) were both very successful.

FALKIRK.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—For the first three nights Cousin Kate was staged by the company of Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison, and was well received. Miss Edith Walker was a charming Kate Curtis; Mr. Walter Ringham did well as Heath Desmond; Miss Nina Cressy was a motherly Mrs. Spencer; Miss Hilda Honiss was effective as Amy Spencer; Mr Donald MacLean was satisfactory as the Rev. James Bartlett, and Miss Betty Castle was amusing as Jane. A pleasing curtain-raiser was A Case for Eviction. On Thursday and Friday The Shaughraun was presented by Mr. E. C. Matthews' company, Mr. Matthews himself appearing as Conn.

FARNWORTH.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Morton Powell.—This week we are having a visit from that hardy annual, The Grip of Iron, which is being presented by Messrs. E. H. Knight and George Denham's company. The play does not seem to have diminished in drawing power, and a good house showed its appreciation on Monday. Mr. Fred Powell again played the part of Simmonet with all his old power, and right enthusiastic was his reception; Mr. John Brittain as Dodot, and Mr. Harry Agar Lyons as Alphonse de Coucon, the detectives, were all that could be desired. As Paul Blanchard, Mr. W. R. Winning gave a creditable performance; Miss Georgie De Lara, as Cora Simmonet, was excellent throughout.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Lawrence Brough's company, in The Lady of Ostend and The Saucy Sally, is here this week. In the first-named piece, Mr. Harry Hampson displays considerable ability as Dick Whortles; Mr. Percy Marshall is a first-rate Joseph Carbury; Mr. Lawrence Brough, as Le Baron de Longueville, gives a capital rendering of that rôle; Mr. L. Cory Thomas is equally successful as Toby Krockitt; Miss Maud Buchanan makes the most of her opportunities as the Lady of Ostend; Miss Eleanor Gilbart is good as Matilda Carbury; Miss Doris Vayne is effective as Millie; and Miss Kate Milford gives a very fine performance as Dolly Whortles. The curtain-raiser, Margaret's Stratagem, is exceedingly well played.

GAINSBOROUGH.—King's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Cromo.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company paid us a return visit with The Chinese Honeymoon, for three nights last week, and succeeded in drawing good houses. Mr. Steave Louch again gave his excellent representation of the Emperor, a remark which is equally applicable to Mr. Sidney Burt, as Pineapple. Miss Ettie Cinders was a vivacious Fi-Fi. Chippie-Chop and High Lung were well played by Messrs. L. Ashmeade and M. Stewart. Miss Florence Hallam, as Soo-Soo, and Miss Alicia Norton were good, and the latter was well supported by Misses Daisy Dale and Marie Ford, as the two bridesmaids. Miss Dulcie Garland was a commanding official mother-in-law. The chorus was powerful and well-balanced.

GATESHEAD. — Queen's Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Smith.—The pantomime of Cinderella, which closes its stay here this week, continues to draw crowded audiences. The singing and dancing of the principals are features that contribute primarily to the success of the production. The eight Lilies of the Valley and the four American idols have made many favourites by their dancing, and as the principal boy, Prince Rupert, Miss Ada Twibell continues to add to her popularity. Miss Fanny Wright, as Dandini, and Miss May Marton, as Cinderella, continue to earn the encomiums of the audiences by their charming singing. Little Zola, Mr. A. G. Spry, Mr. Percy Curry, and Messrs. Conan and Doyle, contribute successfully to the funny side of the show.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Straughan. The appearance of the famous wire walker Menotti, the Stockholm wonder, has drawn crowded audiences to this theatre during the week. He is supported by a capable company. The Fred Cullane Trio produces a novel sketch, entitled The Ladies' School, which causes much amusement, while two capable comedians are Happy Attwood and Marcus Boyle. Fields and Lewis provide a "taking" turn, and the electric wonders, Marconis, are responsible for a good show. The remainder of the bill is made up by Miss Leah Arden, operatic vocalist; Les Sperrys, comic acrobats; and the Leotard Bros., all of whom provide good turns.

GILLINGHAM. — Transfield's Hippodrome.—The attractions announced here include the spectacle, Turpin's Ride to York. Nellie Lucreece, comedienne; Water Levalle, coster comedian; Little Valdo, Albini, Rabbit, Beppo and Bubbles, all in the clown department; Prince, wire walker; Theobald's animated pictures; and Mdlle. Florence, globe walker, who is assisted by Mdlle. Queenie.

GLASGOW. — Theatre Royal, Limited. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphreys.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is here with the favourite musical play, The School Girl, in which Miss Nellie Hodson sustains with charming vivacity the rôle of Lilian Leigh; while the part of Cicely Marchmont is pleasantly rendered by Miss Jenny Bonney. Miss Kate Forster as the Mother Superior acts with quiet dignity, and uses her fine voice with telling effect; also doubling the part of Mrs. Marchmont successfully. Mr. Herbert Darnley as Sir Ormsby St. Leger plays the speculative dealer in mining shares with great spirit; while the easy-going Tubby Bedford is amusingly acted by Mr. Alfred Leslie, whose songs are received with great applause. Mr. H. Ansdell scores as the artist Edgar Verney; Mr. Charles W. Anson as Peter Overend is well suited, and Mr. Charles Adeson gives a good rendering of the gruff old General Marchmont.

Royalty, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—That pleasant farcical romance, The Duke of Killicrankie, is paying a second visit here, the company being under the direction of Mr. Leigh Lovel, who makes an amusing Pitt-Welby, and provides most of the humour of the play in his love-making scenes with the widow, Mrs. Mulholland, a part excellently played by Miss Naomi Nelson. Mr. Herbert J. Bentley gives a clever rendering of the Duke of Killicrankie. Miss Octavia Kenmore was a charming Lady Henrietta, and the Countess of Pangbourne was acted in dignified style by Miss M'Aimee Murray. Mr. H. Douglass Cattell as the Highland caretaker, and Miss Helen Tytler as his wife, gave two clevely played characters, and Mr. F. Danvers-Yates as the reporter completed the cast of principals. Jerry and a Sunbeam was given in front.

King's Theatre, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—The Girl from Kay's is once again attracting crowded audiences here. Mr. George Dance's company is a strong one. Mr. H. C. Barry is exceedingly funny as Max Hoggenheimer; Miss Nancy Harvyn's Winnie Harborough is a fine performance, and she contributes her share of the music in a finished manner. Miss Rita Leonhardt acts and sings with much taste as Norah Chalmers, and Miss Dorothy Firmin as Ellen, charmingly renders her numbers; Mr Garnet Wilson supplies a good study of Harry Gordon; Mr. Fred Rolph as Joseph is clever, and his business amusing; Mr. Leslie Roy Cathie plays Percy Fitzthistle comically, and Mr. Cameron Carr does well as Mr. Chalmers; Miss Mabel Champion is a stately Mrs. Chalmers.

Royal Princess's Theatre.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—After a successful season of pantomime, this house returns to its ordinary line of business with Mr. J. H. Clyndes' company in the romantic play, A Royal Revenge. Mr. Clyndes appears as the hero Alvarez, and gives a dignified rendering of the part; artistic support being given by Mr. Jas. Willoughby as the miser Vargas, and by Mr. Fred Rivers in the part of Azan Ben Musid. Mr. C. Jordan acts with considerable spirit as the young soldier Moudega, while the part of a humorous innkeeper is well filled by Mr. Jack Bigwood; other clever assumptions being the King of Mr. Geoffrey Broughton, and the Friar of Mr. R. Webb. The leading female rôle, Inez Alvarez, is feelingly depicted by Miss Bessie Elma; an attractive girl, Cora Casilda, is found in Miss Evelyn Shannon; as a pert serving-maid Miss Annie Gratton is good, and as the Mother Teresa Miss Lizzie Lennon ac

V. Sheridan makes a charming Julie Valois. As Raffaelle Duroc, Mr. P. E. Wright gives a capital portrayal of the character; Mr. W. A. Armour is excellent as Conrad de L'Orme; Mr. J. Wood, as Fritz, and Mr. E. Rignold, as Peter Pippin, provide the comic element; Mr. F. Carlton is a clever Pitou; and Mr. R. Kloof is well placed as Gaspard Villeroy. In the garden scene specialities are introduced with great success by Misses Nora Waylett, Louie Lonora, Messrs. Reginald Kloof, Jim Woods, Frank Carlton, and Fred Rignold.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Miss Winifred Maude and company occupy the boards this week with the play, entitled The Sins of a City. Mr. Ivan Gore is successful as Donald McIvor; Mr. Horace E. Herbert is manly and earnest as Sandy; Mr. Victor du Cane gives a clever rendering of the dual rôles of Joe and Jasper Woodleigh; Ralph Breakwater is capitally represented by Mr. Leslie Beaufort; Miss Winifred Maude, as Seaweed, shows herself to be an accomplished actress; Miss Jenny Hacket is bright and merry as Madge; Miss Ellen Gray as Jenny, Miss Marie Lyons as Lesbia, and Miss Lily Seymour as Mrs. Miggs, skilfully play their respective parts. Admirable also are Mr. Victor C. Moors as Isaac Levi, and Mr. W. E. Simpson as P.C. Johnson.

GREENOCK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, The Executors of the late Mr. Alex. Wright; Managers, Messrs. A. B. Wright and J. J. Wright.—Mr. Osmond Tearle's company is here this week with a round of Shakespearean plays. On Monday, Hamlet was played. Mr. Walter Bentley's Hamlet was a fine piece of acting, and deserves the highest praise; the King was well played by Mr. John Lawton; Mr. Vivian Gilbert was excellent as Horatio; and Mr. Fred Sergent was very good as Laertes. Mr. William Lowe played the part of Polonius with ability; the Marcellus of Mr. James Duncan was an excellent piece of acting; and Mr. Charles Kingsley played the Ghost successfully. Mr. L. Evans was good as Bernardo; Mr. Stanley May gave a careful embodiment of Rosencrantz; and Mr. Edwin Beverley made a capital Guildenstern. Miss Lilian Herries took the rôle of Ophelia, and acted throughout with rare ability and power; Miss Fannie Chamberlain was all that could be desired as the Queen of Denmark; and Miss Phyllis French played with ability the part of Osric. The Merchant of Venice, Othello, As You Like It, The Lady of Lyons, and Macbeth, are also in the bill.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—Willie W. Bain, who heads the bill here, gives a clever display of wrestling; Harry Zetter is a smart comedian; Gravetta and Parr given an interesting pot pourri act, introducing clay modelling; the Great Dardini, and his black assistant, provide an intensely funny juggling act; the Brothers Vance, comedy instrumentalists, are amusing; Tom and Florrie Poole, burlesque artistes, are smart; Sam Thomson, Scotch comedian, is applauded; and Tom Bassett, Shakespearean comedian, gets a hearty reception.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Assistant Manager, Mr. S. Tolfree.—The drama, The Convict's Daughter, which has appeared here this week, is presented by Mr. Frank Bertram's company. As the escaped convict, Mr. J. W. Wilkinson shows great versatility, portraying the amusing impudence of the tramp and the powerful emotion of the wrongly-convicted man with equal ease. Mr. J. K. Walton is also imposing as the banker, Frederick Neville; and as his adopted daughter, Edith, Miss Edith Clyde is satisfactory. The contrasting characters of Harold Trevelyan and Jasper Thorn are respectively taken by Mr. Aidan Lovett and Mr. G. Moreton-Williams. Mr. Alfred Terris is responsible for much humour as the Irish constable, Patrick O'Laragan.

NEW PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. Stewart Cecil.—Acrobatics of an extraordinary description have been seen here this week. The performance of the Ameen Abou Hamad Troupe of Arabian gymnasts is as clever as it is bizarre. They are experts at pyramid building and tumbling. Susie and Protti have submitted illustrations of various kinds of dancing, which have been greatly appreciated. A ventriloquial turn of a decidedly novel kind is that given by Professor Thornbury, who uses figures sketched by himself in place of pupils. Other turns are Oliver Conroy, comedian; Lily Flexmore, comedian and dancer; Clara Victor, balladist; Gus Daniels, vocalist; and Kisbey, in a favoured speciality, The Callboy.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; General Manager, Mr. H. C. Arnold, jun.—A smart display of juggling is that given at the Hippodrome by the Three Geraldos. They are especially clever in the manipulation of clubs and hoops. The Brothers Lang, who are described as affectionate, but who show their fraternal feelings in a rather unique fashion, have provided an amusing turn. Clever juggling is also presented by Angeline, a lady performer. A display of physical contortion, by Wilfred, is interesting, and the same may be said of Major Sitherland's gun spinning. Law and Norman, in a comedy act; Bouvrie Pleydell, comedian and dancer; and the Bioscope pictures complete the programme.

GUERNSEY.—ST. JULIAN'S HALL.—Lessee, Mr. C. Robert Perkins.—This week the boards are in possession of the Guernsey Musical and Dramatic Club, in Gilbert and Sullivan's opera, The Pirates of Penzance. On Monday the performance was under the patronage of the Lieutenant-Governor and the élite of the island. The opera has been carefully rehearsed, the chorus works well together, and to the music full justice is done by an efficient orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. E. Dobree. The audiences are large and responsive, and from an amateur standpoint the interpretation is really excellent, and reflects great credit on all concerned. Mr. F. W. McKee, a favourite here, has in Major-General Stanley a part that suits him admirably, his acting being truly artistic; Mr. G. H. Cadman—a decided acquisition to the club—presents a conception of the Pirate King that is both musically and dramatically good; Mr. A. Rose makes the most of his opportunities as Samuel; Mr. J. G. Courtice, R.A., as Frederic, proves himself a clever amateur; and General Stanley's daughters are engagingly played by the Misses Cheyne, G. Durand, and Robinson. The part of Ruth is entrusted to Miss G. Palmer, whose efforts merit warm praise. Mrs. Crawford, as Mabel, has won her way to the hearts of the audience; Mr. A. J. McKee is very droll as the Sergeant of Police; and Mr. F. W. McKee is to be complimented on his able stage-management.

HALIFAX.—GRAND THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Acting-Manager, Mr. Norman M. Robinson.—Mr. George Dance's company, in A Country Girl, is here this week, and is being received with considerable favour.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—This cosy, comfortable, and popular theatre provides some excellent entertainments for its patrons. This week's company includes Madame Rosina Casselli, with a troupe of extremely clever performing dogs; Pat Rafferty, Irish comedian; Henriot and Sauvion, burlesque conjurors; Sinclair and Parr, vocal duettists; Vanola, antipodeste; Ross and Lewis, a clever turn, in which excellent dancing is prominent; Herbert Betts, comedian; Royal Zerbinis, in an electrical musical scena; and Morretti and Alice, equilibrists.

HANLEY.—ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Howard.—Mr. C. P. Levilly's company is this week presenting the sprightly comic opera, Amorelle. Miss Ada Grey, as Lesbia, is distinctly successful, this lady has a capital appearance, and renders her vocal items admirably. Mr. Leon Simkin, as Dr. Crow, is exceedingly funny, and makes the most of his opportunities; Miss Empsie Bowman, in the title part, is well placed, her songs "I Wander" and "I don't cry for the Moon" being exceptionally good. Jules finds a clever exponent in Mr. Arthur Cozens; and Mr. Horace Manger, as Alphonse, is highly successful; Mr. Edward Granby does well, and Mr. George Paulton, as the banker, is seen to advantage. Mr. Fred Carrington, a gentleman with a capital voice, is heard to advantage in "'Twas a stormy Night."

GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. James Wynis.—Another good programme is submitted here. The premier position is held by Mr. Cliffe Berzac, with realistic representations of the St. Leger, which is both novel and entertaining; Lilith, the flying lady, introduced by Mr. Fred Harcourt, is well received; Tom Lloyd, who is always welcome here, is once more received with enthusiasm; Vermando is a smart ventriloquist; Fred Harcourt, in his conjuring turn astounds his audiences with his feats; Great Scott juggles admirably. One of the best turns on the bill is Sandfor and Lyons, patterers, singers, and dancers, who contribute a turn of much excellence; Lilian Warren, in her illustrated songs, meets with success. The Grand pictures are excellent.

EMPIRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—This cosy house was reopened on Monday as a variety hall once more, and with Mr. Edwardes as manager should prove successful. Ben Harris and company present a boxing sketch, viz., A Promising Pupil, which is most entertaining; The Herald Comedy Four are excellent, their singing being capital, and their dancing good; Miss Kitty Timms is a good ballad vocalist; Arthur Kendall is a smart descriptive vocalist; Bromley and Fontein are a capital duo; Joe Mac is a distinct success; The Alskarno Trio are Risley performers and tumblers of ability; The Sisters Bronson are a success, and the Empire pictures are capital.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cyril Fielden Smith.—The York Operatic Amateurs, under the direction of Mr. W. A. Forster Todd, produced the comic opera, Falka, here, after a week's run at the York Opera House, in aid of the Harrogate Infirmary Enlargement Fund. The production, which has been superintended by Mr. Hugh Moss, proved a great success.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Craggs; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—The programme here, which is an attractive one, is headed by The Four Cliftons, marvels in the acrobatic line; their performance is greeted nightly with unbounded enthusiasm. Julian Mack's "Doomsday Book" is conspicuous for its wit and humour; Cissie Curlett, mimetic vocalist, is clever; a smart and clever cycling exhibition is given by Newhouse and Ward. A pleasing turn is contributed by Edie Charnley, comedienne and dancer; and Oakdene, ventriloquist; and Bennett and Martell, the lunatics, on a return visit, complete the bill.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Gaze.—Mr. Fred Karno's company, in His Majesty's Guests, is paying a week's visit here. Laughable is the diverting humour of Mr. Harry Roxbury, as Sergeant Lightning; Miss Leonora Castelle successfully plays the part of Maud, the Shoplifter; Mr. Frank Morton does well as Flash Jack; Mr. Mifflin is well presented by Mr. Charles Usher; and, as Dolly, Miss Edith Ager is pleasing. Miss Amy Rogerson is much in evidence as Miss Manly; and Mr. Harry Stuart, as a cleric hunting for subscriptions causes a diversion.

PIER PAVILION.—Pier-Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. Arthur B. Malden is occupying the boards this week, with a series of cinématograph lectures, illustrating views of cities, and scenes from all parts of the world.

HIPPODROME PALACE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr. Harold Penny.—The attractive comedienne, Miss Connie Milton, opens a good programme this week. The Collings Comedy Company introduces a comical and amusing sketch; Miss Gracie Taylor possesses a pleasing voice and style as a vocalist; Messrs. Onda and Artell engage in a clever turn of gymnastic trapeze; the Tom Davies Trio give a remarkably skilful bicycle act, entitled "Whirling the Wheel"; an amusing comedian is seen in Little Cliff; the Sisters Caselli are charming soubrettes; the Tribune Trio introduce a laughable sketch; the new bioscope exhibits some original films.

ST. LEONARDS PIER PAVILION.—Pier-Master and Entertainment-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—The good audiences which patronise the Pier Pavilion at the evening performances is a good sign that the dramatic season just commenced will be a success. This week the curtain rises to an interesting little one-act play, entitled, Nan; or, Good for Nothing. In this piece, Miss May Anderson, in a very natural manner, takes the principal character; and, in the following play, entitled Our Doctor, this lady shows much dramatic talent in the part of Julia. In this little drama also Mr. David James gives a clearly-drawn sketch of the Irishman, Felix O'Callaghan; he delights his audience with his songs and dialogue. Miss Rachel de Travis quite realises the part of the young widow; Mr. Norman Clarke acts the old gentleman to the life; and Charles, his son, could not have had a better representative than Mr. H. Allistoun.

HAWICK.—NEW THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Payne-Seddon; Lessees, Messrs. W. Payne-Seddon and Gordon Starkey.—Mr. F. R. Benson's North Shakespearean company has been here with The Merchant of Venice, As You Like It, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Romeo and Juliet, The School for Scandal, and Hamlet. The company received a hearty reception from a good audience on the opening night, when The Merchant of Venice was submitted. Miss Gladys Vanderzee gave a capital impersonation, and scored a success as Portia; Mr. Henry Herbert acted with much force as Shylock; Mr. F. Owen Chambers was seen to advantage as Antonio; Bassanio was ably played by Mr. C. Foote; and Mr. A. Begbie was good as Lorenzo. Miss Katherine Boyce is to be congratulated upon her Nerissa, and Miss C. Laws very capably sustained the rôle of Jessica. The rest of the characters were in good hands.

HEREFORD.—GARRICK THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; General-Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank J. Pitt.—This week a capital entertainment is provided here by Mr. Fred Karno's company in His Majesty's Guests. Mr. R. H. Kitchen fairly revels in the part of Captain Lightning, and throughout the piece never fails in his efforts to create laughter. Warm praise is due to Mr. Charles F. Howard as Lord Easem, his singing being quite a feature of the entertainment. Miss J. Newcombe makes a sprightly Lady Maude, her business being smartly done; Messrs. James Ross and Chas. Cardon's Selina and Fritz are most amusing, and they are responsible for a large share of the success. As Miss Manley Miss Clara Moore is effective; and Miss Doris Ainsley makes a sweet Dolly and sings effectively. Mr. Wellesley Smith is well suited as Miffin. Mr. W. Smith is the manager for the company, and the orchestra is under the bâton of Mr. O. H. Bamberger.

HOYLAND.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Owner, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—Mr. King has this week engaged an excellent variety company, including Alveno and Cleo, on the revolving break-away ladder; Roy Lovell, vocalist; Mint and Mart, comedy sketch artists; F. Orsley, comedian and clog dancer; The Bradley trick cyclists; McCleino, on the swimming mast; The Sisters Varley, duettists; Flo Melville, serio and dancer; and Mons. Leo, jail breaker and handcuff prince.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy G. Arthur.—Messrs. Bright and Maxwell's company on Monday met with an appreciative reception in Merely Mary Ann. The name part is played by Miss Nita Faydon with charming naturalness; Mr. Douglas Gerrard as Lancelot interprets the part with a manliness which very acceptably minimises the inherent priggishness of the ultra-sensitive composer; Mr. A. Carlaw Grand realises cleverly the part of Peter; Miss Gwynneth Galton contributes a well-studied piece of character-acting as the lodging-house keeper, Mrs. Leadbatter; and Rosie is effectively played by Miss Kathleen Colman.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—A capital entertainment is furnished here by Mr. Godfrey Lamplugh's company, in the musical play, Miss Mischief. Miss Isa Bowman in the title-rôle gives us a taste of those delightful powers that have made her welcome in all quarters. Mr. T. E. Conover as Private Harris, V.C., contrives to materially assist to prolong the fun. Mr. Cecil Curtis makes the most of the part of Captain Jack Bethune; and as Admiral Bethune, Mr. A. Jenner is equally praiseworthy. Mr. Beresford Lovett and Mr. Fredk. Mantell are droll as Hiram Q. Pegg and Lord Percy Fitzsherry; and as Mary Ann Smith Miss Crissie Francess is vivacious. The chorus, scenery, and dresses are excellent, and the dancing enjoyable.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Local-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—The Duchess of Dantzic is being played here this week, and the legend "House full" has had to be exposed each evening. The company is one of all-round merit. Miss Amy Augarde reveals many new charms, her Madame Sans Gêne being a charming stage picture, and one that will add much to her reputation in this city. The musical numbers allotted her are delightfully rendered. As the Emperor, Mr. Matthew Brodie looks and acts the part admirably. Mr. T. W. Volt shows his versatility as Papillon; piquant and pleasing is the Renée of Miss E. Fink; and Mr. Herbert Clayton as Lefebvre is very good.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Lessees, Mortons, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—Mr. F. A. Scudamore's striking play, The Beautiful Avenger, is the attraction this week, and is highly pleasing to the patrons of this house. Miss Nannie Mead gives evidence of exceptional ability in combining the rôles of Vashti Volta the avenger, and Victor Stanhope, explorer. Mr. Algernon Syms admirably fits the part of Cyrus Telford; Mr. Edwin Walton revels in the evil-doing of Zadoc Foxbane; and is effectively seconded by Mr. Charles T. Dols as Herman. Miss Cissy Podmore and Miss Lillian Hawkins both do good work in different ways as Edna Volta and Arabella Binks.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessees, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. Graham.—An exceptionally strong bill is presented by Mr. Graham this week. Mr. Tom Costello is always welcome, and the recent additions to his repertoire makes his visit still more pleasing. W. F. Frame, "fra' Scotland," affords a heap of fun; Mendel, the blind pianist, shows marvellous powers of memory; Jake Friedman, the "one man opera," is a pleasing member of the company, keeping the house well entertained; the Five Delevines amuse and astonish all; the Sisters Morgan in song and dance are captivating; and Harry Martell, the Julians, the Korries, and Tom Edwards, also contribute to the bill.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—General Manager Mr. Joseph W. Maloney.—Sherlock Holmes is being admirably presented here this week by Mr. Charles Frohman's company. A polished and highly finished study of Sherlock Holmes is submitted by Mr. Kenneth Rivington; and Miss Florence Radcliffe endows the part of Alice Faulkner with a grace and charm which is irresistible; Mr. Fred Inwood plays naturally as Dr. Watson; Mr. F. Clive Ross is good as John Forman; a very praiseworthy performance is given by Mr. Arthur B. Murry, as Professor Moriarty; the rôle of James Larrabee is skilfully embodied by Mr. Ernest Gray; and Mr. Harry G. Wright is amusing as Sydney Prince. Miss Carrie Lacey looks attractive as Madge Larrabee, and displays histrionic ability; and Miss Marjorie Murray is a pert Therese.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers; Musical-Director, Mr. C. Keith Smith.—A company, which includes Miss Annie Bell, is this week playing Sapho. Miss Bell herself appears with distinction as Fanny; Mr. Frederick Ross as Jean Gausin handles the part with discretion; Mr. Archie Kelsby presents a careful study of Eugene Flamant, and Miss Lottie Ray as Joseph plays well The Wilful Child. Mr. George Antley as Cesaire is capital; Messrs. K. W. Curnock and H. Langford respectively, as Paul Dechelette and Caondal give strong support; and the rôles of Father Legrand and Machaume lack nothing in the hands of Mr. J. A. Storey and Miss Laura Ray.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. G. Fisk.—Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner has been played here during the week by Mr. Peter Davey's company Mr. Norman Partridge is a manly representative of Captain Peyton, and due justice is done to the part of the Major by Mr. Elliott Ball. Mr. J. Harold Carson is seen to advantage as Mr. Valentine, the much-married man, and Messrs. Tom Taylor, Arthur Lomers, and F. Perry are of great assistance to the cast. Miss Essex Dane gives a striking and dignified portraiture of Miss Elizabeth, and other ladies' parts are adequately filled by Miss Leonora Braham and Miss Margaret Cellier.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Fred Barrett.—The chief artist in this week's programme at the Woodbridge-road place of entertainment is that popular comedian, Mr. Charles Bignell, whose songs and droll business are much applauded. Other new turns include Aryama, termed "The Japanese Wonder"; Curtis and Vanity, duettists; Master Heure, boy juggler; Miss Jessie Venlow, comedienne and dancer; Bert Raynor and Cissy Reece, singers and dancers; and Ernest Heathcote, comedian.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson.—Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company is paying a welcome visit with The Face at the Window. Mr. Augustine Knight is good in the part of the Chevalier Lucia Delgado, while Mr. T. W. Dunscombe is quite at home in the rôle of Paul Gouffet; Mr. Alan Hineson is droll as Peter Pottlebury; Miss Marie Barrett gives a charming rendering of Marie de Brisson; Miss J. Dempster is quite at home as La Pinau, and Miss Gwynne Warren scores as Babette.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Thompson; Manager, Mr. W. Childs.—After being closed for some time this place of amusement has been renovated and was opened on Monday by a first-class variety company, including the Original Franklin Troupe of Russian vocalists and dancers; Mr. W. S. Hutchinson, ventriloquist, an old Jarrow favourite; Miss Rose Winstanley, vocalist; Sisters Hypatia, vocalists and dancers; Miss Mollie Dent, comedienne and vocalist; Handel and Lee, talented musicians, with electrical effects; Miss Florrie Irvine, speciality dancer; the Jetneys, coloured comedians and dancers, and Mdlle. Kloet, with an original speciality, which meets with great success.

KEIGHLEY.—QUEEN'S THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Barnes.—Mr. Lingford Carson's drama, A Modern Adventuress, which was originally produced at Keighley, is drawing crowded audiences. Miss Kate Froude gives a fine impersonation of the adventuress, and displays unmistakable artistic talent. Mr. Leonard Aardale is seen in his original character of Pietro Donelli, and the applause lavished upon him is the reward of excellent work; Mr. E. J. Hamilton as Wallace Danton, presents a finished study complete in every detail; Mr. Evan Roland as the bluff Yorkshireman is prominent and scores a distinct success; Miss Emily Custance well supports him as Sally Hodges; Miss Alice Defoe is pathetic and effective as Vivette; Mr. Royce Carlton successfully represents Harry Delby.

KIDDERMINSTER.—NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon, jun.—The boards are occupied this week by Mr. I. F. Buckley's No. 1 company, under the direction of Mr. W. T. Elworthy, in the comedy entitled The New Clown. Mr. Frank Stanmore, in the leading part of Lord Cyril Garston, is very effective; Mr. G. H. Snazelle, as Dixon, is popular, and cleverly acts his part; Miss Beth Elliott portrays the character of Rosie Platt in a winning manner.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Bannister Howard; Business-Manager, Mr. Herbert Leonard.—Mr. E. Hoggan-Armadale's company opened on Monday with The Bells. Mr. Armadale gave a powerful impersonation of the Burgomaster; the part of Madame Mathias was capably undertaken by Miss Marie Florence, as was also that of Annette by Miss Violet Wilson; Father Herman and Fritz found capable exponents in Messrs. W. F. Clitheroe and Henry Osman. On Tuesday evening the company gave an equally meritorious performance of The Vicar of Wakefield, with Mr. Armadale as Dr. Primrose, and on Wednesday The Bells was repeated.

LANCASTER.—ATHENÆUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Hy. Wilkinson.—This week the boards are occupied by Mr. Will Hebden and company with A Day in Paddy's Market. Mr. Hebden appears in various rôles with success, and he is ably supported by Miss Jennie Clare as Mary Manners and Mr. L. Martland as the dude Percy Fitztalbot.

PALACE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. W. J. Fergusson and John Porter.—Miss Florrie Gallimore, who heads the bill here, has a wonderful reception; Bosanquet, violinist, brings down the house; Miss Odeyne Spark sings songs that are very catchy; Frank Hartley, the boy juggler, is very smart; and other attractions in a capital programme include Tom E. Cliffe, comedian; Miss May Fallowfield, vocalist; Mr. George Reeves, comedian; and Walter Payne's animated pictures.

LEAMINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Mr. Louis Calvert's company, in The Garden of Lies, was the attraction here on the first three days of the week, and played as it was by a powerful company, including Mr. Henry Renouf, as Denis Mallory, and Miss Miriam Lewes, as the Princess, was received with enthusiasm by large houses. At a flying matinée on Thursday, Mr. George Alexander and party appeared in a most attractive programme.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—This week brings a most welcome return visit of Mr. George Edwardes' company with The Cingalee. Mr. E. Statham Staples is happy in his delineation of Chambhuddy Ram. Excellent vocal work characterises the Harry Vereker of Mr. Reginald Kenneth; Mr. Colin Coop is clever and humorous as Bookhamba; and Mr. W. J. Manning is as usual eccentric and entertaining as Sir Peter Loftus. Nanoya is a fascinating portrayal by Miss Florence Smithson; Miss Eva Sandford is an exceedingly clever Peggy Sabine, and Miss Lily Elsie is a pretty and vivacious Lady Patricia. Mr. Jack Cannot is a success as Bertie Lawrence; Mr. Harold Thorley as Bobby Warren is no less effective; and Mr. Willie Warde and Mr. Edgar Warde also render valuable support.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—Under the alluring title of Life's Sweetest Sins, an excellent domestic drama is being presented here by Mr. T. Arthur Jones and company. Mr. Jones gives a powerful presentation of Captain Marston; Dr. Colbrooke has a convincing exponent in Mr. Oswald Douglas; in the humorous character of Bob Tanner success is achieved by Mr. Fred Russell; Miss Madge Morley displays considerable ability as the heroine, Doreen Rivers; and equally effective is the Fay Colbrooke of Miss Amy Rudd.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Bush.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's popular pantomime of last year, Goody Two Shoes, fills the bill here, and repeats the huge success previously achieved. Miss Daisy Dormer is again to be complimented on a dainty and charming effort in the title-rôle, which she has resumed for this week only. The principal boy is Miss Georgina Leonard, a dashing and attractive actress; Messrs. Downes and Langford are prominent throughout with many mirth-provoking encounters; Mr. George French is also very entertaining in his quaint conception of Simple Simon; and other contributors to the fun are Mr. Harry Rousby, Mr. H. F. McClelland, and Mr. Fred Lincoln. Hagedorn's Fairy Grotto forms an effective background for some striking tableaux.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss' Empires, Limited; Resident Manager, Mr. G. Mooney.—Fred Karno's comedians are prominent in the Empire programme this week with The Mumming Birds; Clown Zertho's remarkably well trained dogs also form an interesting feature; the Five Olracs do an expert acrobatic turn; the Three Donals are also acrobats of more than average ability; the Sarnthalers, a Tyrolean song and dance troupe, are deservedly popular; Lily Tiso is a promising comedienne; and Frazer and Mac, comedians and patter artistes, are old favourites. The Sisters Hayden, character vocalists; Flo Challis, speciality artist; and Harry Lawson, comedian, are also in the bill.

TIVOLI.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; General-Managers, Messrs. Edgar O. Waller and Chas Weldon.—An exceedingly smart ventriloquist, Edward F. Reynard, is a leading turn here. An expert wall-scaling exhibition by the American Zouaves is most interesting; as also are the hand-balancing feats of Jules Kellar, and the remarkable equilibristic propensities of Hen Obed, an Eastern artist. The Laares Troupe are responsible for still another acrobatic display; excellent vocal work is the speciality of Ella Rose and Miss Du Barry, and success attends the efforts of both; and the Sisters Albert, vocal duettists and dancers, complete the bill.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—Raymond and Kurkamp distinguish themselves here with an excellent vocal and musical turn, the trumpet solos by the lady being especially enjoyed. At the bottom of the bill appear Howard and Collinson with a laughable speciality, The Porter and the Parcel; Ailsa Douglas scores a success with her good singing; the juvenile Codge whistles himself into favour; James Kurry and Harry Royston supply an abundance of the comedy element; and Percy Hannam, baritone vocalist, and Eugene and Willie, musical acrobatic clowns, are other outstanding features of the bill.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; General Manager, Geo. M. Slater; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. D. Leigh.—A large audience on Monday gave a cordial reception to Mr. Ben Greet's company in The Eternal City. The highest commendation must be awarded to Miss Helen Haye for her fine impersonation of Donna Roma Valona. Mr. D. Lewin Mannering, as Baron Bonelli, is a thorough success, and Mr. Frederick Victor as David Rossi makes an exceedingly favourable impression. Mr. Leonard Grey as Pope Pius XI. ,and Mr. P. L. Julian, as Bruno Rocco, are both well to the front with admirable portrayals. Mr. Charles Stafford is very good as Minghelli.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; General Manager, Geo. M. Slater; Acting Manager, Mr. J. C. Candler.—The attraction here this week is Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmond's company in Wilson Barrett's play, The Golden Ladder. Mr. Harry Cullenford is in every way suited to the part of the Rev. Frank Thornhill, and scores a conspicuous success. Mr. J. Milne Taylor plays with dramatic power as Michael Severn. Mr. John McElroy creates great merriment as Samuel Peckaby, being capitally assisted by Miss Nellie Graham as Mrs. Peckaby. Miss Conyers Radcliffe is seen to great advantage as Lilian Grant. Mr. Raymond Chester is good as Noah Learoyd, a Yorkshireman. Messrs. Graham Winsford, Dan Mining, Edward Bikker, and Misses Janet Wakeling, Jessie Gillette, Alvina Mining, and Little Vera are also to be complimented on portrayals of much merit.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leonard Vidal.—The premier position here this week is held by the Kellinos, the remarkably clever acrobats, who are giving with the greatest success their original act, Venetia. Owing to illness, F. V. St. Clair, who was billed to appear here on Monday, was unable to do so. As a deputy the management secured the services of Frank Hilbert. This gentleman first goes through a performance in which he thoroughly astounds the audience with the ease in which he escapes from handcuffs, etc., and then, in full view of the "house," explains the mystery. His turn is very popular. The Brothers Reiff, billed as America's neatest singing and dancing act, are a smart turn. Les Brunin gives a novel juggling and billiard-ball act. Cora Cassselli, in a Spanish rôle, with dramatic song and national dance, is repeating her usual success. Lily Burnand, a sprightly comedienne, scores. Burg, Hand, and Wise give, to the accompaniment of hearty laughter, their original acrobatic comedy act. Baker and Balfe prove a popular turn, with their latest selections on the xylophone. George Ross and Ella Grayson create much merriment with their comedy duo, The Professor and the Pupil. Ambrose Thorne, in his light comedy songs, is well received, as is also Arthur Gill, the man of many voices.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank McNaughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—Topping the bill here this week are the Loma Trio, who give a fine performance as herculean gymnasts. Raymond's bioscope is projecting some entirely new pictures, and is proving one of the most entertaining items in the programme. Kathleen Robinson, comedienne and dancer, is scoring a success. Bishop and Vale maintain their popularity as entertaining comedians. Others appearing are Herbert Rule, comedian; Harry Cotton, eccentric comedian; Charles Sloman, comedian; and Millie Varcoe, serio.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Dewhurst.—Mr. T. Jarman's company is appearing here with the drama, In Dark Siberia. Mr. W. T. Riley appears to great advantage as Captain Gordon, and afterwards as Kobe, arousing much enthusiasm. Mr. Wilson Howard is an able representative of Major Waroff; Mr. Bert H. Ross is very natural as Colonel Nevski; Miss Cecilia Ransome deserves great praise for the admirable representation of Paul Gregorovitch. Princess Natalie Orloff finds a capable exponent in Miss Carlotta Anson; Mr. Louis Weston causes much amusement as Sergeant Petrovitch, and is well supported by Miss Linda Riley as Ivanova; Mr. H. Goodier scores as Bruin, and Miss Ethel Birckham as Sonia Gordon deserves mention.

LIMERICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Robert Fogerty.—Mr. Lilford Arthur's company presented The Prodigal Father on the 2nd inst. Mr. Charles Collette sustained the heavy rôle of Stanley Jones with rare ability; the part of Percy Jones was well enacted by Mr. Edmund Beresford; and as Tom Breeze we had a clever interpreter in Major David Sellar. The part of Catesby Duff was cleverly acted by Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu, and as Smith, Mr. Ernest Wintour was excellent. The rôle of Kate Jones was well sustained by Miss Rosamund Bury, who sings sweetly; Miss Ruby Chester was a vivacious and artistic Dolly Bond; Miss Irene Ross a clever little Angel Birdikens; and as Beadle, Miss Mabel Luxmore was clever.

LINCOLN.—PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Sydney Arthur.—Ahrensmeyer, the cowboy hypnotist, is presenting a remarkable performance here. Dandy George and his dog Rosie contribute a smart and taking turn; Tray and Rich are a good pair of comedians; the Two Whites create amusement with song and dance; Calvo, the vocal mimic, is successful; and George Ridgewell, comedian, scores with a couple of capital songs.

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—Good-bye was extended to Mr. Robert Arthur's ninth successful pantomime on Saturday night last, and Monday ushered in the regular dramatic season with A Country Mouse, presented by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company. Angela the ingenious, presented by Miss Violet M. Harley, is full of charm and archness. As the captivating Archibald Vyse Mr. Percy Hutchison plays with ease and discretion; an excellent Duke is submitted by Mr. F. G. Thurstans; and Mr. Charles Harley seems quite at home as John Bowlby, M.P. Miss Violet Ley and Miss Dorothy

GRAND PRIX
ST. LOUIS EXPOSITION, 1904.

Cacey fill their respective parts with credit. Judged by Appearances, from the pen of Mr. Frederick Fenn, is the curtain-raiser.

Shakespeare Theatre, Limited.—Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Gaffney.—Aladdin, the only remaining pantomime remaining in Liverpool, will finish here on the evening of the 25th inst.

Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, Jun.—Miss Nettie Ware's company is here this week with, for the first time in Liverpool, When Woman Hates. Miss Elaine Verner fills the rôle of Cora Daintry with earnestness and dramatic force; praise is due to Mr. John B. Shinton for his Lieut. Rokeby; Mr. Albert Guyon, as Godfrey Lawton, is a villain of a despicable type; the comedy part as P.-c. O'Brien is in the capable hands of Mr. Will Percy; and as Marie Rokeby and Edith Rokeby Miss Ada M. Ryder and Miss Alicia Raleigh acquit themselves creditably.

Lyric Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—The principal item in this week's bill is Mr. Joe Peterman's musical comedy, The Belle of the Orient, which is a great success. Tate and Tate are clever acrobats; Alf Farrell and Harry Hilton keep the house in roars of laughter; Bert Woodward's cycling act is well received; and Vivana's dancing is greatly enjoyed; the Rushworth's illustrated songs are good, and King Leo's ventriloquial item is very enjoyable.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. H. Fineberg; Acting-Manager, Mr. M. Simmons.—The Silver King is being played here by Messrs. Polini and Austin Melford's company. Mr. Herbert Ford is an excellent Wilfred Denver; Miss Lilian Bethel a delightful Nellie Denver, and Mr. E. J. George a capital Jaikes.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Granville; Manager, Mr. Fred Granville.—The London Fireman has this week paid a first visit to Liverpool. Mr. J. Forbes Knowles is successful as Hal Curtis; a typical villain is presented by Mr. Edward L. Garside; Miss Nellie Shirley, as Ida Curtis, acts with grace and discretion; Miss Violet Temple is a delightful Gladys Fleming; and Mr. Robert Grey shows to advantage as Viscount Fleming.

Empire, Limited.—District Manager, Mr. T. A. Cook; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Stratton.—Fresh from the Liverpool Royal Court Theatre pantomime, Mr. Edward Lewis, heading programme here this week, has been accorded a hearty reception. A well-acted trifle, entitled V.C., is given with effect by Mr. Harry Howard's company; the Rossow Midgets are exceedingly interesting; Morris's ponies display evidence of careful training; the Astleys, described as American musical farmers, give a refined entertainment; some wonderful whistling is submitted by Arthur Melrose; and others in the programme are Peppo's monkeys; the Jackson family of clever musicians; H. F. Wilson, vocalist; Fred E. Terry, comedian; the Sakers, comedy artistes; Little Uno, and Miss Daisy Mayer, a smart dancer.

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The Three Rainats are at the top of the bill here this week with their surprising work on the trapeze; Mr. Frank Coyne presents a number of new and taking songs; the shooting by Henri de Marse is exceptionally clever; the Jees give an acceptable turn with their "musical smithy"; Miss Lillie Soutter has a lot of funny "business"; some wonderfully trained pigeons are shown by Mons. Valoni; the Baldwin Bros. create much laughter with their eccentric acrobatic work; and others who appear are Carrie Joy, comedienne; the Two Errols, clever jumpers; and May Kent, burlesque artiste.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. O'Toole.—A return visit of Mr. Percy Boucher and his company with Shadows of a Great City has been the special attraction here this week. Variety turns are given by Miss Florrie Hall, soubrette; Mr. Jack Stewart, comedian; and Mr. Bert Osborne, solo banjoist. The Electrograph is also a feature.

New Parthenon.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—A very satisfying bill of fare is presented here this week, at the head of which are the Three Schaffers, gladiatorial marvels from Paris. W. O. Wills, comedian, is very amusing; Tom Blake shows himself a rollicking Irish comedian and clever dancer; Millie Harris sings several songs in a pleasing manner; as a comedian and descriptive vocalist Mr. Herbert Maden is good; Eric Graham gives several character songs; and the Dainton Girls are charming character duettists.

Paddington Palace, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. J. Kiernan.—Foremost in the bill presented here this week are the Vyponds (Fred and Maude), whose society entertainments, entitled The Honeymoon and The New Servant, have been witnessed with much pleasure. Tell and Tell are a couple of quaint eccentrics; the Dagonets, with their American banjo song and dance, are a good turn; George Edney provides a number of popular ditties; the dancing and singing of the Radium Girls are pleasing; Arthur Aiston has a number of comic songs; and an acceptable turn is that of Mayzy Osmunde, vocalist and speciality artiste.

Westminster.—Proprietor, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Henry Carlton, a popular comedian, is at the head of the bill here this week with his comedy team in the military absurdity, Obliging a Lady, which causes endless laughter. Kempston and Murdock, speciality artistes, are a good turn; Baker and Rose provide a clever quick-change act entitled The Waif's Ambition; the Moyondos go through an expert performance with their barrel and tumbling act; Mr. and Mrs. Allen Wye have a laughable farcelet, What Happened to Watt; Paul Pry is a smart comedian and whistler; and others who appear are Miss Marie St. John, coon and descriptive vocalist; and R. S. Hamilton, comedian.

Park Palace.—Director, Mr. James Kiernan.—Jack and Evelyn, smart entertainers, are here on a farewell visit; Kydd and Kydd, as patter comedians and dancers, are excellent; Wright and Aitken, assisted by Miss Belle Adams, present a neat comedy duologue, The Lady Sport; Frank Tyrell is a comedian and dancer of merit; and others on the programme are Chris. Masters, character vocalist; Fox and Melville, American song illustrators; and Joe Cookson, ventriloquist.

LLANELLY.—Royalty Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. John Tully.—Mr. Tully's well-known company is here in Uncle Tom's Cabin. The popular and genial proprietor and manager himself plays the part of the Kentucky pedlar, Phineas Fletcher, with great success. Miss Edith Blanche, a charming and clever actress, is equally successful in the dual parts of Eliza Harris and the slave, Cassy. Uncle Tom is capitally impersonated by Mr. William Taylor; Mr. E. Kellar Taylor plays the part of George Harris well; as Marks, the lawyer, Mr. St. Vincent Beechley is very good, as is also Mr. Chas. Colwyn as Mr. St. Clair. Mr. Fred G. Kay scores in the part of the rascally Legree; Little Miss Marie is a charming Eva; and Miss Kitty Wood, in the part of Topsy, is clever, her flap shoe dance and specially in the plantation scene being rapturously applauded. As Aunt Ophelia, Miss Marie Lyndon is smart; and Miss L. Danby makes a good Chloe. In the plantation scene clever specialities are also given by Miss L. Francis, vocalist; Messrs. Will Pettit, banjo soloist; Billy Taylor, whistling coon; Sergeant H. Danby, rifle and tambo expert, and the Long Brand Minstrels.

LONG EATON.—Lyceum Theatre.—We have a return visit from The Convent Bells company, under the direction of Mr. Howell Webb. This musical comedy drama introduces Mr. Stanley Carlton, who is applauded for his songs, and Miss Ruby Maude, a popular figure, as the affianced wife. The humorous element, entrusted to Miss Florrie Mandeville, Mr. Howell Webb, and Mr. Teddy Myles. The convict and convent scenes are well staged.

LONGTON.—Queen's Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. S. Howard. — Mr. W. H. Hallett, with Two Little Sailor Boys company is here this week Mr. W. H. Sams, as Noel Tregarthern, plays with good effect, and as Richard Redstone, Mr. Leonard Booker is a distinct success. Mr. W. H. Hallett gives a telling performance as Captain Tom Yorke. Both Mr. Oscar Power, as Jack Jolly, and Mr. Tom E. Sinclair, as Ben Baxter, do good service. Miss Mabel Scudamore gains many admirers with her sympathetic portrayal of Mildred Grey. Miss Blanche Steele is excellent as Lola Yorke. The two little sailor boys, represented by Miss May Grey, as Cyril, and Miss Ethel F. Greene, as Tom, win the approbation of interested audiences.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Secretary, Mr. Charles E. Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Louis Beaufort.—On Monday, Mr. Henry Swinerd's company, under the direction of Mr. J. W. Cordiner, presented Dare Devil Dorothy to a capital house. Miss Marjorie Cecil plays well as Dorothy Montrose, and her songs are favourably received. Miss Kathleen Garnon is good as Ruth. A sound performance of Captain George Fielding is given by Mr. Cecil W. Parke. As Captain Edward Dudley, Mr. Henry C. Ward acts the villain in fine style. Miss Nellie Harcourt, as Judith, together with Mr. Arthur Verne, as Silas Crump, dance and act excellently. Mr. Wilfred Carr is good as Featherstone Haugh. The sisters Mabel and Lillie Blake introduce some clever dancing, and the orchestra is under the able bâton of Mr. W. H. Eveleigh. For the last three nights of the week Mr. Clifton Alderson's A Soldier and a Man company provides the attraction.

LOWESTOFT.—Marina.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—A powerful attraction is provided this week in the drama, A Victim of Villainy, ably submitted by Mr. Walter Howe's company. Mr. Howe, who is responsible for the book, gives a really fine presentment as Frank Manton, and is warmly applauded. Mr. C. E. Wilton is powerfully cast as Stephen Cavanagh; and Mr. Leonard Howe makes the most of his opportunities as Walter Lennox. A capital sketch of the kind-hearted policeman is afforded by Mr. Geo. Mallin. A sympathetic picture of Mary Manton is given by Miss Rosa Lehmann, and Miss Muriel Dean is attractive as Cavanagh's wife. Miss Grace Mignon, as Eric, is well placed, and other parts are carefully treated. The scenery includes several fine sets.

MACCLESFIELD. — Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—The Olga Audré, Travis Green, and Arthur Hinton company is here this week in When a Man Hates, and on Monday this remarkable play was presented to a good audience. Mr. Arthur Hinton took the part of Pietro Danelli, and gave an admirable interpretation of that difficult rôle. Mr. Graham Arthurs appeared as Laurence Hastings, the young curate, and made the part most life-like and interesting. Mr. Frank Brunell acted acceptably as Detective Smart. Mr. Gerald Bryne as Paul was very good; and a capital representation of Sir Rupert Trehorne was found in M. Ploens Grino. Miss Leila Zillwood played with rare power and feeling in the rôle of Olga; Miss Marion Forrester was all that could be desired as Letty; Mr. Sydney Benson, as Peter Pimple; and Miss Nana Flensberg, as Dolly, were responsible for the humorous part of the play, and it could not have been in better hands, and their songs and dances brought down the house; Mr. William Beck, as Sergeant Wiggins made the most of his opportunities.

MAIDENHEAD. — Grand Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. Edgard Dereve and F. L. Schmitz.—Mr. Hugh Dempsey's variety company has attracted good houses, and Mr. Dempsey himself still retains his character as an excellent and versatile entertainer. Vocal numbers are also contributed by Miss Annie Revande, Miss Nanoni, and Miss Marie Riviers. Miss Walla Sanger sings and dances, with limelight effects, and introduces her dog, "Nellie," who performs a serpentine dance; and Mons. Mellini shows a capital selection of cinematograph views. Leopold Leglere's troupe of acrobats neatly perform feats requiring much skill and daring; Sardou mystifies with his cabinet illusion; The Saxons contribute marvellous exhibitions of strength; and Barney, the kicking mule, defies all comers.

MAIDSTONE.—Corn Exchange.—Manager, Mr. J. Beslee.—Mr. John Thompson's pantomime, Red Riding Hood, has been attracting good audiences here this week. Miss Ella Willmer, as Red Riding Hood, Miss Blanche Bayley, as Prince Allfair, and the comedians, Mr. John A. Thompson, as Dame Trot, Mr. C. W. Coleman, as Baron Sherlock Holmes, Mr. W. Lovell Rowland, as Simple Simon, and Mr. Fred Anderson, as Tommy Green, deserve special mention. The piece is well staged, and concludes with a pretty transformation scene, entitled "The Land of Butterflies."

MANCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Managing Director, Mr. Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmondstone Shirra.—Although the run of Mother Goose at this theatre is drawing to an end, there is no abatement in the popularity of this phenomenally successful pantomime, which is a really fine example of Mr. John Hart's enterprise in this kind of fare. Recent innovations include several new songs well worthy of remark, namely, "It's Hard," by Mr. George Robey; "Falling In," by Little Gantz; "Good-Bye, Little Girl, Good-Bye," by Miss Hilda Jacobson; "For Ever," by Miss Ethel Haydon; "Mother," by Miss Daisy Jerome; "The Busted Dolly," by Miss Venie Clements; and "Nursery Rhymes," by Mr. George Bastow, the latter of whom did not, however, introduce his song on Monday evening. New "business" also has been introduced with excellent effect, Mr. George Robey being mainly responsible for the development in this direction. All the parts are played with considerable spirit and success, those above-mentioned being seen in the principal rôles. Taken altogether, this pantomime must be remembered as one of the most gorgeous and entertaining ever seen in Manchester.

Prince's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—A highly successful visit of the D'Oyly Carte Opera company is to be recorded here this week. The repértoire includes all the well-known Gilbert and Sullivan pieces, The Gondoliers being staged on Monday night. The principal parts were in the hands of Mr. C. H. Workman, Mr. Fred Billington, Mr. Pacie Ripple, Mr. Albert Kavanagh, Mr. Leicester Tunks, Mr. Fred Drawater, Miss Norah Maguire, Miss Therese Rassam, Miss Jessie Rose, and Miss Alice Lisle, a groupe of capable and popular singers who do full justice to the remainder of the repértoire, which is made up of The Mikado, Patience, H.M.S. Pinafore, Trial by Jury, and The Yeomen of the Guard. Each piece is elaborately put on, and rendered cleverly and brightly. The operas are reproduced under the direction of Mr. Fred A. Leon.

Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—Mr. Charles Frohman presents here this week Messrs. Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company in Little Mary, J. M. Barrie's curious and entertaining comedy. The company includes Mr. George Mudie, who figures amiably and cleverly as the Earl of Carlton; Miss Ethel Dane, whose rendering of Moira Loney is an exceedingly charming piece of work; Mr. Arthur Kightley, who gives a smart and pleasing delineation of Lord Rolfe; Mr. George A. Brandram, whose depiction of the self-important Sir Jennings Pyke is one of the best things of the evening; and Miss Elspeth Dudgeon, who gives a firm and satisfactory interpretation of the Countess of Plumleigh. Other parts are well rendered by Mr. Dan Macdonald, Mr. Lewis Edgard, Miss Beatrice Kelston, Miss Margaret Nybloc, and Mr. F. J. Watts. The comedy is preceded by a powerful but unpleasing "story" in two scenes, The Monkey's Paw, by Messrs. Louis N. Parker and W. W. Jacob, which is played in a style which brings home forcibly the gruesomeness of the piece. Both plays are produced by Mr. Addison Bright.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. W. H. Broadhead; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The American Indian actress, Go-Won-Go-Mohawk, pays a return visit to Manchester this week, in her well-known drama, Wep-Ton-No-Mah, which is a bright and unique entertainment. Go-Won-Go-Mohawk is the centre of interest as the mail carrier, and she is supported by an excellent company, the principals being Mr. C. W. Charles, Mr. George Courtney, Mr. Guy D. Hackney, Mr. Dan Ryan, Miss Minnie Coepel, and Miss Jessie Hart. The acting is lightened by some excellent singing and dancing in the second act.

Metropole Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The bill here this week is headed by H. Hesslegrave and company in an amusing dialect sketch, entitled Soft Tommy. Gardiner, Griffin, and Gardner, musical comedy trio, are also here in their absurdity, The Rat-Catcher. Other good turns are Frank Dunlop, comedian and story-teller; the Stoll Brothers, comedy wrestlers; Wee Mona, a clever juvenile vocalist and actress; George Prince, comedian; Harleno, the man with the hat; Rem Lang, society entertainer; the Sisters Hayward, comediennes; and Gilroy and Cross, comedians and dancers.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—An interesting and sensational drama, Napoleon the Great, by Frank M. Thorne, was staged here on Monday. The play is in the hands of a well chosen company, of whom Mr. Hugh Montgomery figures with distinction as Napoleon; Mr. Frank M. Thorne is seen to advantage as Pierre Pomponnet; Mr. Phil Harper acts vigorously as Colonel Meuron; Miss Chrissie Dunbar does admirably as Marie Walewska; and Miss Maud Russell distinguishes herself as Mdlle. Marboeut. Of the remainder of the cast, which is thoroughly efficient, Mr. J. G. Maine and Mr. C. W. Spencer are notable. The staging is excellent, and the action brisk and exciting.

St. James's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. M. Potasch.—Mr. John Wainwright and company are here this week in It's Never Too Late to Mend, in which Mr. Wainwright is seen in his old part of Tom Robinson. The attractiveness of the play does not seem to wear out, and it is being given in capital style by the company engaged. Besides Mr. John Wainwright, Miss Minnie Wilton, Mr. Wilfred Graham, Mr. Charles F. Johnson, Mr. Harold Webb, Mr. Fred Owen, and Miss Kate Randolph distinguish themselves in prominent parts. The play is well staged.

Hippodrome (Hulme).—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Magic Album, here this week, reveals a capital series of artistic living pictures, a novelty proving very popular. The New York Comedy Four also come in for a good reception, their excellently-rendered glees and humorous style being much appreciated. Hicks' Clerks are amusing, and their singing is good; Marie Winsome, as usual, scores as a male impersonator; Max Sterling is exceedingly smart at sleight of hand tricks; and Charles Ashdowne, comedian, contributes a capital eccentric dance. Others who figure to advantage in the programme are the Four Magnets, novelty dancers; the Wallonells, in a comedy bar act; Winnie Scott, comedienne and dancer; and Bert Bowden, comedian.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—This week, Arthur Gilbert, who sings humorous songs in his own distinctive style, is one of the attractions. The Geoffreys cause much amusement with their capital sketch, Spoofed; Tom E. Hughes sings "One of the Upper Ten" and other songs with much success; and Bert Williams gives a good ventriloquial act. Clown Charlton is clever and amusing; the Swift Trio are expert cyclists; and George Russell tickles the audience with his laughing songs. In addition, the Three Shipbuilders give an excellent musical turn; the Sisters Bartholomew sing and dance; the Singing Collier, Shingleton, meets with much appreciation; and the Danvils are applauded for their illustrated songs.

Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Prominent turns here this week are Fanny Wentworth, the well-known society entertainer, in her musical sketches at the piano; and Daisy James, a first-rate comedienne, who makes a decided hit with her Gibson Girl song. Maidie Scott sings in a pleasing manner, and is highly successful in her effective scena, Jolly Japan. Mr. H. Perrette and Bessie Shelley are seen to advantage in a capital item, Teasing the General; and Myra Stansfield, a charming comedienne, sings nicely. Other good turns are Fred Gilbert, in his clever ladder act; Charles Danvers, comedian; Tom Yorke, coster comedian; the Voldam Brothers, acrobats and balancers; and Ernest Sewell, conjurer Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Will Collins.—Annie Purcell, well known in musical comedy, heads the bill here this week, and meets with a good reception, her well-rendered songs being highly appreciated. Ethel Arden and George Abel are once again here in their amusing sketch, Three of a Kind; and roars of laughter follow their efforts. A decidedly pleasing and beautiful electric illusory act is presented by Frances Haskoll, "the vocal chameleon"; and Franco Piper "gets a tune" whilst manipulating banjoes in a wonderful manner. Starr and Leslie introduce some good singing and clever juggling in their speciality; Fred Poplar has some amusing patter, and a capital song; Kitty Wager is a pleasing comedienne; Dave O'Toole, comedian, is very amusing; and the Canary Company causes some laughter in their item, Fun in a Kitchen.

Palace.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. P. Watson; Assistant-Secretary, Mr. J. Hewitt.—An all-round excellent company is here this week, headed by "the Manchester idol," Vesta Tilley, whose reception at each performance is most enthusiastic. It speaks well for this clever lady's popularity that almost all the seats were booked up the week before her arrival. On Monday night she was in excellent form, and although she contributed four songs, the audience clamoured for more. A fine performance on the rings and trapeze is given by the Delavines in their speciality, The Demon Grotto. The Anartos also provide a capital turn, their patter being most amusing, and their musical selections delightful. Harry Rogerson makes a hit with his sleeping song; the Carina Sisters render violin and cornet solos in fine style; and Bertha Winder, champion lady clog dancer of the world, is well received. A clever up-to-date ventriloquist is Coram, who is deservedly applauded. Other good turns are Mdlle. Nadji, a clever hand-balancer; and Daisy Lane, comedienne, who sings nicely. An enjoyable series of animated pictures complete. Clem Lisbon, comedian and expert dancer, figures on the programme, but did not appear on the occasion of our visit.

Manchester Hippodrome. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—Ernest Shand, the popular London comedian, is at the top of the bill here this week, his smart business being heartily appreciated. A. C. Lilly and Co. also appear in their elaborate military episode, Drummed Out. Another good turn is the Caledonian Boys' orchestral and vocal combination; while varied and entertaining business is supplied by Keno, Welch, and Montrose, comedy acrobats; Professor Dunning, ventriloquist; Walter Bellonini, a smart juggler; Kahn and Kahn, in their modern necromancy; the Emlyn Jones Quartette of accomplished vocalists; a capital Bioscopic series of pictures; and two pleasing vocal items by the Hippodrome choir.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Will Smithson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert J. Lewis.—The Way of the World, played by Messrs. Montague Beaudyn and Sidney Crowe's company opened here on Monday. As Cecil Montague Mr. Montague Beaudyn submits a crediable impersonation, and Mr. Herbert Skardon is effective as Captain Fred Slade. Matthew Malyon is capitally acted by Mr. W. Robertson Foulis; Mr. John Keane as Sir John Slade, and Mr. E. Vicars Kees as Silas Montague, are both good in their respective parts; Mr. Louis Scott as Horatio Bluff, and Mr. Ernest Turner are responsible for much humour; Miss Sidney Crowe is seen to advantage as the circus queen, Mdlle. de la Roche; Miss Irene Munroe gives a pleasing rendering of Kate Montague; Miss Annie Clunn is satisfactory as Marion Fanshaw; and Miss Violet Viviennie scores as Polly Bell.

MEXBOROUGH.—Prince of Wales' Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company is this week representing The Sin of her Childhood. Mr. Austin Milroy gives a vigorous impersonation of Stephen Haysel; the Rev. Alan Grev of Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves is a first rate study; Mr. J. A. Campbell does well as Captain Thornton; Mr. Fred Elwin is amusing as Barney O'Rielly. Miss Mary Fulton gives an admirable rendering as the heroine, Mary Haysel; Miss Jennie Hicks creditably fills the rôle of Maria Haysel; Miss Dot Moss contributes some clever songs and dances.

MIDDLESBOROUGH.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Middlesborough Theatres, Limited; Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—Mr. Bert Coote's company in The Fatal Wedding, is occupying the boards here. Little Miss Marjorie Lawrence, as Jessie, gives a most charming and refined impersonation; Howard Wilson is ably sustained by Mr. S. Herbert Humber; and Miss Gertrude Harrison is successful as Cora. The other rôles are ably sustained by talented artistes. An attractive feature of the production is the performance given by a group of pretty and well-trained children.

Opera House.—Proprietors, The Middlesborough Grand Opera House Company; Licensee and Manager, Mr. T. Hopcutt.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is fulfilling a week's engagement here, in Under Two Flags. As Bertie Cecil, Mr. Wilfred E. Payne gives a powerful rendition, and Mr. Will Hoop is successful as the faithful Rake. Miss Emeline Polini, as Cigarette, has innumerable opportunities, and she gives a most realistic impersonation.

Empire.—Proprietors, The Middlesborough Empire Palace of Varieties, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. John Brill.—Mr. Charles Rainbgiers, of the Middlesex, is still courteously and ably carrying out the duties of manager here pro tem. This week the numerous patrons of the comfortable hall have had an opportunity of witnessing Herr Grais, with his really wonderful baboon prodigies; Wal Pink, an old and valued Teeside favourite, together with his efficient company, presents Uncle's Wife, one of his ever-welcome and funny sketches; Lind, in an entertaining performance; Muir and Bartlett, in an interlude, entitled A Clerical Complication; Terry and Bentley, comedians; the Three Sisters Slater, banjoists and dancers; Miss Kathleen Gray, burlesque artiste; and the bioscope, showing a capital picture, entitled "The Blacksmith's Daughter," are also in the bill.

Oxford.—Lessee, Mr. William Peacock; Manager, Mr. Wm. Ainsworth.—A highly attractive programme is submitted to the patrons of the Oxford this week. Dida, who heads the bill, is a most astounding turn, and proves a great attraction. McPhee and Hill, in a horizontal bar act, are favourites, and the Paul Hesse Trio prove themselves smart acrobats. The Clarions are applauded for their comedy act; Steve Cooke, as a burlesque comedian, does exceedingly well; Sadie Simpson is a pretty comedienne; and Percy Farrimond, tenor; Mons. De Lil, conjuror; the Fordyces, vocalists and dancers; and Professor Hulbert, complete the bill.

NEWPORT.—Lyceum.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. Mouillot's company is paying a return visit here this week with A Message from Mars. Mr. F. Rawson Buckley, as Horace Parker, is delightfully natural, entering into the spirit of the part thoroughly. The Messenger (Mr. Brougham) is impressively solemn. Mr. Bruce Lindley gives a fine study of a Tramp; and Miss May Laker does well as Minnie Templar. Miss Flora Hastings, as Miss Parker, and Mr. Frank G. Dunn as Arthur Dicey, are well-played characters.

Empire.—Moss's Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—Chirgwin, who is very popular here, heads the bill this week. Cruikshank supplies a musical treat; and Ryder Stone scores in his song-scena, Are Yer 'Sleep? The Mill in the Forest, a sketch played by the Kieffer Co., is a source of amusement. The Norman and Leonard Trio show considerable musical skill; and a unique performance is that of Basolari, the double-voiced vocalist. Frank Leslie is a good descriptive vocalist, and the bioscope shows some amusing pictures.

NORTHAMPTON.—Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—The Darling of the Gods is being presented here this week, by the Ben Greet company. Miss Inez Bensusan, in the part of Yo-san, displays talent in her rendering of this difficult part; Mr. Alfred Goddard gives excellent support in his embodiment of Kara; Mr. Edward A. Warburton gives a well-studied representation of Kakkuri; and Mr. Sidney C. Sinclair is very good as Ino.

Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Robert Barton.—A big success has been scored this week by Rachel Lowe, a singer of novelty songs; the Two Daniels are smart negro delineators, instrumentalists, singers, and expert dancers; the Bros. Levett are fine vaulters; the Seltina Troupe maintain their excellence as acrobats; Arthur Paget is a good comedian; and Lynn, the singing newsboy; Mr. Harris I. Bell and Miss Lily Pearl's company, in a vaudeville, entitled A Bit of String; Ethel Yorke; and Mahatma, also appear.

NORTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—A Life's Revenge is presented here this week by Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Fred C. Somerfield's company. As Prince Boris Strogoroff, Mr. Fred C. Somerfield acts with considerable power; Mr. Walter Roberts (an old local favourite) is responsible for a capital impersonation of Michael Orloff; Mr. John F. Traynor shows great ability as Paul Starovitch; and Mr. T. G. Vane is good as Maurice Trevor. Miss Amy Ellam gives an excellent portrayal of Princess Vanda Ivyaa; Miss Lillie Monckton, as Marcia Vittoria, plays the character in a highly satisfactory style; Mr. Charles E. Warne, as Colonel Tumbleoff, and Miss Maudie Grayson, as Daphne Dashaway, supply the comedy element, and are highly successful in their efforts.

New Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The principal attraction here is The Grovinis, who give a clever acrobatic display. Messrs. Reed and Wright, comedians and top-boot dancers, are enthusiastically received; and Messrs. Drum and Major, in their comedy act, have made a hit. Mr. R. C. Note, swell comique, is well received; and The Harts (comedians), Miss Daisy Devonport (comedienne), The Paolias (gymnasts), and the Animated Pictures score their usual success.

NORWICH.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Frank Fenton's excellent company, in If I Were King, is here this week. Mr. Frank Fenton, in a most admirable manner, filled the part of François Villon; Mr. E. Bellenden Clarke acts exceedingly well as Louis XI.; Mr. Laurence Grove is much appreciated as Noel de Jolys; and Mr. Leonard Maxwell makes the most of the part of Thibaut; Mr. Herbert Edwards deserves mention as Toison d'Or. Miss Elsie Roberts charmingly acted the part of Katherine; and Miss Louise Vanssitar deserves every praise as Huguette.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Pitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Pitt.—An admirable programme is presented here. Miss Nellie Wallace makes her first appearance, and has an enthusiastic reception. Her songs are very taking. Mr. Harry Allister gives some clever impersonations; Miss Anita Wayman, the Scottish nightingale, continues her engagement; Miss Esme Gordon, comedienne and dancer, has an agreeable reception; M. Gintaro is an excellent juggler and top spinner; Abd-'el-Kader, lightning painter, is very entertaining; Mystery Gauze, as a female impersonator, is well received; Will Johnson, comedian, is a favourite; Daisy Martell is charming as a comedienne and dancer; Goggin and Davis are clever as comedy acrobats; and Brett and Orford, in Two Love Birds, are pleasing.

NOTTINGHAM. — Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Mr. C. St. John Denton's company is presenting Kitty Grey this week, and the lively comedy, replete with new songs and dances, goes capitally. In the name-part Miss Hilda Guiver brings an attractive personality, good voice, and sparkling vivaciousness to bear on her representation; Miss Eily Hélène makes a bright and spirited exponent of Lady Binfield; while Sir John Binfield is skilfully played by Mr. Robert Selby; Mr. Robert White, junr., acts the King of Illyria with amusingly volatile suggestion, and Mr. L. W. Harris as Lord Plantagenet wins general favour by his drollery and clever dancing. Miss Hilda Scarisbrick plays with real earnestness as Saidie de Poulson, and Miss Emily Stevens satisfactorily impersonates Mrs. Bright. The band render a good account of themselves under the bâton of Mr. Albert Vernon.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—The Still Alarm proves a potent factor still for drawing good houses, and the company of Messrs. M. H. Glenville and Fred Osmond works assiduously and well. Mr. Glenville impersonates Jack Manley, realising fully this genial and outspoken character. In showing up the villainy of John Bird, Mr. Paul Lovett is strong and thoroughly effective. A charming embodiment of Elinore Fordham is given by Miss Mary Lovett, whose graceful and refined acting brings forth many expressions of approval; Miss Hettie Zillwood makes matters lively as Carrie Wilber of "the halls," and her young lover, Willie Manley, is capitally played by Mr. Tom Beasley; Mr. Fred Osmond keeps well within bounds as the drunken Doc Wilber, and Mr. Lewis Gordon gives a smart portrayal of an American fireman; Miss Mabel Veriton well elaborates the part of Mrs. Manley. In the fire station scene are introduced a beautiful greyhound and a couple of trained horses, and an effective quartet party discourse patriotic and other ballads.

King's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. W. Bull.—The Ladder of Life is attracting large audiences, who enjoy to the full the exciting situations of this military drama. Mr. Tyrone Power adequately fills the rôle of the retired General Gordon; Mr. Roy F. Gascoigne submits a capital interpretation of Colonel MacGregor; and Mr. Roy Milton as Lieut. Gordon acts with ease and assurance. Mr. Ronald Yorke invests the knavish character of Fergus Gordon with an easy nonchalance that excites the keenest repugnance, and Mr. Finch-Hatton renders him valuable help as a Russian spy. Miss Maude Yorke acts Olga Sobinsky with an energy and intensity that find much favour, and Miss Whitley gives the right touch of pathos as Meg Merrilees. The humour is capitally sustained by Mr. F. Morton Wright (Sergeant MacDougal), Mr. Tom Bowron (Breezy Bill), and Miss Hilda Young (Mary Jane). The Feros add to the interest by their acrobatic feats.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—The Agoust Family of jugglers are past masters in their art, and the heartiest of plaudits follow them throughout their turn. The gymnastic performance of Alf Arnesen calls forth the utmost enthusiasm; a smart skit on the wonders of liquid air is provided by those excellent comedians, Walton and Lester; the dexterous dancing of Ida Heath, and her quick change of costumes is thoroughly enjoyed, and the marionette show of Professor Bernar is a source of wonder and amusement; Lukos Herford's dogs submit some skilful acrobatic feats, and Rumbo Austin's parody acrobatic troupe are exceedingly amusing; Sable Fern contributes a couple of songs in her dainty style; the breezy manner of Marie Collins is suitably rewarded, and James Bard adds his part to the programme.

NUNEATON.—Prince of Wales's Theatre, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mr. George Dance's company is here this week with The Girl from Kay's. Miss Elsie Molloy makes a fascinating Winnie Harborough; Mr. George Blunt is an exceedingly funny Max Hoggenheimer; Mr. Henry Fitzgibbon, as Percy Fitzthistle, and Mr. Fred Payne, as Joseph (hotel porter), are responsible for a large amount of merriment.

OLDHAM.—Empire, Limited.—Manager, Mr. Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hulme.—On Monday, for the first time in Oldham, Mrs. Russ Whytal, the popular American actress, and her excellent company presented The Cardinal. Mr. Philip Cunningham's interpretation of the title-rôle was highly impressive; Mrs. Russ Whytal, as Filiberta, fully sustained her high reputation; Mr. Gerald Kay-Souper, as the Cardinal's brother, was excellent; Mr. George Ingleton, as Guido Baglioni, was very good; Miss Katherine Maude, as the Cardinal's mother was very effective; and Miss Freda Bramleigh was a capable Honoria; Mr. Douglas Gordon as Andrea Strozzi was quite successful.

Theatre Royal, Limited.—Manager, Mr. Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Knowles.—Exceptionally fine programmes continue to prevail at this popular house. Le Roy, Talma, and Bosco present their mysterious performance with their accustomed success; the Sisters G

PENTRE. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Sole Owners, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. Eugene Hardie.—The return visit of Messrs. Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholls' company in The Life that Kills is being welcomed this week by large and appreciative audiences. Mr. Fred Moule, as Kendal Croat, gives a clever impersonation, and is well seconded by Miss Kathleen Cavanagh as Brenda Croat; Mr. Ernest G. Fare and Miss Marie Menzies, as Hector Rodney and Laurie Linden respectively, earn great praise for their admirable portrayal; Miss Lucy Murray and Mr. Alfred Burrows are responsible for much merriment as Johanna Dicks and Terence Malone respectively. Hearts of Stone was presented by the same company on Thursday.

PERTH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Theatre-goers are having an exceptionally enjoyable week here with Mr. Edward Compton and his comedy company, which includes Miss Haidée Gunn. On Monday, The School for Scandal was staged with all the completeness which makes Mr. Compton and his company so deservedly popular. An enjoyable performance of The Rivals was given on Tuesday. David Garrick was billed for Wednesday and Friday, and A Reformed Rake for Thursday.

PORTH.—POOLE'S OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr W. Bynorth.—Mr. George Kirk's and Miss Mary Neil's company opened here on Monday in the comedy drama entitled Judy, or the Fatal Hand. Mr. George Kirk gives a clever impersonation of Grip; Mr. Richard Ferris is seen to advantage, and gives a powerful rendering of the part of Duburg, the Viper; he is ably assisted by Miss Violet Langley; Mr. William Vane is decidedly good as Sterling, the banker; Miss Mary Neil deserves mention for the excellent manner in which she renders the parts of Alice, the victim, and Polly, the coster; Mr. Will Casey as Jem the coster is very humorous, as is also Mr. W. Roe as Ciddles, the showman. Miss Florrie Groves is well received, and plays with great success as Judy; Miss Annie Mitchell meets with approval as Becky; Mr. Henry Rayburne is well suited as Trovitch, the Russian. The play is picturesuely staged.

PORTSMOUTH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and company are visiting here this week. On Monday, The Housekeeper was presented, Mrs. Kendal sustaining the part of Lady Audrey Whitby with that charming manner which has always distinguished her acting. Mr. Kendal, either as the disciplinarian or love-sick and bashful Colonel Trent, was admirable. Mr. Bassett Roe gave an excellent representation of Lord Runswick; Mr. Ernest Hendrie was capital as Lord Hickson. A fine character study was the Chippenham Berkeley of Mr. Metcalfe Wood. Mr. W. M. Rutherfurd was the exact embodiment of a discreet butler; Mr. R. Sheldrick as Robert Sledmore, and Mr. Herbert Harben as Pennington Green, were very good. Lady Robertson was acted with distinction by Mrs. A. B. Tapping; Mrs. Rillington was piquantly and pointedly played by Miss Elise Clarens; Miss Mary Jerrold was an ingenuous Cicely Blake; and Miss Lola Duncan made the most of Mrs. Pennington Green. Still Waters Run Deep, The Elder Miss Blossom, and a new piece, The Bird at the Neck, are included in the week's programme.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate —This week we have here the naval drama, entitled, Why Woman Sins, presented by Mr. Fred S. Jennings and Miss Cora Deane's company. Miss Gussie Everitt cleverly plays the part of Ida Valette, "a woman with a past." Lily de Vere, a music hall star, is well rendered by Miss Cora Deane.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—At the top of the bill this week is T. E. Dunville, the popular comedian; the Leonards, speciality artistes, are exceedingly good; the Sisters Pine cause great merriment; Burns and Bentley, comedians and dancers, have had a cordial reception; Tee and Tee give an eccentric musical turn; Dot Hardy, character comedienne, pleases; Walter Howard, comedian and banjoist; Rosie Bartlett, burlesque actress; together with Payne's up-to-date Bio-Photoscope, complete the programme.

PRESTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Mr. Bert Coote's company is fulfilling a popular return engagement here this week in The Fatal Wedding. Mr. Ernest Owttrim gives an effective impersonation of Howard Wilson; Robert Curtis has an excellent representative in Mr. Cecil A. Collins. As Toto, a French butler, Mr. J. Carl Lyle causes much amusement. Praise is due to Mr. Cyril Melton for his droll delineation of Peter Schwartz. Miss Theresa Osborne is pathetic in her portrayal of Mabel Wilson; Cora Williams is embodied with considerable dramatic ability by Miss Beatrice Whitney; Miss Carrie Fenton is a diverting Bridget; and Miss Gladys Rose Jones is seen to advantage as Jessie.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—There is a first-class vaudeville company occupying the boards here this week. Chas. Prinz heads the bill with his troupe of seventeen lions, over which he has perfect control; the Parez Troupe of musicians are clever; Joe Raymond supplies some good songs; Beatrice Dudley is a smart speciality dancer; Wys Troupe of pantomimists are a source of amusement in their absurdity, Vivo; Chas. Bradford is an appreciated comedian; Les Picturesque Poses consist of a series of artistic tableaux; the Elvins are an excellent turn in their sketches; Nellie Dunbar is a charming singer and dancer; Brenda Leslie is worthy of praise with her vocal pictures. The Bioscope complete the programme with an interesting series of pictures.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident-Manager, Mr. Clement Freeman.—An enjoyable programme here this week includes the Imperial Russian Troupe of singers and dancers; Chas. Serra, equilibrist; Ralston and Francis, in a nautical musical scena; Walter Curtis, society entertainer; Agnes Krembser, lady juggler; Johnson and Bert, in their act, entitled, A Queer Customer; Keith and Merson, eccentric acrobatic, singing and patter comedians; Moto, the motoring musician; Gladenbeck's Continental speciality act; and Carle and Carmanelli, musical comedians, with the "electric moulding wheel."

RADCLIFFE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas Boothman.—Messrs. Pardoe hold sway here in their up-to-date pantomime, Cinderella. The staging and scenic effects are particularly good. Miss Lottie Holland is an attractive Prince Charming; Miss Cissy Kedward is good as Cinderella; and Miss Katie More is a successful Dandini; Miss Violet Rivers and Miss Ivey Leafe are the ugly sisters, Eva and Maud. The exceptional ability of Mr. George Hyam is seen in the character of Scoot; and Mr. Wright and Mr. James Gordon ably assist as James and Henry. Miss May Burke, as King Rose Leaf, also deserves a word; and Mr. Tom Griffitt, who has a good voice, scores as Father Time. The marvellous Pardoes are successful; and Capita, with his living marionette, is up-to-date; the Drome Trio are smart dancers; and the Sisters Tyrell are clever sand and buck dancers.

RAMSGATE.—AMPHITHEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—Messrs. F. Moule and E. D. Nicholls' company is here in the comedy-drama, The Grip of the Law. As the "stuttering detective," Mr. Nicholls is capital, and the David Arkwright of Mr. E. Mayden is a really clever impersonation. A great deal of fun is got out of the rôle of Andy Blunt, as played by Mr. S. Roberts, and Miss A. Frank is eminently successful as the spouse of the worthy Andy, and Miss Olive Parker does well as Marion Arkwright.

RAWTENSTALL. — GRAND THEATRE. — Co-proprietors and Lessees, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Ellis Miller.—Miss Daisy De Roy's Dick Whittington pantomime company opened here on Monday. As Alice Fitzwarren, Miss Daisy De Roy looked charming, and was most successful, acting and singing with her well-known ability. As Dick Whittington, Mdlle. Lucretia proved thoroughly capable, her dancing being very clever. Mr. Sydney T. Pease is very funny as Eliza, and adds considerably to the fun of the piece. Mr. Frank Royal and Mr. George Welch, as the Captain and Bo'sun of the Saucy Sally, are also extremely funny, and, together with Mr. J. C. Bland, as Idle Jack, keep the audience in roars. As Tommy, the Cat, Mr. Fred Bendo imparts considerable humour to his part, and also introduces a marvellous contortion act. The specialities include Rae and Rae, in their trapeze act; Harcourt Russel, in "Facial Portraiture"; and the Geisha Quartette of lady dancers.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr. Reginald Taylor. —The Ben Greet company, under Mr. J. Bannister Howard's direction, is appearing this week in the popular comic opera, La Poupée. Mr. Algernon Lee is a capable representative of Launcelot; Mr. Joseph A. Birell plays and sings excellently as Father Maxime, the "Jovial Monk" song being, of course, vociferously encored; Mr. Edward Thirlby is exceedingly droll as Hilarius; Mr. Harry Bishop is good as Loremois; and Mr. Stanley White is effective as Baron Chanterelle. Miss Eva Ellis acts with great vivacity as Henri, and Miss Cissie Wade gives a charming interpretation of the part of Alesia. Mr. S. Anchor, as Balthazer, and Miss Alice McFarlane, as Madame Hilarius, also merit special mention.

ROCHDALE.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. O. C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Clucas.—Lucky Durham is the attraction here this week. Mr. Wm. F. Grant submits an earnest and impassioned portrayal of John Durham; Mr. Henry de Solla cleverly impersonates the weak and unstable Lord Mountfallon; Mr. Daniel McCarthy acts with becoming pride and dignity the part of Richard Vallerton; Mr. Paul Belmore gives a fine exposition of the spendthrift, Hon. Reginald Steighton; Miss Molly Pearson acts with charming effect the part of Helen Vallerton; Miss Jessie Winter is refreshing as The Hon. Margaret Steighton; Miss Louisa Gourlay enacts with true motherly feeling Mrs. Durham; and Miss Emily Levettez, as Lady Mountfallon, hits off the matchmaking society mamma to the life.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Smith and Lee; Business Manager, Mr. S. L. Lee.—The Revell Troupe, in a sketch, Mischief, create roars of laughter; Miss May Geraldine is not inaptly described as a "chic" comedienne; and the Hampson Bros., patter comedians; Kyoto, in original comedy act; E. J. Wilkes, comedian, and his dog Woof; J. H. Kavanagh, comedian; Vernon's bioscope; and Andreassen Brothers, novelty acrobats, are other attractions.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—An interesting and varied programme is submitted here this week. Selbon's Vaudeville Circus, with trained ponies, dogs, &c., submit a clever and amusing performance. Gus Balsiger, comedian and trick instrumentalists; W. H. Morgan, character vocalist; Marie Gibson, soprano vocalist; Daisy Morrell, burlesque artiste; Stylo, hoop manipulator; Beatrice Bonnie, comedienne; Ernie Myers, comedian; the Empire Bioscope, in Elopement by Ambulance; and the Tatters troupe complete the list.

ROTHERHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Manning.—After an absence of over seven years, Messrs. C. and F. Renad's company is here with The Swiss Express. Messrs. Charles and Frederick Renad, as James and John, the eccentric servants, enhance their high reputation; Mr. Wilford Bailey gives a capital rendition of the part of Dr. Gondimar Gull; and Mr. George Martin is very smart as Rob Rollingstone. Mr. Alec Wylie is funny as Dudley Green; Mr. George Power is successful as Rhino, the landlord of the Black Bear Inn; Mr. Cecil Barrett is amusing as the Gendarme; and Mr. Fred Strachan, as Mons. Va Partout, is also deserving of mention. Miss Nellie Fern is seen to advantage as Mrs. Septimus Squeeze; and Miss Iris Banfield gives a finished portrayal of the part of Virginia, the bride. Misses Rosie Chandler, May Cornish, Dolly Payne, and Hetty Coventry, as the Four Brighton Girls, are responsible for some good dances.

RUGBY.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, The Rugby Theatre and Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Parker-Royston.—This week, At War with the World is being presented by a company of capable artistes. Mr. George Lyttleton, jun., as Squire Redfern, is excellent in his rendering; Mr. George Lyttleton, as Tom Redfern, gives a capable and effective exposition; Mr. A. E. Johnstone is clever as Thornton Westmeare, an adventurer; and as Gregory Blotts, Mr. F. J. Lewis gives an able and humorous exhibition. Miss Nora Kingsley as Mrs. Leslie appeals strongly to the sympathy of the audience by clever and emotional acting; and Miss Daisy Humphrey, as Mabel Leslie; and Miss Lilian Beaumont, as Edna Maddox, are both clever and charming in their respective rôles.

RUNCORN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. H. W. Caddick.—Another variety combination is drawing good houses. It includes Miss Geraldine Montrose's sketch company in a well-played sketch, entitled The Hindoo's Revenge; Miss Lily Render, Irish-American comedienne; Mr. Bob Pearson, a clever vocal humorist; Tom Hayes, a taking juvenile comedian; Fisher and Neale, a couple of highly successful knockabouts, with good business; Russell Hatton, with a number of character sketches of undoubted merit; Young and Mack, patter comedians; Carlos Menard, violinist; Billy and Richardson, with stump oratory.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—The Major, described as a musical absurdity, written and composed by Mr. T. C. McQuire (who suitably fills the title-rôle) kept a good audience on Monday in excellent humour. Miss Ada Wallace as Angelina Touchemup, cleverly sustains the part of the slavey; Mr. Alec Godfrey is a droll Jeremiah Stoney; Mr. Frank Hartley, as George Goodman; Miss Emma Poole, as Grace Gampney; and Miss M. McQuire, as Hilda Marston, contribute much to the success of the performance. The Sisters Valli give some acceptable specialities on various musical instruments; and some clever dancing is done by the National Troupe of lady dancers.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Frederick Yates. The well-known comedienne, Harriet Vernon (who heads an excellent bill this week) had a most cordial reception on Monday, when she gave some of her favourite songs in excellent style. Warden Reed and company in the laughable sketch, Married or Photographed, were also much enjoyed; Mr. Fred Land was very droll with his songs; the hat manipulation by Friscari was a clever piece of juggling. Other good turns included Sterling and Cashen, American speciality artistes and dancers; Harry Braham, descriptive vocalist; Leo Lesters, in funny miniature pantomime sports; Sisters Lonnen, duettists and dancers; Lilian Melville, soprano vocalist; and Concerto on the concertina.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident-Acting Manager, Mr. J. B. Taylor.—Excellent variety is included in the turns given this week. Woolford's circus, with wonderful performing ponies, dogs, and donkey, cause roars of laughter; J. W. Rickaby, as a policoman and a militiaman, is very amusing with his songs and patter; the Goldinis give an extraordinary carpet spinning, etc., exhibition; the American baritone, Post Mason is well received; Sam Shipley's comic imitations are appreciated; Smith and Johnson coloured vocalists, are successful; the Sisters Terry, comediennes and mimics; Lachie Thompson's Topweights (Tom and Neil), in a boxing, wrestling, and club swinging act; and Guy Ryder, vocalist and whistler, with the animated pictures fill the bill.

L. & N.W. PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. A. Higham; Manager, Mr. Sam Higham.—Mr. Harry Hanson, comedian; Mr. Joe Hunt, comedian (his second week); and Mr. Jack Murray, comedian, are among the artistes appearing here.

BRIDGE HOTEL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Tom Bradbury.—Mr. Fred Carter, baritone vocalist, is here again, and also included in the programme are such old favourites as Miss Rose Standing, comedienne and dancer; and Mr. Fred Redfern, tenor vocalist.

SCARBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietress, Mrs. Henry Mayhew. — The special Shrovetide attraction here is the engagement for six nights of Mr. Edward Marris's company, in As Midnight Chimes. Mr. Frank Petley plays well as Dave Stannard, a young fisherman; Mr. Herbert Belmore is excellent as the old fisherman, Ezra Gamble; much humour is caused by Mr. James Salter, as Tat Spavin; and Mr. Melville Bickford is seen to advantage as Luke Dezzard.

PEOPLE'S PALACE AND AQUARIUM.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—This week the attraction here is Messrs. Collins and Stevenson's company, in Sindbad the Sailor. Mr. George Case is very amusing as Mrs. Sinbad; Mr. Tom Cattle works hard as Tinbad; Mr. Billy Moore also puts in good work as Captain Scuttlem; Miss Annie G. Brevitt is an excellent Haidee; and Miss Gertie Rowan puts plenty of "go" into the part of Sindbad. Specialities are given by Percy Victor's trained dog minstrels; the Zaza Girls, acrobatic dancers; Eddie Clay, the tramp musician; Johnny and Edna, cake-walk artistes; and Mr. Dan Harley, acrobatic clog dancer.

SEACOMBE.—IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Mr. Edmund Tearle's company is paying a welcome return visit here this week with Under The Red Robe, Merry Wives of Windsor, The Three Musketeers, and Jeanie Deans. In the first-named piece Mr. Edmund Tearle gave a powerful rendering of Gil de Berault; Miss Kate Clinton presented an admirable Renee de Cocheforet; Henri de Cocheforet was well sustained by Mr. Vernon O. Crabtree; and Cardinal Richelieu was cleverly interpreted by Mr. J. T. Fairley. Mr. Dennis W. Cleugh as the Marquis de Pombal; Mr. A. W. Wynne as De Fargis, and Mr. William J. Miller as Captain Larolle were all capital in their respective rôles. Madame de Cocheforet received a good rehdering from Miss Esther Tearle.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—Queen of the Night is the title of the drama being presented here this week by Messrs. Stillwell and Teulon's company. Mr. James Stillwell makes an efficient Frank Cavendish. The rascally Philip Stoneleigh is ably portrayed by Mr. Chas. V. Sandford. Mr. Paul E. Teulon gives a characteristic sketch of the old Miser David. Mr. F. Thorpe-Tracey as Old Briskett, and Mr. Bert Atherton as Adolphus Briskett are highly amusing. The Queen of the Night (Paulina) is an arduous part most capably acted by Miss Vere Mosley. As Maude Miss Katherine Barnett does good work. Other parts are taken by Miss Marie Moore, Miss Becky Elliston, and Miss Irene Tracey. On Thursday and Friday nights Trilby was revived.

SHEERNESS.—THE COLISEUM.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Dorling; Manager, Mr. Chas. Melvin.—Mr. Arthur Gibbons' company opened here on Monday with Beauty and the Beast. Miss Linda Weston is quite successful as Beauty, her vocal talent being much appreciated. As Prince Charming Miss Marie Beaufort finds much favour; Miss Gertrude Wright, the Good Fairy, has a well-cultured voice. As Reginald Augustus and Sybil Irene, Messrs. Will Holland and Tom Banks are responsible for much genuine fun. Amongst the specialities is a sensational performance by Dartigan—Looping the Loop. The Four French Idols contribute some smart acrobatic dances.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. P. Reymond. —Heading the bill here are the Summersons, popular favourites, in the comedy act, Just My Luck; Liddon and Brinckman, in the dramatic sketch, The Crime of Poverty, are highly successful; and meritorious items are contributed by Mr. Fred Donald, eccentric comedian; Miss Marie Lester, coon impersonator; and Miss Bessie Norrie, burlesque actress. The programme concludes with the laughable farce, His Grandmother.

SHEFFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. F. W. Purcell; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. S. Carter.—After a last week which broke all records, Mr. Fred Karno's perfect pantomime, Cinderella, finished its triumphant run here on Saturday, amid a scene of wild enthusiasm. All the principals were recalled again and again, and the packed house seemed loth to part with those special favourites, Miss Winifred Hare, Miss Godwynne Earle, Miss Lillian Lea, Mr. Neil Kenyon, Mr. William Gourlay, and Messrs. Fletch and Palmer. On Monday King Pantomime and his glittering Court had departed, and the dramatic season started with the sensational drama by the late Mr. F. A. Scudamore, entitled Because I Love You, well played by Mr. Frank Stephens's company. Mr. Frank Stephens was thrilling as the freak; Mr. Matthew Bolton was excellent as Capt. Sterling, Mr. Howard Tracey submitted an interesting character study as Prof. Predate; Miss Madge North was a pretty and sympathetic Nelly Blyth; Miss Tressie Humphries made a handsome adventuress, and Miss Nell Ingram was a vivacious Kitty.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The ever-welcome comic opera, La Poupée, was again performed to a crowded house on Monday by Mr. C. P. Levilly's company. Miss Stella Gastelle was the incarnation of charming girlishness as Alesia, and she sang with her usual tunefulness and expression; Miss Madge Avery was a comely and delightful Mdme. Hilarious, and Miss May Bradbury was a graceful Henri. Mr. Eric Thorne was cordially welcomed, and he again kept the audience in roars by his droll mannerisms as the cabriolli-like doll-maker, Hilarious; Mr. Frederick Hobbes was a dignified Father Maxime; Mr. Gerald Clifford sang and acted well as Lancelot, and Mr. Robert Fairbanks made an amusing Baron Chanterelle. The chorus was admirable, and Mr. H. Rushworth conducted.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay. On Monday the new play of modern life by Arthur Shirley and Ben Landeck, entitled A Great Sensation gave great satisfaction. Miss Beatrice Isaacson, under whose direction the piece is presented, was a great success as the flower-girl, Eva Dale; Mr. Sydney M. Hallows made a smart young inventor as Jack Damer, and Mr. Alexander Isaacson was good as the millionaire, Bunko Bates.

EMPIRE PALACE. — General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Manager, Mr. Alan W. Young.—The popular mimetic comedian, Mr. Syd May is delighting large audiences this week, and other successful artists are the Japanese Guards, who are naturally loudly applauded; Burns and Evans, in a comic act; Seely and West, Transatlantic entertainers; Ethel Ra Leslie, comedienne; La Toptia, mandolinist; J. P. Dane, comic; the Chamberlins, and the Lumars, novel acrobats.

GRAND PALACE. — Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Beagle. — Lavers and Lake, in a funny farce; the Esdaile Brothers; Richard White; Lord, Munay, and Lord; Dick and Dorothy; Harry Bekker, and Nellie Lewis are engaged at this comfortable and well-patronised music-hall.

SMETHWICK. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—There was a large attendance on Monday, to witness the production here of A Trip to Rum-Fum, which pays a return visit, after an absence of about three years. The show is capitally staged by Miss Cissie Moxon's company, under the management of Mr. Lynch. Miss Cissie Moxon gives a vivacious and clever study of the music hall girl, Florrie; Miss Stella West makes a charming Angelina Toft; Miss Rosie Stewart, as Peggy O'Hooligan, invests the part with many winsome characteristics; Mr. Fred Alberto is successful as Larry O'Hooligan, his singing and dancing being very much appreciated; Mr. Fred W. Graham creates much merriment as Cecil Toft; and Mr Gyp Lester, as Biddy, Mr. Harry Leander, as Ebenezer, Mr. T. Cook as Scrivener, and Mr. B. Rodgers, as Thady, all deserve praise. Specialities are introduced by the Saxon Troupe of International Dancers, and the Three Deveres in their musical and acrobatic acts.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA. — EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Marlow, sen.; Manager, Mr. W. Marlow, jun.—This week's attraction is provided by Mr. Leonard Mortimer and his No. 1 Dramatic company, which is appearing in a triple bill with The Gay Deceiver, The Undesired, and The Britisher, which are excellently produced. The problem play of passion, entitled The Gay Deceiver, was first produced, in which Mr. J. G. Leighton well impersonates Major Hambro, V.C.; Mr. Reginald Weighill as Hon. Bobbie Bore is good; Garcia Novis is cleverly taken by Mr. Ernest Wingfield; Miss Edith Lewis gives a capital portrayal of Genevieve; Miss Ida Clifford plays the character of Leonore in praiseworthy style, and Mr. Leonard Mortimer as Captain Dunstan Lyte merits considerable praise for his clever acting. The one-act drama, entitled The Undesired, is represented by Mr. Weldon Atherstone, who makes a good Sir Cautley Reece; Mr. Ernest Wingfield is well suited as Osmond Reece; Octavius Oosg finds an able exponent in Mr. Reginald Weighill; Miss Gracie Mortimer deserves mention as Little Winifred; Miss Edith Lewis is eminent as Sister Stephanie; Alethea Vyse is well impersonated by Miss Ida Clifford; and Mr. Leonard Mortimer is exceedingly clever as David Haydon. The realistic military romance, entitled The Britisher, is equally well received.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, The Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hemming.—A highly diverting entertainment is supplied here this week by the engagement of Mr. Cyril Maude's company in Beauty and the Barge. Foremost in the capital company engaged, is Mr. Blake Adams, whose representation of Captain James Barley is an excellent exhibition of comedy characterisation. Mr. Charles Goold renders excellent support as the mate; Miss May Fairclough is very successful in the part of Ethel Smedley; Mrs. Baldwin is played by Miss Mary Griffiths with piquant effect and skill; Mr. Walter Pemberton's representation of the irascible Major Smedley is all that can be desired; Mr. Horace Lane submits an acceptable portraiture of Lieutenant Seyton Boyne; and other good character sketches are in the hands of Mr. Fred Knight, as Herbert Manners; Mr. Charles Caffrey, as George Porter; Miss Mary Deverell, in the part of Lucy Dallas; and Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite, as Mrs. Porter. The piece is preceded each evening by a one-act play, entitled That Brute Simmons.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—Messrs. Charles Draycott and H. B. Peppin's company is occupying the boards in The Best Must Win. Mr. Charles Draycott, who vividly sustains the part of the Marquis de Marcel, alias the Panther, is immensely popular. Mr. Robert Watson affords a striking contrast by his embodiment of the heroic Paul Dumaresq. Miss Lilian Watson Loyde displays ability as the persecuted Denise Dumaresq. Sabretache is advantageously handled by Mr. Fred Aldworth. Miss Violet O. Spring sympathetically delineates the repentant Therese Dumaresq. The low comedy is contributed by Messrs. Henry W. Monte as Juan Minos, Frank G. Kent as the small-witted Jacques Courcel, and the Misses Maud Hetherington as Susette, the former's lover, and Kate Maynard, an adventuress.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—A versatile programme is being submitted, including as principal turn, Harry Tate and company. On Monday the clever comedian appeared in his diverting sketch, Fishing. Conway and Leland, the merry monopedes, repeat their decidedly quaint turn. Belle Davis, strongly supported by her "pick chick" actors, is well received. Lily Langtry is here again, and her vivacity captivates the house. Virto and Irene provide an enjoyable musical act. The Four Trees, charmingly costumed, dance and sing themselves into favour. Carlo and Maie, in a comedy wire act; Nance Trevor, ballad vocalist; and Geo. Antill, comedian, also appear.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr. Jos. Sweeney.—The premier position is held by the Three Rickards, smart acrobats; Maggie Rimmer scores heavily by her dainty dancing; George Macintosh is a clog dancer of more than average ability; Louie Hurmann is a charming serio; the Sisters Redfern, banjoists, vocalists, and dancers, are good; and Jack Foley, comedian, and Shaun Grenville, Irish comedian and dancer, are both acceptable. The Tivoli bioscope is the remaining successful turn.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—In Greed of Gold, local patrons are having a show to their tastes this week, and Mr. T. Morton Powell's company has been very favourably received. Mr. Walter M. Cameron displays soundness in his impersonation of Cully Snig; as the villain, Harry Hood, Mr. Carthage Caldcleugh is very successful; Mr. B. Fox puts in a lot of clever work as Tom Wolstead; Mr. W. Heilbron's interpretation of Arthur Errol, leaves nothing to be desired; and both Miss A. Verity, as Dora Hood; and Miss Grace St. John, as Mrs. Maxwell, are well placed; Miss Winnie Donovan is vivacious as Patty Mayfield; being admirably assisted by Mr. Joseph Macgrath, as Conn Creamer. Mr. Vere, the local manager, took his annual benefit on Wednesday.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE. —Proprietors, The St. Helens Theatre, Limited; General Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—Mr. E. Hill Mitchelson and company, in Revenge, are proving a strong attraction here this week. The drama is magnificently mounted and dressed, and the company is one of all-round excellence. It includes, in addition Mr. Hill Mitchelson, Messrs. E. Wellesley Draper, Edwin Jenner, Arthur McCulloch, Fred Yarnold, Theo. Balfour, and Misses Frances White, Grace Aimers, Violet Carlyle, and Alice Barber.

HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—Dainez Comedy Circus heads the bill here this week, and other excellent turns include:—Essman, juggler; Ellis and Watts, comedians; Silvanio, boy musician; Walter Adams, comedian; Ike Scott and Son, comedy duo; Weiskers' animated pictures, and Will Godwin in his scena, Re-united.

STOCKPORT. — NEW THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—After an absence of eight years A Royal Divorce is paying a return visit. Mr. W. W. Kelly's company is responsible for the presentation. Miss Edith Cole gives a charming portrayal of the Empress; Mr. Frank Lister is seen to advantage in an able and effective impersonation of Napoleon; as Maria Louise, Mrs. Ethyle Murray acts with power and ability; and Miss Helen Richmond is most pleasing as Stephanie; General Augereau and Marshal Murat are satisfactorily impersonated by Mr. Alfred Grenville and Mr. Ernest J. Batley respectively. Mr. Dennis Bryan makes the character of Grimaud very amusing.

OHMY'S CIRCUS. — Lessees, Messrs. Davenport. —The Watson family of instrumentalists and duettists, who are the chief attraction here this week, provide a pleasing entertainment for the numerous patrons of this establishment. Will Souls, comedian, also commands a measure of success. Other excellent performers are Togo, juggler and balancer; and the Eltenos in their grotesque horizontal bar act. The performance concludes with a sketch presented by the members of the company, entitled The Dispatch Bearer.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs. Weldon Watts; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder.—Mr. Philip F Knox and Miss Edith Grenfell's company, in the Russian military drama, The Red Café, is here this week. As Count Sergius Petrosky, Mr. Philip F. Knox plays with a good deal of force and feeling; Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson's Vladimir and Mr. Robert S. Entwistle's Petroff are excellent; Mr. William Ravenscroft's Alexander II. is done with dignity; De Plavre is realistic in the hands of Mr. Martin Henry; Ignatieff, by Mr. Milner Noble, and Gribos, by Mr. Ernest, are well acted; Miss Edith Grenfell's Zitka Marsoff is played sympathetically and well.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Batty; Manager, Mr. W. Batty.—A good bill here is headed by Leo Dryden, whose high-class impersonations are very successful; Will Cornish gives his clever performance on the bells; Los Angelos are a couple of charming duettists; Casselli and James are clever on the banjoes; A. P. Boswell is a comical patterer, &c.; Vera Mayne sings taking songs; Marlo and Dunham Trio are smart on the bars, &c.; Lola Patey warbles in Tyrolean style; and Payne's Bioscope completes the programme.

STOKE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. Miller.—Herr Fritz, in his mystery turn, is exceedingly clever, his illusions and conjuring being of a high order. The Violas contribute some clever items; the Brothers Zampah, one-legged performers, do some marvellous jumping; Royal is seen in a clever trapeze turn; Katie Lawrence, who heads the bill, is distinctly successful, her three songs being rendered artistically; Juan and McQue are clever in their patter and dancing; Walter Lester is a smart comedian; Chas. Vandyke and company appear in that really funny sketch, Nicodemus, which causes roars of laughter. The pictures are entertaining. Mr. Frank Egerton took his benefit on the 3rd ult., and a big house was the result.

STOURBRIDGE. — ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Messrs. Thompson and Hunter's pantomime company is appearing here with Aladdin. Miss Beatrice Varley, in the rôle of Aladdin, is distinctly clever, her singing being a good feature. Miss Emile Cameron undertakes the part of The Princess with dignity, and the Misses Edith and Emay Isabelle find favour as Nicey and Pekoe. Mr. Albert Williams as Widow Twankey, proves himself to be a comedian of high-class ability, and Mr. Charles Wood as Abanazar and Mr. Will Dale as the Emperor are most entertaining. Several specialities are introduced, the most notable being Goliath, who gives a marvellous exhibition of human strength. Mr. Ted Rodgers furnishes an enjoyable whistling solo; and the Vernon Geisha Girls give an exhibition of graceful acrobatic dancing.

SUNDERLAND.—AVENUE THEATRE. — Proprietors, The Sunderland Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; General-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Mr. George Dance's company is appearing here this week in The Orchid. Mr. Bertie Wright is the life and soul of the production as Meakin. Mr. Arthur P. Hemsley represents Zaccary, the professional orchid-hunter, and executes a clever and intricate dance with much success. As the Minister of Commerce (Aubrey Chesterton), Mr. Ernest Darrell could scarcely be improved upon; Mr. Edmond Page is amusing as the Comte Raoul de Cassignat; and the same may be said of Mr. G. Davy Burnaby as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeor, and Mr. Edmond Hollick as Dr. Ronald Faussett. Miss Ethel Bryant introduces a great amount of vim into the rôle of Lady Violet, and her vocal efforts are worthy of special praise; Caroline Vokins is exceptionally well impersonated by Miss Madge Lucas; and the bright acting of Miss Sylvia de Lacy as Josephine Zaccary is equally noticeable, Miss Chrissie Ralland is seen to advantage as Thisbe, the Lady Secretary, and the other parts are in capable hands.

THE HAYMARKET.

On Saturday, March 4, the Story, in Three Scenes, By W. W. Jacobs, dramatised by Louis N. Parker, entitled

"THE MONKEY'S PAW."

Mr. White ..... Mr. Cyril Maude.
Mrs. White ..... Miss Bella Pateman.
Herbert ..... Mr. Wilfrid Forster.
Sergeant-Major Morris .. Mr. Edmund Maurice.
Mr. Sampson ..... Mr. Reginald Eyre.

The dramatic version, by Mr. Louis N. Parker, of Mr. W. W. Jacobs' weird story, The Monkey's Paw, was placed in the evening bill at the Haymarket on Saturday. The piece was originally produced on the occasion of the late Mr. John Billington's benefit at His Majesty's Theatre, on Oct. 6, 1903, and a French version of the play has had a successful run of 150 nights at a Parisian theatre. Presenting such a striking contrast to the merry farce, Beauty and the Barge, which forms the principal attraction in the bill, The Monkey's Paw puts the audience in just the right mood to welcome the pleasant trivialities of the longer piece; and to enjoy its genuine humour. The story of the monkey's paw certainly does not make for cheerfulness. At the opening, Mr. and Mrs. White, a weather-beaten old sailor and his wife, are entertaining Sergeant-Major Morris, who, over a glass of hot grog, tells of the wonders he has seen in India, from which country he has recently returned. From one of the fakirs he received, in return for some service rendered, a curious present—a shrivelled monkey's paw, which confers upon its owner the privilege of having three wishes granted. The old soldier, having had his glass liberally replenished, at length produces the fakir's gift, but is reluctant that his host should obtain possession of it, and throws it on the fire. Old White snatches the paw from the flames, and after his guest has departed he proceeds to experiment with his new possession by wishing for the sum of £200, the amount of the mortgage on his cottage. He does this at the suggestion of his son Herbert, a young fellow employed at some electrical works. The next day at breakfast-time the old couple are waiting in nervous expectation of the fulfilment of the wish. A grave gentleman, who represents the firm of electrical engineers, calls to announce the terrible news that young White has been accidentally killed by the machinery; and he leaves behind him an envelope containing £200. The old man's wish has been granted Then the distracted mother, seizing the paw, wishes that her boy may come back to life. There is a loud knocking heard at the cottage door, and the father, fearful of beholding the horrible sight that his imagination has conjured up, fervently utters the third wish—that his son may "be dead and at peace." The knocking ceases, and when the door is at length opened, there is nothing there. With a loud cry, the mother falls in a fainting fit, and the play ends.

Mr. Cyril Maude resumes his original part of Mr. White, and his very natural rendering of the old man deserves the warmest commendation. Miss Bella Pateman convincingly expresses the feelings of the bereaved mother; and Mr. Wilfred Forster repeats his capital embodiment of young White. Mr. Edmund Maurice is seen to great advantage in the part of the talkative Sergeant-Major Morris, and Mr. Reginald Eyre is good in the minor rôle of Mr. Sampson, the messenger from the works.

In Beauty and the Barge, which follows, Mr. Cyril Maude presents another extremely clever study of an elderly man whom the passing years have not robbed of his high spirits, and who retains a good deal of the activity and vigour of his younger days. Captain James Barley is a character it does one good to meet; and it could not have been placed in better hands. The gallant owner of "The Heart in Hand" is beyond question one of Mr. Cyril Maude's most successful impersonations. Mr. Edmund Maurice adds considerably to the enjoyment of the audience by his amusing portrayal of the irascible Major Smedley; and that excellent comedian, Mr. Lennox Pawle, is genuinely funny as Tom Codd, the mate of "The Heart in Hand." From Mr. Frederick Volpé comes a delightful sketch of the Major's stolid gardener, John Dibbs, and Mr. E. M. Robson is a brisk and comical representative of the little landlord of the Old Ship. Mr. Kenneth Douglas plays exceedingly well as Lieutenant Seton Boyne; Mr. H. Marsh Allen is a praiseworthy Herbert Manners, and Mr. Robert Bottomly, as Augustus, the third hand on board the barge, meets with deserved success. Miss Jessie Bateman supplies a charming example of girlish freshness and brightness in the part of Ethel Smedley, whose running away from home causes all the trouble, and Miss Rita Jolivet is a captivating Lucy Dallas; Miss Adela Measor does all that is possible with the small part of Mrs. Smedley; Miss Mary Brough gives admirably humorous treatment to the rôle of the middle-aged Mrs. Porter, the widow with matrimonial designs, and Mrs. Charles Calvert is very well placed as Mrs. Baldwin, the attractive landlady of the Old Ship.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

On Monday, March 6, the Drama in Four Acts, by Frederick Melville, entitled.

"THE UGLIEST WOMAN ON EARTH."

Following the inauguration of the dramatic season last week with one of Mr. Walter Melville's dramas, this week is fittingly devoted to Mr. Frederick Melville's latest production. The drama, which it quite new to the Grand, attracted a large audience, the somewhat curious title of the play doubtless drawing many people into the theatre to make themselves acquainted with the unfortunate lady. Mr. Frederick Melville, who shares with his brother a predilection for making the feminine interest supreme in his plays, has managed to present a drama which in its main idea is pleasantly original. An excellent company is entrusted with the representation of the drama, the whole of whom work loyally for the general success. Miss Beatrice Homer in the title-rôle rose fully to the demands of the part. It is obvious that Miss Homer, in having to act through the first three acts of the play with her face completely covered, has to meet a difficulty of no ordinary kind, but she was conspicuously successful, and we have only to accord her unqualified praise. Miss Rosabel Dodd, as Rose Courtnay, played a repulsive rôle in a determined manner, and gained the usual complimentary reception from the "gods." Miss Nellie Jackson, as Aggie Brown, acted with vivacity and spirit in the comedy scenes, and was soon installed as a favourite with the audience. Very high commendation must be accorded Miss Margaret Watson as Morita, a piece of character acting of great merit and artistic finish. As for the gentlemen, Mr. Stanley Bedwell, as Jack Merriman, played the heroic part with distinct success; he has an excellent stage appearance, and a good delivery, Mr. Leyton Cancellor, as Hubert Gold, played the part in a particularly thorough manner, and did not spare himself in the least in portraying the unpleasant characteristics of the character. Mr. Charles Barrett was successful as Antonio, excellent alike in make-up and acting. Mr. Renaud Lockwood, as Redvers, acted the small part with all the necessary power, and is to be congratulated on a good performance. Mr. Fred De Vere, as Raggles, presented a singularly neat sketch of a hooligan. His facial play was remarkable, and the grim humour he infused into the part was quite in keeping. In addition he is entitled to praise for his excellent control of the stage. To Mr. Tubby Edlin the audience were once more indebted for a most humorous portrayal of the comedy part, Tubby Herrick. Mr. Edlin's humorous style and business and general high spirits provided a very welcome change from the more serious side of the play, and were thoroughly enjoyed and applauded. Mr. Frank Dennis, as Dr. Carr, played the part with the requisite professional air, and was always in the picture. Messrs. Potter, Edwards, and Newton aided Mr. Edlin in a humorous housepainting scene with excellent results, and the remainder of the company were quite adequate in their respective parts. The drama was mounted in a most complete manner, the scenery being of great merit, and the incidental music by Mr. Fish was effective.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, March 6, the Comedy Drama in Four Acts, by Langton McCormick, entitled

"HEARTS ADRIFT."

Hearts Adrift, the drama Mr. Langdon McCormick, originally produced at the Grand Theatre, Birmingham, on the 20th ult., and which was fully noticed in our last issue, is being played at the Pavilion this week. Being evidently written to satisfy audiences which look for the introduction of the sensational element, it thoroughly achieves its purpose, and for this reason, therefore, it is unnecessary to look too closely into the consistency or probability of the story; suffice it to say the large audience on Monday expressed satisfaction at the various exciting incidents depicted. Mr. Julian Cross, who met with a flattering reception on his appearance, is excellent as the reformed Captain Teddy, playing the part with intensity and feeling; his acting is specially good in the scene where he pleads for forgiveness from his crippled boy. Mr. Percy Rhodes in the rôle of the villainous Edmund Gerue, acts powerfully and with realism, being ably seconded in his nefarious schemes by Mr. J. P. Dryden, who supplies a well defined character study of the unscrupulous inventor, Pidgeon. Mr. Cecil C. Klein, as Robert Darney, exhibits much sincereity and earnestness, while the solicitor, John Lane, is convincingly represented by Mr. Edwin Wilde. Mr. John Gerant renders Simon Green with sufficient humour, and the detective, Sam Redway, is emphasised with marked effect by Mr. Fred Baines. Mr. G. H. Permane creates a favourable impression as Jim Gregory; and Mr. William Gomer, as Sam Call; Mr. Joe Rodgers, as Officer True; and Mr. Bert Savadge, as Carrier, are good in their respective parts. Mr. Harry Pleon, jun. is to be heartily congratulated on his clever portraiture of Little Tim, and well deserves the applause he receives, and Miss Ada Perry is a satisfactory Mother Hagslow. Miss Celestine Bertram is natural and sympathetic as Rosie, while a telling exposition of the unprincipled Julia Lane is given by Miss Maude Tremayne; Miss Ella Dixon is an efficient Peggy MacGuire; and Miss Beatrix Bell is amusing as Energy Mugs. The scenery and mounting are all that could be desired.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, March 6, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Melville, entitled

"A GIRL'S CROSS ROADS."

So successful was A Girl's Cross Roads when last produced at this theatre, that the managers have been tempted to bring the play back to the scene of its former triumph. This shows considerable wisdom, and success must inevitably be the result, for the drama is one of absorbing interest, full of exciting situations, and with plenty of the comic element, which is made to stand out in bold contrast to the more serious and impressive portions of the drama. On Monday the play met with the excellent reception it deserved, and the powerful sermon preached during the unwinding of the story must have touched the hearts of all. Mr. Andrew Emm is cast for the part of John Meadows, the old farmer. Having seen so much of Mr. Emm's ability in humorous characters, we could scarcely imagine him in a part of this description, but he does every justice to the rôle, and plays the innocent and unsuspecting old countryman in a manner which reflects great credit upon him. Mr. Cecil du Gue acts with vigour as the hero, Jack Livingstone, and fills the part in a manner which is extremely satisfactory. As Toby Turvey, Mr. Harry Brayne is exceedingly well placed. He squeezes every atom of fun out of the character, and causes much merriment by his accomplished methods as a comedian. He receives substantial help from Miss Nellie Lauraine, who is a lively and energetic Tilley Vayne. Mr. Bensley Evans submits a fine study of the gentlemanly rogue, Cuthbert Lumley, and depicts the cruel and heartless nature of the man with ability. As Luke Ramsden, Mr. John Sargent thoroughly looks the despicable character he is supposed to represent. He acts well, and portrays the hard-hearted ruffian with due regard to the many peculiarities of the rôle. Mr. Cyril Vernon plays with skill as Dr. Weston, whilst Mr. Augustin Symonds is all that could be desired as the pickpocket Crofts. Miss V. St. Lawrence is an accomplished actress, and plays the part of the fallen and debased woman in a manner which is deserving of every praise. Miss Dido Drake ably portrays the innocent-minded young schoolmistress Constance Cornell, and delights everyone with her grace and charm of manner. A character totally different from this is that of Barbara Wade, a young woman who, cursed with a craving for drink, becomes in the end a complete wreck and a disgrace to her sex. This is an exceedingly difficult character to adequately portray, but Miss Nell Oliver successfully copes with every difficulty, and supplies a delineation worthy of warm praise. Some exceedingly pretty scenes reflect great credit upon Mr. George Tweddell and his assistants, and suitable incidental music has been composed by Mr. Edward Reeves.

THE BRITANNIA.

On Monday, March 6, the Drama, entitled

"THE LIFE THAT KILLS."

The Life that Kills, described as "a play of passions," occupies the boards here this week, and is being well received. Mr. East undoubtedly is thoroughly acquainted with his patrons, and crowded houses are to be seen at each performance. The "Brit." stock company presents the piece with telling effect. Miss Rose Ralph, who is seen as Laurie Linden, makes an ideal heroine, being ably assisted by Mr. Maurice Hoffman, as Hector Rodney. Mr. Chas. A. East is an admirable Kendal Croat, and Miss Judith Kyrle is equally successful as Brenda Croat. Mr. Harold West proves himself a capital actor as Hector Rodney's ne'er-do-well cousin, Valentine Telford. Special mention must be made of Miss Marie Wright, who works hard as Johanna Hicks; Jack Jollife has an able exponent in Mr. Willie Scott, his humour keeping the house alive; Mr. Tom Wallace makes himself a decided favourite as Samuel Flatfoote; Messrs. Chas. Longley and Chas. Groves, as the Rev. Theodore Rodney and Dr. Brackley respectively, and Miss Claire Ellis, as May Linden, are all worthy of note. The new series of animated pictures proves a good variety interlude.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, March 6, the Drama, by Frederick Melville, entitled

"HER FORBIDDEN MARRIAGE."

Mr. F. Melville's sensational drama, Her Forbidden Marriage, is making an early return visit this week, and there can be no doubt that the thrilling incidents occurring throughout the strong plot prove to be a strong drawing card to the theatre-going public. All the artistes work with a will, and the result is a performance both creditable and meritorious. The part of the persecuted Lucy is charmingly played by Miss Isla Garnet Vayne, and her efforts met with warm appreciation from the audience. As George Madison, Mr. Horace Hunter works unflaggingly, and his delineation of the young engineer is artistic and refined. Mr. Clarence Hague makes a polished Charles Devereux, whose villainous methods reap their own reward in the course of time. Timothy Tuttutt is entrusted to the capable hands of Mr. Alfred Wellesley, and in his comical business he is cleverly assisted by Miss Marie Kildare, as Pattie Lovejoy. Mr. J. Stone is dignified and natural as Sir George Lancaster, and Mr. Edgar L. Hocking is excellent as Joe Lambkin. Mr. Gilbert Heron as the Rev. Mr. Dean is effective, and Mr. W. Browning is good as Dr. Fenwick. Miss Barbara Gott deserves commendation for her representation of the part of the Mother Superior, and in the character of Lady Lucretia Lancaster Miss Georgette Thierry gives a striking display of the callous nature of a woman of fashion. All the minor characters are well sustained, and the general mounting of the drama is in every way excellent.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, March 6, the Musical Play, in Two Acts, by George Dance, composed by Ivan Caryll, entitled

"THE GAY PARISIENNE."

Quite an old friend is visiting the Alexandra this week, The Gay Parisienne being presented on Monday by Mr. Charles Macdona's company. Mr. Macdona himself appears as Major Fossdyke, of the "Battersea Butterfly Shooters," and succeeds in giving an amusing performance of the conventional irascible military man of the stage. Mr. Lionel Rignold's Ebenezer Honeycombe is a tower of strength to the production, and, whatever success is achieved, is due in no small measure to him. The title rôle is in the hands of Miss Isabella Dillon, who gives a bright and intelligent rendering of the fascinating Julie Bon Bon, and Mr. Arthur Powell is an agile and alert Pompier. Miss Gwennie Harcourt plays Ruth in a quaint and diverting manner, somewhat on the lines of the original exponent of the part, and Miss Ethel Dunbar is in every way a satisfactory Norah Honeycombe. Mr. Thomas Kennard is easy and natural as Tom Everleigh, and other parts are filled with success by Messrs. Ernest Marriott, Clarence Seaton, Rudolph Kloss, Bloomfield Jones, and J. Fitzjames; and Misses Eleanor McHardy and Mabel Wilkins. A finished performance of Mrs. Honeycombe is contributed by Miss Marie Daltra. The musical arrangements are in the hands of Mr. Henry Lawrence.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, March 6, the Comedy, by Brandon Thomas, entitled

"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

That perennial attraction, Charley's Aunt, is playing to excellent business this week at the Borough Theatre, due to a great extent to the fact that the piece is travelling under the direction of the author, thereby guaranteeing an irreproachable interpretation. Mr. Stanley Cooke plays irresistibly as Lord Fancourt Babberley, the masquerading Aunt from Brazil, "where the nuts come from," and his untiring efforts are rewarded with frequent applause. Mr. Brandon Thomas hits off exactly the brusque affability of Colonel Sir Francis Chesney, and Mr. Simon Ord plays appropriately as the insistently amorous Stephen Spettigue. Jack Chesney has a buoyant and fluent representative in Mr. Arthur Soames; Mr. Richard B. Mason makes an excellent Charley Wykeham; and the imperturbable scout Brasset is effectively played by Mr. Sydney Compton. Miss Violet Cooper looks very charming as Kitty Verdon, and Miss Geraldine Greville makes a captivating Amy Spettigue. Miss Lena MacNaughton is a handsome Donna Lucia d'Alvadorez, and Ela Delahay is daintily impersonated by Miss Dorrie Roberts. Fourchette and Company, a play in one act, by Brandon Thomas, which precedes, is enthusiastically received, the three characters being successfully undertaken by Mr. Henry Adnes, Miss Ruth Suffield, and Mr. C. B. Keston.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, March 6, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Lingford Carson, entitled

"THE DRAMA OF LIFE."

Much interest was evinced in this drama on its first visit to Stratford on Monday night, and its progress as the story unfolded was punctuated with hearty applause. While not laying claims to much originality in its general treatment, its underlying current of portraying the horrors of the drink evil exactly suits popular audiences, who watch with breathless interest the career of Harry Beech, whom troubles and wrongful accusation of murder have rendered a gambler and dipsomaniac. They rejoice exceedingly at Harry's startling resolve to change for the better, brought about by the naïve remark of his little son Robert, "When I'm a man, shall I play cards and drink like you?" and it can only be a matter for general satisfaction when finally villainy is thwarted; Harry's good name is cleared, and he is reunited to wife and child. Messrs. Carson and Granville's company is a well-balanced one, and the scenery and mounting very appropriate. Mr. Jerrold Ord plays with much force and earnestness as Harry Beech, possessing excellent declamatory powers, and appearing to especial advantage in his strong scene in the third act. Mr. John J. Hooker is careful not to overdo the part of the vile-natured Walter Beech, and his incisive methods are exceedingly effective. Mr. Owen Remonde capitally impersonates the good-natured Sir Dobson Wilde, and a clever character sketch of Jack Lawton comes from Mr. Bulmer Pitt. Mr. Walter Steele is very successful in impersonating the popular detective Richard Brenton, and the crafty Count de Foi is most commendably played by Mr. Edward Bikker. Mr. Leonard Thackeray does well as Dave Crane, and Mr. George Shaw makes a satisfactory William Harrison. Miss Cissy Bellamy acts with sympathy and charm as Sylvia Beech. Miss Muriel Inglis is a pleasant and becoming Lady Jane Wilde; Miss Nelly Daly is excellent as the disreputable-looking Betty Black; and Miss Marie Murray contributes a promising performance as Master Robert Beech.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, March 6, the Play entitled

"MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE."

The company at the Fulham Theatre this week is that of Mr. Norman Macowan, in the successful play, Monsieur Beaucaire, and the large and appreciative audience who witnessed the performance on Monday night testified to the attractions of the piece. Mr. Macowan himself sustains the title-rôle, and his work is notably good. His fine person and his gracious manner, with the air of the high-born gentleman that he is so successful in assuming, make his presence on the stage a pleasure. His acting, too, is of no mean order; he makes one fully feel the humour of his own false pretences, as well as the tragedy of the moment when, to preserve his incognito, he has to run the risk of offending Lady Mary. Mr. Stuart Willson, as the Duke of Winteset, is another fine figure, and makes one feel a tinge of regret that so fine a gentleman should be a villain. Mr. Conybeare Gough acts lightly and gracefully as Mr. Rakell, and his light-hearted gaiety is in pleasing contrast to the glum looks of the disappointed suitors. He is particularly happy in the manner in which he suggests the innate sense of fair-play showing through his dislike of the supposed swindler. The part of Major Molyneaux, Beaucaire's loyal friend, is ably played by Mr. H. P. Owen. Mr. Cecil Warde contributes a good character study of Mr. Bicksett, a type with which Bath was no doubt tolerably familiar, and Mr. Wilfred Compton is an able exponent of Beau Nash, the autocratic M.C. who did so much to make the western town famous. Mr. Hans Schlesinger merits praise as François, Beaucaire's servant. Of the female parts, the leading one is taken by Miss Violet Sterne, whose acting was very fine throughout, in the love passages with Beaucaire, in her anger at being duped, and her confession of love in the last act. Miss Florence Lincoln, also, was sympathetic as Lucy Rellerton. Of the performance as a whole one can hardly speak too highly. The scenery and general mounting were effective, and the dresses were magnificent. No costumes can vie with those of the Georgian era in splendour, and a group of handsome actors and actresses in eighteenth century dress forms a stage picture that cannot be beaten.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 6, the Drama, by Sir Francis Burnand, entitled

"PROOF."

The well-known drama, Proof, which is being played at the Dalston Theatre this week by Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren's company, is meeting with a most favourable reception. Mr. Maclaren takes the lion's share of the work as Pierre Lorance, and it is doing him the barest justice to say that he makes an ideal hero. He looks the part admirably, and enlists the sympathy of the audience with him all the time. Miss Lily C. Bandmann, who appears in the prologue as Madeleine and in the drama as Valentine, acts with energy, and is the recipient of much applause. Little Adrienne in the prologue is nicely played by Miss Gertrude Coates, and the Adrienne of the drama is Miss Gertrude Evans, whose appearance is distinctly in her favour, while her portrayal of the part is effective. Mr. Richard Fulton's Lazare (alias Count of Laval in the drama) is a creditable piece of work, which is well received. Mr. Ardene Linden's Chamboran provides the humorous element in the drama, and, as the friend of the hero, he is naturally popular. The autocratic Count D'Aubeterre has a vivid representative in Mr. Kingsford Pearce, whose acting is thoroughly good. Miss Wynne Stanley is the Duchess D'Aubeterre, Miss Nellie Bilbe is Julia, and Mrs. S. Hay is Madame Deprets. Another in the cast claiming attention is Mr. E. St. Claire Vayne, who, as Victor de Laugney, provides a striking sketch of an active young officer.

EALING THEATRE.

On Monday, March 6, the Play, in Four Acts, by Walter Melville, entitled

"A DISGRACE TO HER SEX."

Mr. Walter Melville's popular company is with us this week in A Disgrace to Her Sex. Mr. Edward E. Ashby, as Jack Dames, acts in a forcible manner; Mr. Eugene Santley, who has an excellent delivery, is efficient in every way as David Carrington; Mr. Arthur Byron, with his drolleries, is responsible for much laughter in the part of Burnaby Mugg; and Miss Polly Marsh is very funny as Bella Mugg. Miss Elaine Vanburgh sustains the rôle of Mabel Valley with marked ability; Miss Nelie Lucas, as Mildred Carrington, is fascinating; and Miss Laura Hansen, an accomplished actress, impresses all with her histrionic ability in the chief rôle. Mr. David G. Noble is responsible for a fine piece of acting as Arnold Travers; Mr. Clinton Baddeley is satisfactory as Jules Delarnet; Miss Daisy Norman makes a capital landlady; and Miss Cecile Rene is a dainty Lucy Eliza Brown. Mr. Fred Elsworthy is all that can be desired as Paterson, and Mr. Henry P. Brodie makes a capable policeman. The mounting of the play deserves special mention.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, March 6, the Military Play, in Five Acts, by George Daventry, entitled

"THE INDIAN MUTINY."

All plays of a military character are always eagerly welcomed in Marylebone, and certainly this stirring piece of Mr. Daventry's proved no exception to the rule. The talented members of Mr. Frank E. Burdett's company met with recognition of the utmost cordiality. Mr. H. Ryeland-Leigh portrayed Lieutenant Manley in capital style, the easiness of his methods being most noticeable. Mr. H. G. Brandon made the most of Captain Manley, acting in a polished and finished manner, and Mr. W. S. Tindall, as Major Ingleby, was the true British officer to the life. The leader of the rebels, Nebu Singh, found an able exponent in Mr. Villiers Stanley, who played with much fervour; Mr. J. S. Shedden was impressive as Abul Khan; Mr. Ernest Keand was more than capable as Ra Goonga; Mr. G. Birch was meritorious as Ensign Blake; and Mr. John Hignett as the body-servant, Terry O'Brien, kept things going in lively fashion, with his frequent sallies of true Hibernian wit. The important rôle of the Brahmin Priestess Ghuz-nah was sustained by that experienced actress Miss Maud Digby in a most convincing way. She extracted every ounce possible out of her part. Miss Kate Bruce did exceedingly well as Mrs. Ingleby, and Miss Agnes Kingston, as Kate, was efficient in every way. The play was staged and mounted in most lavish fashion, the native Indian dresses being most costly and gorgeous.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 6, the Musical Play, entitled

"PEGGY MACHREE."

Mr. Charles E. Hamilton's company is this week presenting Peggy Machree to large and appreciative audiences. The rôle of Barry Trevor is taken by the popular tenor, Mr. Denis O'Sullivan, whose fine voice does ample justice to the many charming Irish melodies introduced. Miss Marie Dainton is fresh and dainty as the Lady Peggy O'Driscoll, otherwise Peggy Machree. Her acting, singing, and dancing are all so excellent that there is little to choose between them. Miss Annie Brophy excels as Moira, Lady Margaret's foster-mother, and has several good songs. The cow-girl Molly MacMahon is taken by Miss Florence Vie, her song of the lost cow being delightful. Miss McKay makes a pleasing Nora, and Miss Bertha Seaton and Miss Pattie Rusholme are both good respectively as Kathleen and Eileen. Miss Ida Lawrence introduces a pretty dance, this little lady being so light on her feet that she scarcely appears to touch the stage. Sir Lawrence Borthwick, Barry Trevor's chum, is amusingly played by Mr. Erskine Lang, and Mr. Marc MacDermott takes the rôle of Captain de la Cour, the villainous Frenchman. Mr. J. Graeme Campbell, as the Scotsman, Alex. MacDougall, makes a hit with his humorous song about the "Land o' Cakes"; and Michael the piper is very Irish in his rivalry for the hand of Moira. His song, "And that's how I lost my place," receives a rightly deserved encore. The other parts are well filled.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 6, the Musical Play, entitled

"THE GEISHA."

Time cannot diminish the popularity with which The Geisha is received by the playgoing public, and certainly the audience at the Brixton Theatre on Monday evening greeted the different items with all their usual heartiness, for encores were the rule, and there was not a single song or dance but which received a demand for more. Miss Violet Moors, as Mimosa San, played very well, and received encores for her tuneful singing of the "Jewel of Asia" and "The Life of a Geisha." Miss Florrie Saunders made a great success as Mollie Seymour; she was heartily applauded for her rendering of "Click Click" and "Chon Kina," and danced herself into the favour of her audience. Miss Violet Kenyon was well suited in her character of Juliette Diamente. Miss Aubrey Ashton was an excellent Lady Constance, and her guests, Ethel Hurst, Marie Worthington, and Mabel Grant, were smartly played by Miss Florence Lake, Miss Lucy Egerton, and Miss Marie Gilbert. Reginald Fairfax had a breezy representative in Mr. Arthur Cartwright, and he also had to twice respond for his admirable rendering of "Jack's the Boy for Work" and "How can I wait." The Wun-Hi of Mr. Edward Carlton was an excellent impersonation; his jokes and sallies caused many a hearty laugh during the evening, and he was well applauded for his agile dancing. Mr. Lionel Braham made a favourable impression by his majestic and amusing Marquis Imari. Mr. J. Hornby did well as the Captain of the Guard, and Mr. Harry Reynolds was successful as Takemine, the Governor's factotum. Mr. Bay Russell, Mr. F. P. Wilfred, and Mr. Scott Cullen gave a good account of themselves as the three officers of H.M.S. Turtle. All the minor parts were in capable hands, and an excellent and tuneful chorus and augmented orchestra rendered good service under the direction of Mr. Frank Barrett. The scenery and dresses were admired, and added to the success of the performance.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, March 6th, the Drama entitled

"SAPHO."

Sapho is the attraction this week, and has been enthusiastically received, the audiences frequently giving signs of their appreciation of the efforts of the members of Miss Olga Nethersole's well-selected company. An adequate interpretation of the play is given, and one and all are to be complimented on their skill. Miss Cecil Cromwell submits a carefully studied and entirely artistic representation of the title-rôle, exhibiting great dramatic power. Her portrayal of the many shades of character is very consistent and natural, and proves the ability of Miss Cromwell to be of high order. Mr. Arthur Royston, as Jean Gaussin, has won much and well-deserved applause for his powerful delineation of the part, and plays with earnestness, brilliancy and polish. Uncle Cesaire has an excellent exponent in Mr. A. T. Hendon. Messrs. Lytton and Mr. Frank Melrose appear with marked success in their respective parts of Dechelette and Caoudal; and Mr. Slaine Mills is particularly good as Flamant, giving a powerful reading of the part. Miss Winifred Pearson and Mr. Knox Monk are mirth provoking as the Hettemas, and on the humorous side Miss Rosa Sullivan also distinctly scores as Francine. Miss Irene Wakefield fully justifies her selection for the rôle of Joseph; and Irene is charmingly portrayed by Miss Wynter. Praise is due to Miss Isabel Derrie for her characteristic performance of Aunti Divonne, and the remaining members of the cast all sustain their parts capitally. The staging is excellent.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, March 6, the American Musical Comedy, entitled

"THE PRINCE OF PILSEN."

There can be no question that The Prince of Pilsen is destined for a long and prosperous career, if the extremely cordial reception of the comedy on Monday night can be counted as being significant of its successful future. We certainly see no reason against it, for it was clearly evidenced that the audience was thoroughly satisfied with the manner in which Mr. George Musgrove had catered for their enjoyment. Much of the music is melodious and ear-haunting. The dresses are absolutely gorgeous, and form feasts of colour upon which the eye gazes entranced. Mr. Edwin Adler sustains the part of Herr Wagner in an extremely laughable manner, and we can go so far as to say that no small proportion of the success is due to his efforts. The Prince of Pilsen is played by Mr. John M. Hay with excellent discretion, his handsome presence and talented singing meeting with much approbation. A pleasing singer, Mr. Villiers Arnold is entrusted with the character of Lieutenant Tom Wagner, and he scores a conspicuous success. Mr. Lawrence Wensley displays great ability as the Earl of Shrimpton, and Mr. Alfred Selby receives much favour for the agility displayed by him as Francois. Mr. D. O. Uglass makes a model Cook's courier, and acts well as Sergeant Brie. Miss Millicent Marsden acts and sings admirably as Mrs. Madison Crocker, winning distinct praise. Edith Adams is brightly and daintily interpreted by Miss Beatrice Lamotte, and Miss Nell Emerald as Sidonie gains appreciation by her sprightly dancing. Miss Ruby Verdi makes a fascinating Nell Wagner, and as the Bell boy, Jimmie, Miss Meg Hamylton looks saucy, and acts with vivacity. Messrs. Prendegast, Naylor, Hartford, Robbing, Simpson, Percival, Victor, and Gervaise sing with excellent judgment as the Heidelberg boys, but perhaps the most popular "turn" of the evening is the song of the American girl, with the different dances. All the young ladies taking part in this scena are greeted with loud and deserved applause, but the most prolonged ovation is reserved for the now popular "Gibson Girl," brilliantly presented by Mdlle. Christine Rayniski. The full chorus has been well trained and carefully selected, and the orchestra is skilfully directed by Mr. Leonard Hornsey. The scenery by W. B. Spong is exceedingly attractive.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, March 6, the Musical Comedy, "THE EARL AND THE GIRL."

Mr. William Greet's company has been here this week with The Earl and the Girl, and, to judge by the enthusiastic welcome accorded by an excellent house on Monday, this rollicking musical comedy is by way of being as great a favourite in the provinces as it has been in town. A cleverer impersonation of Jim Cheese, the dog-trainer, than that of Mr. William Stephens it is hard to imagine. The part seems to fit him like the proverbial glove. His power of facial expression is remarkable, and the comicality of his patter and business is irresistible. A natural and pleasing embodiment of Dick Wargrave comes from Mr. Percy Carr, who is successful with several songs, notably "The Cosy Corner Girl." Mr. William Walshe gives a realistic representation of A. Bunker Bliss, the American uncle of homicidal tendencies; Mr. Fred Hill is entirely adequate as the Hon. Crewe Boodle; and the English solicitor of Mr. J. C. Graves and the American solicitor of Mr. Will Hindson are cleverly differentiated. Miss Aimee Grey is a captivating Elphin Haye, acting nicely and singing delightfully, a greatly appreciated number being her rendering of "In Zanzibar." Daisy Fallowfield finds a vivacious exponent in Miss Florence Imeson, whose spirited song of "Freddy" brings down the house. As Liza Shoddham, Miss Dot Carey shows considerable skill in the delineation of character; and a capital representation of Mrs. Shimmering Black, a lady strong of mind as of hand, is submitted by Miss Gladys Fontaine. The success of the performance is materially contributed to by the tuneful singing of the handsomely dressed chorus.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON-ON-THAMES.

On Monday, March 6, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Wilson Barrett, entitled

"THE SIGN OF THE CROSS."

Although this remarkable play has been presented to Kingston playgoers on several previous occasions, the play was received with unmistakable approval, and its remarkable story was followed with interest from the rise to the fall of the curtain. This was chiefly due to the excellent manner in which it was played by Mr. William Greet's company, which is engaged in its production. Mr. F. B. Woulfe gives a fine conception of Marcus Superbus, and Miss Evelyn D'Alroy makes a most acceptable appearance as Mercia. Miss Ivy Millais also scores a considerable success as Stephanus. Mr. Frank Wood makes a creditable Glabrio, Mr. A. Bernhardt gives a fine picture of the Emperor of Rome; and others who deserve and receive particular notice are Mr. Charles Aldred, as Tigellinus; Mr. J. Wetherall, as Lucinius; Miss Nellie Boaser, as Poppœa; Miss Alma Bolton, as Berenice; Miss Cissie Carlton, as Dacia; and Miss Gwladys Ventry, as Ancaria The singing of Miss Jessica Ford and the dancing of Miss Violet Holland are much admired. The play was admirably staged.

THE GERMAN THEATRE.

On Friday, March 3, the Play, in Five Acts, by Henrik Ibsen, entitled

"DIE WILDENTE."

Werle	BRUNO WIBURGER
Gregor Werle	G. F. SCHWIEGER
Der alte Ekdal	JOHANNES KORNER
Hjalmar Ekdal	RUDOLF LEYRER
Gina Ekdal	ROSA BERTENS
Hedwig	ROSE GRAWZ
Frau Sörby	ADELE MEYSEL
Relling	HANS STOCK
Molvig	KARL NEUMANN
Gröberg	KARL BERGER
Pettersen	ADOLF WALTHER
Jensen	F. STERN
Ein bleicher, fetter	H. MENDEL
Ein dünnhaariger	HEINZ PABST
Ein kurzsichtiger	PHIL. LESING

Devotees of Ibsen were greatly gratified at the Great Queen-street Theatre, on the 3rd inst., at the realisation of "the Master's" ideals attained by the talented company of German artists, and even those who worship afar off felt the influence of the dramatic power contained in the piece. The author of The Wild Duck, the story of which is familiar enough in this country, toys with a stupendous problem, and gives but a sorry solution of it. The "mission" of Gregor Werle, who thinks his duty is to disturb the muddy waters of Gina Ekdal's past by impressing upon her unsuspecting and contented husband the fact that their idolised child is not his, is not a comforting one, and a lamentable tragedy is reached when that child, cast off by her father, is moved to destroy a pet duck as a proof of her love for that parent, but takes her own life instead, to the discomfiture of the moralist and the reconciliation of the pair whose happiness he has marred. But the absorbing interest of the piece never fails, and the talented company of German artists gave a performance of complete excellence. Frau Rosa Bertens broadened by many artistic touches the rôle of Gina Ekdal, indicating the abject affection of the wife and pride in her offspring with equal vividness. She was the keen-witted, unlearned housewife to the life, and both expression and movement were constantly on the alert in the depiction of the part. Herr Rudolf Leyrer put his capabilities to excellent use in the part of the self-estimating Hjalmar. To him fall comic as well as tragic opportunities, and of both phases of the part he made the utmost use, his restless energy and passionate action being as striking as his drollery was effective. A frankly ingenuous Hedwig was supplied in Fraulein Rose Grawz, who excels particularly in the use of the eyes. Her affection for her father was tenderly portrayed, and the youthful actress proved herself essentially a precious possession of the German company. A telling assumption of old Ekdal was given by Herr Johannes Korner, whose make-up and facial expression were admirable items of a performance distinguished by skill of the first order. Herr Hans Stock was dryly eccentric as Relling, the doctor, many laughs being accorded him, Herr Karl Neumann also causing merriment in the rôle of the clergyman Molvig. Fr. Adele Meysel gave distinction to the character of Frau Sörby; Herr Bruno Wiburger was dignified and distinct as Werle, and his son, Gregor, had a sincere and earnest exponent in Herr G. F. Schwieger. Curtain calls were frequent throughout the evening, and the all-round excellent representation emphasised the regret that the stay of the talented company is so near the end.

On Thursday, March 9,
Hermann Endermann's Play,
"ES LEBE DAS LEBEN."

This piece can scarcely be said to be new to this country, as an English version of it was produced a few years ago. The story, however, is an interesting one, dealing as it does with political intrigue and the platonic attachment of a married woman for a man who is not her husband. Psychology plays no small part in Herr Endermann's piece, the English title of which is The Joy of Living. The representation of the drama met with unqualified approval at the hands of the audience, the majority of whom were, of course, Germans. Chief honours fell to Frau Rosa Bertens, for her powerful and impressive portrayal of the character of Beate. At times Frau Bertens struck such a high note in tragedy that her audience became spellbound by the intensity of her acting. Herr Hans Andresen gave an admirable and well finished performance of Graf Michael v. Kellinhausen, and Mr. Max Behrend submitted a clever study in the rôle of Meixner. The five acts were admirably staged and mounted.

"WHEN THE WIFE'S AWAY."

A Comedy-Farce, in Three Acts.
by Edward F. Parry and Frederick Mouillot,
Produced for the first time on any stage at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, on Monday, March 6.

Sir Charles Foden	MR. C. LEVESON LANE
Jack Barrington	MR. LAWRENCE GRANT
General Dunlop	MR. GUY LANE
Dr. Clayton	MR. HUGH ARDALE
Abraham Weinstein	MR. HENRY NELSON
Sidney Clifford Weinstein.	MR. F. H. DENTON
Vere de Bogyns	MR. E. H. KELLY
Professor Shale, F.G.S.	MR. EVERARD DIGBY
Pink	MR. EDWARD RIGBY
Nora	MISS BEATRIX DE BURGH
Mrs. Barrington	MRS. MOUILLOT
Miss Foden	MISS CAVENDISH
Miss Clarissa Dunlop	MISS EVELYN MAXWELL
Miss Selina Dunlop	MISS ROSALIND IVAN
Mrs. Fleming Smyth	MISS ELSIE CAREW
Mrs. Hake	MISS GERTRUDE LE SAUF
Sophonisba Hake	MISS LILIAN GRAHAM
Maria	MISS MABEL ROSS

This new comedy-farce, which was presented to a crowded audience on Monday night, proved a great success, and the authors, Mr. Edward F. Parry (Judge Parry, of Manchester) and Mr. Frederick Mouillot (our popular managing-director), are indeed to be congratulated on their excellent work. The dialogue is particularly smart throughout, and the comedy should have a successful run.

The action of the play takes place at an old family mansion, and its owner, Sir Charles Foden, who has fallen into genteel poverty, changes the house into Foden Wells Hydropathic Establishment; himself appearing as the managing-director. Into this pleasant venue come quite a miscellany of odd types of hydro patients, including a fiery General, who "lost" his regiment in a South African engagement; a lady passionately devoted to her parrot, an old Jew, and a dreamily declaiming actor. Above all, there is a very demon of a "Buttons"; and, again, a little girl of a pronounced enfant terrible order. Into it comes, too, as the admired and petted of all the woman folk one Jack Barrington, a young Irishman, endowed with quite exceptional powers of blarney. He responds with spirit to the attentions paid him by the fair sex; and a possible engagement is thought of by more than one fair maiden. But Barrington has omitted to mention the pertinent detail that he is married. So, when his wife, Kitty, arrives unexpectedly upon the scene with her belongings, there is a tense denouement, and the resulting complications are amusing. But Barrington makes a clean breast of it to Kitty, and induces her to pass as his sister-in-law. In the sequel there are some diverting incidents in this farce of intrigue. Barrington now draws in his reins to some extent. But not so Kitty. She occupies her time in coquetting with Sir Charles Foden, the managing-director of the hydro. Barrington is vastly perturbed by this, and gets a severe paying back in his own coin. The comedy-farce, fortified by motive and incident, works on merrily, and the close is a general clearing up, more or less, to the satisfaction of the various interests.

Mr. Lawrence Grant displayed much comedy in the character of Jack Barrington, the rollicking and good-natured Irishman. Mrs. Mouillot acted with artistic ability, and made a most effective Mrs. Barrington; Mr. C. Leveson Lane was particularly good in his study of Sir Charles Foden, and Mr. Guy Lane made a capital General Dunlop. Mr. Edward Rigby had ample scope of distinguishing himself cleverly in the amusing part of the Buttons, Pink. Miss Foden was ably represented by Miss Cavendish, and the Misses Clarissa and Selena Dunlop were well sustained by Miss Evelyn Maxwell and Miss Rosalind Ivan. The remaining parts were satisfactorily filled, and the comedy was effectively staged.

Heart of Gold, a one-act Russo-Japanese play, by Beatrix De Burgh and Lawrence Grant, recently produced in London, was also presented. Mrs. Mouillot gave a pleasing and effective portrayal of the Japanese character O Hana San, and Mr. Lawrence Grant acted well as Captain Dimitri Korsakoff. The new curtain-raiser was excellently staged.

"DR. JANET, OF HARLEY STREET."

Play, in Four Acts, adapted by S. Creagh Henry from Arabella Kenealy's Novel of the same name.
Produced at the Crystal Palace Theatre, on Monday, March 6.

Marquis de Richeville	MR. S. CREAGH HENRY
Dr. Paul Liveing	MR. HERBERT E. TERRY
Rev. Robert Heath	MR. OWEN HAMILTON
Alphonse	MR. JAMES GILDRED
Bagstock	MR WYN WEAVER
Dr. Janet Doyle	MISS LILLA WILDE
Mrs. Eve	MISS CONSTANCE OWEN
Phyllis	MISS JESSIE DANVERS
Martha	MISS M. DAVIES-WEBSTER
Nurse Hilda	MISS ROSINA MATILDAH
Mary Ann	MISS DAISY BAZLEY

The transference of Dr. Janet, of Harley-street, from the study to the stage has not proved wholly to its advantage. The plot, denuded of the graphic descriptive passages of the clever novelist, is meagre and not entirely convincing, and the undoubted interest which the story possesses is hindered by the pedantic disquisitions of the chief character. Dr. Janet Doyle may be clever at medicine and rich in the philosophy of life, but she enters the domain of egoism very frequently in the course of the play, and the substitution of wholesome dialogue for some of the morbid reflections on the evolution of mankind to which she gives utterance would be a distinct gain. The Minerva Hospital furnishes the scene for the operations of the lady doctor who gives the name to the play. She has a protégée in a young girl named Phyllis, who had been drawn into a marriage with a foreign nobleman named the Marquis de Richeville, but, learning of the infamous character borne by him, had left him at the church door and taken refuge with her friend, Dr. Janet, under whose care she takes up the study of medicine. Phyllis soon makes an impression on a young physician named Paul Liveing, who declares his love for her, only to learn the bitter truth that Phyllis is already married. She, in her innocence, would go on loving, confident that Paul alone possesses her affection; but Dr. Janet decides that the pair must part, a decision that is strengthened by the appearance of the Marquis, who demands that his wife shall return to him, and on her refusal strikes her in the face. A few months afterwards we find Paul and Phyllis happily married and settled in their Devonshire home, news having come of the demise of the Marquis abroad. That these tidings were false is proved by the appearance of the scoundrel, who interrupts a tête-à-tête of the lovers. The Marquis threatens proceedings in the Divorce Court, and an action for bigamy, and when Phyllis hands him the envelope containing the document giving news of his death, the Marquis produces only a blank sheet of paper. The scoundrel had himself sent the communication, using vanishing ink for his purpose, so that there is apparently nothing between Phyllis and penal servitude. The Marquis delays taking proceedings, hoping that Phyllis will return to him, and solacing himself with copious draughts of brandy. He is just beginning his second decanter of the fluid when Dr. Janet arrives to beg him to take an action for divorce, and thus release the young people. The lady appeals in vain, but the arguments of Paul Liveing, who forces his way into the room, are more powerful, for he has proofs of the existence of the Marquis's first wife. The news so upsets the nobleman that he has an attack of delirium tremens, and, getting a revolver, begins a wholesale massacre of the snakes, toads, and other vermin that his fancy creates, eventually including himself in the slaughter.

The author of the play, who essayed the rôle of the Marquis de Richeville, was far too youthful in appearance properly to suggest the old roué, and his foreign accent was scarcely ever reminiscent of any Continental tongue that is familiar to us; but he conveyed the effect of alcoholic irritation admirably, and there was a fierceness and energy in his depiction of the "d.t.'s" that told very well. Miss Lilla Wilde furnished the lady doctor with the pince-nez of her profession and also with the affected utterance to which bluestockings are popularly addicted, and which occasionally marred the distinctness of her lines, but the portrayal was a pleasing one, and in the closing scenes more especially gave evidence of the charm and feeling of which Miss Wilde is capable. Mr. Herbert E. Terry was a little too dispassionate throughout to give sufficient colour to the part of Paul Liveing. The bitterness of spirit of the disappointed doctor was adequately conveyed, but the fine speaking voice of the young actor was scarcely utilised to the best advantage, an improvement which would probably come with a better experience of the acoustics of the theatre. Miss Jessie Danvers rendered the difficult rôle of Phyllis with feeling and grace of expression—qualities which were apparent throughout. Miss M. Davies-Webster and Miss Constance Owen acquitted themselves of their few responsibilities as Martha and Mrs. Eve respectively with credit; Mr. Owen Hamilton invested with clerical dignity the part of the Rev. Robert Heath; and Mr. Wyn Weaver was irreproachable in his utterance in the part of the Marquis's manservant; perhaps, indeed, he was a little too gentlemanly. A little girl named Mary Ann was played with intelligence by Miss Daisy Bazley, who acts and talks intelligently.

AT the conclusion of the Grand, Islington, pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, Mr. George Mozart, on behalf of the company, presented Mr. Powell James, the stage manager, with a purse of gold. Mr. James was also the recipient of several other presents, including a silver cigarette case, matchbox, and pencil.

THE Metropole Theatre, Birmingham, will be offered for sale at auction by Mr. Charles F. Redfern, on Thursday next, at the Grand Hotel, in that town. The theatre, which has just been redecorated, is one of the largest and handsomest in the Midlands, and the following stage dimensions will show that it is capable of any production:—Wall to wall, 63ft.; footlights to back wall, 33ft.; stage to grid, 50ft.; fly-rail to fly-rail 36ft.; flies to stage, 20ft. There are eight dressing-rooms, a property-room, and six rooms and band-room under stage, while a new fire-proof curtain has recently been fitted. The theatre, the lease of which has seventy-nine years to run, at a ground rent of £222, will be offered as a going concern, including the fire-proofed scenery, fixed seating, and settees, together with electric and gas fittings.

ÆSCHYLUS AT NOTTING HILL.

On Saturday, March 4, at the Coronet Theatre, Production of THE ORESTEAN TRILOGY OF ÆSCHYLUS.
"AGAMEMNON."

A Watchman	MR. P. D. OWEN
Clytemnestra	MRS. F. R. BENSON
A Herald	MR. PHILIP SANDERS
Agamemnon	MR. T. A. SHANNON
Cassandra	MISS GERTRUDE SCOTT
Ægisthus	MR. B. A. PITTAR

On Saturday Mr. F. R. Benson introduced to Londoners for the first time the famous Orestean trilogy of Æschylus, and gave them a glimpse of Greek tragedy by perhaps its greatest dramatic exponent. Last year, at the Stratford-on-Avon Shakespearean festival, this was included in the Bensonian répertoire, and found favour with large, enthusiastic, and erudite audiences. Judging by the crowded state of the Coronet Theatre at this and at the Shakespearean and other representations by Mr. Benson's company, there is still a large section of the playgoing public ever ready and willing to afford their patronage and support to classical and literary drama when well set forth and capably interpreted.

All praise is due to Mr. Benson for the lavish and sumptuous manner in which the tragedy is staged, and the elaborate and careful attention to every detail of dress, action and mise-en-scène calculated to bring home to the minds of the audience the conditions which prevailed in ancient days.

The scene opens with Agamemnon entering on his chariot, "bearing his blushing honours thick upon him," returned from the successful siege of Troy. The prophetess Cassandra, rides behind in his chariot, his share of the spoil. Enthusiastic plaudits rend the air, and none do him greater reverence than his spouse, Clytemnestra, who persuades her lord to walk on purple to his apartment, her bosom full of fearful plots for his undoing the while. Cassandra, the seeress, meantime sees visions of the dreadful happenings, and reads the fated future, and so steps into the palace to her doom. The scene ends with the tableau of Agamemnon and Cassandra lying murdered, and Clytemnestra and her guilty lover, Ægisthus, determining to reign in his stead. Miss Gertrude Scott is remarkably good as Cassandra, the captive prophetess, and acts with almost inspired fervour and realism in her involuntary dread vaticination, and she strikes a high note of tragic intensity. Mrs. F. R. Benson in this scene ably portrays the insinuating solicitude, hiding the cruel, treacherous, and relentless nature of Clytemnestra, thirsting for revenge for the sacrifice of her child, and eager to gratify her guilty love. Mr. T. A. Shannon acts with befitting dignity and grandeur as King Agamemnon, returned laurel-crowned from victory to be butchered "like an ox in a stall." Mr. B. A. Pittar is eminently satisfactory in the small part of Ægisthus, and Mr. P. D. Owen and Mr. Philip Sanders speak their lines well.

"THE LIBATION BEARERS."

Orestes	MR. F. R. BENSON
Electra	MISS MABEL MOORE
A Nurse	MISS VERA LESLIE
Clytemnestra	MRS. F. R. BENSON
A Watchman	MR. P. D. OWEN
Pylades	MR. R. G. DAVIS

The second part of this tragedy shows "the libation bearers" sent by Clytemnestra to propitiate the gods by reason of her fearful dreams and sudden pangs of remorse. Orestes, returned, mingles his lamentations with theirs, and with Electra, his sister, swears to be avenged on his father's murderess and her paramour. This scene is notable for the elaborate rites and obsequies performed at the tomb of Agamemnon, and the choral effects in the weird descriptive music. Miss Cissie Saumarez (a sweet-voiced soprano soloist), together with Miss Sleddall (a rich, pure contralto soloist), bears the chief part in the interpretation of the grand but difficult music, and they, together with the rest of the choir, give unquestionable satisfaction. Like the former scene, this ends in a note of deepest tragedy, with the awful vengeance of Orestes, aided by his friend Pylades, and the horror of the matricide as he becomes aware of the torments that await him at the hands of the Furies.

Mr. F. R. Benson acts with deep feeling in the scene where he mourns his murdered father and mingles his tears with those of his sister Electra at his tomb, and later, when, seized with maniacal dread of the torments of the Furies, he gives an exceedingly powerful assumption of frenzied terror and remorse. Miss Mabel Moore is a very sweet and sympathetic figure as Electra. Mrs. Benson makes a brief but very telling appearance as Clytemnestra in this act, and her depiction of a stern and resolute woman, bowing to the decrees of fate, is strikingly and happily conceived. As a Nurse, Miss Vera Leslie is very good, and, indeed, all concerned in this scene act in the genuine vein of tragedy, and there is no jarring note.

"THE FURIES."

Apollo	MR. CYRIL KEIGHTLEY
Orestes	MR. F. R. BENSON
The Ghost of Clytemnestra	MRS. F. R. BENSON
Athena	MISS ROXY BARTON

In "The Furies," the last scene of all, that ends "this strange eventful history," we find Orestes, after much misery and adventure in foreign travel, clinging to the altar of Athena in the temple at Delphi, while slumbering Furies hem him in on all sides. He invokes Apollo and Minerva, and presently Apollo aids him to escape; Pallas Athene pronounces the avenger of his father's murder as not blood-guilty, and the Furies are appeased. In this act, Mr. Cyril Keightley is excellent as Apollo, and Miss Roxy Barton stands out in bold relief as the goddess Athena. Mrs. F. R. Benson earns deserved applause in her invocation to the tormenting spirits as the ghost of the murdered Queen, and Mr. F. R. Benson comes remarkably well through the ordeal of his trying part in the closing scenes as Orestes. Such well-known people as Mr. George Weir and Miss Leah Hanman will be noted among the Furies in minor rôles. The chorus is augmented by Mr. Vernon Drew's choir, under the direction of Mr. George Buchanan and Miss Cissie Saumarez. The music for the trilogy has been specially composed by Mr. Christopher Wilson, and the augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. George W. Collins. Mr. Edward Lytton, the popular acting-manager, states that there has been quite record business during Mr. Benson's season, and the advance booking is exceptionally good.

MR. EDITOR.—Sir,—In your notice of Aladdin at the Theatre Royal, Castleford, last week, you referred to me as J. Arnold. It should have been, yours faithfully, FRED. ARNOLD.

MR. GEORGE MUSGROVE'S company, with The Prince of Pilsen, will be seen next week at the Kennington Theatre. The company is an excellent one, and the entire production on a most elaborate scale, the dresses, scenery, and general effects being an exact replica of those at the Shaftesbury Theatre. A new "Gibson girl" will be seen in Mdlle. Christine Raynisky, a young Hungarian actress. Mr. F. R. Benson's successful season at the Coronet will come to a close next week. On Monday he will again present The Comedy of Errors; on Tuesday and Thursday, Hamlet; Wednesday, The School for Scandal; Friday, Macbeth; and on Saturday, King Lear. There will be afternoon performances on Wednesday and Saturday, when King Lear and Hamlet will be presented.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"TOM PITT, LE ROI DES PICKPOCKETS."
Spectacular Play, in Four Acts and Eighteen Tableaux, by MM. V. de Cottens and V. Darlay,
Produced at the Chatelet, March 2.

Tom Pitt	M. MAX DEARLY
Cricri	M. POUGAUD
Lapoire	M. VIBERT
Seraphin	M. PAUL ARDOT
Lionel	M. MAIRE
Picrates	M. DANVERS
Pirouette	MDLLE. BERALDY
Edna	MDLLE. MYRAL
Arabella	MME. ROLLAND.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, MARCH 9.—The management of the Chatelet have struck oil with their new spectacular play, which met with an excellent reception, and seems to be booked for a long run. But it must be said to the credit of this management that, although generally most niggardly, they have this time gone in for lavish expenditure, and mounted the work in a superb manner. M. Victor de Cottens, a great Anglo-maniac, insisted on everything being done on English lines, and he even constructed his play somewhat according to English traditions. The plot is but a pretext for the display of the eighteen tableaux; and it is not necessary to tell in detail the story of how Tom Pitt, the famous pickpocket, tries to secure the £20,000,000 dowry which a crazy old American wants to bestow upon his niece Edna. And we embark on a pleasant trip from Charing Cross Station, through Wales, across the ocean, until we reach a curious Republic in South America, where Tom is run to earth. Tom, in fact, would have expiated his misdeeds on the gallows had not the eccentric, but shrewd, President made him Chief of the Police. The piece is not only beautifully mounted, it is excellently acted by the inimitable Max Dearly; by Pogaud, an old favourite; and a host of pretty girls, among whom Mdlle. Béraldy, Mdlle. Myral; and a number of charming young ladies from your side of the Channel, whose capitally executed dances and amusing English songs were heartily applauded.

"L'ENFANT ROI."
Lyric Comedy, in Five Acts,
by Emile Zola, Music by A. Bruneau,
Produced at the Opera-Comique, March 3.

François	M. DUFRANNE
Auguste	M. JEAN PERIER
Taussaint	M. VIEUILLE
Gearget	MDLLE. MARIE THIERY
Madeleine	MDLLE. FRICHE
Pauline	MDLLE. TIPHAINE..
La Grand'mere	MDLLE. COCYTE

However great the merits of Zola's works, his prose is absolutely anti-lyric, and M. Bruneau undertook a giant's task in setting this libretto—all in prose—to music. Nor does the libretto come up in other respects to the author's high standard. It is wordy, bombastic; and all the beautiful effects are imparted by the composer. Yet the story is pretty. Francois, a young master-baker, has married Madeleine. They are intensely happy. Then in steps the traitor, in the person of Auguste, their foreman. Auguste has discovered that Madeleine goes once a week to the Tuileries, and enters a kiosque, where she remains closeted with somebody. Francois finds a treacherous slip of paper in his ledger, and, having followed his wife, surprises her with a youth of sixteen. Her lover? No, her son; the child she had before she knew Francois; when a scoundrel seduced and deserted her. Francois is quite willing to forgive her for having withheld the fact from him, on condition of her giving up her boy. Give up her son? Never. And they part, sad and miserable; whilst the bakery is slowly going to pieces. After a year Madeleine can stand it no longer, and one evening, to Francois's surprise, she enters, and takes her old seat behind the counter. Moreover, Georget, a good lad, upset at being the innocent cause of trouble between his mother and his stepfather, has accepted a berth in America, and comes to say good-bye. And Francois, deeply moved, tells the boy not to go. The music is remarkably characteristic, and admirably fits every personage. Following Wagner's method, M. Bruneau has different motives, which return unexpectedly, and import a special charm to the different situations. The orchestration is masterful. The interpretation was beyond praise. The part of Francois suited M. Dufranne to the ground, and Mdlle Friché earned golden laurels as Madeleine. A word of praise, too, for Mdlle. Thiéry, Mdlle. Tiphaine, and M. Jean Périer.

"LA BELLE MARSEILLAISE."
Play, in Four Acts and Five Tableaux,
by M. Pierre Berton,
Produced at the Ambigu, March 3.

Tallemont	M. DIEUDONNE
Crisenoy	M. BRULE
Règnier	M. MOREAU
Fouché	M. SYNES
Jeanne de Briantes	MDLLE. MAUD AMY
Joséphine	MME. BERYL
Hortense	MDLLE. PREYLE
Pauline	MDLLE. VALLIER

The Ambigu has broken with its traditions of bloodcurdling dramas, and it remains to be seen whether the frequenters of that theatre, who like to witness a few murders—with a ghost or two thrown in—will relish the somewhat tame fare placed before them. Jeanne de Briantes, the wife of the Marquis de Tallemont, and nicknamed "La Belle Marseillaise," keeps a restaurant, where her husband can conspire with ease and comfort against the life of Bonaparte, first Consul. The "infernal machine" of historical fame explodes, but, whilst Bonaparte escapes unhurt, the Marquis de Tallemont is reported killed. His wife, by order of the Consul, then marries M. de Crisenoy. Unfortunately, Tallemont is not killed. He suddenly returns to France, bent upon murdering Bonaparte, and, at the moment when the latter is crowned Emperor, a snuff-box with poisoned tobacco is to be slipped into his Imperial pocket. But Jeanne is not bloodthirsty, and saves the Emperor's life by substituting honest snuff for the deadly mixture. And, as the terrible Tallemont very opportunely is killed in a duel, Jeanne asks the Emperor to nominate Crisenoy, her second husband, General; which the Emperor does with much pleasure, as he owed the lady a turn. The piece was remarkably well acted by M. Dieudonné, as the three-faced Marquis; by M. Castellan, elegant and fascinating; by Mdlle. Amy; and by M. Castillan. The episodical rôles, too, were in safe hands.

"LES VENTRES DORES."
Play in Five Acts, by M. Emile Fabre, produced at the Odeon, March 4.

Baron de Thau	M. GIMIER
Vernières	M. CANDE
Baron d'Urth	M. DORIVAL
Chauvelot	M. JANVIER
Brianne	M. COSTE
Princesse d'Holsbek	MDME. F. MALLET
Mme Vernières	MDLLE. SERGINE
Mme. Klobb	MDLLE. DE FEHL
Mme. Brianne	MDLLE. MIRAMAN
Mme. Michal	MDME. DEHAN

Balzac, in his Mercadet, was the first to introduce on the stage the crooked financier. Since then others have followed with more or less success, and the last production of this kind was M. Octave Mirbeau's strong play, Les Affaires sont les Affaires. In his piece, Les Ventres Dorés, M. Fabre, a most able playwright, committed the mistake of sacrificing too much to detail, with the result that his principal personages get hustled into the background, and the play itself slowly disappears. The plot is as follows:—Baron de Thau, a big financier, is chairman of the Nouvelle Afrique. But the company's affairs do not prosper, and at the board meeting it is proposed to "cook" the report to be submitted to the shareholders. Vernières, the only honest man among the crowd, protests against such a proceeding, and also against asking the Government to send troops to fire on the natives who have risen en masse on the company's territory. No heed is taken of Vernières' protest, and he dies in a fit of apoplexy, with a letter in his pocket wherein he offers to hand to the shareholders every penny he possesses. In the last act things have gone from bad to worse. Criminal proceedings are being taken against the company, despite the fact that the directors have produced Vernières' letter, and have tried to saddle him with the whole responsibility. At that critical moment Baron de Thau receives a visit from Baron d'Urth, his opponent and arch enemy, who cynically informs him that he will do everything in his power to wreck the whole show. Nothing daunted, de Thau replies that in that case he will produce a certain telegram sent by d'Urth which will bring the latter within the grasp of the law. D'Urth then rushes at his opponent; the two men have an unseemly struggle, but suddenly calm down. They have discovered that they can match one another, and, after a while they walk arm-in-arm up and down the room, and agree that henceforth they will be partners. There is really only one rôle in the piece, that of the Baron de Thau, magnificently played by M. Gimier, who, for the first time since he joined the Odeon, has taken charge of the mise-en-scene. M. Candé was intensely dramatic as the honest Vernières, and M. Janvier supplies a curious sketch of an old cashier, who has seen so many financial catastrophes as to have become absolutely callous. Mdme. Felicia Mallet, Mdlle. Sergine, and M. Dorival lent valuable aid.

"A FALSE WIFE."

A new Drama, in Four Acts, by F. Marriott-Watson, produced at the Assembly Rooms, Pontefract, on Thursday, March 2.

Sir Colin Mansfield	MR. GEORGE LANGHAM
Lieut. George Mansfield	MR. SCOTT LEIGHTON
Ben Rattler	MR. JAMES CHIPPENDALE
Archibald Browne Tee	MR. OWEN EDWIN
Jean Beraud	MR. FRANK STRICKLAND
Inspector Fulton	MR. HARRY DUNHAM
Zorak	MR. JOHN CECIL
William Marlow	MR. FRED LEVINE
Agnes Weyland	MISS ELSIE WATSON
Bessie Blazer	MISS MINNIE LESLIE
Sarah Bernstein	MISS JUDITH ANSELL
Lady Mansfield	MISS F. E. FLORENCE

Mr. F. Marriott-Watson is the author of several dramas which have been successfully produced; and in his latest play he has again shown a knowledge of what is required in productions which chiefly depend upon sensation for their attractive powers. In "A False Wife" some of the situations are familiar enough to the experienced playgoer, but to the credit of the author it should be said that he has also introduced fresh material of a decidedly novel and creepy character.

At the opening of the play we learn that Sir Colin Mansfield's ward, Agnes Weyland, inherits, when she comes of age, a sum of £50,000, bequeathed her by her late father. If she should die before her twenty-first birthday, the fortune is to go to Sir Colin himself or his wife, should he have joined the great majority. When we learn that Sir Colin's wife, Estelle, is an utterly depraved and unscrupulous woman, and that she has a paramour named Jean Beraud, we know just what to expect. The Frenchman occupies a position in the house as a servant, and by eavesdropping he learns the particulars concerning Agnes's fortune. Lady Mansfield and Beraud decide that both her husband and his ward shall be removed. She brutally strangles the old man, and the dead body is discovered by his son, George, a lieutenant in the Navy, who has been falsely accused of forging Sir Colin's name to a cheque, the real culprit being his wicked stepmother, Estelle. He is charged with being the murderer of his father, and arrested. He, however, escapes from prison by changing clothes with an obliging warder. The widowed Lady Mansfield endeavours to get rid of Agnes by means of slow poison, so as to obtain possession of the £50,000; and several attempts are made by the police to recapture George, but with the assistance of his faithful servant, Ben Rattler, he escapes every time. A novel and gruesome sensation is introduced in the fourth act, the opening scene of which is the Mad Wizard's Den. To this place George has come for refuge, and the Wizard promises to save him from arrest. Placing him in a coffin the man of mystery mutters an incantation; slowly the flesh seems to fall from George's bones, until, at last, there is nothing left but a grisly skeleton. The police arrive, the place is searched, but only the skeleton can be found, so they retire baffled. George is then miraculously restored to the human form and life. In the end Lady Mansfield, walking in her sleep, gives a vivid representation of the murder of her husband, and both she and here paramour and partner in crime are arrested. The woman, however, commits suicide by taking a dose of poison; and the Frenchman is duly punished.

The new drama was well played. Mr. Scott Leighton gave an excellent embodiment of George Mansfield, and Sir Colin had a capital representative in Mr. George Langham. Miss Florence E. Florence, as Lady Mansfield, otherwise Estelle de Lussan, acted throughout with force, and made the most of her opportunities, scoring specially in the impressive sleep-walking scene in the fourth act. As her ladyship's associate in crime, Jean Beraud, Mr. Frank Strickland achieved a distinct success. Miss Elsie Watson was a pleasing exponent of the heroine, Agnes Weyland. Mr. James Chippendale, as Ben Rattler, of H.M.S. Seamew, played well and soon became a general favourite wih the audience. Miss Minnie Leslie was sufficiently vivacious as Bessie Blazer, a smart maid servant, and Mr. Owen Edwin, as a police constable, also gave able assistance in the comedy scenes. Mr. Harry Dunham, as Inspector Fulton; Mr. John Cecil as the Mad Wizard, and Mr. Fred Levine, as a policeman, are also worthy of favourable mention. The scenery excited much admiration, Lady Mansfield's orchard, in the second act, with apple trees in full bloom, being a particularly pretty set. The incidental music was supplied by Mr. W. C. Pike.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Arthur Ellis, the Comptroller under the Lord Chamberlain's Department, has sent a circular letter to all the London managers, stating that the Lord Chamberlain has come to the conclusion that in some cases it may be possible for him to "elasticise" certain of the recently issued rules which govern theatres under his jurisdiction. The rules referred to are as follows:—"(7) All doors and barriers must open outwards, and the management must allow the public to leave by all exit and entrance doors, which must be thrown open for the use of the audience at the end of the performance. (8) Sufficient gangways, passages, and staircases, for the exit of the audience, must be provided and kept entirely free from chairs or any other obstructions, whether permanent or temporary, and the audience are not permitted either to sit or stand in such gangways."

Sir Arthur also "requests" from each manager a schedule illustrating the maximum number of persons who could be admitted at any one performance to his theatre, indicating in detail also the capacity for standing room. These particulars are to be endorsed on the original building plans of the theatres which are in the custody of the County Council. Sir Arthur also suggests that these particulars should be exhibited where they can be conveniently seen by the audience.

Regulation No. 7 is unaffected by the proposed amendment; and whether its inclusion is purely inadvertent, or the foreshadowing of a further change, we may leave it for the moment to take care of itself. Regulation No. 8 makes provision for the freeing of the gangways from obstruction, and forbids their use for the purpose of standing room. But a certain measure of discretion is retained by the managers in respect to standing room in other parts of the theatre, provided they do not infringe upon the statutory areas of the gangways proper. It is proposed to "elasticise" this regulation: (1) By imposing a limit to the number admitted to standing room. The said limit to be endorsed on the plans which the licence covers. (2) By exhibiting these particulars where they can be conveniently seen by the audience in each part of the theatre. In other words, the manager is to be deprived of the small margin of discretion which he now enjoys, and his auditorium is to be plastered with placards for the information of the audience.

Sir Arthur Ellis concludes with the statement that the Lord Chamberlain is sure the reader will not fail to recognise that, in taking this step, that official is in full sympathy with the managers of theatres; and he is also confident that on consideration they will see that his only wish is to remove what may involve them in unnecessary hardship.

Mr. Arthur Collins is with Mr. Hall Caine at St. Moritz, consulting the novelist about a certain great snowstorm which is to be one of the sensations in the forthcoming production of Mr. Caine's drama, The Prodigal Son, at Drury Lane Theatre in September. Another scene will show the "tables" at Monte Carlo. On one occasion the late Sir Augustus Harris had a notion of putting the gambling interior into a Drury Lane drama; and he went over to Nice to study it. But he and his companion—we believe it was Mr. Henry Pettitt—found that there was so much quietude and self-control in the way in which the money was won or lost, that they gave up the idea. The curses and the suicides which make gambling so dramatic in fiction are not in evidence at "Charley's Mount." Not that this would matter much to Mr. Hall Caine, whose description of the Derby in one of his novels is quite the funniest thing of its kind, and beats Ouida's immortal horse-race hollow.

"Leah Kleschner," the play by C. M. S. M'Lellan, in which Miss Lena Ashwell will shortly appear in London, was produced at the Manhattan Theatre, New York, on Dec. 12 last. The heroine is the daughter of a burglar. A dissolute young man named Berton endeavours to seduce her. But Leah has been saved from shipwreck by a member of the French Assembly named Paul Sylvaine, into whose house in the night she is sent to steal the family jewels. Leah and Sylvaine meet; and, instead of handing her over to the police, he tells her to go and burgle no more. But the dissolute young Berton secures the jewels; and there are escapes, complications, and exciting incidents. In the end, Leah, after assisting her father and his associates to evade the pursuit of the police, returns to her native place in Austria, where, in three years, Sylvaine finds her out, and marries her. Miss Lena Ashwell should be as fine in Leah Kleschner as she was in Resurrection.

Sir Squire Bancroft will read at the Royal Institution on Friday a paper entitled "Dramatic Thoughts; Retrospective—Anticipative." Sir Squire will read the same address to the students of Mr. Beerbohm Tree's Academy of Dramatic Art later on. The "retrospections" of Sir Squire should be specially interesting.

Mr. George Alexander might have been seen "under the gallery" on Wednesday night studying the House of Commons for the purposes of the Parliamentary scene in the play he is to produce. The interior of St. Stephen's, it will be remembered, was a leading feature of the drama, The Price of Peace, produced at Drury-lane in the autumn of 1900.

Mr. H. B. Irving finds in the character of Hamlet a certain element of the cruelty inherent in most weak natures, mingled with the affection and sweetness of the Prince's disposition. This, Mr. Irving thinks, is strongly shown not only by Hamlet's almost indifferent bearing on the discovery of his unintentional slaughter of Polonius, but also in certain passages which are usually omitted from the acting version.

The difficulty of correctly estimating this part of Hamlet's character arises from the impossibility of one person putting himself, in imagination, in another person's place. As Carlyle remarks, to fairly judge the "excesses" of the French Revolution, one must give due value to the passion of fear. It is surprising how stern a man grows when his own life is threatened, and how philosophically he can regard another man's imminent danger. Horatio expressed a certain compunction as to the fate of Rosencrantz and Guildenstern; but, then, he had not been dispatched to death, as Hamlet had by the remorseless King. The leaders of the Commonwealth beheaded Charles I., chiefly to secure their own safety; and we still hang murderers to lessen the chance of our being "taken off." We confess we cannot find in Hamlet anything more than the average "cruelty" of disposition.

It is satisfactory to be able to record the fact that the many letters which recently appeared in our columns with respect to how to assist the Actors' Benevolent Fund are bearing fruit. The ladies and gentlemen collecting at the theatres and in touring companies are exerting themselves with considerable success in the fund's interests. Miss Isabel Jay collected at Daly's Theatre £29 12s., Mr. F. Leyel collected at the Adelphi Theatre £25 9s. 6d., while Mr. Sidney Harcourt succeeded in collecting at the Duke of York's Theatre the sum of £37 9s. 6d.

Mr. Edward Terry, who celebrated his sixty-first birthday yesterday (Friday), made his first bow to an audience forty-two years ago. His London début was at the Surrey Theatre four years later. Mr. Terry has travelled extensively, and is part author of two successful plays, The Churchwarden and Love in Idleness.

Miss Tita Brand, who made such a success in Everyman, has taken the Shaftesbury Theatre, and will open there on April 10 with Othello, herself enacting Desdemona. Mr. Hubert Carter will be the Moor, and Mr. J. H. Barnes, Mr. George Trollope, Miss Lydia Busch, and Miss Charlotte Granville have already been engaged in support of the "star." Othello will be followed by a translation from the German, entitled Renaissance. Mr. B. A. Mayer, the general manager of the series of German plays at the Great Queen Street Theatre, has been appointed manager for Miss Brand

Miss Brand takes a keen interest in weaving, and has turned her belief in the durability and beauty of work accomplished with the handom into practical form. She has taken a large workroom near Victoria Station, and engaged five girls, who are busily employed with shuttle and thread, and, judging by the progress made in a comparatively short space of time, her artistic venture promises to meet with the success it deserves.

"The Darling of the Gods" was acted in America the other day, before an audience which stood throughout the performance. A new playhouse was opened in the Western city of Tacoma. Every "seat" in the house had been sold; but when the curtain went up there was not a seat to be seen, the freight car containing the several hundred chairs ordered by the manager having been delayed by a snowstorm. It was decided to explain the situation to the ticket-holders, and to offer to refund the money. Miss Blanche Bates, however, insisted on appearing, whether there were chairs in the house or not. The first man who presented himself at the door expressed his willingness to stand; and, with the exception of a few people advanced in years, the rest followed suit, and stood throughout the performance. Miss Bates made a speech, in which she expressed her pleasure at appearing before such an "upright" audience, and in a theatre where it was literally a case of "standing room only" before any of the doors were opened.

Mr. Clyde Fitch says it is absurd to state that he is flooding the market with comedies and dramas, and that he writes a play between meals. He follows a definite plan, which is to turn out two original plays each season—no more, no less. He adds that the idea of his giving up work and becoming a recluse is entirely mythical. But he intends to be more rigorous in living up to the rule of two plays a year. Whatever degree of success he has attained, Mr. Fitch attributes largely to the fact that he has never taken the advice so freely offered by his friends. "Everyone," he says, "is a dramatic critic nowadays. They can all tell you how you could write better if you only would. So many people, too, are writing plays. He keeps away from his cook, lest she should ask him to revise a third act for her, and he thinks his man-servant is a treasure because he has not expressed any intention of writing a comedy. Mr. Fitch has written twenty-three original plays, and made seven adaptations, besides collaborating with Mr. Leo Ditrichstein in three other plays. He is now engaged on a new piece for Miss Maxime Elliott, to be produced in the autumn, and is also dramatising Alfred Henry Lewis's novel, "Wolfville."

Mr. C. I. Coltson, the secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, has received the following letter from Mr. H. E. Bellamy, the business manager for the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company:—"Sir,—Some time ago it was decided in this company to have a weekly subscription towards the Actors' Benevolent Fund. This arrangement has been in force for fourteen weeks, and I have much pleasure in sending you a cheque for £9 10s. 9d. I think that if more companies would take the trouble to organise a similar system, that you would find the fund greatly augmented. We are much indebted to Mr. C. H. Workman and Miss Bessel Adams (Mrs. C. H. Workman) for taking charge of the weekly collecting boxes."

Mr. Beerbohm Tree will revive A Man's Shadow at His Majesty's at a matinée on the 25th inst., and is negotiating with Mr. George Alexander for the rights of Les Affairs sont les Affaires, in an adaptation of which, by Mr. Sydney Grundy, Mr. Tree would play the hard-headed and hard-hearted financier, and Miss Tree would be the daughter, Germaine.

Mr. F. W. Purcell has provided a rich programme in the immediate future for his patrons at the elegant Marlborough Theatre. Mr. William Greet's chief touring company will be there next week with the original Lyric Theatre production of The Earl and the Girl. The Geisha and A Greek Slave will form the following week's attraction, and these in turn will be succeeded by Mr. and Mrs. Kendal.

Master Cyril Smith, to whose illness we have before alluded, is now well on the road to recovery; and there is every reason to believe that he will be able to rejoin Sir Henry Irving at Drury-lane early in May.

Mr. Henry Vibart, who is cast for Fleischer, in The Thieves' Comedy, at the Court Theatre, on Tuesday week, is an old Bensonian—he played thirty parts in seven months when he was with F. R. B.—formerly a member of Mr. Compton's company, and Mr. Mansfield's right-hand man for several seasons. Mr. Vibart has made some of his chief successes in Scotch parts, having passed his boyhood in Edinburgh, and thoroughly understanding the Scotch character and accent. His performance of the part of "the meenister" was one of the best character sketches in Mr. Barrie's Wedding Guest, four years ago, at the Garrick Theatre.

Miss Pattie Murray, who appeared in the Mother Goose pantomime at Manchester, has recently been declared the winner of a theatrical beauty competition, organised by the proprietors of a Manchester newspaper, who offered a valuable diamond and pink pearl bracelet for competition, the award being decided by public vote. Miss Murray has several sisters on the stage, and one of these won a valuable gold watch in a similar competition at Drury-lane Theatre during the run of last year's pantomime.

Miss Minnie Palmer will make a welcome return to London on Monday, when she begins at the Grand Theatre, Fulham, a tour with My Sweetheart, supported by a strong company. The charming soubrette will later on visit South Africa.

Miss Isa Bowman, who is playing the title-rôle in Miss Mischief on tour with great charm and effect, will shortly take up the principal part in the new Scotch production, A Trip to the Highlands, by Fred Locke, which is to be produced at the New Grand Theatre, Edinburgh, under the direction of Mr. Eade Montefiore.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree will give a performance of Hamlet next Monday afternoon at the Oxford Town Hall, under the auspices of a new local society called the Olympian Dramatic Club. Mr. Henry Neville, Mr. William Haviland, Mr. Lionel Brough, Miss B. Forbes Robertson, and Miss Frances Ivor will add distinction to the cast. Ordinary scenery will be dispensed with, and the play will be performed against a background of draperies. In the evening, after the performance, a dinner of the Olympian Dramatic Club will be held, at which Mr. Beerbohm Tree has promised to be present.

Mr. John Philip Sousa is an indefatigable worker, and last week he gave concerts in thirteen different towns. He has just finished reading the proofs of his new novel, which will be a book of four hundred pages, and he has already begun to weave melodies for the new opera he is to commence during the coming summer. One of his operas, The Bride Elect, will probably be produced in London this spring. "The March King" will return to town at Easter time, when he will celebrate his twenty-fifth anniversary as conductor of bands. Mrs. Sousa, who is accompanying her husband on the present tour, has recently published a song, the music being composed by Miss Estelle Liebling, soprano soloist of the Sousa Band. Miss Priscilla Sousa, the elder daughter, is also a composer, one of her little coon songs, "Me and my old banjo," having made a decided hit in America. Miss Helen Sousa, the youngest member of the family, who is still at school, is likewise gifted with musical ability.

Mr. Frank Curzon will on Monday transfer Mr. Hopkinson to Wyndham's Theatre, where the success achieved at the Avenue is likely to be continued for many weeks.

Mr. Ernest Percy, who has been in St. Thomas's Hospital since Jan. 2 with a compound fracture of the leg, has so far recovered that he was discharged from the hospital on Saturday, and has gone to complete his recovery at Harlington, near Uxbridge.

Mr. Claude Meynell, who has been representing Mr. Tree in Australia and New Zealand for the past two years, is on the way home, and is expected to arrive about the end of the month. Mr. Meynell, whilst in England, will represent several Australian managers who are on the look out for novelties.

Miss Grete Hahn, a member of The Thieves' Comedy company at the Court, owed her introduction to the stage to a girlish success at an elocution competition, at which Mr. Martin Harvey happened to be judge. When he subsequently produced A Cigarette Maker's Romance, she asked for an engagement, and was cast for the pretty little part of Anna. She had formerly, however, appeared as the Scotch boy, Micah Dow, in The Little Minister, on tour, and met with the following amusing experience:—A certain landlady in a small town treated her with particular kindness and consideration, and when Miss Hahn thanked her, on leaving, she received this candid explanation of the reason of her attentions: "I always try to be nice to theatricals," said the landlady, "for I've got boys and girls of my own, miss, and you never know what they may come to!"

The members of Mr. J. Bannister Howard's Floradora company had a narrow escape on the railway on the 27th ult., when, on entering the tunnel leading to Devonport Station, the train conveying the company collided with some goods waggons, severely injuring the driver of the latter. Fortunately, with the exception of a shaking, the members of the company escaped accident, and the evening's performance was gone through with the usual swing.

Messrs. Hans Andresen and Max Behrend will be accorded a benefit performance at the Royalty Theatre on Monday, March 20, on which occasion they will sustain the principal parts in Zwei Wappen, a farcical comedy by Blumenthal and Kadelburg. This will be followed by Abu Said, a one-act play, in which Mr. Max Behrend will make his last appearance in London as a director of the German company, having been appointed director of the Municipal Theatre, in Mayence. This occasion will mark his farewell to the London public, and both German and English supporters will no doubt assemble in force.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sugden wish it to be known that the American Du Barri play, with which they commence their autumn tour, has nothing in common with the adaptation of M. J. Richepin's play to be produced at the Savoy Theatre next Saturday.

Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow will on Monday next start a two months' season of the suburban theatres, beginning with the Borough, Stratford. In the King's Name, a romantic costume play, dealing with "Knights of the road," and At Cripple Creek, both new to London, together with the evergreen Under Two Flags, will constitute the programmes.

Their Majesties the King and Queen and his Royal Highness Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria witnessed the performance of The Scarlet Pimpernel at the New Theatre on Monday evening.

Mr. Fred Mouillot's principal My Lady Molly company met with an exciting adventure last Sunday, while travelling from Walsall to New Cross. Soon after leaving Nuneaton, the truck containing the scenery and costumes caught fire, and nearly the whole of the production was destroyed. Mr. Curline Baldry, the manager, and the members of the company, after over two hours' hard work, succeeded in saving a small quantity of the wardrobe. Mr. Leslie Malton, Mr. Mouillot's general manager, happened to be on the train, and immediately upon arrival in London arranged for a complete duplicate set of scenery and properties, thus enabling the company to open at the Broadway Theatre on Monday night in the ordinary course.

"The Gipsy Girl," a new and original comedy-opera, written and composed by Claude Arundale, with lyrics by Follett Thorpe, will shortly make a tour of the chief provincial towns, under the direction of Mr. Fredk. Mouillot. The principal parts will be played by Miss Sybil Arundale and Miss Grace Arundale, who will be supported by a first-class company.

Owing to the illness of Mr. Harcourt Williams, Mr. Templer Powell is now playing Romeo at the Queen's Theatre, Manchester.—Messrs. E. Hill-Mitchelson and Harris Fineberg are arranging for stock seasons this summer at the Star and Rotunda Theatres, Liverpool.

The Prince and Princess of Wales witnessed the performance of Mollentrave on Women at the St. James's Theatre on Saturday evening.

Miss Ellis Jeffreys won an emphatic success in New York on Monday, when The Prince Consort was produced at the New Amsterdam Theatre there.

The Theatre Royal, Bristol, was packed on Saturday evening at the last performance of the successful pantomime Robinson Crusoe. All the principals, especially Miss Ethel Campbell and Miss Margery Moore, were greeted very heartily on making their appearance, and the choruses of the favourite songs were taken up lustily. Mr. Ernest Carpenter, the managing-director of the theatre, made his customary speech: "Ladies and gentlemen, I have much pleasure in thanking you for the generous support which has made Robinson Crusoe the most successful pantomime presented during my eleven years in Bristol. My thanks are especially due to the ladies and gentlemen of the company, who have all worked so hard and conscientiously. Next year my pantomime will be Goody Two Shoes, and may I ask for a continuance of the support accorded me during the run of Robinson Crusoe—a run which might have been prolonged for several weeks had it not been for contracts with other managers. I have much pleasure in introducing to you Mr. Trueman Towers, my stage-manager, who has done so much for the success of the production, and in presenting him with a dressing-case, subscribed for by the artistes and staff, I am also very pleased to say that Mr. Towers will again stage-manage next year. I also have much pleasure in making a presentation to Mr. Edwin Jacobs, the musical director of the theatre, and to congratulate him upon the success of his musical arrangements for the pantomime." Mr. Carpenter was much applauded at the conclusion of his speech, and the audience heartily joined in "Auld Lang Syne."

Miss Vera Schlesinger has just terminated a thirteen weeks' successful engagement in Mr. Eade Montefiore's Cinderella company at the Queen's Theatre, Gateshead, her excellent singing being greatly appreciated throughout.

Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley, the proprietor of the Royal Opera House, and sole lessee of the Theatre Royal, Leicester, who contemplates taking a sea voyage by way of a holiday, has appointed Mr. George M. Slater as his general-manager at the above theatres. This appointment will in no way interfere with the gallant Colonel's present acting-managers, Mr. C. D. Leigh still remaining at the Royal Opera House, and Mr. J. C. Candler at the Theatre Royal. Mr. Slater is not new to Leicester, having produced two capital pantomimes for Colonel Winstanley, and for some time was acting-manager at the Royal Opera House, being followed in that position by Mr. C. D. Leigh, who continues to make hosts of friends there. Mr. J. C. Candler will be remembered by most of the touring companies, having been at the Royal Opera House for some fifteen years before taking the reins of acting management at the "Old Royal." Mr. Slater will now book the attractions for both theatres for his chief.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company, with the Garrick Theatre success, The Walls of Jericho, starts its provincial tour on Monday next under the direction of Messrs. Silvanus Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux. Mr. Wilfred Lawson Butt (a brother of Miss Clara Butt) will play the part of Jack Frobisher, and Miss Dorothy Thomas that of Lady Alethea. Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh will personally visit Edinburgh, Glasgow, Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham, and Dublin with their own company later on.

Mr. George Edwardes is actively engaged in the direction of rehearsals of Two Little Girls, the adaptation by Mr. Henry Hamilton of M. Messager's comic opera, Les P'tites Michus, which is to be the next production at Daly's Theatre. Miss Adrienne Augarde is returning from America to take up a leading part, and Mr. Robert Evett and Mr. Louis Bradfield will be seen in characters that are sure to give ample scope for the exercise of their talents. In the rôle of a fiery French officer Mr. George Graves will be fitted to a nicety, and Miss Kate Bishop will also form one of the pillars of the play. Mr. Edwardes has in contemplation a successor to The Orchid at the Gaiety, though the continued prosperity of that charming piece seems to forbid even a hint at its removal.

Madame Helen Townshend's twelve-year-old pupil, Hanid Alexander, who appeared with success in the Royal, Newcastle, pantomime this year, has been retained for three years by Messrs. Moss and Thornton. Another of Madame Townshend's pupils, Miss Elsie Molloy, is engaged by Mr. George Dance for the title-rôle in The Girl from Kay's.

Mr. Fred Sargent, who only recently returned from South Africa, makes his first appearance in London as Romeo next week at the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington.

"Pilgrim's Way," a musical allegory by D. Elliot, will be produced at the Court Theatre on Monday, March 27, with Madame Louise Dale, Miss Gleeson-White, Miss Phyllis Lett, Miss Janet Duff, Miss De Dreux, and Mr. Hamilton Earle in the cast.

At Marlborough-street Police-court on Wednesday Mr. Horace Watson, manager of the Haymarket Theatre, applied to Mr. Denman for a licence to permit Iris Hawkins, a pretty little girl, twelve years of age, to take the part of Mickey in Everybody's Secret, to be produced at that theatre on Tuesday. Mickey, it was stated, was an important character in the play. Sub-divisional-inspector Smith having mentioned that Iris had a private governess, and that the usual inquiries had been made with satisfactory results, the licence was granted.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association was held last Tuesday. The hon. solicitors were requested to advise a member as to his claim against a manager for breach of contract, and, if necessary, to write on his behalf. The secretary referred to a letter from a member containing the following paragraph:—"I should like to express my most sincere thanks for legal advice very kindly given me by Mr. Mote." The secretary reported that Mr. Will Dennis had accepted an appointment on the Council to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Mr. Bassett Roe. The question of the formation of the committee of five to consider the "National Theatre Scheme" was under discussion, and the secretary received instructions in connection therewith. A former member was reinstated.

Gabriele D'Annunzio, the second son of the well-known dramatist, has adopted the profession of an actor. The young aspirant to fame will make his first appearance at Livorno, in the part of Simonetto, in his father's new tragedy, La Piccolo Soko Il Moggio.

Miss Henrietta Watson, Miss Hilda Rivers, Mr. Dawson Millward, Mr. Graham Browne, Mr. Lennox Pawle, and Mr. Loring Fernie are in the company which will perform Mr. H. C. M. Hardinge's three-act comedy, The Little More, and his Spanish episode, The Dancer, when they are produced at the Court Theatre on Monday week at a matinée in aid of the Distressed Gentlefolks' Aid Association.

Mr. Frederick Harrison and Mr. Cyril Maude's patrons—early and otherwise—at the Haymarket Theatre will be pleased to learn that, to precede Everybody's Secret there on Tuesday, the management have secured that thrilling and remarkable little piece, A Case of Arson, which should not be missed on any account. The site of Mr. Cyril Maude's new theatre, "The Playhouse," is certainly not "Everybody's Secret," being, for the present, locked in Mr. Maude's breast.

Miss Constance Collier will take out on tour at Easter a new play by the Vicar of Gorleston called Lord Danby's Love Affair, herself sustaining the leading character.

"Die Wildente" (the Wild Duck) will, by special request, be given by the German company in place of Der Strom at the Great Queen-street Theatre matinée to-day. Frau Rosa Bertens will repeat her fine embodiment of Gina Ekdal, and in the evening will appear for the last time this season, Es Lebe das Leben being the play selected. Eine Palast Revolution and Zwei Wappen, two well-known German farces, will be produced during the closing week of the season, the former being given on Monday and all the week, including the Saturday matinée, with the exception of Friday, when Zwei Wappen will be played, with Messrs. Andresen and Behrend in the principal parts.

The Princess of Wales was present on Tuesday afternoon at the production of Agatha at His Majesty's Theatre, in aid of the Princess Mary Village Homes.

Mrs. Spooner, an American manageress, intends to establish a theatre with a regular stock company, in the heart of New York, similar to the one which she has successfully conducted in Brooklyn. It will be situated near the new terminus of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and will draw a large share of its patronage from New Jersey and Long Island. The settled suburbanites believe in stock companies, and leave it to the city folk to run after new "stars." Mrs. Spooner's two daughters, Miss Edna May and Miss Cecil Spooner are great favourites with the local public, and her policy of presenting standard plays at popular prices has proved very successful. Mrs. Spooner gives "bargain matinées" at her theatre; and the members of her company serve tea on the stage to the ladies who have attended the performance, and who wish to go behind the scenes when it is over. There is also a nursery, with swings and toys, and attendants to take care of the children while their mothers are enjoying the entertainment.

Miss Mary Moore, being unable to appear during the first week of Sir Charles Wyndham's visit to Boston, owing to loss of voice, her part of Ada in David Garrick was played by Miss Lilias Waldegrave.

Mr. Thomas Thorne will appear at the Brixton Theatre, on Monday week, as Perkyn Middlewick, in Byron's perennial Our Boys, under the direction of Mr. Russell Rosse. Mr. Thorne and Mr. Rosse begin on Monday next their seventh year of business association.

In the cast of The Thieves' Comedy, a translation from Hauptmann, which will be produced at the Court Theatre on the 21st inst., are included Miss Sidney Fairbrother, Miss Rosina Filippi, Miss Agnes Thomas, Miss Greta Hahn, Mr. Henry Vibart, Mr. Rudge Harding, Mr. James Hearn, Mr. Edmund Gwenn, Mr. Norman Page, Mr. Harry Dodd, and Mr. William Farren, jun.

Mr. Frank Vernon, who produced Miss Viola Allen's revival of A Winter's Tale in America last autumn, will shortly return to England for a few weeks' holiday.

In the Court of Bankruptcy on Thursday the first meeting of creditors was held in the case of Francis William Ross, professionally known as Frank Adair, who recently filed his petition. The debtor was formerly a lieutenant in the 2nd Battalion Welsh Regiment, but retired in 1887, and joined a theatrical company. Ten years later he joined two others, for the purpose of taking on tour a piece called Boys Together, in connection with which he lost £800. In 1899 he started as an actor-manager, taking on tour a play called The Favourite. He was at first successful, but afterwards incurred a loss of £700 on the play. In 1894 he received £4,000 under the will of his father, and invested it in stocks and shares. Subsequently, in order to meet expenses incurred in litigation, he was obliged to realise his investments, at a loss of about £2,000. He attributed his present position to such loss, and also to loss on theatrical speculations. The liabilities were returned at £1,309, and there appeared to be no available assets. The case was left in the hands of the Official Receiver.

Mr. Percy Tyler is concluding a three years' engagement as the tramp and stage-manager with Mr. Gordon Starkey's Message from Mars company.

Miss Beatrice Lamotte, the young Canadian prima donna, who played the title-part in Mr. George Musgrove's Belle of New York company with distinction for over three years, and has been successful in her new part of Edith Adams, a Vassar Girl, in Mr. Musgrove's Prince of Pilsen company, received her musical training at the hands of Signor Mancinninni, the famous maestro, of Milan, in the celebrated La Scala Opera House of which city she made her début. Like most fair daughters of the Dominion, she can wield a salmon rod with a skill and deftness that the average male disciple of Isaak Walton may envy.

Sir Squire Bancroft was the principal witness in the case heard at Bow-street Police-court on Wednesday, when Mrs. Clement Scott was summoned to show cause why she should not deliver up to the trustees of the Neilson Fund certain books, documents, &c., relating to its administration. The trustees were originally Sir Henry Irving, Mr. Clement Scott, and Mr. Toole, and on the death of Mr. Scott the surviving trustees appointed Sir Squire Bancroft to succeed him. Mrs. Scott was asked to forward all books and papers relating to the fund which her husband had left behind, but only one cheque-book and one pass-book were given up. There were a cash-book and many letters and documents which the trustees were anxious to secure, but, as every means had failed, they felt bound to take these steps.

Sir Squire said he had the most profound confidence in Sir Henry Irving and Messrs. Lewis and Lewis, and as junior trustee he acted as they suggested in the matter. He would like to add his regret, as Mrs. Scott was a friend of his. But if she refused to give up papers relating to a trust, that, in his opinion, was absolute proof that she was not in a position to become a trustee. If there were no papers, there ought to be. In reply to the magistrate, Mrs. Scott said she was perfectly willing to give up whatever there was in existence relating to this fund, but it would take a long time to go through all the papers, as they were scattered. On this understanding the summons was adjourned.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, MARCH 9.—It is as well to state at once that Herr Hauptmann has not had since the production of Die Versunkene Glocke such a triumph as he enjoyed on Saturday evening. Again and again the curtain was raised for the famous dramatist to come forward and receive the enthusiastic plaudits of the crowded house, the audience only desisting from applause on the iron curtain being let down. The storm was all the more tumultuous because it was limited to the conclusion of the piece, which consists of seven unbroken scenes. That the customary lengthy entr'acte was omitted and the fact scarcely noticed speaks much for the fascination of the play. Herr Hauptmann wrote Elga in three days, adapting it from the story of Grillparzer's "Das Kloster bei Sendomir," which is founded—the latter tells us—upon fact. The story is as follows: Two knights are sent by the German Kaiser on a mission to the Polish Court, at the time when Poland was reigned over by King Johann Sobiesky in the seventeenth century. Overtaken by night, the men seek shelter in a monastery, and put a number of questions to the good monk who lights their fire. He tells them, reluctantly, the history of the monastery. Count Starschenski, the founder, had married a girl of the people, who had implored him to save her and her father from the consequences of conspiracy. He had fallen in love with her beauty, and he gave her and her rapacious brothers generously of his wealth. Elga requited him ill; after some years of wedded life her husband discovered her infamy with her cousin, Oginski, and their meetings in a solitary tower. He stabbed the faithless wife on the spot, and her paramour escaped through the window. The Count repented the deed, sold his estates, and built on the spot the monastery, in which he afterwards became the lowliest of the brotherhood. The knights find out by chance that the monk who tells them the story is Starschenski himself. Thus Grillparzer; Hauptmann has altered the original to suit himself, and makes the action pass in a dream, which he calls "Nocturnus." The knight and his servant are on their way to the King, and rest at the monastery, but the monk does not supply any particular information; the story of Starschenski is the knight's vision. We see Elga as a beautiful woman-demon, faithless and sensual; we see all the story of her baseness unrolled before our eyes. One scene is particularly drastic, and taken almost literally from the original; it is that where Elga's child drops her mother's jewel basket, and from it falls the picture of Oginski. The Count sees it, and sees, too, the striking resemblance it bears to the features of his and Elga's child. The end is Hauptmann's own. He causes Starschenski to take a terrible vengeance upon his wife's lover. Oginski is invited to the castle as a guest, and Starschenski tells him upon his retiring that he will sleep no more; he is chained, led away to the tower, and strangled. The Count then takes his wife to the place, and shows her the body of her lover, across which she throws herself, covering her husband with words of passionate reproach and hatred. It seems to me the conclusion of the original is worthier and certainly more dramatic; in the play infamy triumphs and Elga gains the moral victory. At this juncture the knight is awakened by his servant, and he knows not if he has dreamed or seen the ghosts of a terrible past. For some time he cannot shake off the effect of what he has witnessed, but finally, with joy and gratitude in his heart—for he has left a loving wife and child at home—he rides out "into the living world." The play was staged in a masterly manner, the visionary character of the persons acting being most skilfully kept up. The scenes are cleverly connected, during the change of scenery, by the chanting of the monks. No praise could be too high for Fräulein Triesch's impersonation of the name-part, and Herr Rittner—if a trifle too loud—was excellent as Starschenski. Herr Reicher gave a very sympathetic rendering of the old custodian of the castle; the remainder of the characters were also admirably sustained. Elga will certainly hold the boards of the Lessing for a long time. The beauty of its language appeals to all hearers, while everything has been done to strike and impress the eye. It is a play that should be successful in any country—in any tongue.

IBSEN'S play, Der Volksfeind, has been revived at the Lessing, with a splendid cast. This—considered by many to be Ibsen's masterpiece—was at its initial production in 1885 attacked on all sides, but it gradually fought its way through adverse criticisms, and enjoys to-day a high place among plays with a moral. The management of the Deutsches Theatre (now at the Lessing) was the first here to recognise the fine qualities of the Volksfeind, and there is no other company I know of who can so well interpret them. Herr Bassermann, as Dr. Stockmann, and Fräulein Lehmann, as Stockmann's wife, as well as Herr Sauer, in the part of the town autocrat, gave inimitable renderings, fully meriting the enthusiastic applause that was awarded them. There is little doubt but the play will be in the Lessing bill for some time to come.

AT the Royal Opera, a very excellent performance of Mignon was given on Sunday evening. This delightful little opera is done here far too seldom, and the house was crowded to the last place. Fräulein Destinn and Fräulein Kauffmann (as Mignon and Philine), Herren Jörn, Hoffmann, and Nebe, sang and acted as well as anyone could desire; Herr von Strauss conducted, and applause was by no means lacking. On Saturday, under the conductorship of Dr. Richard Strauss, Die Meistersinger was performed with a first-rate cast. Der Roland von Berlin—now almost played out—was given on Monday with Herr Bertram (for the first time) in the rôle of Rathenow.

MR. and MRS. AUGUSTIN DUNCAN gave a second Shakespeare evening last Wednesday, but this time under more favourable circumstances—in the theatre of the Royal High School—and consequently the success was far greater than it was in the Künstlerhaus Hall. The programme again comprised the Balcony scene, and it would be difficult to say who was better—Mrs. Duncan, as Juliet, or her husband, as Romeo. Four scenes from Macbeth afforded both admirable opportunity for the display of their individual talents; the Lady Macbeth of Mrs. Duncan, in particular, has been much praised by the critics. Mr. Duncan gave scenes from Henry the Fifth and several monologues with much success, and the evening was a thoroughly enjoyable one. The hall was filled with a most appreciative audience, consisting chiefly of English and Americans; English-speaking Germans were also numerous.

ONE of Germany's most popular comedians, Herr Karl Pander, has just died at Hamburg. Herr Pander played the rôle which made him famous, both here and in America, over 1,000 times; it was that of the lottery-collector and chiropodist, Hirsch, in a very old comedy, by Mels, entitled Heinrich Heine's Junge Leiden. This rôle was a host in itself, and nobody ever acted it with such a fund of exquisite humour as the deceased.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MR. F. DUDMAN BROMWICH.

MR. F. DUDMAN BROMWICH confesses to a most uninteresting, everyday career on the stage—with no hairbreadth escapes, exciting adventures, or extraordinary happenings. Nothing but useful and steady experience; playing parts of all descriptions, in plays of all kinds, from pantomime to melodramatic sketches, and burlesque to high-class comedy. In fact, such variety of parts that not even a school of acting could rival! Mr Bromwich has a high opinion, and rather a novel one, of the much-maligned "sketch" as a factor in the education of an actor. He thinks that if one can successfully pass the trying ordeal of being hurriedly put on, with lights full up "in front," clinking of glasses, loud noises from the bar, and frequently most inadequate and unsuitable scenery, one is afterwards prepared for anything! On leaving school, Mr Bromwich went, by his parents' desire, into a builder's office, but the spirit of restlessness was in him, and he could stick to nothing for more than a few months together, so quickly grew tired of this, and tried in turn to set his mind on a future career as a shipbroker, a notary, a solicitor, and finally newspaper manager. However, nothing would do but the stage, and this he adopted, in spite of strong opposition. He had, meanwhile, been obtaining much experience as an amateur, afterwards playing some excellent parts in the "clubs" with a gentleman known as Basil North, an excellent actor, connected with the regular stage. After a considerable time thus spent "learning his business," he went on a tour of the "smalls," which brought him to the year 1893, when he was engaged for a tour of Bonnie Boy Blue. During this engagement he first met the lady who afterwards became his wife—Miss Katie Neville—who was playing the title-rôle Mr George Stone re-engaged him for the Squire, in the same piece, and at the conclusion of this engagement he produced the burlesque for Mr Fred Smith (of Pepper's Ghost fame) to take through Ireland, during which tour Mr Bromwich this time played Lawyer Copell. He also produced Randolph the Reckless, and played the Baron on an English tour. After this came a tour with Messrs Spry and Monti, in A Man's Ambition, playing the light comedy part and doing the business management, followed by a special engagement with a farcical comedy entitled Margate, produced at Terry's Theatre. Then came a tour with Victor Stevens's A Village Venus, playing a small part and doing the stage-management, followed by An Actor's Frolic, which Mr Bromwich produced. During the first week of tour, however, he was taken seriously ill. On his recovery followed engagements as Dr Oliver, My Sweetheart; John Mildmay, Still Waters Run Deep; Frank, A Glimpse of Paradise; Blueskin, Jack Sheppard; Emperor, Aladdin. Christmas, 1895, saw him at the Theatre Royal, Kilburn, as the Savage King and stage-manager, in the pantomime of Robinson Crusoe, which had a run there of six weeks. In the original production of The Wearin' o' the Green Mr Bromwich played Sir

George, afterwards taking up the juvenile part, which he played for a considerable time. Then he was engaged by Mr Hill Mitchelson for Jack Malden (lead), in Death or Glory Boys. On the production of Rogues and Vagabonds, he was the original in the juvenile part, which he acted for nearly eighteen months, leaving to play the lead in a tour of The New Woman, with Miss Maud Fergusson. He also played the part of Mr Brabazon, in Sowing the Wind, when it was produced by that lady. Then came a tour with Mr Fred Kirke, Mr Bromwich playing heavy lead in In Old Madrid and Our Sailor Lad. The Christmas of 1899 he played the Wolf in Messrs Eglington and Little's pantomime, Red Riding Hood, his wife playing principal boy. At the conclusion of the pantomime he produced his well-known sketch, In Old Madrid, founded on Mr Kirke's excellent drama, which he has played off and on in London for nearly four years. During this time Mr Bromwich has played a variety of parts in sketches, both of his own and with Mr Leonard Mortimer and Mr Adderley Howard. He has also played special engagements as Gerald Casenore, The New Woman; Brabazon, Sowing the Wind; tour as lead in Ups and Downs of Life; also as the Parson, with his own company, in The Prodigal Parson, &c. On the production of A Great Sensation, at the Pavilion Theatre, Mile End, he created the part of Robin Dale. Last autumn he was engaged by Mr Chas. Hartley for Simeon Strong, in The Idler; also playing Lord Darlington, in Lady Windermere's Fan, Gardiner, in Captain Swift, and Gerald Arbuthnot, in A Woman of No Importance. His latest parts have been Lieut. Kingstone, in A London Actress, Standard Theatre production, and Squire Thornhill, in Olivia Primrose, an adaptation of The Vicar of Wakefield

MR. STANLEY LATHBURY.

MR. STANLEY LATHBURY commenced his theatrical career early in 1895 with Miss Sarah Thorne at Margate. At the end of three months Miss Thorne offered him an engagement, which lasted nearly two years, to play such parts as Polonius, Max Harkaway, Joseph Chandler, Father Tom, James Dalton, Justice Hare, Jasper Plum, Jonathan Wild, Doggrass, the Duke, in The Merchant of Venice; Duncan, Luke Cranborne, in Woodbarrow Farm, &c., the total number of parts played by him during this engagement coming well over the century. In 1897 Mr. Lathbury left Miss Thorne to play Professor Goodwillie, in The Professor's Love Story, and Sergeant Tanner, in Miss Brown, under Mr. Payne Seddon's management. Then followed an engagement with Mr. Auguste Van Biene to play Dickson (the old landlord), in The Broken Melody. On Nov. 5, 1897, he went to the Haymarket to understudy Mr. Mark Kinghorne as Snecky, in The Little Minister. On Feb. 18 he rejoined Mr. Van Biene to play at various times Dickson, the Hon. Dick Spinnaker, Beaujour, and Dr. M'Grath, in The Broken Melody. At the conclusion of the tour he returned to the Haymarket to understudy and play on several occasions Andrew Mealmaker. When The Manœuvres of Jane was produced, Mr. Lathbury appeared as Mr. Pausey for the greater part of the run. Then followed the first tour of Mr. Cyril Maude with his original company in The Little Minister, Mr. Lathbury appearing as Andrew Mealmaker. Towards the close of this year (1899) he joined Mr. Tom Thorne to play Gregory, in The Guv'nor, an engagement to appear as Silva Tosh, in The Little Minister, coming immediately afterwards. Next followed some special engagements, Mr. Lathbury playing, amongst other parts, Charles VI. of France, in Henry V.; Jacob Schwartz, in A Bunch of Violets; Sims, in An American Citizen; Brabantio, Polonius, and First Grave Digger, Old Gobbo, and the Duke, in The Merchant of Venice, with Mr. Jerrold Robertshaw. Mr. Robert Courtneidge witnessed one of these performances, and a contract immediately followed for Thisbe, in the splendid production of A Midsummer Night's Dream, at the Prince's, Manchester. A special engagement at Margate to play Scrooge, in A Christmas Carol, and the creation of Judge Jeffreys, in Lorna Doone, intervened before the spring tour of A Cigarette-Maker's Romance, when

MR. STANLEY LATHBURY.

Mr. Lathbury appeared as Christian. On July 11 of this year (1902) he joined Mr. Penley's company to play Spettigue, in Charley's Aunt, but was obliged to relinquish this part to return to Manchester for William and to understudy Touchstone, in Mr. Courtneidge's production of As You Like It. This engagement led to a year in Australia with Mr. George Musgrove's Shakespearean company, such parts as Thisbe, Le Beau, Corin, and William and Fabian, in Twelfth Night, falling to Mr. Lathbury's share. The portrait by Warwick Brookes, of Manchester, shows Mr. Lathbury as William, in As You Like It.

MISS LUCIE VERRIER.

MISS LUCIE VERRIER was fired with the desire to join the profession by the example of her sister, Miss Flossie Wilkinson, both from their childhood's days being very keen on all things theatrical. Some seven years ago, after studying with Miss Dolores Drummond, Miss Verrier joined a company, for the first part of her career playing in dramas. After that she got into comedy, which she much preferred, playing, amongst other pieces, in Charley's Aunt, Niobe, Our Boys, My Soldier Boy, A Man with a Past, A Bad Lot, Pettifer's Baby, and more recently she has been playing in Messrs Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company in Quality Street. She has been with Mr Harry Paulton in seven or eight engagements.

MR. STUART LOMATH.

MR. LOMATH was originally intended for a commercial career, but the theatre was ever more attractive to him, and, having gained considerable success as a reciter, he determined to follow the stage as a profession. His first engagement, twelve years ago, was to play General Delarouche in Paul Kauvar, on tour; and for the next twelve months he took anything and everything that came to hand. Then came a long tour with The Bentley Repertoire Co., followed by a stock season with Mr. J. F. Preston, gaining valuable experience, as the bill was changed twice a week, and consisted of both costume and modern drama. He was then engaged by Messrs. Erskine and Macdona to play character parts and stage-manage their repertoire of comedies. On the nights that Walker, London, was played, Mr. Lomath showed his versatility by depicting a cockney part in the play, and a Scotch character part in the curtain-raiser. His next engagement was to play Caroz, a Mexican heavy part, in The Enemy's Camp; and, after some varied experience, he was engaged to play the Terriss part in the Adelphi drama, The Fatal Card, on tour. Shortly afterwards he acted Dunstan Leech—heavy lead—in The Span of Life, under Mr. W. Calder's management. Next he went to Mr. J. A. Atkin to play Lorenz de Ribas in The Grip of Iron. This was followed by a long tour in another Terriss part, viz., Major Villiers, in Boys Together. Then he came back once more to his first love, Paul Kauvar, but this time for the title-rôle. A tour with Mr. J. F. Elliston followed. For the next three years he remained in London, alternately writing and producing sketches, and fulfilling special engagements at the Lyric, Hammersmith, Shakespeare, Clapham, where, among other parts, he supported Mr. Charles Warner as Gouget in his famous drama, Drink. Shortly afterwards he played The Cardinal in The Three Musketeers. He also undertook leading business at the Elephant, Surrey, Standard, &c. One of his favourite impersonations is a dude detective in a little play of his own writing, called That Beautiful Devil, which had a successful run in some of the principal London halls. He again joined Mr. J. F. Elliston for heavy lead in a tour of Little Jim; after which he was engaged by Mr. Richard Waldon for heavy lead in a stock season at the Princess's Theatre, Glasgow. Then came Mr. Lomath's first engagement in pantomime, playing The Ogre—a strongly dramatic part—in Puss in Boots, at the Prince of Wales's, Liverpool. He was next engaged to star as Ben Kershaw in A Snug Little Kingdom, the part created by Charles Warner at the Royalty Theatre,

London. In this character Mr. Lomath received most flattering encomiums from both press and public. It is played in the broadest Yorkshire dialect; but, with the assistance of his wife, who is a native of Huddersfield, he mastered it so thoroughly that he has been frequently called upon to decide whether or not he really belongs to "the county of broad acres."

MISS GLADYS MAKEHAM.

MISS GLADYS MAKEHAM is thirteen years old, and the daughter of a doctor. At eight years of age she was specially engaged by Mr. F. R. Benson, the well-known Shakespearean actor, to play the part of the Indian Boy in A Midsummer Night's Dream at the Lyceum Theatre, and during his season there she played other parts. A short time after Mr. Benson opened at the Comedy Theatre, and there again he specially engaged her to play Young Marcus in Coriolanus. She was with him all the time he was there, and then he started a suburban tour, which he engaged her for, and she was with him till he finished. The young actress loves Shakespeare, and hopes some day to play Portia. Her next engagement was with Mr. Louis Calvert, at the Prince of Wales's Theatre. He specially engaged her to play Kate in Katawampus. Since then she has been with Mr. Arthur Bourchier, of the Garrick Theatre, playing and understudying in The Water Babes two years running, and in The Cricket on the Hearth. She also played in The Fairy's Dilemma at the Garrick, having a speaking part, and understudying one of the principal ladies. She has just finished her fifth engagement with Mr. Bourchier, having played the part of the Black Bride in Little Black Sambo with much success. Miss Makeham has done a great deal of concert work, has passed three musical examinations, and is preparing for the Royal Academy of Music. One of the most striking merits of Miss Makeham's acting is its admirable naturalness. The above portrait represents her in a character in The Water Babes.

THE New Theatre Royal, Glossop, which has been erected on the market ground by Mr. Sydney Spenser, of Nottingham, was opened on Monday night by Mr. W. H. Kirby's No. 1 company in The New Mephisto. The musical comedy was well staged, and frequent recalls were made by an audience, which taxed the large accommodation of the house. At the outset Mr. Spenser read congratulatory telegrams for his success from Sir Henry Irving and others. The theatre is fitted throughout with electric light.

HENRY IRVING AT WOLVERHAMPTON.

Sir Henry Irving, who has received from the Queen a gracious expression of her concern at his illness, and good wishes for his recovery, is making rapid progress, and, on Wednesday afternoon, with the assent of his medical attendant, Dr. Lloyd-Davies, he was able to take a drive round the outskirts of Wolverhampton. He was accompanied in the brougham by his manager, Mr. Loveday; and the route taken included the pretty rural villages of Tettenhall, Wightwick, and Compton.

On his return to the Star and Garter Hotel, Sir Henry was waited upon by the Mayor (Councillor Berrington), accompanied by the Town Clerk (Mr. Horatio Brevitt), for the purpose of handing to the distinguished actor a silver casket, containing the illuminated address of welcome, subscribed for by numerous ladies and gentlemen in the town. The address was to have been presented to Sir Henry at a public assemblage in the Town Hall, on Tuesday, the 21st ult., but the ceremony, unfortunately, had to be postponed owing to the actor's unexpected breakdown. The address was as follows:—

TO SIR HENRY IRVING, KT., D.LITT. CAMBRIDGE AND DUBLIN, LL.D. GLASGOW.

Sir,—The lovers and patrons of the drama in this town feel that they cannot allow your last official visit amongst them to pass without first offering you a hearty welcome, and next in bidding you an affectionate farewell upon your contemplated retirement from the profession which you have so long adorned.

Wolverhampton is greatly indebted to you for two previous visits—the first being the occasion when, in February, 1890, as President of its Literary and Scientific Society, you delivered an address which, as an intellectual treat, will never be forgotten.

Your second appearance was at the Grand Theatre in March, 1903, when the applause which greeted your performances testified to the pleasure afforded to those present.

The stage, formerly the subject of severe criticism and reproach, has now, mainly through your true conception of its needs, become elevated and purified in its tone, attractive in its character, refined and instructive in its scenic illustrations, successful in cultivation of character-acting, and powerful as a necessary and permanent institution in our social life.

Your laudable efforts to revive Shakespearean drama, in which you have so truly interpreted our greatest poet's thoughts and ideas, and so perfectly spoken his words, have increased the popularity of the stage, and proved a means of mental improvement and moral teaching.

Our late beloved Queen and the Universities of Cambridge, Dublin, and Glasgow, in the honours which they so graciously conferred upon you, were not unmindful of the just recognition due to your labours.

In wishing you good-bye, after your arduous services of nearly fifty years, your friends and admirers in this borough ask your acceptance of this address and accompanying casket, as a token of their high appreciation of the great talent, industry, and ability which you have displayed in promoting dramatic art.

When the curtain falls at the close of your eventful public career, may your feelings be gladdened, strengthened, and sustained by pleasing and happy recollections of a life well spent in providing pure and ideal enjoyment for your fellow-countrymen.

Signed on behalf of the Executive Committee,

R. E. W. BERRINGTON,
(Mayor), Chairman.

HORATIO BREVITT,
Town Clerk and Hon. Secretary.

Engrossed on vellum, the address takes the form of a scroll mounted on an ebony roller, with silver capped ends and silver clip. The borough arms, richly illuminated, occupy a central position at the top of the address, and Sir Henry's monogram is set underneath a knight's helmet. An effective decoration represents Comedy and Tragedy.

The address is enclosed in a handsome silver casket, oxydised and enamelled, coffer shape, specially designed for the occasion. The casket is lined with rich purple velvet, and bears on the lid this inscription:

"Presented with an address to Sir Henry Irving, Kt., D.Litt., LL.D., by his friends and admirers in Wolverhampton, on the occasion of his farewell visit, 21st February, 1905."

The casket is enclosed in a handsome morocco case.

Sir Henry Irving, in receiving the address, desired the Mayor to express to the numerous subscribers to it, in his name, his high appreciation of the kindly welcome that was extended towards him by all classes of residents on this, his third, visit to the borough, and the many expressions of sympathy he had received during his unfortunate illness.

Sir Henry has signed an agreement with Mr. Charles Frohman to begin an American tour in October. He will play in the United States for twenty weeks, and this will be his farewell visit to the United States.

Hearing that he has been taxed with preaching an impracticable doctrine—viz., the organisation of the theatre by the municipality, Sir Henry has explained his real views. Some critics, he stated this week, had insinuated that he wanted to hand over the whole control of local affairs to the members of the theatrical profession, and especially to make sure that actors were elected as mayors. He had never contemplated such a serious revolution, although he could mention actors who, if elected to the office of chief magistrates, would turn out to be grave and methodical men of business. He was no extremist; it never occurred to him to propose anything more alarming than the administration of the theatre as a branch of local government, just as they administered the water supply and other needs of a great and growing city. But it was a dream. He saw no prospect of inducing people to believe that the civic authorities might charge themselves with the supply of rational entertainment, as they charged themselves with the supply of wholesome water, although the one necessity was nearly as great as the other.

COMIC OPERA COMPETITIONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—As the delay in announcing the award in the libretto competition organised by Messrs. Chappell and Co.—now nearly twelve months ago—has elicited some correspondence in the daily press, and is also arousing the interest of the general public, may I, as a competitor, ask for a line in your popular paper to draw attention to this matter? The judges have had more than six months, and this length of time has surely been enough for a decision to be arrived at, especially as we were promised by a circular issued on Dec. 16 last that an award would be made early in January. Hearing nothing further, some of us would be glad of an explanation.—Yours faithfully,

THE SCOTCH APOLLO
(VICTOR VERITY).

115A, Seymour-place, Bryanston-square, Mar. 6.

MISS MINNIE PALMER, after a long absence abroad, will once again delight London playgoers by her appearance next Monday evening at Fulham Theatre in her original part in My Sweetheart. Mr. R. H. Howard, a tenor with a cultivated voice, will be the Tony.

A SAD CASE.

MR. PERCY ELLIS.

In a letter which we have received from Mr. A. F. Henderson, general-manager for Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. Henderson requests us to open our columns to an appeal on behalf of Mr. Percy Ellis, the late assistant-manager of the New Theatre, St. Martin's-lane, and, after having enquired into Mr. Ellis's circumstances, and having assured ourselves that his is a genuine case of distress, we have much pleasure in acceding to Mr. Henderson's charitable wishes.

Mr. Ellis is in an advanced stage of consumption, and, having been unable to follow any employment for nearly twelve months, his finances are completely exhausted, and he is in actual want.

All subscriptions for the above deserving appeal will be duly acknowledged in these columns. They may be forwarded to Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, Hon. Treasurer to the Fund, care of The Era office, or direct to Mr. A. F. Henderson, New Theatre, St. Martin's-lane.

IRISH AUDIENCES.

A little-read and seldom-quoted, but very interesting, old book is Sir Jonah Barrington's "Personal Sketches of his Own Times." In a chapter on "Theatrical Recollections," he gives a quaint account of the audiences at the old Dublin playhouses. From my youth, says Sir Jonah, I was attached to theatrical representations, and have still a clear recollection of many of the eminent performers of my early days. My grandmother, with whom I resided for many years, had silver tickets of admission to Crow-street Theatre, whither I was very frequently sent.

The playhouses in Dublin were then lighted with tallow candles, stuck into tin circles hanging from the middle of the stage, which were every now and then snuffed by some performer; and two soldiers, with fixed bayonets, always stood like statues on each side of the stage, close to the boxes, to keep the audience in order. The galleries were very noisy and very droll. The ladies and gentlemen in the boxes always went dressed out nearly as for court; the strictest etiquette and decorum were preserved in that circle; whilst the pit, as being full of critics and wise men, was particularly respected, except when the young gentlemen of the University occasionally forced themselves in to revenge some insult, real or imagined, to a member of their body; on which occasions all the ladies, well-dressed men, and peaceable people generally, decamped forthwith; and the young gentlemen as generally proceeded to beat or turn out the residue of the audience, and to break everything that came within their reach. These exploits were by no means uncommon; and the number and rank of the young culprits were so great, that the college would have been nearly depopulated, and many of the great families in Ireland enraged beyond measure, had the students been expelled or even rusticated.

I remember seeing old Mr. Sheridan perform the part of Cato at one of the Dublin theatres. I do not recollect which; but I well recollect his dress, which consisted of bright armour under a fine laced scarlet cloak, and surmounted by a huge, white, bushy, well-powdered wig, over which was stuck his helmet. I wondered much how he could kill himself without stripping off the armour before he performed that operation! I also recollect him particularly playing Alexander the Great, and throwing the javelin at Clytus, whom happening to miss, he hit the cup-bearer, then played by one of the hack performers, a Mr. Jemmy Fotterel. Jemmy very naturally supposed that he was hit designedly, and that it was some new light of the great Mr. Sheridan to slay the cup-bearer in preference to his friend Clytus, and that therefore he ought to tumble down and make a painful end, according to dramatic custom. Immediately, therefore, on being struck he reeled, and fell very naturally, considering it was his first death; but being determined on this unexpected opportunity to make an impression upon the audience, he began to roll about, kick, and flap the stage with his hands; falling next into strong convulsions, exhibiting every symptom of torture, and at length expiring with a groan so loud and so long that it paralysed even the people in the galleries, whilst the ladies, believing he was really killed, cried aloud.

Though then very young, I was myself so terrified in the pit that I never shall forget it. However, Jemmy Fotterel was, in the end, more applauded than any Clytus had ever been.

The actresses both of tragedy and genteel comedy formerly wore large hoops, and whenever they made a speech walked across the stage and changed sides with the performer who was to speak next, thus veering backwards and forwards, like a shuttlecock, during the entire performance.

I recollect Mr. Barry, who was really a remarkably handsome man, and his lady (formerly Mrs. Dancer); also Mr. Digges, who used to play the Ghost in Hamlet. One night in doubling that part with Polonius, Digges forgot, on appearing as the Ghost, previously to rub off the bright red paint with which his face had been daubed for the other character. A spirit with a large red nose and vermilioned cheeks was extremely novel, and much applauded. There was also a famous actor who used to play the Cock that crew to call off the Ghost when Hamlet had done with him. This performer did his part so well that everybody used to say he was the best Cock that ever had been heard at Smock-alley, and six or eight other gentry of the dunghill species were generally brought behind the scenes, who, on hearing him, mistook him for a brother cock, and set up their pipes all together. And thus, by the infinity of crowing at the same moment, the hour was the better marked, and the Ghost glided back to the other world in the midst of a perfect chorus of cocks, to the no small admiration of the audience.

Kean's Shylock and Sir Giles Overreach seemed to me neither more nor less than actual identification of those portraitures; so much so, in fact, that I told him myself, after seeing him perform the first-mentioned part, that I could have found in my heart to knock his brains out the moment he had finished his performance. Two errors, however, that great actor had in a remarkable degree: some of his pauses were so long that he appeared to have forgotten himself; and he patted his breast so often that it really reminded one of a nurse patting her infant to keep it from squalling.

There was a first edition of Liston as to drollery, on the Dublin stage, usually called 'Old Sparkes.' He was very tall, and of a very large size, with heavy-hanging jaws, gouty ankles, big paunch, and sluggish motion; but his comic face and natural drollery were irresistible. He was a most excellent actor in everything he could personate: his grotesque figure, however, rendered these parts but few. Peachum, in the Beggar's Opera, Caliban (with his own additions), in The Tempest, and all bulky, droll, low characters, he did to the greatest perfection. At one time, when the audiences of Smock-alley were beginning to flag, Old Sparkes told Ryder if he would bring out the after-piece of The Padlock, and permit him to manage it, he would ensure him a succession of good nights. Ryder gave him his way, and the bills announced a first appearance in the part of Leonora: the débutante was reported to be a Spanish lady. The public curiosity was excited, and youth, beauty, and tremulous modesty were all anticipated; the house overflowed; impatience was unbounded; the play ended in confusion, and the overture of The Padlock was received with rapture. Leonora at length appeared; the clapping was like thunder, to give courage to the débutante, who had a handsome face, and was very beautifully dressed as a Spanish Donna, which it was supposed she really was. Her gigantic size, it is true, rather astonished the audience. However, they willingly took for granted that the Spaniards were an immense people, and it was observed that England must have had a great escape of the Spanish Armada, if the men were proportionately gigantic to the ladies. Her voice, too, was rather of the hoarsest, but that was accounted for by the sudden change of climate. At last Leonora began her song of 'Sweet Robin'— and at the same moment Leonora's mask falling off, Old Sparkes stood confessed, with an immense gander which he brought from under his cloak, and which he had trained to stand on his hand and screech to his voice, and in chorus with himself. The whim took: the roar of laughter was quite inconceivable: he had also got Mungo played by a real black: and the whole was so extravagantly ludicrous, and so entirely to the taste of the Irish galleries at that time, that his 'Sweet Robin' was encored, and the frequent repetition of the piece replenished poor Ryder's treasury for the residue of the season.

'Say, little foolish fluttering thing,
Whither, ah! whither would you wing?'

FREDERICK MOUILLOT'S AND ROBERT ARTHUR'S ADVERTISEMENTS.

THE DIVIDING RULE.

In the following advertisements, which appeared in the last issue of The Era, the dividing rule was misplaced, thus taking into Mr. Robert Arthur's advertisement some of the information belonging to Mr. Fredk. Mouillot's advertisement. The two lines incorrectly taken into Mr. Robert Arthur's announcement were:

Grand Theatre, Southampton,
Vacant, April 17 (5 nights).

Mr. Mouillot, as is well known, is the lessee of the Grand Theatre, Southampton, and the only person to be applied to for the booking of dates at that theatre. The correct forms of the two advertisements should have been:

WANTED, First-class Attractions,
BROADWAY THEATRE, NEW CROSS, S.E.
April 3 Vacant.
GRAND THEATRE, MARGATE,
Vacant May 1, 8, 22, 29.
THEATRE ROYAL, BOURNEMOUTH,
Vacant, April 17 (5 nights).
GRAND THEATRE, SOUTHAMPTON,
Vacant April 17 (5 nights).
F. Mouillot, 4, Broad-court-chambers, Bow-st., W.C.

WANTED, First-class Attractions, for April 3, 10, 17.
Apply, Mr. Robert Arthur, 24a, Regent-street, S.W.

We apologise to both Mr. Fredk. Mouillot and Mr. Robert Arthur for any annoyance and inconvenience which this regrettable printer's error may have occasioned.

THE SCENIC ARTISTS' ASSOCIATION.

The Exhibition Invitation Sub-Committee (No. 3) of the Scenic Artists' Association held their first meeting at the offices, 5, Robert Street, Adelphi, on Saturday afternoon. Mr. Walter Hann presided, and there were also present Sir Philip Burne-Jones, Bart. (vice-president), Messrs. R. H. Halley, George Tweddell, and H. Woolls, and Mr. H. Lawrence Harris, secretary. The sub-committee drafted the following circular, and instructed the secretary to send a copy to each member of the Association at his earliest convenience:—

Dear Sir,—I most urgently and earnestly beg that you will kindly advise me by return of post, on the enclosed stamped addressed postcard, fullest particulars of the models, sketches, &c., you propose to send to the Exhibition at the Grafton Galleries next month. The committee think that if a strenuous and sustained effort be made on the part of every member of the Association to assist the committee in each of the directions indicated at foot, success will crown the Exhibition. Not only is it hoped that it will be possible to return the guarantors the money advanced, but also to add to the funds of the Exhibition a sum sufficient to obviate the necessity of increasing this year the subscription.

Your help is asked: (a) By sending models (especially wanted), sketches, drawings, paintings, &c. (b) By recommending your friends to advertise in the catalogue, specimens of which (with rates and particulars of spaces vacant) can be had of Messrs. Charles Pool and Co., 92, Fleet Street, E.C.

Trusting to receive an assurance of your kind co-operation, I am, yours faithfully,

Walter Hann, Chairman.

The Exhibition Selection Sub-Committee (No. 1) held their first meeting at the offices on Tuesday. There were present Mr. Walter Hann (in the chair), Messrs. Edmund G. Banks, Richard Douglass, William Harford, Harry Potts, and H. Woolls, and Mr. H. Lawrence Harris (secretary). Letters were read from Mr. Hawes Craven (President) and Mr. William Telbin. The sub-committee, having carefully considered some 20 offers of loans of works by famous deceased scene painters, selected 80 pictures for the Exhibition, and instructed the secretary to make the necessary arrangements for the collection of the pictures, and also insure the same against fire while at the Grafton Galleries. Letters were read from 25 members promising to lend models, oil paintings, water colours, distemper sketches, photographs, &c.

The daily afternoon concerts of the Scenic Artists' Association at their exhibition in the Grafton Galleries, Bond-street, next April, promise to be exceptionally interesting. The programme each afternoon will be limited to only a few numbers, but the items will be of the highest class. The Entertainment Sub-committee have already obtained promises from Mr. George Alexander to recite, and from Mr. Lionel Brough to tell a few short stories. Miss Madge Crichton, Madame Zippora Monteith, Miss Elsie Edeson, Messrs. Reginald Groome, Frank Boor, and Mervyne Dene, will sing. Miss Lottie Venne, Miss Rose Yule, Miss Nellie Brooke, and Mr. George W. Cockburn have promised recitations, and Mr. E. Story Gofton two recitations, with organ accompaniment. Mr. Dion Boucicault and Miss Irene Vanbrugh have also promised their services, and the solo instrumentalists include Mr. Percy Colson (violin), Mr. Chevreau (violin), Miss Pattie Upton (violin), Mr. W. H. Barrett (flute), Mr. Henri Deroutte (violoncello), Mdlle. Chevreau (harp).

The secretary of the Scenic Artists' Association has had offers from Mr. R. C. Rogers to lend a very valuable oil painting by the late Sebastian Estelos; from Mr. Frederick Smallfield a charcoal sketch by the late Matt. Morgan, entitled "The Two Dogs"; from Mr. Evelyn Clyde a very fine specimen of Mr. Hawes Craven's black and white work, "The Interior of Westminster Abbey"; from Mr. E. Story Gofton "King Lear" (Greuze), two water-colours by Clarkson Stanfield, and a bound book of Covent Garden scenes during Macready's season.

We understand that Mr. Claude Harris, who made his first London appearance at Terry's Theatre last Thursday afternoon, as Salanio in the Merchant of Venice, is the second son of Mr. H. Lawrence Harris, the secretary of the Scenic Artists' Association.

THE END OF "GOOSY GANDER."

This successful pantomime, invented and written by Mr. Fred Locke, finished gamely last Saturday night, at the Princess's Theatre, Glasgow, after running into its thirteenth week. There was a crowded, but orderly last-night audience, and the enthusiasm was unbounded, encores were demanded, and beautiful floral and other offerings were numerous. In the palace scene, Mr. Waldron (the proprietor) and Mr. Locke were called for and heartily cheered. Mr. Waldron spoke a few words of thanks, after which the vast audience, upstanding, joined with the company in singing lustily "Auld Lang Syne."

On the previous evening Mr. Waldron had a bumper benefit, and at the close of the performance spoke as follows, his remarks being punctuated by loud cheers:—"Ladies and Gentlemen,—It has been a proud and distinctive privilege to me to appear before you annually as I do to-night in the character of a grateful servant, whose gratitude fails to find language sufficiently adequate to express the deep sense of obligation under which he labours. We have all been very happy and merry here for the past three months, because you have so heartily appreciated our efforts towards your merriment. There is always a pang of regret when the end of these scenes of mirth and gaiety approaches, but I would like to say, thanks to your generous support, that this pantomime has proved one of the most successful the Princess's has ever had. Of course one of the main factors in this has been the company. The admirable way in which all have worked together has undoubtedly contributed to the success, and I think you will agree with me that for the loyal, earnest, and painstaking way in which they have acted, my warmest thanks are due to the ladies and gentlemen on the stage here to-night. I also thank Mr. Locke, the author. I may say that this is his semi-jubilee in pantomime work for the Princess's, this being the 25th year he has been guilty of such infliction, which I think he will go on inflicting for some years to come, to your pleasure and delight. I also thank those unseen workers behind the stage and my lieutenants in front, for all must help in one consolidation to achieve that which we all strive for—viz., success. And now, ladies and gentlemen, in thanking you all very, very sincerely for your kindness, your indulgence, and your generosity, let me wish good luck may follow those on the stage, and that prosperity may shine upon you, and that for some years yet I may produce pantomimes, and still remain your most obedient and very grateful servant."

Mrs. Christie, wife of Mr. John Christie, acting-manager of the Hackney Empire, has just been presented with a handsome gold bracelet by members of the female staff and a few of the male assistants. The presentation, which was made on Mrs. Christie's birthday, was to have taken place on New Year's Day, but at that time she experienced a bereavement by the death of her father, Mr. Newman, who was well known to Hackney Empire employees.

Miss Berthe Palliser has been secured by the management of the Hackney Empire for next week's programme. At the Apollo Theatre she was Miss Ada Reeve's understudy, and when the last-named lady fell ill she took the leading rôle in Kitty Grey with the greatest success. Miss Palliser has also played with the Carl Rosa Opera Company, and in Faust on one occasion was the recipient of no less than seven bouquets—one from a most illustrious person. Later Miss Palliser gained golden opinions by her interpretation of the part of Zelie Rumbert, in The Orchid. At the opening of the Coliseum, Mr. Oswald Stoll engaged her to appear in the charming character of "The River Girl," which had an uninterrupted run of eight weeks—rather a record for a scena at any one variety house. On making her bow to Hackney audiences, Miss Palliser will sing a new song, "Come in and shut the door," which may be described as a song with a plot.

The Prince and Princess of Wales paid a special visit to the London Hippodrome on Monday night to see the giant Machnow, the largest man in the world.

At the Chelsea Palace, under distinguished patronage, a grand matinée will take place on Tuesday, March 28, in aid of the Horse Ambulance Fund, established by Our Dumb Friends' League, a society for the encouragement of kindness to animals. The Palace has been kindly lent for the occasion by the directors, and amongst the many artistes who have generously promised their services are: Mr. Rutland Barrington, Mr. Louis Bradfield, Mr. Charles Capper, Mr. G. H. Chirgwin, Mr. Earle Douglas, Mr. George Grossmith, jun., Mr. Leo Mars, Miss Louie Pounds, Miss Marie Studholme, Miss Florence Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Sothern, and "The Serenaders" (masked singers). Amongst those who are selling programmes will be Miss Phyllis Broughton, Miss Kitty Davis, Miss Granville, Miss Annie Hughes, Miss Grace Lane, Miss Ruby Ray, and Miss Marion Stayton. Through the generosity of several ladies, a large number of the cheaper tickets have been purchased for the benefit of various charitable institutions in the district, and there will be about 150 of the Chelsea pensioners present, as well as boys from the Duke of York's Royal Military School.

Mr. W. Edwards Sprange, the author of The New Barmaid and other successful musical comedies, has just written, in collaboration with Mr. H. Leslie Bell, a new romantic idyl, entitled By Order of the Court, which will be played shortly in London by the Bell-Pearl company.

Their Majesties, attended by their suites, honoured the Palace Theatre with their presence on Thursday evening, and witnessed the performance of The Knights of the Road (which on this occasion was conducted by Sir A. C. Mackenzie), as well as the other items on the programme.

Presentation.—La Petite Bella, Marie Walford, and Nan Henri, of Dr. Walford Bodie's company, have been presented by Messrs. Livingstone and Hoffman, the well-known professional furriers, Manchester, with costly gold-mounted tiger's claw brooches. Miss Bella also received a present of a handsome fur-lined coat.

Miss Fatmah Diard, the well-known American operatic prima-donna, is about to exploit on the music hall stage of a well-known West End house two new song-scenas, specially written and composed for her by Messrs. John P. Harrington and George Le Brunn, and respectively entitled The Modern Portia and Roses Round the Window.

A Copy of "The Era" will be forwarded to any address in the United Kingdom for six stamps. The Era is posted on Saturday in time to reach London Subscribers by the first Town Delivery, and Country Subscribers should receive their Papers by the first London Post. Address, the Publisher 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—THE OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Carey; Manager, Mr. F. Edgar Manaton.—Mr. Harold V. Neilson and company are appearing this week in Pinero's Money Spinner and Haddon Chambers's Tyranny of Tears, the latter being the week-end attraction. In the former piece Mr. Neilson has given an admirable study of the part of Lord Kengussie, and has been well supported by Mr. John Detliv, Mr. Lemmon Warde, and Mr. J. F. Fox; while of the ladies, Miss Madge Flynn, Miss Beatrice Marsdene, and Miss Helen Phillips all contribute materially to the success of the production.

WALTHAMSTOW. — PALACE. — Managing-Director, Mr. G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr. Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatter.—An interesting programme this week includes Mr. George Leyton, who is heard to great effect in his song, "The Prodigal Son," while in the scena, "Britannia's Babes," looking resplendent in the uniform of a naval officer, he is assisted by a troupe of well-trained youngsters. Miss Bessie Lind is a pretty and engaging singer and dancer; Cline and Clarke, who may be described as quite old favourites here, are received with a storm of applause. One of the big successes of the evening is achieved by Mr. Harry Carsdale, whose imitations of the various denizens of a farmyard are marvellously true to nature. Virginia and her Piccaninnies, in "Coon Town Society," are much in favour, the quaint antics, grimaces, and dancing of the little darkies being clever and amusing. Mr. Henry A. Moore, with a handsome stage presence and powerful voice, proves his mimetic versatility in imitations of such widely-opposed artists as the late Wilson Barrett as Claudian and the late Herbert Campbell in one of his comic songs. The strong line on the bill, however, is undoubtedly the production by Mr. John Lawson and his company of the episode of domestic martyrdom, A Bride for a Living. In this strange mixture of cockney farce and grim tragedy Miss Cissie Louie Lawson scores all along the line as the slangy, extravagant, finery-loving and loveless wife. Mr. Lawson has a part after his own heart in the hoodwinked husband, and his tirades against certain social abuses of the day rouse the house to enthusiasm. The other three characters in the episode are all skilfully played.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter.—The popular musical comedy, The New Barmaid, is here this week. Mr. J. B. Montague, as Bertie White, scores a big success, and his singing, patter and mannerisms, are such as to evoke much mirth; Mr. Alexander Loftus is also excellent as William White, and his portrayal of the millionaire is natural to a degree; Mr. Leslie Austin as Captain Lovebury is well placed and his rich tenor voice is heard to advantage in several numbers; Colonel Claymore has an able representative in Mr. Arthur Rodney; and Mr. Frank Melroyd, besides giving a capital interpretation of Mons. Bonsor, submits several capital dances, which win approval; Mr. Norman Bowyer is good as Braddy. Miss Violet Osmund, as Dora Heather, is full of life and energy, and scores as vocalist and dancer; Miss Nance O'Neil is smart as the New Barmaid, whilst the older barmaid has a faithful representative in Miss Julia Blanche; Miss Jean Gilmour is a dignified Lady Moulton. There are several specialities well introduced, the staging is effective, and the chorus, under the introduction of Mr. Otto Cantor, is well balanced.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements Mr. F. Willmot.—Griff, the original jocular juggler, is proving a great draw here this week; Frank Cass is a capital character vocalist; and Robins and Collins are smart sketch artistes. Fred Horsfall is a clever mimic, and the Houston Brothers are acceptable patter comedians. A charming comedienne is Lizzie Vandean, and Harry Laybourne establishes himself as a favourite with his society entertainment. The Royal Bioscope shows some amusing pictures.

WEDNESBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. J. Cranston.—Mr. Bert Coote's No. 1 Company, in The Fatal Wedding, is proving a big attraction here this week. Mr. Lomath, in the rôle of Howard Wilson, gives an interesting portrayal. A clever rendering of Robert Curtis is effected by Mr. Langford Reed; and as Toto Mr. W. E. Chard is exceptionally good. A well-played part is that of Peter Schwartz, ably presented by Mr. T. W. Ford; Miss Eva Moss is warmly appreciated in her embodiment of Mabel Wilson; Miss Doris Gilham is admirably suited to the part of Cora Williams; the comedy part of Bridget is in the capable keeping of Miss Maud Locker; and Jessie, "the little mother," is charmingly and cleverly enacted by Miss Emmie Thomas.

WELLINGBOROUGH.—CORN EXCHANGE.—Mr. A. Clifton Alderson's company was here the first three days of the week giving a good rendering of A Soldier and a Man. Miss B'Eare Doyle was to the front with a capital impersonation of Rose Melbury, and Mr. Alderson played the part of Harold Sinclair in good style. An excellent Jim Farrow was presented by Mr. H. F. Wright; Miss Daisy England deserves mention for an able portrayal, and Miss Hilda Leslie's sprightly performance as "Sergeant" Jane Wicks was much appreciated.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. P. Moore. The marvellous Craggs and a company of comedians are paying us a welcome return visit this week in their musical absurdity, Laughter Land. Mr. Henry B. Lewis, as Professor Sylvanus Wood; and Mr. John Hitchins, as Dick Marlow, are both good in their respective portrayals; Mr. Victor Raymond scores as Archie; Sir Vincent Marlow is well played by Mr. G. Westacott; Miss Amy Hastings, as Clarice; and Miss Louise Millward, as Clothilda, deserve mention; and the Billy of Mr. Cremorne Cragg is the life and soul of the play; he keeps the house in one continual roar of laughter, and is fully deserving of all the applause he gets. The Craggs are as good as ever in their marvellous acrobatic turn, and the play is well staged and dressed.

WEST HARTLEPOOL. — GRAND THEATRE. — General Manager (for Mrs. Weldon Watts), Mr. Sidney Bacon; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred Conneaux.—With the freshness of its youth, Mr. Ben Greet's Belle of New York company is again visiting here, and is being accorded a hearty welcome by well filled houses. Mr. Harold Wardroper is capitally suited in the character of Harry Bronson; and Miss Mora is all that could be possibly desired as the dainty and winsome Violet Grey; Mr. Harry A. Meymott is successfully humorous as Ichabod Bronson; Mr. Walter Emro endows the rôle of the polite lunatic with some good fun; and others in the cast who are successful in their respective rôles are, Mr. Maurice Holmes, as Blinky Bill; Mr. Lionel Yeoman and Mr. R. L. Cody, as the twins; Miss Ada Ellison, as Fifi; Miss Louie Codman, as Cora; and Miss Florence Hersee, as Kissie Fitzgarter.

PALACE.—Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—An amusing sketch by Nannie Goldman, William Holmes and company, entitled The Little Charwoman, is the means of introducing Miss Goldman in several guises, which she carries out with every success; The Sisters Petram, with a well-equipped miniature stage and figures, give a smartly-worked fantoches performance. The splendid electrically illuminated gymnastic exhibition of Les Uniques is a great attraction; Grell and Grey are amusing in an original absurdity; L. B. Athol's scena, Dreaming, is effectively sung; Charles Dixon is deservedly encored; and Kate Lynd, comedienne; and Evelyn Taylor, male impersonator, complete the bill.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. M. H. Linden.—Messrs. Haddon and Loader's company appeared here the first three nights in The Greatest Scoundrel Living, and in The King of Thieves the remainder of the week.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mr. T. C. Rawes; Resident-Manager, Mr. D. Williams.—Miss Winifred Chaloner's company is paying a visit here this week with A Woman's Revenge and The God of Night.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE. — Managing Director, Mr. John Worswick.—By arrangement with Miss Julia Neilson and Mr. Fred Terry, Mr. Louis Calvert and his principal London company have presented the successful play, Sunday, from the Comedy Theatre, to most appreciative audiences. The title-part is enacted by Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay in a particularly natural, graceful, and, at the same time, forceful manner. Col. Brinthorpe has an able exponent in Mr. J. Edw. Pearce; and the other male characters are also admirably represented. Miss Eliz. Watson, as Mrs. Naresby, and Miss Helen Macgregor, as a nun, play their parts well.

GRAND HIPPODROME. — Managing - Director, Mr. John Worswick.—Minnie Cunningham is a neat and refined mimic and comedienne, and David Poole an exceedingly smart ventriloquist. Leo Tell is an excellent imitator of the sounds of musical instruments and animals, and Addie Dorina gives a capital quick-change performance. Morris and Morris are comic trapeze artistes, and James H. McCann gives an excellent exhibition of roller-skate dancing. The Reed Oetzmann Troupe, in a pantomime sketch; the Three Henriques, eccentric acrobats; the Sisters Russell, exponents of burlesque and low comedy; and Tony Iveson, comedian, provide the remainder of a good programme.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Manager, Mr. W. Birchall.—The Sisters Linn, character duettists and coon vocalists, and the Brothers Lloddge, acrobats, remain a week longer; and Denby and Dent, in a comedy act, pay a return visit. Miss Ivy Lennard, comedienne; Mr. W. Burns, singing collier; Syd. Herman, actor-vocalist; and Bert Andrews, comedian and dancer, also give capital turns.

WINDSOR. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Licensee, Mr. Fred L. Connynghame; General Business-Manager, Mr. Worton David; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Nash.—At Twelve Midnight and On Circumstantial Evidence have been presented here this week by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clifford's capable company. At Twelve Midnight was played during the first half of the week. Mr. Charles Clifford presented a well-conceived and skilfully rendered depiction of Sir Robert Dare. Mr. E. T. Birdsley was realistic as the Earwig; Mr. T. Dyson impersonates Dene satisfactorily; and Mr. E. Morton acted well as David Kingston. Mr. Leonard Williams gave a capital embodiment of Dick Holland. Mr. Harry Cooke, in the rôle of Sammy Bimbo, was mirth provoking, and Miss M. Tremere, as Sally Wiggins, was decidedly amusing.

WOLVERHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival. —A visit from the Carl Rosa Opera Company is always an important event in local theatricals. On Monday Don Giovanni was presented. The principal parts were taken by Herr Charles Victor, Mr. Edward Davies, Mr. Arthur Winckworth, and Madame Sobrino. On Tuesday, Lohengrin was performed. Herr Julius Walther sang in splendid style in the title part, and Madame Sobrino gave a very fine rendering of the character of Elsa. Herr Charles Victor did admirably as Telramund; Mr. Arthur Winckworth was heard to great advantage as Henry the Fowler; and Mr. Frank Arthur deserves praise for his clear and excellent enunciation as the Herald. Madame Augusta Renard gave a powerful and dramatic rendering in the part of Ortrud. The chorus was powerful, and very efficient. Carmen, Maritana, Tristan and Isolda, Tannhäuser, and Faust are included in the programme for the week.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—A special attraction is provided here in Marie Lloyd, who is proving a popular draw. She is heard to great advantage in "The Coster's Wedding," and various other of her latest successes. The programme also includes Ford and Hanson, the American musical millionaires; Herbert La Martine, vocalist, dancer, and bâton-swinger; Cora Grey, burlesque actress; Steely and Dowton, comedians; Walter Emerson, eccentric comedian; Harry Coates, the singing navvy; Dan Conroy, comedian; and the Bioscope.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Fred Le Wards.—A return visit of A Chinese Honeymoon (Mr. Chas. Macdona's company) provides the musical and dramatic fare this week. Miss Florence Hallam was a fascinating Princess, whose singing was particularly well liked. In striking contrast to her dignfied rôle were the humorous acting and "business" of Miss Ettie Cinders, as Fi-fi, and Mr. Sidney Burt (Mr. Pineapple), while Miss Alicia Norton (Mrs. Pineapple), and the bridesmaids (Misses Daisy Dale and Marie Ford) were sufficiently vivacious. Mr. Steane Louch was imposing as the Emperor, and sang finely, and Miss Dulcie Garland, as the Official Mother-in-Law, was excellent. Mr. Louis Ashmeade was the Lord Chancellor, and Mr. A. Foote the lover.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. Herbert Nicholls.—This week Miss Lily Turner, a popular favourite, is paying a welcome return visit; the Evalos, comedy jugglers and gymnastic artistes, give a pleasing turn; Les Prinellas, vocal speciality artistes, make a hit with a comedy scena, entitled A Country Flirtation; and Mr. E., extempore artiste, and J. H. Bowman, comedian and dancer, also contribute to the bill.

YORK. — THEATRE ROYAL — Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. H. Barrow.—Mr. George Dance's The Duchess of Dantzic company, is paying a return visit here with the greatest possible success. Miss Rita Presano is, if possible, even more successful than ever. Sans Gêne seems to be a part particularly suited to her style, and her singing is admirable. Mr. Colin Mackay repeats his unctuous and whimsical rendering of Papillon, causing much merriment; Miss Ada Coverick is both graceful and fascinating as Renée, singing with much taste; and Mr. Thomas C. Maxwell, as Bethune, finds ample scope for the display of his undoubted vocal powers. As Lefebvre, Mr. Mackesay Cullin works hard, and with the utmost success.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. William Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sydney Brooke.—Peggy Pryde, who heads the bill here this week, is being warmly received, and her clever entertainment is heartily relished and applauded. Donaldson Brothers and Ardell, in their speciality business, are undoubtedly clever, and their performances are heartily received. After a long absence the Waldrons find great favour; Frank Coyle is an excellent comedian; and George and Edwards, Fredo, Dan Kennedy, and Violet Wilton, complete the bill.

MR. BRANDON THOMAS'S excellent company will present the evergreen farce, Charley's Aunt, at the Camden Theatre, next week.

MR. GEORGE DANCE'S principal company will be seen in the charming musical play, A Country Girl, at the Crown Theatre, Peckham, next week.

THE old boys of the Mercers' School had a very enjoyable time on Tuesday evening, at the hall of the company, which stands on the site of Barnard's Inn. A smoking concert drew a large crowd of the alumni, who were cleverly entertained by, among others, Mr. Sivey Levey, Mr. Elliston Webb, Signor Corelli, and Mr. Robert Dennant.

The annual benefit to Mr. Charles Bush, the courteous and popular acting manager of the Leeds Queen's Theatre, duly came off on Thursday evening, when a crowded and enthusiastic house witnessed the pantomime Goody Two Shoes in its entirety. Extra turns came from the local theatres and halls, and prolonged the entertainment to a late hour. The obliging and energetic methods of Mr. Bush have won for him a large circle of friends in the city, and many and hearty were the congratulations showered on him.

MRS. GORDON, of the Prince of Wales's, Southampton, is relinquishing the management of the theatre through expiration of the lease, and a committee has been formed with the view of making some recognition of her services in the cause of dramatic art in the town. Councillor C. G. Thomas, J.P., of Weston House, Southampton, is treasurer, and in conjunction with Mr. A. Emm, the secretary, will be pleased to receive contributions.

THE ART OF ACTING.

An article which recently appeared in the Times in consideration of the excellent essay by MR. BEERBOHM TREE on "The Art of Acting" which we quoted from last week, is so characteristic of a certain critical attitude of mind as to deserve discussion. Mr. TREE'S remarks, as might have been expected, were absolutely practical. He had no theory to demonstrate; he simply stated what in his opinion were the "attributes" required by a would-be successful actor. The general tenour of Mr. TREE'S statements was in the direction that the actor should not be too deeply informed. He did not regard a University education as being advantageous to the aspirant, and thought that a "bowing acquaintance" with the European languages was all that was necessary for him. "The actor," Mr. TREE went so far as to say, "must have an original observation. If he sees everything in that conventional outlook which a too rigid regard for what is called 'good form' is apt to generate, it is impossible for him to give an original point of view to his impersonation; and acting must be individual in its conception and representation."

The writer in the Times is much exercised by this pronouncement on the part of one of our foremost actor-managers; and he proceeds to argue—or, rather, to insidiously suggest—that the actor, as regards life, is, so to speak, "out of it." Incidentally, the essayist betrays his idea of what constitutes education. "Education," says he, "as generally understood, means a thorough knowledge of a few subjects. Education, as generally understood, tends to the repression of emotion. Further, education involves continuous and hard reading." And he adds, in conclusion:—

Our inquiry has wandered rather far from Mr. Tree's remarks on "How to Act." We return to them for one moment to point out that they have a reverse side. They virtually admit that the actor is not as other men, and cannot be. Many actors are peculiarly, and we think rather absurdly, sensitive on this point. They even go so far as to contend that the actor's profession does not stamp him. If that were so he would be the one solitary exception to the general rule that the dyer's hand is subdued to what it works in. We have never heard that those useful domestics whose duties involve constant genuflexion object to being warned against "housemaid's knee," or that "clergyman's sore throat" is a tabooed topic in country parsonages; but it has often been made known to us that we must never talk of "the histrionic temperament," still less of cabotinage. And yet here is Mr. Tree telling us that the good actor is condemned to be a smatterer, to read as little as possible, and to be excluded from a University training. In other words, the peculiar qualifications for life inside the playhouse are what are generally held to be disqualifications for life outside it. This statement from so high an authority "donne furieusement à penser."

The weak point of the writer's argument lies in his entirely imaginary idea of men "generally." The educated individual whom he describes—the person who has passed his time in hard reading, who knows a few subjects—say, Greek and Mathematics—thoroughly, and has completely achieved "the suppression of emotion," is simply the common or garden Prig. While we concur with Mr. TREE in thinking that a University education is not absolutely necessary to an actor, we are inclined to imagine that it does not do him any harm. The natural objection of young Englishmen of any class to "book-learning," and their instinctive devotion to sport and athletics, are usually sufficient antidotes to what is erroneously called Education. At our seats of learning, the "hard readers" are in the minority; and something very like the Greek ideal of Education is attained. We are too apt to attribute the conceit and weak reverence for "form" which are the natural attributes of youth to the influence upon young men of a University career. And any system which keeps growing lads out of mischief during a critical period, gives them every facility for athletics, and maintains a certain standard of manners, is something to be admired. And then there is the question of physique, so important to an actor. Of course, no amount of Latin and Greek will make a GARRICK of a born "stick"; but, on the other hand, as we must have mediocrities to fill middling parts, it is better to have them well-grown, with easy deportment, and a refined pronunciation of English. As for the high histrionic gift, there is probably the same average amount of it in one class as in another.

The men of account, the leaders of the world, have been just the opposite of the Educated Man as idealised by the Times essayist. The Times itself is a survival of a remarkable individual named DELANE. He was really, and not nominally, "educated." In most biographies of men of importance it is noticeable that they either were imperfectly educated—according to the Oxford view of what constitutes education—or that they were lazy and idle scholars. It would indeed be amusing to observe the Educated Man, as depicted in the Times article, in the position of a modern leading actor for only one day. So far from the actor-manager being not as other men, he is obliged to be very much as other men, the only difference being an excess in the degree of his intense humanity. From morning till evening he is immersed in "affairs." Telephones ring him up, secretaries pester him with letters that must be attended to, he has to give decisions in a hundred minor cases which he, and he alone, can judge. He is the centre of a vortex in which whirl countesses and costumiers, dramatists and dressers, archæologists and ambassadors, writers of "appreciations" and writers of begging-letters, interviewers waiting for a word or two and actors seeking engagements, invitations to dinner and supplications for speeches, weak-minded wanderers who want to adopt the stage as a profession, carpenters, carping critics, photographers, financiers, fencing masters, fiddlers, philosophers, philanthropists, philanderers, and false prophets. In the intervals of performances, in the harness of his profession, with the grease-paint on his cheeks, and the "words" upon his lips, he has to keep the pack of persecutors at bay by sheer energy and ability. The writer of the article in the Times may consider that this is not "life." We admit that it is not life as it looks to a college don or to a clerk in Somerset House. But it is the life which, in a more moderate degree, has to be led by every man who girds up his loins and goes down into the battle. So far from the Perfect Prig being qualified to lead the "life" in question, he is notoriously handicapped by his preparation. The actor, like other artists, is certainly "stamped" by the possession of the artistic temperament, just as all the strenuous and nervous callings are stamped. But to say that the peculiar qualifications for life inside the playhouse are what are generally held to be disqualifications for life outside it is not only to "beg the question," but to beg it most unskilfully. But that is what comes of "thinking furiously," and shutting one's eyes and ears to actualities.

MISS VIOLET FULTON, who played successfully in the provinces last year as Zaza, has gained favour at the Théâtre des Capucines, Paris, with Madame Jeanne Granier, in La Bonne Intention. Miss Fulton will shortly take up the lead at the Capucines in a new play now being written by M. Féraudy of the Comédie Française.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER'S programme for his matinée for the London unemployed at the St. James's Theatre on the 23rd inst. is a particularly attractive one, including as it does a revival of 'Op o' My Thumb, with Miss Hilda Trevelyan in her original part; a scene from The Taming of the Shrew, played by the Adelphi company; the third act of The Freedom of Suzanne, with Miss Marie Tempest; The Ballad Monger, with Mr. Beerbohm Tree as Gringoire; Mr. Cyril Maude and Miss Winifred Emery, in the Quarrel scene from The School for Scandal; Mr. Arthur Bourchier, in Dr. Johnson, supported by Mr. A. E. George, Mr. H. B. Warner, and Miss Elfrida Clement; and Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Eric Lewis, and Mr. Vivian Reynolds in an adaptation by Max Hecht from the French of Octave Mirbeau. Recitations and songs will be given by Miss Lena Ashwell, Mr. Lewis Waller, Miss Evelyn Millard, Mr. George Grossmith, jun., Miss Marie Studholme, Mr. Hayden Coffin, Mr. Rutland Barrington, and Miss Connie Ediss; and Lady Bancroft will announce the amount earned by the matinée.

MR. FRED C. SUTCLIFFE, the manager of the Tyne Theatre, Newcastle, has sent a cheque for £28 13s. 3d. to the Actors' Benevolent Fund from the proceeds of a matinée given at that theatre. the balance-sheet of which appears in another column.

"AGATHA."

A Play, in Three Acts, by Mrs. Humphry Ward and Louis N. Parker,
Produced at a matinée at His Majesty's Theatre, on Tuesday, March 7.

Agatha Fancourt	Miss VIOLA TREE.
Lady Fancourt	Miss LILLAH MCCARTHY
Madge Meyrick	Miss HENRIETTA WATSON
Mrs. Bob Meyrick	Miss ALICE CRAWFORD
Davies	Miss EVELYN BEAUMONT
Colonel Ford	Mr DAWSON MILWARD
Ralph Abington	Mr. HENRY NEVILLE
Sir Richard Fancourt..	Mr. HERBERT WARING
Maurice Fancourt	Mr. CHARLES MAUDE
Frank Meyrick	Mr. ROB HARWOOD
Teddy Meyrick	Mr. JULIAN L'ESTRANGE
Batson	Mr. E. C. BUFFUM

When highly intellectual novelists write for the stage they often "overdo it." They are so convinced that a theatrical audience will not "stand" anything really deep or thoughtful that they go to the other extreme and employ the stalest situations and the most conventional motives. They "play for safety," and take no risks. The situations in Agatha, which was produced at His Majesty's Theatre on Tuesday at a matinée in aid of the Princess Mary's Village Homes, are familiar to practised playgoers. The dialogue is much better written than the dialogue in pieces of this class usually is; but neither the plot nor the personages are "new."

The heroine, the daughter of Sir Richard and Lady Fancourt, has parents who cause her much uneasiness. Sir Richard has run through his property, and is looking out for a rich husband for his daughter, who may set him on his legs again; and Lady Fancourt, in the past, has "gone wrong" with a certain Ralph Abington, the innocent and unfortunate Agatha being the result. The wealthy suitor appears in the person of one Colonel Ford; and, as the girl greatly approves of him, all seems likely to turn out well. But Fancourt, in a tipsy mood, lets out to his daughter the secret of her illegitimacy, and threatens that if Agatha does not marry Ford, he—Fancourt—will expose her mother's shame. There has been a "tiff" between the lovers on a question of propriety; but Ford returns to the charge, and renews his suit. Then comes the "big scene" of the piece. Agatha tries to carry out her father's instructions, and accepts Ford; but she finds that she cannot go through with the business; and, while confessing that she loves the Colonel, she tells him that she can never be his wife. In the last act things are set straight so far as they can be; and—it is hardly necessary to state—Ford and Agatha are united.

Agatha certainly served the purpose for which it was produced, i.e., of furnishing Miss Viola Tree with another stepping-stone on her upward career. It is quite possible that a less conventional drama would not have answered that purpose as well. We must be commonplace before we can be original, and practise before we can trust ourselves with a free hand; and the rôle of the young lady in Mrs. Humphry Ward and Mr. Louis N. Parker's play is just what is required to tempt and assist the young idea to shoot. It is neither subtle enough to puzzle an aspirant, nor strong enough to overload her; while it is theatrically and emotionally effective. Above all, it is simple and straightforward; all it wants is the dramatic instinct and a pleasing and suitable personality. Miss Tree has, of course, still much to learn in the way of stage expedient and technique; but in the part of Agatha her good qualities had full scope. There was a convincing reality about her impersonation of the young and inexperienced girl, who suddenly realises all the base and sordid possibilities of life, and has to make the best fight she can of it, with all the shortcomings of youth and inexperience against her. Had Miss Tree been an older and more "stagey" artist, the pathos of the position would have seemed far less keen. She gave us, to the full, the ingenuousness of Agatha, and looked the part as only an actress of her age could have done. Seldom has helplessness appealed more poignantly to an audience. Not that Miss Tree's Agatha gave one the idea of feebleness. On the contrary, there was plenty of courage and spirit in her impersonation. In the scene at the end of the second act, in which Agatha is torn by successive emotions, Miss Tree exhibited an amount of dramatic power and a truth and depth of expression which promised rare proficiency in the future, and touched the audience very deeply. There can be no doubt of her possessing all the essential gifts which go to make an actress.

It was in this same second act that the best chance was afforded to Miss Lillah McCarthy, as Lady Fancourt, of exhibiting her striking ability as an emotional artist. In the scene between the mother and the daughter, Miss McCarthy's acting was very telling and true; and she developed the possibilities of the situation with genuine earnestness and power, chastened by grace of attitude and movement, and embellished by the use of an admirably modulated voice. Most fortunate on the male side of the cast was Mr. Dawson Milward, who infused into his embodiment of Colonel Ford a touch of airy activity which gave it an agreeable flavour. Mr. Milward's wooing was warm and eloquent; and he made the Colonel a very gallant and generous gentleman. Mr. Herbert Waring gave a graphic depiction of the dissolute and selfish Sir Richard Fancourt; and Mr. Henry Neville, who had few chances as Ralph Abington, made the most of a poor part by his thoroughly trained skill and experienced treatment. Slight but clever character sketches of a band of Bohemians of the name of Meyrick were supplied by Miss Henrietta Watson, always crisp and brilliant; Miss Alice Crawford, who was quite commendable as Mrs. Bob Meyrick; by that sound and original artist, Mr. Robb Harwood, whose Frank Meyrick did him great credit; and by Mr. Julian L'Estrange, who deserved praise for his performance as Teddy Meyrick. There was a good house to witness Agatha, and £1,600 were earned for the Village Homes.

COVENT GARDEN BALL.

It was intended that the Shrove Tuesday ball at the Covent Garden Opera House should be the last of what has been an extremely successful season, but the attendance was so great that Mr. Frank Rendle and Mr. Neil Forsyth have arranged for an extra one to be given on the 31st inst., the eve of Boat Race day. The ball, which was brought to a conclusion in the early hours of this morning, was the twelfth of the season, and the third given within three weeks. Mr. Dan Godfrey, as usual, conducted the excellent band. There was a large number of fancy costumes, and in many electric light was skilfully arranged. About two o'clock the march past began, and the judges awarded the prizes, which included a boudoir suite of furniture and two bureaux. Among the conspicuous dresses were "The House that Jack Built," in which the Maiden all Forlorn occupied a prominent place, "Summer Showers," and "A Few Songs," the latter furnished with painted panels representing some of the latest popular ballads. "Queen Bee," a pretty dress of yellow satin, of bee-shaped design, with wings and paintings of bee-hives, carried off first prize. "Girls of all Nations," a dress of white pleated chiffon, with bunches of oxeye daisies on the skirt, bodice, and hat, secured the second prize; and "Red Indian," a man's costume, obtained the third, the fourth and fifth being awarded to "The Flowers that Bloom in the Spring" and "Just off for a Spin." "A Mission of Mercy" was the winner of the sixth award. Among other striking costumes were "In Olden Days," "Golden Knight," "Cornfields," "An Arab," and "A Diver."

"MR. SMITH."

Comedy Drama, in Three Acts,
By Walter Reynolds,
Played, for the first time in London, at the Camden Theatre, on Monday, March 6.

Mr. Earle Godwyn Smith	MR. HAMILTON STEWART
The Earl of Oxted	MR. HENRY LATIMER
The Duke of Angleland..	MR. E. LUMSDEN HARE
The Hon. Dudley Dysart	MR. ARTHUR BURNE
Jack Berkeley	MR. SYDNEY BLOW
Herr Deidrich Anheuser	MR. E. DAGNALL
The Duchess of Angleland	MISS AGNES KNIGHTS
Lady Mary Hildergate ..	MISS OLIVE TEMPLE
Ruth Anheuser.....	MISS PHYLLIS RELPH
Mrs. Smith	MISS HENRIETTA COWEN
Benson	MISS LINDA YLDERSON

On a certain occasion, when H.M.S. Pinafore was being played at a seaport town, the jolly tars who chiefly composed the audience absolutely refused to see anything funny in the story. They took the heroics of Ralph Rackstraw quite seriously, execrated Dick Deadeye, and were delighted with the discovery which, in Mr. Gilbert's famous libretto, puts everything straight. As long as Mr. Smith is played to a congenial "house," it is probable that the real merit of the work as a comedy-drama will not be impaired by the instability of its foundation; but we are afraid that a cynical West-End audience would consider the conclusion of the second act decidedly Gilbertian. Smith, a name to be ashamed of? How about Assheton Smith, and Greville Smith, and the founder of Ladysmith? Dod, Kelly, and Burke positively teem with titled and distinguished Smiths. The idea of a "reduced" aristocratic family objecting to a rich and refined suitor because his name is Smith, and he is a civil engineer, is absurd. There may be such extraordinary people; but they are curiosities, only fit for the local museums.

With this deduction, Mr. Smith is an effective play, and is well suited to tickle the palate of a popular audience. The personages—with the exception of the hero, who is endowed with a superiority and native grandeur almost beyond the reach of any actor to suggest—are natural and human; and the story is interesting, touching, and well told. The Duchess of Angleland, a doting mother, is in difficulties. Her only son, the Duke, is deeply in debt; and the Duchess is selling off farms and stock to meet his liabilities. Strangely enough—but what will not money do nowadays?—the Duchess has sent her daughter, Lady Mary, on a tour with a certain Milwaukee millionaire named Anheuser and his daughter. In the course of her travels, Lady Mary meets an eminent engineer, named Earle Godwyn Smith; and they fall in love. The rest of the Angleland family then commence to object to Smith in different degrees of energy. The Duchess is half-won by his noble bearing, and his fine flow of language; but the young Duke is positively rude to him; and the old Earl, an amateur engineer, writes to the Duchess strongly reprehending the proposed engagement. Smith's mother, a prosperous hay and corn dealeress, of homely manners and defective education, calls on the Duchess about the purchase of some stock, and emphasises the engineer's lowly origin. Then the Duchess has a bright idea. Why should not Smith change his name? "Never," says the engineer, "Smith I was born, Smith I will remain," &c., &c. He attains his purpose by other means. The Duke of Angleland has altered the amount of a cheque given to him by his friend, Jack Berkeley, from £1000 to £2000, and has cashed it; and Berkeley, on finding out the fraud, is anxious to prosecute. Smith, however, persuades him to wait, and buys the compromising cheque for £1,000. Later on, Berkeley discovers that Angleland has seduced his—Berkeley's—sweetheart; and in revenge accuses him, before his family, of the forgery. Smith then hands the Duke the cheque, which he immediately destroys; but the knowledge of the seduction of the sweetheart breaks off a rich marriage which the Duke had nearly "arranged" with the millionaire's daughter, Ruth Anheuser. As for the engineering Earl, he is completely vanquished by Smith's influence in high quarters, which ensures the Earl's plans for some Irish land improvements being adopted. So strong does Smith become, in the end, that he insists on his mother coming to live with him and Lady Mary after their marriage. This, we think, is a mistake. The old lady was "in the right of it." Even grammatically correct mothers-in-law are best beloved at a distance.

Mr. Smith was remarkably well acted, the part of the overpowering engineer having a very suitable exponent in Mr. Hamilton Stewart. Mr. Stewart is very tall, handsome, and solid. He has an aristocratic appearance, and a vast amount of significant repose. From the first, it was impossible not to feel confidence in this Mr. Smith. He was eminently superior, and yet readily expressive when expression was required. In Mr. Hamilton Stewart the right man had certainly been secured for the rôle; and to his more than adequate interpretation much of the success of the piece at the Camden on Monday, after its trial trip at Nottingham last week, was due. Miss Agnes Knights was a quite possible Duchess of Angleland, the suggestion of the middle-aged lady who "had been a beauty once" being appropriately indicated, and the mixture of family pride and natural good nature being very tactfully made. A very pretty and artless Lady Mary Hildergate was Miss Olive Temple, whose arch, gay, and impulsive acting made her performance of the part both winning and effective. Miss Phyllis Relph was just the business-like but good-natured and genuine American girl indicated by the text, and did not overdo the American twang—for which much thanks. Miss Henrietta Cowen hit off neatly the plebeian peculiarities of Mrs. Smith; and Miss Linda Ylderson made a neat and nice serving-maid. Mr. E. Dagnall's impersonation of the Milwaukee millionaire was in every way irreproachable; and in appearance, manner, and accent he developed to the utmost the possibilities of the part. A duly fervid and earnest embodiment of Jack Berkeley was contributed by Mr. Sydney Blow, whose style and enunciation were excellent; and Mr. Arthur Burne was easy and efficient as the Hon. Dudley Dysart. Mr. E. Lumsden Hare, as the Duke of Angleland, was as aristocratic in style and objectionable in substance as could be desired. In make-up and manner, Mr. Hare emphasised the self-indulgent, unprincipled, and sulky character of the Duke, without caricaturing the villainy of the personage. The excitable Earl of Oxted had a sympathetic exponent in Mr. Henry Latimer, whose active energy proved very valuable for purposes of contrast. The piece was well mounted, and was dressed with creditable care; and its reception at the Camden on Monday was enthusiastic. Mr. Smith is likely to give great satisfaction when presented to a slightly unsophisticated class of playgoer.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Will be of great service.—CHARLES WYNDHAM.

Very useful.—Sporting Life.

Mr. Strong states the whole case very clearly.—Illustrated London News.

Mr. A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era.

"THE MERCHANT" AT TERRY'S.

A version of The Merchant of Venice, "arranged and abridged to suit limited stage capacity," was performed at Terry's Theatre on Thursday afternoon under the direction of Mr. J. H. Barnes. The object of the revival was not immediately evident; but the point was cheerfully waived by the audience, who obviously enjoyed the very careful and creditable performance of the play. Mr. Barnes's Antonio was an excellent example of sound, ripe, sympathetic acting; and his delivery of the merchant's touching farewell to his friend in the trial scene, with its effective "break" in the voice at the conclusion, was a model for young elocutionists. Mr. Henry Ainley's Bassanio certainly did not err on the side of over-animation; indeed, we always imagined the extravagant but straightforward heiress-hunter as a more dashing and demonstrative personage than he was made by Mr. Ainley, whose picturesque personality and refined diction were, however, very commendable. His repose and restraint were remarkable; and his Bassanio was what in hackneyed phrase is defined as a "perfect gentleman." Miss Constance Stuart's Portia was graced by the delicate distinctness which is often charmingly allied with the "least possible" suggestion of a Scotch accent; and the archness and spirit of her delivery were admirable. In the triumph of the trial she was, perhaps, a little too much of the exultant partisan and hardly enough of the judge pronouncing sentence; but her performance had many agreeable qualities, and was undoubtedly intelligent. Mr. Loring Fernie hit off the characteristics of Gratiano capitally. He was exuberant without exaggeration, and his elocution was so good, that we were sorry that several of Gratiano's best speeches had been "cut." Mr. C. Harris and Mr. W. Pigot played Salanio and Salarino satisfactorily; Mr. Twyford gave an acceptable embodiment of Lorenzo; and the really difficult rôle of Launcelot Gobbo was sustained with tact, decision, and humour by Mr. John Willes. Mr. Norman Forbes's Shylock was a strong, careful, and artistic impersonation. Mr. Forbes made every line tell definitely and decidedly, and his impersonation had much dignity, intensity, and power. The senility of Old Gobbo was indicated by Mr. Hawley Francks with realistic but inoffensive elaboration, his make-up being excellent; and the rôle of Tubal had a conscientious exponent in Mr. C. Medwin, Mr. F. Castlemain being entirely efficient as Balthazar. Miss Mariette Hyde was bright and clear as Nerissa, and Miss Madge Fabian made a pretty Jessica, and played the part with pleasing sincerity, expressive inflexion, and praiseworthy appreciation of her lines. The management for the afternoon could not be accused of over-loading the play with mounting; but the immortal interest of the drama, and the very respectable all-round interpretation which it received, won a favourable verdict from the matinée audience.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The third concert in connection with the Patron's Fund, founded by Mr. S. Edward Palmer, was given at the Royal College on Thursday last, when the orchestra of eighty-one players comprised forty-four from the Royal College, the remainder being from the London Symphony and other orchestras. The first item was a serenade by William H. Bell, a graduate of the Royal Academy of Music, in four movements, suggested by the famous Epithalamion of Spencer. The opening movement for wood and strings is followed by an andante and a brisk intermezzo, the finale allegro vivace having much animation, the employment of the wood and wind displaying admirable skill and undoubted promise for the future. The piece composed by Mr. T. F. Dunhills, who was trained at the Royal College, was a Manx Fantasia, with a violin solo, played by Mr. Haydn Wood, who greatly distinguished himself, and met with a rapturous reception. The composer has aimed at introducing Manx melodies, some of them dreamy, vague, and melancholy, but less characteristic of national feeling than Irish or Scotch airs would have been. But of the workmanship, from a musical point of view, we can speak in high praise, and, in fact, Mr. Dunhills has already obtained a good position among native musicions. "Songs from Heine" came next, by G. Molyneux Palmer, also a pupil of the Royal College. Here the composer has happily caught the quaintness of Heine, and in the poem, "Golden stars across the heavens," the musician has with great skill worked up the picturesque effects suggested by the verses. The concert piece for organ and orchestra by Benjamin Dale, of the Royal Academy, himself an excellent organist, showed remarkable boldness of design and ability in blending the organ and orchestra, the result being a magnificent volume of tone, ending with a climax of immense vigour, exciting great enthusiasm. The work of Mr. Gardiner, who had been trained privately, was a suite in A major, in four movements, all well constructed, and showing great command of the orchestra. Some of the composers conducted their own music, others were directed by Sir Charles Stanford with his customary ability. The audience was enormous, and the students in their respective efforts were warmly greeted.

AN interesting presentation was made last week to Mr. Fred L. Arthur, business manager of the Queen's Theatre, Liverpool, on his leaving to tour with one of Messrs. Carson and Granville's companies. During his managership at the Queen's Mr. Arthur made many friends who regret his departure, and to show their appreciation of him they, along with the staff of the theatre, entertained him to supper at the Goat Hotel, where he was presented with an illuminated address, a gold chain and pendant, and a purse of gold.

"ALICE, WHERE ART THOU?" a romantic drama, by Louie Neville-Banwell, was produced for copyright purposes, at the Opera House, Weymouth, on the 2nd inst.

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

Captain Jessel, whose Public Entertainment Bill stood for second reading in the House of Commons on Monday night, has postponed the measure for a fortnight, in order to give the representatives of the theatres and music-halls an opportunity of conferring together and effecting a compromise on the question of music-hall sketches.

The London Entertainments Protection Association, in a circular issued to members of Parliament, inviting support for the Sketch Bill, submit that the recent judgments clearly show that the vexatious prosecutions are not favoured by the authorities. One peculiarity of the Bill is that no provision is made for censorship, which is insisted upon as a preliminary condition to the production of pieces in the theatres.

Mr. Bransby Williams, the well-known impersonator of Dickens's characters, made his first appearance at the Empire on Monday, in a new monologue, from the pen of Miss Beatrix de Burgh, entitled The Last of His Race. The young actor impersonates a reckless spendthrift, named Faversham, who has gambled away his inheritance.

The period is the eighteenth century, and Faversham, like another Charles Surface, is surrounded by the portraits of his ancestors, each of whom, in turn, he apostrophises before he elects to die by his own hand. He kisses the miniature of his betrothed, and is devotional in his utterances to his mother's portrait; but another picture rouses his ire, and he runs his sword through it. Behold an avalanche of gold! The incident is providential, and now there is nothing to prevent young Faversham becoming a highly-respected aristocrat, with hopes and ambitions consonant with his exalted station. Mr. Williams makes a gallant figure of Faversham, and is strongly dramatic in an impersonation that suits him admirably.

Miss Beatrix de Burgh, the authoress of The Last of His Race, has written several dramatic pieces, and is part authoress of Heart of Gold, a Russo-Japanese romance. She also writes stories. As an actress, she appeared in the original cast of Paolo and Francesca at the St. James's, and played on tour Miss Granville's part in Billy's Little Love Affair.

At the London Pavilion, a matinée will be given on May 8 next, in aid of a special fund for an endowment cot to be placed in the Belgrave Hospital for Children, Clapham-road, in memory of the late Mr. Dan Leno. The cost of the cot will be about £1,000. Mr. Leno was a vice-president of the hospital, and always greatly interested himself in its welfare. The institution itself, which is the only children's hospital in the neighbourhood, a poor and thickly populated one, is much in need of assistance.

An action against Mr. Whit Cunliffe was brought by the London Pavilion Company on Tuesday in Mr. Justice Farwell's Court. In September, 1903, Mr. Cunliffe entered into an agreement with the manager of the plaintiff company to commence an engagement at their music hall on April 4, 1904, for four weeks, at a weekly salary of £8 per week. He also agreed not to appear at any other music hall within a mile of the plaintiffs' establishment whilst he was appearing at the Pavilion. There was also an option given to the plaintiffs, and when they communicated with the defendant and told him at what dates they would require him to appear at their establishment, he replied that he could not do so, as he had entered into a contract to perform at the Tivoli and Oxford. After some discussion, it was stated that the parties had come to an amicable settlement.

Mr. Horace Goldin, the illusionist, tells a good little story of the earliest of his early days on the stage. He was engaged by the manager of a New York pleasure resort to give an hour's entertainment at the exorbitant salary of a dollar a day. At the end of the first week, to the young conjuror's great surprise, he was told that his services would no longer be required. Having been very successful, he naturally pressed the manager for the reason for such a sudden dismissal. "Don't you find my performance interests the audiences?" he asked. "That's the trouble," was the frank reply. "You interest 'em so much that they don't stroll away to buy drinks."

Mr. Rutland Barrington, who shares with Mr. George Grossmith, Mr. Richard Temple, and Miss Rosina Brandram the honour of being among the old brigade of Savoyards, will have no part in Mr. George Edwardes's new production at Daly's and his services have been immediately secured by Mr. Oswald Stoll for the Coliseum. Mr. Barrington will be a great acquisition to the unique place of amusement in St. Martin's-lane.

Mr. Joe Elvin will produce at the Camberwell Palace on Monday next an entirely new and original comedy sketch, entitled Out All Night, from the pen of Mr. Wal Pink, the music being by George Le Brunn. For the above, a special novel scene has been painted by Syd Cook.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lawson very kindly lent the scenery and dresses for the performance of an operetta by the St. Barnabas' Girls' Club at the Avondale Hall, Clapham, and the valuable aid given by the amiable and popular club is very highly appreciated by the Rev. F. G. Sandworth and others interested in the welfare of the club.

Mr. Morney Cash has a new dialect act as a Lancashire lad, and he has become as popular at the Lyceum this week as the lady known on the theatrical stage many years since as the Lancashire lass. Messrs. C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton, who are responsible for his songs, have written for him a very popular number known by the short and expressive title, "Bed," and this he purposes introducing into his act next week.

At the Surrey on Monday evening next will be produced by Mr. Edward Ranier a sensational dramatic sketch entitled Siberia, founded on the story of the spectacle of the same name which was so popular at the London Hippodrome a short time since. It will be produced on a very lavish scale, and there will be six principal characters and twenty-five supers, also five trained horses.

Mr. H. J. Kibbey writes, in view of the fact that Mr. Stratton Mills and Miss Alice Lethbridge are working a sketch in which the gentleman poses as "The Call Boy," that he has for some time performed an act entitled The Call Boy. He registered the title some years ago, and it is an infringement for anyone else to make use of it.

Vasco, the "mad musician," who is appearing with great success at the London Hippodrome, recently had the honour of appearing before the King and Queen and the Prince and Princess of Wales, who were highly complimentary in their appreciation of his remarkable performance.

Mr. Walter Forder's latest dramatic sketch, entitled The Light of Dawn, was produced for the first time at the Battersea Empire, on Wednesday, March 2nd. The period of the story is early Georgian, and centres itself around the follies of a gambler. Miss Emily Hughes gave a sympathetic rendering of Lady Tyrringham; and Mr. Frank Harding and Mr. Cecil Wallis found full scope for their talents as Captain Fane and Sir Charles Tyrringham respectively. The sketch was greeted with much appreciation.

Mrs. Thomas Barrasford, on Wednesday, entertained to lunch, at the Royal York Hotel, Brighton, a large party, including the Mayor and Mayoress (Alderman and Mrs. Blaker), Mr. W. B. Gentle (Chief Constable), Mrs. T. P. O'Connor, and other ladies and gentlemen, to meet Smaun Sing Hpoo, the smallest midget in the world. During luncheon he created much amusement. Perched in his high chair, he joined in the conversation quite freely. He also indulged in a cigarette. Before leaving he was photographed together with Mrs. Barrasford and her little son. It may be of interest to note that Mrs. Barrasford was the first lady to give a public luncheon to the late lamented "Esau," the human ape. This fashion of entertaining afterwards became the craze of the ladies in both London and Paris.

The Bristol Licensed Trade second annual carnival and sports to alleviate the debt of the Royal Infirmary were held on Wednesday on the Bristol Rovers' ground, Eastville. The Management Committee, of which Mr. H. Smith was chairman, were loyally assisted by Messrs. J. M. Chute, of the Prince's Theatre; Ernest Carpenter, of the Theatre Royal; and Horace Livermore, of the People's Palace. Their companies, too, volunteered their services, and very heartily entered into the spirit of the affair. One feature of the procession was a stage coach having members of the Palace company arrayed in Court costumes. Miss Lil Hawthorne and Miss Zena Dare drove in separate carriages. Miss Ethel Campbell (Robinson Crusoe) was busily engaged with a net in angling for gold.

There were 4,000 people on the Rovers' ground to welcome the entertainers. The programme at the very start was enlivened by some funny business by a couple of policemen arresting, after a chase, the "Nurse" and the "Queen" of the Prince's pantomime. The Pink Pearl Band paraded the ground, playing merry tunes. An exciting event was the 50 yards ladies' race for the principals of both theatres. The first prize was £5 5s., the second £3 3s., and the third £1 1s. In the first heat Miss Ethel Campbell fell. It was won by Miss Maud Darling, Miss Margery Moore being second, and Miss Anita Primrose third. The second heat winners were Miss Gladys Munroe, Miss Ivy Temblett, and Miss Rosie Commolly. The other heat winners were Miss Minnie Love, Miss Flo Edwin, Miss Mina Odell, and Miss Ruby Dale. The final produced a good deal of excitement, and the ladies ran with great gusto and earnestness. Miss Rosie Commolly won, Miss Gladys Munroe being second, and Miss Mina Odell third. Mr. Albert Le Fre, Mr. W. H. Rawlins, Mr. Lionel Victor, Mr. Bob King, Mr. Sydney Rowlands, and Messrs. Karr and Kooney ably assisted in the fun-making.

At the People's Palace, Bristol, a special matinée performance was given on March 2 in aid of the Bristol Marine Ambulance Corps. It was a decided success, both from the point of view of the Marine Ambulance Corps and the audience. The house was packed, and a substantial sum will be handed to the corps as the result of the performance. From the Prince's Theatre came Miss Zena Dare and the Tiller Troupe of dancers. Mr. Ernest F. Laws and Messrs. Karr and Kooney, from the Theatre Royal, contributed items that were heartily applauded. Miss Margaret Ruby, the principal boy at the Theatre Royal, Plymouth, in addition to giving a turn by herself, was associated with Mr. Ernest Laws in a clever little musical sketch, entitled Cora's Visitors. These turns were all in addition to the usual artistes, who included Mr. Harry Lauder, the well-known Scotch comedian, and Miss Maggie Duggan. In the course of the afternoon bouquets were handed to Miss Zena Dare, Miss Maggie Duggan, and the Tiller Troupe.

Mr. Horace Livermore, after expressing the pleasure it gave him to be present, said he believed Bristol was the only city in the kingdom that had such a fine body as the Marine Ambulance Corps at its command. Lieut. Washer, upon whom the work of arranging the performance had devolved, heartily thanked Mr. Livermore on behalf of the corps. Thanks were also due to Mr. Chute, of the Prince's Theatre, Mr. Carpenter, of the Theatre Royal, the artistes, and the staff of the People's Palace. He must not forget to mention the kindness he had received from all who were interested in their work.

In an interval during the performance at the People's Palace, Bristol, on Saturday evening, Captain Tresize formally presented to Mr. Horace Livermore, on behalf of the Bristol Marine Ambulance Corps, a framed illuminated certificate of hon. membership of the society. Mr. Livermore has been instrumental in augmenting the funds of that society by special performances at the People's Palace, and it was in recognition of his generosity in doing so that it was decided to make him an hon. member (the first) of the organisation. Mr. Livermore feelingly acknowledged the presentation.

The King's Theatre of Varieties, Roscommon-street, Liverpool, which was closed some weeks ago, has been reopened under new management. The former name of Roscommon has been reverted to.

Mr. Cliff Ryland, who has learnt the value of being quite "himself" on the variety stage, has just finished a three months' London season, and starts on the Barrasford tour on Monday, returning to London in July. Mr. Cliff Ryland, jun., is working with his father now, and already displays much hereditary ability.

Great Scott, the ladder equilibrist, sails for America on March 15 per s.s. Baltic, under contract with Keith and Proctor's for a lengthy tour. On his return to this country, he will play the Barrasford tour.

Mr. Ted Cowan starts a seven weeks' run on the Moss tour on Monday. Weather permitting, he will do all his journeys on his 3½ horse-power Rex motor cycle. He will commence his first journey from London to Sheffield on Sunday, and will be accompanied as far as Leicester by Mr. Sam Mayo and Mr. Tom Pacey, who will travel on Mr. Pacey's new 24 horse-power Mercedes car.

Miss Ada Twibell finishes to-night a most successful pantomime engagement as principal boy in Eade Montefiore's grand pantomime Cinderella, which has had a run of thirteen weeks in Edinburgh and Newcastle. Miss Twibell will start on the Barrasford tour on Monday at the Pavilion, Newcastle.

The Three Sisters Grosvenor, operatic vocalists, finish a very successful pantomime tour of thirteen weeks on March 25, when they return to the London halls until the end of June. They have been re-engaged by Messrs. Griffin and Drake for their next year's production.

Oakdene, the speciality ventriloquist, is nothing if not original, and his new act marks an entirely fresh departure in the polyphonic art. It is entitled "Fun in a Studio," and has a gorgeous electrical setting. Oakdene has been secured by Mr. W. H. Broadhead for two years at each of his halls. When are we to see him in London?

The Misses Dolly and Madge McCalla who have been playing the babes in the pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Newcastle-on-Tyne, have been attacked by measles, and have, in consequence, been obliged to cancel all their north country engagements. They will open in London on March 27.

Mr. Arthur Yates has severed his connection with the Tivoli; and Mr. Joseph Wilson, of the Avenue Theatre, becomes manager of the popular Strand house on Monday next, having been released from his engagement by Mr. Frank Curzon. Mr. Wilson will be remembered as the successful impersonator of the sailor man in The French Maid, at Terry's and the Vaudeville, back in the 'nineties; and he has also fulfilled engagements at the Tivoli, Oxford, and other prominent halls, where he made a feature of the song, "The portrait next my heart."

The friends of Mr. Fred Reeves, the popular agent, will be very sorry to hear that he has been suffering since Monday last from inflammation of the appendix. His medical advisers fear the development of appendicitis, and are using every endeavour to prevent it.

That enthusiastic fisherman, Mr. Ernest Shand, has been having some excellent sport during the last fortnight in the River Tay. He has killed no less than ten salmon, weighing 17, 21½, 13½, 10, 17, 22, 22, 16½, 13, and 24 lbs., the last a fine clean run fish. Three of the beauties were caught in an hour and a half. Mr. Shand also landed about a dozen kelts.

Mr. G. H. Chirgwin has been entertaining audiences at Cardiff, Swansea, and Newport, and, with that gallantry for which he has always been famous, has sung special verses anent the Swansea girls. He now returns to the Palace and other halls for two months.

The revival of The Little Stowaway, which will be given at the Canterbury shortly, reminds the music hall frequenter of the production of the sketch, which is written by Mr. Fred Bowyer, at the Paragon on July 1, 1889, with the lamented Jenny Hill as "the litle hero," created by Arthur Matthison's verses. The piece, which was the cause of quite a sketch controversy among the members of the first London County Council, has now been acquired by Miss Ethel Arden and Mr. George Abel. Their choice for the impersonator of the gallant waif has fallen on Miss Nellie Bowman, one of the celebrated Sisters Bowman, who made her first appearance at the age of eight years as the heroine in Editha's Burglar. The Little Stowaway, since its first production, has been revived at the Paragon, Canterbury, and Oxford.

Sir A. Mackenzie's operetta, The Knights of the Road, so successfully produced at the Palace Theatre, has been secured by Germany, and a touring company will start early in April to exploit it in the Fatherland.

The pictures at the Palace include a panoramic view of the Channel Fleet and a series of excellent films, among others being the King Edward VII., the most powerful ship in the British Navy, and the Kaiser opening the new Protestant Cathedral. There is also a remarkable set of comic episodes arising out of an obstinate man's disregard of a popular superstition.

Mr. Horace Goldin, who is continuing a most successful engagement at the Palace, appeared last week at the Duchess of Marlborough's party, and entertained thereat their Majesties the King and Queen. Mr. Goldin, for this occasion only, made an exception to his usual rule, and appeared at more than one place nightly.

Miss Georgina Leonard returns to town on Monday after an absence of three months, and opens at the Holloway Empire with new songs, written and composed by P. V. Weston, F. J. Barnes, A. E. Lawrence, and Fred Lincoln. Miss Leonard, who has been playing most successfully the principal boy's part in Dottridge and Longden's pantomime, Goody Two Shoes, has been offered a leading rôle in one of Mr. George Edwardes's new productions at Daly's.

Miss "Del" Levey, skilled in fence, has been meeting man—proud man—with the foils. Sergeant Sherret, of Greenock, found her a very tough opponent, and the fine play of the rapier was highly appreciated by a number of experts at the local Empire. She has fenced three matches altogether, and is none the worse for a cut and several bruises. She regards foil play as a fine preservative and strengthener of the voice.

Miss Millie Hylton finishes a three months' engagement at the London Coliseum on Saturday, and opens at the Palace, Camberwell, and Granville, Walham Green, on Monday, with new songs by Harrington and Le Brunn and J. W. Tate.

Miss Frankie Bailey and company, including Miss Mabel Lynn, Bena Hoffman, Mae Sherwood, Violet Handy, and Florence Averell, all of Weber and Fields, New York, arrived in London on Thursday per s.s. Manitou. They will shortly make their appearance in the principal London halls. Miss Bailey is located at the Hotel Russell.

Miss Harriett Vernon respectfully desires managers to refrain from using her name for billing or advertising any person without her written authority.

Miss Carlotta Levey commences a long and exclusive engagement at the Coliseum in July. She is producing this week at the Empire, Bristol, Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter's latest publication, entitled "A little boy called Taps."

Shean, Fox, and Shean, in an American act, new to England, have opened at the Tivoli and Queen's, Glasgow, and owing to their success have been retained for two weeks longer, which is a splendid recommendation for them.—Ray and Calden opened at the Standard, Pimlico, with their new act on Monday, and were immediately re-engaged.

In consequence of the instantaneous hit of Miss Amy Clevere's tuneful song-scena entitled My Paleface Queen, at the Tivoli, Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter have accepted the lyric for immediate publication. It is from the joint pens of Messrs. John P. Harrington and George Le Brunn.

The 396th meeting of the Executive Committee of the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Joe O'Gorman, chairman of the committee, presiding. There were also present Messrs. Harry Freeman, Albert Voyce, Bob Hutt, George Gray, Charles Pastor, Cliff Ryland, Phil Ray, J. Burnell, Paul Martinetti, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). Mr. Douglas White's resignation as hon. treasurer to the association was accepted, and the following resolution was carried unanimously:—"That the committee, not wishing to put the general body of members to any further expense—as a general meeting means an expenditure of several pounds out of the funds of the Association, which can be saved—has appointed as hon. treasurer pro tem., until the next annual general meeting, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, of The Era." It was decided to cancel the present arrangement of vouchers being issued on Saturdays at different times, and to make one uniform time in every town, viz., 12.30 (noon). It was agreed to send a letter to The Sun newspaper repudiating the insinuations contained in a paragraph referring to the association. On the proposition of Mr. Charles Pastor, seconded by Mr. George Gray, it was decided that an independent accountant be called in to put the books in order prior to their being taken over by the new hon. treasurer pro tem., and Mr. McCarthy was elected as the said accountant. The secretary reported that 44 new members had joined during the past week, making a total number enrolled since the commencement of 11,418.

Mr. Edward Lewis made his début on the music hall stage on Monday at the Empire, Liverpool, and made an instantaneous success. He has been secured by Mr. Oswald Stoll for three months at the London Coliseum. His business is in the hands of Alfred Saker and Co.

The secretary of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund has received the sum of £14 6s. 8d. from Mr. G. M. Steinson, being the part proceeds of a matinée held at the Tyne Theatre, Newcastle, on Feb. 23. The president and committee beg to thank Mr. Steinson and the ladies and gentlemen who so kindly assisted on the occasion.

Mr. Harry Tate was never blessed with a finer audience than he had last Friday, when he appeared before the King in his well-known sketch, Motoring. His Majesty, who is himself an enthusiastic motorist, laughed heartily at the troubles of the gentleman who starts out with the idea of compassing eighty miles an hour.

Cyclo is one of the few comedians on the wheel. In the guise of a dilapidated swell, he plays the josser cyclist to perfection, showing subsequently, however, that no position or no method of locomotion is too difficult for him. He rides on the lamp bracket, he lies down on the saddle, he rides with the front wheel in the air, he steeplechases over hats, he makes his machine absolutely buck-jump with him, and still he is coolly and to all appearances comfortable there. He is being rapidly booked up by Messrs. Pacey and Reeves.

Miss Geraldine Montrose, so well-known through the medium of her "creepy" sketch The Snake, will shortly produce a new and original petite comedietta, with music, expressly written for her by Messrs. John P. Harrington and George Le Brunn, and entitled Hoaxing a Husband, in which she will be supported by a well-known West End leading man.

In consequence of the great success of Madame Alice Esty, the operatic prima donna, at the Coliseum, Mr. Oswald Stoll has extended her engagement, and on Monday she will, by special permission, appear as Santuzza in a scene from Mascagni's famous opera, Cavalleria Rusticana. Madame Esty was in the original cast when Cavalleria was performed for the first time in English in this country at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, and since then has sung the rôle of Santuzza nearly 300 times. At the Coliseum Madame Esty will be supported by the auditorium choir and stage chorus of nearly 100 voices, and the grand orchestra, conducted by Walter Slaughter. The scene will be staged with special new scenery.

Miss Madge Lessing will also appear in two entirely new numbers, the first, a stirring military scena, entitled A Little Boy called Taps, Miss Lessing enacting the part of Bugler Taps, of the C.I.V.'s. She will be supported by the fifes and drums of a military band. Miss Lessing's second number is a grand floral scena, entitled Rosa Anna, written and composed by Melville Ellis. The colour scheme in this scene will be most artistic, and Miss Lessing will be supported by the sixteen special Coliseum dancers.

In addition to her Japanese song-scena, Miss Winifred Hare will appear in An Incident in the Days of Sweet Nell, and will sing "Banish Sorrow." The Meister Glee Singers have also been engaged by Mr. Stoll, and there will be eleven other new numbers added to the programme.

Mr. Bob Hutt, a comedian with an excellent sense of humour, is exploiting a farcical scena, entitled Mixed Bathing. This has been a great success at the Battersea Empire. Mr. Hutt has a most fascinating partner, Miss Kate Parry.

There will be a meeting of the Haverstock Trotting Club at Wembley Park on Monday, and racing will commence at two o'clock. The track is in excellent order, and Mr. George Fuller and others of the stewards will welcome a crowd of their friends in and out of the profession.

Miss Amy Clevere's latest morceau, "My Paleface Queen," from the joint pens of Messrs. Harrington and Le Brunn, is in the press, having been secured by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

Latest additions to Mr. David Day's already lengthy catalogue of "Sixpenny Pops" include "My Little Laplander" and Frank Coyne's chorus song, "What the use of a pair of kilts if you're a window cleaner?" the latter being No. 145 of the series.

Mr. Al. Laurence, one of the quaintest of American comedians, who is a success in both hemispheres, is sailing again for the land of dollars on Wednesday next. He has been appointed special and exclusive representative for Messrs. Barnard and Dietrich, of 7, Clayton-square, Liverpool for the United States. He has a permanent office in Ohio, and is also travelling all over the country. Mr. Dietrich has just returned from the Continent, and is booking English artistes for the new World's Exhibition in Holland, which opens in April next.

Much regret will be felt at the departure of Marceline, the Hippodrome's famous jester. During his five and a half years' stay at that popular place of amusement he has become the idol of the children. In fact, he has been looked upon as a keystone to the success of the entertainment ever since its foundation. Marceline is leaving of his own free will in order to take a trip to America and benefit by the sea voyage. In the course of conversation with our special representative, he stated that "While not feeling in any way incapacitated from performing my duties as an 'agouste,' the demands of the public have been so exacting, that I feel I must have a change of scene and some invigorating ozone. I have accepted an engagement with Messrs. Thompson and Dundy to open at the New York Hippodrome on March 20th at a salary which, in proportion, is larger than that ever received by any performer in my own particular sphere. During my stay at the London Hippodrome I have been the recipient of compliments from His Majesty the King, H.M. the Queen, their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Fife, the Shah of Persia, and other notabilities. In fact, although I say it myself, I do not think that any performer could have been treated with so much kindness. I cannot speak too highly of the splendid way in which Mr. H. E. Moss, Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Frank Allen, and Mr. Frank Parker have treated me during my delightful stay. Perhaps it would interest you to know that in 23 years I have only held five engagements."

Marceline was the recipient of some splendid souvenirs of his stay at the London Hippodrome yesterday (Friday). These included some magnificent silver ware, subscribed for by the official staff, the artists, and employees of the Hippodrome and some influential admirers. Mr. Frank Parker, in making the presentation, said, "While everybody was sorry to say 'Au revoir' to Marceline, he was delighted to think at the same time that he was held in such great esteem, and he hoped that the souvenirs would be accepted as heartily as they were tendered. It was always a delight to him and to those around him to give credit where credit was due." Marceline, in reply, was so overcome that he could say scarcely anything, but he managed eventually to express himself in a touching sentence or two. Marceline sails to-day (Saturday) per ss. St. Louis from Southampton, en route for New York.

A CHAT WITH WALKER AND MAY.

(by our own commissioner.)

One's sympathies always go out to a man who is making a brave struggle under a terrible affliction. Mr. Charles W. Walker, the coloured comedian, is totally blind—the result, it is believed, of a four years' stay in a climate much hotter than that to which he had been accustomed. The early stages of the trouble made themselves apparent when he was performing at the Melbourne Opera House, and in order to obtain expert advice, he sailed for England some eighteen months ago. Shortly after he boarded the ss. Suevic he completely lost the power of sight, but on arriving in London a specialist afforded him some consolation by holding out the hope that he might, after a lapse of two or three years, regain the faculty of seeing.

Mr. Walker, however, did not allow himself to become submerged in the Slough of Despond, and, fortunately for him, with the passing away of one sense there came a quickening of the others. He appeared for one week at the Oxford in September, 1903, presenting his usual business, that being the first time he went on the stage absolutely blind. He is still blind, and laughing scornfully in the face of Fate, he sticks to his guns.

BLINDNESS STRENGTHENS INSTINCT.

"Do you still feel that old instinctive grip upon your audience—an audience whom you cannot now see?"

The reply came readily enough, "Yes, and do you know, that 'grip,' as you call it, has become intensified. The magnetic current of mutual recognition which draws the artist to the audience seems to have become stronger and better defined than in the old days, when a glance revealed a smiling and an interested 'house.'"

"How can I dance in the way I do without getting too far out of position on the stage?" he went on, in answer to another query. "Well, at first, I certainly was very nervous, but my wife arranged a series of signalling touches, and we got on so well that in some of the theatres the people never knew I was blind. I can generally find my way to the wings, but I had a funny experience at Sunderland, a little while back. At the rehearsal the stage-manager was not aware of my condition, but being informed at the Monday evening's performance that I could not see, he very considerately pulled away the wings, so that I should have a free passage. What was the result? I was feeling all over the walls, trying to find the wings! Of course, I study everything before I go on the stage, and I talk much louder than I did before. I go to the theatre every morning from eight o'clock until eleven, in order to get accustomed to the depth and width of the stage, and perhaps it is hardly necessary to tell you that I know precisely where every instrument in the orchestra is situated."

Mr. Walker made a start in the profession when quite a youngster. He was about nine years of age at the time, and appeared at concerts in his native town of Riverside, in America. He has toured all over the States with coon dances and songs, and he tells us that he was the first coloured man to produce the cake-walk. That was sixteen years ago, and since then he has been presented with many prizes for dancing. Mr. Harry Rickards engaged Mr. Walker for Australia to perform as a dancing and singing turn, and to introduce speciality acts and sketches It was in Australia, where Mr. Walker travelled during a period of four years and seven months, that his eyesight troubles began. He has more recently toured the English provinces, and started on Monday on the Stoll circuit. His turn consists of trick and eccentric dancing and singing, his numbers, entitled "Back to the Woods" and "Hot Stuff," proving specially popular. His wife, Miss Ida May, also has a lively ditty in "Mrs. Johnson, don't get gay."

But the lady is well enough content to stand by her husband, and give him whatever assistance he requires. In her quaint American way, she says in reply to our query, "Oh, just throw me in for a good measure. I'm just looking after the boss."

THE ENGLISH AND THE AMERICAN.

"Generally speaking," continues Mr. Walker, "the English audience shows more appreciation than the American. The 'gods' in the States, however, are far more noisy, but they are seated so high up in the house that their rowdyism does not cause any great disturbance. The occupants of the stalls seem to be drawn from a similar class to those you get in your stalls here. I must say that I like the English music halls better than the American. An artist gets more money in the States, but then, he has to do three or four times as much work as he would be called upon to do in this country, so that if a comparative analysis were drawn, it would be found that the English manager paid at a higher rate for his talent. Of course, if you had a continuous show, as we have in America, a re-arrangement of salaries would become necessary, and while the performers might receive a little more money, they would undoubtedly have to work infinitely harder."

"I am a great admirer of the British orchestra," he went on. "In America the orchestras consist of from eight to twelve instruments, rarely more than the latter number. The Americans, however, make up in quality what they lack in quantity, for their bands are only manned by good musicians, who are, by the way, mostly of German nationality. At the same time, the English orchestra is a much more thorough concern, both for the number and the nature of the instruments."

Mr. Walker tells an amusing story of a period when he was out of an engagement, and entirely out of funds. "One day I was in St. Louis, desperately hungry—hadn't had a bean. I determined I must do something. Fortunately, I struck a theatre at which a dancing competition for amateurs was to be held the same evening, the prize being five dollars. I was then a professional dancer, and I at once saw it would be necessary to give a wrong name. Of course, the amateurs hadn't a look-in, and the applause of the audience decided in my favour. I happened to overhear a few remarks made to the manager by someone who had found out that I was anything but an amateur, and that therefore I had no right to take part in the contest. Well, the manager called to me from the wings, 'Get off the stage!' I began to have fears as to the five dollars, so I walked up to the footlights, and addressed the audience. 'Ladies and gentlemen,' I said, 'I want them to give me the money on the stage, and I'm not going off till I get it.' The audience cheered, and the manager had to come forward and hand me the cash. Then, carefully avoiding the wings, I stepped over the orchestra, and made my escape through the audience."

Miss Lil Hawthorne, the very popular Prince Florizel in the Bristol pantomime, Sleeping Beauty, on Tuesday in last week gave a tea to the children and chorus on the stage of the Prince's Theatre. Tables were arranged on three sides of the stage, amid the splendour of one of the Palace scenes. Miss Hawthorne was a graceful hostess, and the party was a right merry one.

The Two Bees, who are prosecuting a successful tour in Scotland, relate a funny anecdote concerning their professional name. During their engagement at the Palace, Dundee, a tall, gawky Scotchman, evidently from the country, came to the box office just about half-time, and asked in very broad Doric: "What time daes the Twa Bunnies go on the nicht?" "Bunny," it should be explained, is not the word in Scotland for "rabbit," but is the term applied by the country people to bumble bee. The remark has spread all over the town, and has created much amusement. The Two Bees return to town at Easter.

THE LONDON MUSIC HALLS.

ISLINGTON EMPIRE.

Mr. Somers Bellamy has succeeded Mr. Spearman as acting-manager at this hall, and will doubtless quickly make himself popular with its numerous patrons. There is a capital programme this week, including Mr. Alec Hurley and company in the extremely realistic sketch, entitled The Friendly Lead. The scene is the bar parlour of a public-house, where a motley crowd are assembled, the object of the gathering being to benefit a neighbour who has met with misfortune, and is very much in need of a little timely assistance. On this occasion, at least, beer and benevolence go hand in hand, and the pots of "four-half" which ornament the table may be regarded as potential aids in encouraging the flow of that stream of charity which presently takes substantial form in a collection of over seventeen shillings for the unfortunate neighbour. This result is proudly announced by the president of the assembly, and, amid the applause of the generous subscribers, the money is duly handed over to the man who is so urgently in need of it. But we must not forget that the proceedings are enlivened by harmony. Mr. Alec Hurley, who excellently embodies the chairman, with "'is 'ammer in 'is 'and," also sings a couple of songs in capital style. A flower girl, after escaping the unwelcome attentions of a dude, sings a plaintive ditty, which is greeted with much applause; and another member of the jovial company also obliges. In a member of the party, seated next the chairman, we recognised the one-time popular music hall comedian, Mr. Victor Liston, and we wondered whether the veteran would be called upon for his favourite ditty, "Encore." The Friendly Lead is meeting with a most flattering reception in the northern hall; and Mr. Alec Hurley, as the leader of the merry crowd, is accorded a special compliment at the close by being recalled several times. Nobody questions Mr. Mark Melford's ability as a comedian, or his power of making an audience laugh by the exercise of genuine humour, and in the sketch, He's got 'em on, his performance causes the heartiest merriment. As the much-perturbed gentleman in search of a missing garment containing bank notes to the value of £500, Mr. Melford is comical in the extreme, and he is well supported by the members of his company. Mingled amusement and curiosity are excited by the performance of Miss Annie Abbott, who is known to fame as the "Little Georgia Magnet." She exercises a mysterious force that is entirely independent of muscle, and strong men fail to lift her from the ground when she determines that they shall not. It is not easy to explain away Miss Abbott's feats, and the audience are evidently considerably puzzled, as, indeed, it is intended that they should be. Mr. Alf. Chester appears in the character of a policeman, and makes a decided hit with his song, "I wonder if the sergeant knows." Another smart comedian is seen in Mr. Tom Fancourt, who, gaily dressed as a middle-aged lady, comes on to sing, "Look what I've bought at the sale," which ditty is liberally embellished with smart patter. Mr. Athas and Miss Lizzie Collins, in their comedy and song and dance business, meet with their usual success; and the Blind Collier Boy plays a popular selection of music on the concertina with pleasing results. Tony and Flo Vernon are a comedy couple who win a warm welcome, and Miss Maud Mortimer, a comely serio, scores with "You can't keep the sun from shining." Mr. Nat Clifford is a quaint comedian, who gives imitations on the violin and tells funny stories; and other good turns are Miss Gracie Lawn, with a neat song and dance, and Kurtz, Mexican juggler. The orchestra is under the able leadership of Mr. A. Petersen.

CAMBERWELL PALACE.

New light has been shed on the career of Jack Sheppard at the Camberwell Palace, where Miss Rose Hamilton presented for the first time on Monday a scena, entitled Jack, in which the redoubtable housebreaker figures as the gayest of gallants. He makes his appearance in his humble garret, shackled in chains, having just escaped from gaol. He soon rids himself of his irons, and joyously trills a song, with the refrain, "Jack's the boy for sport," which also contains the prophecy that his name will occupy a prominent position on the scroll of fame. A lively dance is indulged in when Jack recalls the merry times he spent with Blueskin, with Edgeworth Bess, and other "pals." In the midst of the revels he catches sight of his mother's picture on the wall, and memories of happier days are recalled. Then in fancy he is back in the convict cell, picking the bars of his prison window, and employing all his ingenuity, until he once more regains his freedom, and again breaks forth into song. Miss Hamilton is the light-hearted youth to the life, and spares no pains in the graphic description of Jack's dash for liberty. The way in which the clever actress works up the interest of the scena is only possible in a performer of experience and ability, and she was well deserving of the many recalls which were the result. Miss Millie Lindon has been absent from the bill during the week, but her place has been filled by Mr. Johnny Fuller, whose appearance as a tabby cat is a masterpiece of make-up. He takes to the wire with all the surety of the species, besides executing a number of nimble tricks on terra firma, his culminating feat being a somersault over a half-dozen chairs. Mdlle. Du Roche displays the possession of a powerful and cultivated soprano in her singing of "The Promise of May," and later thrills the audience with a fine rendering of "Marguerite," which, it may truly be said, was greeted with thunders of applause. Banjo, mandolin, and drum are among the instruments with which the Thurbanis, a trio of young ladies attractively attired, discourse sweet music, one of the fair performers also giving a solo on the ocarina. Mr. Phil Ray can confidently rely on his amusing "patter," his droll abbreviations, and his quaint song, "She was only seventeen," to raise a flood of laughter which nothing seems to stem. His vagaries of speech and odd facial expression are unlimited, and nothing that he says or does is without an appreciative roar of laughter. Various are the subjects which Mr. George Newburn selects for mimicry, and his skill in reproducing the voices and mannerisms of Mr. Gus Elen, Mr. Harry Ford, Mr. Harry Randall, Mr. George Lashwood, and Mr. Harry Lauder wins appreciative applause from an audience whose unwillingness to part with him is evident. Verno and Voyce combine melodiously in their duet of "Master and Man," Mr. Albert Voyce's recitation of "Capital and Labour" being also received with cheers. A pretty and pathetic little sketch is presented by Mr. Neville Jolly and Miss Beatrice Neilson, the latter of whom sings sweetly as a flower girl calling her wares. She has a devoted lover in Dick, the newspaper boy, who asks her to marry as soon as his prospects improve. A letter comes announcing that the girl is found to be a nobleman's daughter, and Dick sorrowfully bids her good-bye, but she prevails upon him to go with her and share her good fortune, a felicitous ending being supplied in a duet on "Home is where the heart is." Both artistes have musical voices, which show to advantage in solo, and blend melodiously in duet, and the applause that greets them is very cordial. Mr. W. J. Churchill is among the comedians of the bill, and the laughter he arouses in his songs, "If it wasn't for the men" and "If I was only single," to which he adds a lengthy series of funny sayings, is constant. Another comedian who moves his hearers to mirth is Mr. J. G. Taylor, who displays original methods in "It's not in the papers" and "Why?" The Pueblo Brothers are darkie dancers who import a large amount of merriment into their skilful stepping; and Mr. Jesse Sparrow's fine programme, which includes Miss Lily Simmonds, Daley and Collins, Mr. George Bohee, Miss Rosie Cass, the Ferrari Duo, and the animated pictures, is completed by the classical cockney Mr. Joe Elvin, who, in the sketch, The Wrong House, is as irresistible as ever.

HACKNEY EMPIRE.

Those who are in their seats when the entertainment begins have the pleasure of listening to a well-chosen overture excellently played by the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Walter Johnson. The selection this week is from My Lady Molly. The leading attractions of a capital bill of fare include Miss Kate Carney and company in The Mouth Organ Brigade, which maintains its position as one of the most popular musical sketches of the day. And it has been found so attractive in its original form that there have been very few alterations or additions since its production some months ago. The Bank Holiday crowd who foregather at "The Welsh Harp" are as merry and as melodious as ever, and, led by the gaily-costumed lady who arrives on the scene in a smart horse and trap, they pass the time right joyously. Miss Carney sings with her usual success, and in the scene with the dude makes the best use of her opportunities. The chorus song concerning "Sousa's Band" has to be repeated several times, the melody being of the catchy kind. Mr. Freddy Malcolm is a brisk representative of the coster lady's sweetheart, and his skill as a silver bâton manipulator deserves recognition. The comedian who appears as the dude presents an amusing picture of a brainless young man, and the little fellow who undertakes the double rôle of a child and a diminutive policeman also causes considerable diversion. It should be added that previous to the sketch Miss Kate Carney scores with a ditty specially directed to unmarried young men who seem reluctant to taste the joys of matrimony. The musical performance given by the artiste known as Orpheus is greatly appreciated. He musically illustrates a journey by road in the old coaching days, when the post horn of the coach attendant was "heard on the hill," and down dale, too, for the matter of that. Orpheus makes use of several instruments, more particularly the posthorn, and in the descriptive music has the able assistance of the orchestra. Thus we have the start, the arrival at the destination, the merry dance which follows, and the return journey, all of which have their distinctive melodies. Orpheus meets with deserved success, and the same remark applies to the Krugers. Fun and music are happily mingled in their entertaining act. One of their ingenious contrivances is a musical staircase, which emits melodies when skilfully worked by the feet. Hermann Melot is a conjurer who has been here before, and whose knowledge of the English language is not nearly so extensive as his acquaintance with the art of the magician. The bowler hat of a member of the audience is borrowed, and from within its recesses are produced a quantity of flowers and cigars, which are distributed amongst the audience. Even live pigeons come from the magic hat, and fly gently to the outstretched hand of the lady assistant. Melot is a first-class conjurer, and well merits the flattering reception accorded him. The Tourbillon Troupe excel as acrobatic cyclists; and Miss Esta Stella is a dainty coon singer and dancer. The Two Graces, a pair of attractive girls, give a song and dance, which wins approval and appreciative applause. Manning's entertainers, in their act, called "Outside the steam room of a Turkish bath," meet with much success, the farcical element adding to the attractions of a smart acrobatic show. Mr. Manning is a genuine comedian, and the younger members of his combination are expert acrobats. The old gentleman, who, after a prolonged stay in the hot bath room, emerges reduced to about a third of his original size, causes much merriment. Miss Dora Martini's gymnastic performance is watched with interest and admiration. With both feet fastened by straps to the pole of the trapeze, she revolves many times, and finally, after giving undoubted evidence of her skill and daring as a gymnast, the young lady makes a slow and graceful descent by the rope to the stage. Amongst the films shown on the bioscope are a series of amusing pictures illustrating some of the inconveniences attendant upon living in the suburbs. In the management of this favourite pleasure resort, Mr. John Christie has the able assistance of Mr. Kennedy Johnson.

THE METROPOLITAN.

Mr. Jack Edgar, the popular manager here, who exercises a constant supervision over the programmes, tries to realise in his schemes of entertainment the force of Milton's line, "Laughter holding both its sides," by presenting a strong contingent of comedians. At the head is to be found Mr. Arthur Roberts, in the favourite sketch, Where's the Count? written by himself. In the character of the cabby, Joe Muggins, Arthur revives reminiscences of a famous impersonation which brought him some years ago much popularity at the theatres. He was in fine form on the evening of our visit, especially as the inspector of police, in which he delivers a particularly comic speech—not more so, however, than his mixed dialects as the Russian Count. Miss Ruby Celeste, as a smart maid, partners him in a comic duet, and the jollity and hilarity of the olla podrida, as the interlude is called, are increased by Mr. Roberts's rendering of the song, "Topsy Turvy," in which he has a chance of displaying his wonderfully finished pantomime imitation of a lady disrobing preparatory to a dip in the briny.

Released from Drury-lane pantomime, Mr. Tom Woottwell finds a very warm welcome at the hands of the Paddington folk, who discovered the real comicality of his methods years before he became a fashionable comedian. He is a chartered libertine in the matter of jest, as one casily discovers on listening to his humorous coon parody, "The coon that shoots the moon," with an accompanying dance that is exceedingly clever. Another comedian who has been securing hosts of admirers in pantomime is Mr. Ben Albert, who not long since completed a successful engagement at the Shakespeare, Clapham, as Idle Jack. Mr. Albert's unexaggerated style and fine comic singing voice are well employed in "All I want" and "A little bit here and there." Doody and Wright, Australian comiques, should be highly gratified with their reception. They score with some humorous patter between an inquisitive miss with a thirst for knowledge and a professor. The gentleman of the pair has a talent for parody, which he displays in imitations of Sarah Bernhardt doing the cake walk, and Sir Henry Irving as a buck dancer. In an early appearance in burlesque we believe Sir Henry showed himself to be an excellent dancer. The Three Laurels give a marvellous acrobatic display on and off the ping-pong table. The wonderful somersaulting on to each other's shoulders and to catch show great strength of arm and expertness. The comedian of the trio is quietly effective, and a neat juggler, as well as a good acrobat.

Mr. Cliff Ryland, who elects to be "himself," has some funny anecdotes and a droll song, "Feet"; and Mr. Herbert Shelley's fine voice, appearance, and excellent histrionic abilities are noted with pleasure in a capital song, in which he tells a stirring tale of a girl taking the place of her lover on a horse's back, and other descriptive business, which bring down the house. The Sivronis, burlesque artistes, give a medley of operatic airs, amid much welcome fooling; Mr. Ernest Rees scores a laughing success in "On a cold and frosty morning"; and the Sisters Bosanquet have a duet, in which the blue-blooded young lady and the parvenu are cleverly contrasted. Mr. Bob Hutt, who appears early in the evening, shows a droll facility for parody, and in comic song and step gets at the heart of things, scoring a success that must be very gratifying. Mr. Tom Leamore also revels in parody, and his dancing is as whimsical as it can be. Mr. Bransby Williams is weirdly powerful as "Fagin, the Jew," and an excellent wind-up to an excellent programme is found in Mr. Paul Martinetti's American pantomime company's performance of My Wife. Students of the drama, after seeing Mr. Oscar Asche's performance of Petruchio at the Adelphi, might contrast it with Mr. Paul Martinetti's modern tamer of the shrew at the Metropolitan. Miss Maud Mortimer, who has won great popularity here, is renewing very pleasant impressions by her artistic work; the Great Northern Troupe delight everyone by their dancing; and the Tally-Ho Trio are responsible for a combination of harmony and comedy.

GRAND, CLAPHAM.

Liberal provision for merriment is made by Mr. H. Ketteman in this week's bill at the handsome hall at Clapham Junction, a prominent part in the stimulation of mirth being taken by a new sketch called Larks in the Park, presented by Miss Gertrude Glenn and company. A similiarity exists to another scena formerly presented by this combination, but so well has it been elaborated, so much life and comic incident imported into it, that nothing is recognisable except two of the best situations. The scene is laid in the Promenade at Hyde Park, where a trio of nursemaids are joined by three gallant horseguards, who sing a chorus, and with numberless tricks provoke the frequent smile. Strange scenes occur in the park, for the vagaries of a tramp are followed by a quarrel between an old married couple, who later defy a comic policeman. The arrival of a couple of college youths adds to the diversions, and afterwards "the art of making love" is illustrated in song and action by a double quartet of soldiers and gaily dressed belles. Later a change comes o'er the scene, and the whole company parade and join in a chorus concerning "The very latest fashion in the Army," executing a series of manœuvres, in which the elegant uniforms of the men and the smart dresses of the ladies make a brilliant array. The sorgs are exceedingly tuneful, and vigorously sung, and the piece throughout affords unlimited entertainment. Miss Gertrude Glenn leads the revels on behalf of the ladies, and the Bros. Passmore are untiring in their comic efforts. Mr. Barney Stuart gives distinction to the programme with his impersonation of the Lord Bishop in the trial scene from "The Deemster," and it is a proof of his elocutionary abilities that silence reigns throughout his delivery of the fine lines which Hall Caine has written. Impersonation is also brought to perfection by Mr. R. H. Douglass, whose appearances as a private detective include those of a curate, a seaside "swell," and an old miser. Many witty sayings embellish the rôles, and roars of laughter follow the clever comedian's efforts. Mr. Gilbert Girard is always heard with pleasure in his vocal gymnastics. His production of two distinct sounds at one time is nothing less than marvellous, while his cat catastrophes and dog fights, his chicken slaughter, and rooster baiting add to the wonder, and gain him undeniable recalls. "Capital and Labour" supplies Verno and Voyce with a subject on which they worthily employ their talent, and at the same time furnishes a happy solution of the problem that exists between master and man. Mr. Voyce's subsequent recitation is also admirably conceived, and gains many marks of approval. The Three Sisters Chester awake great enthusiasm by the energy they import into their dancing while playing melodiously on the mandoline or banjo, and singing vivaciously. They take the turn right out of the "sister" groove, and give a show the piquancy of which appeals to all admirers of skill and artistic effort. The pretty performance of the Mayvilles gains the customary appreciation, their Scotch and Irish ditties, with the odd dancing of the puppets, being greatly admired. Miss Childie Stuart contributes valuably to the bill, which is further strengthened by the novel comedy act supplied by Farley, Rennie, and Farley in Fun at a Railway Station; laughter also lying in wait for the sketch, Rejected Remounts, in which Mr. Claude Ginnett, jun., as the retired fishmonger, displays a comic appreciation and a wonderful agility on horseback. Mr. Claude Ginnett is an excellent Sam Sly, and the horses give evidence of careful training, excitement being general throughout. The orchestra is well controlled by Mr. James Sale.

THE GRANVILLE.

At the Granville this week Mr. Jesse Sparrow and his able acting-manager, Mr. Ernest Bridgen, are looking well after the enjoyment and amusement of their patrons, and visitors to the Walham Green palace of varieties have ample and excellent fare provided for them. Will Evans, in his laughable song, "She was such a gentle maiden," and his novel pantomime sketch, Robinson Crusoe, makes the audience rock with laughter at his inimitable drollery and "patter." This is a comedian who can always keep his audience on the "go," and his method is sure and unfailing in the provision of mirth and merriment. Miss Millie Lindon is a bright and agreeable comedienne, with a soupçon of serious intent. In her songs, "The angel of my dreams," and her little love ballad, "So Tibby took the last sardine," she wins all hearts, and a determined encore caused her to reappear and give a song and dance (with the assistance of a colleague) in "Mimosa, the flower of Japan." Mr. Fred Earle is a quaint comedian, and his laughable absurdity, "Seaweed," tickles the fancy of the audience immensely. Miss Constance Moxon, the capital burlesque artiste and male impersonator, is well to the fore with her ditty, "If you don't know, you won't be any the wiser," in which she hints that she could tell us many things that would make us laugh, but refrains from taking us entirely into her confidence. She also gives her well-known and deservedly popular bluecoat schoolboy "Whistling song" with great effect. Verno and Voyce, in song and recitation as "Master and man," give us their views on capital and labour, capitally expressed, and without any undue striving after effect. Miss Alma Gray is a capital Australian dancing girl, and her calisthenic exercise wins well deserved applause. Mr. Fred Spencer, the "expressionist," causes loud cacchination in his song and tripping dance, "I want a husband." The animated pictures by the Edisonograph are quite a feature, and "His master's voice," "A ride on an express train,' "The bewitched lover," and especially "The lost child" are viewed with intense interest by all assembled. The new romantic episode, A City of Shadows, an incident of the French Revolution, shows how an old nurse, Madame Brenan, is sheltering two aristocrats, the Marquis Eugene Montimer and his wife, Adele, and after his appearance at the bureau they are to escape across the frontier that very night and take ship for England. The old nurse had a young and lovely daughter, who learned too late that men betray, and this has filled the old nurse's bosom full of vengeance and hatred of the nobility, with the above exceptions. Elise, nicknamed "The spirit of the guillotine," who is none other than the old nurse's wronged child, has tracked the Marquis down, and is about to deliver him and his wife up to the tender mercies of the mob and the "little barber"—for she recognises in him her betrayer—when she learns by means of a crucifix which Adele possesses that she is the girl who saved her from infanticide, and she allows them to escape. Mr. W. Glenny acts with manliness as the Marquis; Miss Millie Luckstone is full of nervous force as Adele; and Miss Esther Phillips throws herself heart and soul into her work as Elise, "the spirit of the guillotine." Mrs. Calhaem does good work as Madame Brenan. Mr. R. H. Douglas, who is dubbed "the society entertainer," gives good samples of his fun-making in the speeches of a lawyer for the plaintiff in a breach of promise case, a curate opening a bazaar, and a temperance advocate. Sam Redfern, "the black doctor," as usual cures all ills of melancholy and moodiness with his well-known prescription of two minutes' droll "patter," mixed with three minutes of topical and medley musical effort. Miss Blanche Marion, Mr. Harry May Hemsley, Frank and Free, the Scottish Meisters, the American Comedy Four, and Rezene and Robini also contribute to the entertainment.

HAMMERSMITH PALACE.

The catering of Mr. J. C. Coe for the riverside borough is liberal and comprehensive, and it is evident that for him the word "variety" has a wide meaning; for we have Creole artistes, naval experts, a lazy slavey, and a fat girl, not to mention famous comedians, low comedy artistes, and a comic sketch. Miss Lucie, whose "little father" is the Czar, is of enormous proportions. Up to the age of three, so we are told, she was of normal size, but from that age she increased steadily in weight, so that at five years of age she weighed 100lb. She is the sixth child, and her parents and brothers and sisters are quite normal in weight and figure. The gentleman who introduces the bouncing beauty makes some remarks that are not altogether devoid of humour, and the advent on to the stage of Lucie's mother, an ordinary sized, comfortable looking party, is regarded by the audience as quite a comic incident. The most effective bit of comedy in the whole bill is Mr. Arthur Rigby's scena, March of the Married Men. There is something irresistibly droll to the cockney mind in the experiences of the toiler handicapped by the cares of a wife and family. The subject always appeals successfully to the plebs. The verses funniiy describe the first pilgrimage of the married man in the morning to work, and the livelier return home of the worker—slightly inebriated—from club or pub, is then amusingly detailed by Mr. Rigby. Then there is the night promenade of the hapless father with his first-born, and as a number of dejected-looking males in long nightgowns cross the stage, the ladies of Hammersmith and the regions beyond positively shriek with laughter. Mr. Rigby's success is great, and it is well deserved. A star of the first magnitude is Mr. Phil Ray, whose quaint patter, with its many humorous abbreviations, is about as funny as it can be. Mr. Ray revels also in parody, and his skit on a popular poet is one of the most diverting pieces to be heard on the variety stage. An artiste of considerable vivacity and charm is Miss Lottie Siegenberg, whose "lazy slavey" is a capital contribution, with touches of genuine inspiration; and no more delightful dancer could be desired than Miss Edie King, who has a pretty coon selection and another number that enables her to demonstrate her cosmopolitan tastes as a votary of Terpsichore. Lanton and Lane are responsible for some effective "cross-talk" as an eccentric sailor and a naval officer; Rita and Roma, who combine melody with leg-mania and acrobatic dancing, are highly popular; Mr. Harry Vardon, juvenile ventriloquist, has a well-worked head of Chirgwin, whom he cleverly imitates in his well-known number, "The blind boy"; and Mr. Dan Filmer, comedian, is responsible for a neat dance. Mr. Thomas E. Finglass is an interesting impersonator of the coon lover of the canebrake, and a capital dancer; Miss Florence Yeaman is a vivacious comedienne, with a wonderful whistle; there is plenty of laughter for the humorous business of Miss Lily Marney, low comedy artiste; and the Phillipi Brothers, the Pueblo Brothers, and Mr. Fred Southern and company, in the sketch, His Lordship's Birthday, are other attractions in Mr. Lewis Vincent's well-arranged programme.

THE FORESTERS'.

Singularly appropriate, coming as it does at a time when Russia is sorely disturbed by internal as well as external complications, is Mr. George M. Marriott's exciting sketch which bears the significant title of The Nihilists; or, Sworn to Kill. The story told is not an uninteresting one, and into it have been woven several of the incidents and several of the sayings which have helped to fill up an appalling page of history in the land of the Muscovite during the past few weeks. Mr. George M. Marriott, the author, makes his Nihilist a creature whose character is not a pleasant one to become associated with. His Nicholas Petrovitch is a schemer who allows no sense of honour or decency to interfere with his ghastly plans, and in his portrayal Mr. Marriott effectively brings before our eyes a villain of unmitigated wickedness. Mr. Otto Minster gives a manly impersonation of the hero, Michael Tolstoi, and Miss Edith Finlay provides a fine exhibition of dramatic fervour in the rôle of Vera Tolstoi. Mr. Walter Rousby and Miss Nellie May, in the comedy parts, afford relief from the more serious situations, and Mr. W. H. Porter, as the aristocratic Count Orloff, submits a good study of a much-hated Russian noble. The little piece is well staged. Coming to the other items on the programme, Mr. George Brooks makes a wonderful impression in his songs. Attired as a middle-aged female, he has a few diatribes to utter against the "new time girl," while calling attention to the superiority of the "old time girl." He next turns up in sailor costume, the burden of his lay this time being "There's another one out of work." Then, in response to an encore, we get "Dinky Doo," in the chorus of which the audience heartily join. Miss Dora Lyric creates considerable amusement with her ditty, "He did his duty like a soldier and a man," and a charming rendering is given of a song sympathetically describing the ill-treatment meted out to a poor girl by some of her sisters in better circumstances. The Franko Midgets, who claim to be the smallest conjurers in the world, provide a smart exhibition of sleight-of-hand tricks, and the Warlocks are responsible for a clever vaudeville act, Provoking, in which diverting patter and speciality dances form an agreeable combination. A commendable entertainment is that of Spry and Monti, their neatly phrased quips and cranks causing a good deal of merriment, while they excite admiration by their terpsichorean efforts. Mr. Lade Henderson sings in sympathetic strain about "Two hearts that beat as one," and after a change of costume he rouses the audience by a stirring refrain concerning the Japanese troops. As a vocalist, Mr. Henderson is extremely versatile, and he knows how to bring out the essential points in a song. Wit and humour is indulged in by Messrs. Bernard and Weston, the "cross-talk comedians," as they style themselves. The description is a particularly suitable one, for the repartee which passes between the two gentlemen smacks of Irish waywardness, and is intensely funny. Miss Lilly Leoville, the little leg mania artiste, proves herself a first-rate danseuse, her movements being gracefully executed. Miss Lizzie Daniels, light comedy soubrette, and the Bohemian Twins also acquit themselves to the satisfaction of the house.

"OUT ALL NIGHT."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I notice in the Music Hall Gossip in this week's issue of your paper that Mr. Joe Elvin will produce a sketch, entitled Out All Night, at Camberwell. My farce-comedy, with the same title, I produced at the Empire, Bristol, in 1899, and it has been played all over England and at many London halls, so I really think I have a prior claim to the title.—Yours faithfully,

HARRY G. NELSON
(Of Nelson and Thomas, On the Ra Ta).

COUNTY COUNCIL AND AMUSEMENTS.

(SPECIALLY REPORTED FOR "THE ERA.")

NEW THEATRE DESIGN.

The Improvements Committee reported as follows:—By an agreement between the Council and the Duke of Bedford, scheduled to the London County Council (Improvements) Act, 1899, it is provided that the elevations of any buildings to be erected on the site of the northern side of Aldwych to be conveyed to the Duke of Bedford shall be previously submitted to the Council for its approval, but that such approval shall not be unreasonably withheld. In accordance with this agreement, plans of the proposed elevation of the block of buildings, consisting of the Waldorf Hotel with a theatre at either end to be erected in Aldwych between Catherine-street and Drury-lane, were approved by the Council on 3rd November, 1903. Amended plans to the theatre to be erected at the junction of Aldwych and Drury-lane have now been received; these plans show a slight deviation, as regards the elevation, from the approved plans, in order to introduce greater harmony into the architectual treatment of the property between Catherine-street and Drury-lane. The front elevation of the theatre is to be of stone or red brick and stone, or cement. We consider that the suggested deviation from the approved elevation may be sanctioned, subject to the whole of the Aldwych frontage of the premises being constructed in Portland stone. The Committee recommended that the design presented to the Theatres and Music Halls Committee on 22nd February, for the elevation of the theatre to be erected on land belonging to the Duke of Bedford, at the junction of Aldwych and Drury-lane, be approved, subject to the Aldwych elevation of the premises being constructed in Portland stone.—Agreed to.

THE IMPERIAL THEATRE.

The Building Act Committee recommended that the Council, in the exercise of its powers under sections 22 and 73 of the London Building Act, 1894, do consent to the erection of two iron and glass shelters at the Imperial Theatre, to abut upon Tothill-street and Dartmouth-street, Westminster, as shown on the plans dated 15th and 22nd February, 1905, submitted in connection with the application of Messrs. E. Keeling, Teale and Co., Limited, on behalf of Mr. L. Waller, such consent being subject to certain stated conditions—that the shelters be commenced within six months and completed within eighteen months from the 7th day of March, 1905; that before the commencement of the erection of the shelters the existing lamp posts in front of the principal entrance to the theatre be taken down and removed; that the shelters be constructed, supported and fixed, and the whole of the work executed to the satisfaction of the district surveyor.—Approved.

ILLUSTRIOUS NAMES.

The Rivers Committee reported that they had carefully considered the question of the names which should be given to the Council's steamboats, and have endeavoured as far as possible to select the names of distinguished persons more particularly connected with the Thames, either by reason of their having been born and having lived on the banks of the Thames, or by reason of their work in connection therewith. A list of thirty names was submitted, including FitzAilwin—Henry FitzAilwin, the first Mayor of London; Whittington—Richard Whittington, Mayor of London; Shakespeare—whose theatres on the bank side have helped to make his works immortal; Marlowe—Christopher Marlowe, the dramatist, who was killed at Deptford; Alleyn—Edward Alleyn, the actor and founder of Dulwich College, who acted in the theatres on the bankside at Southwark; Ben Jonson—the dramatist and poet, whose plays were acted on the bankside theatres in Southwark; Purcell—Henry Purcell, the musical composer, who was born at Westminster. The committee also proposed that a tablet shall be placed in the cabin of each boat, giving a short historical note of the person after whom the boat is named.

Mr. Edward Collins moved as an amendment that the steamers be named after the more prominent of the Progressive majority of the Council. He read out his list, beginning with "Benn" and ending with "Radford," amid much laughter, but the proposal was not taken seriously. The names suggested by the committee were approved, except that, on the proposal of Mr. Radford, Charles Lamb was substituted for Baynard, the owner of the castle which at one time stood near Blackfriars.

Lord Monkswell moved that the name of Walter Besant be substituted for that of Purcell, the musical composer, but it was pointed out that in all probability there would be other steamers built, and Lord Monkswell, amid laughter, expressed himself as willing that "Besant should wait for the next boat."

THANKS TO THE CHAIRMAN.

This being the last meeting of Mr. J. Williams Benn's year of office a resolution thanking him for his services in the chair was proposed by Mr. W. B. Yates, the chairman of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee, who said he had carried out the traditions of the chairmanship and dignified the office.

Mr. Sydney Low, who seconded, made reference to Mr. Benn's abilities both as an artist and author.

Mr. Benn duly acknowledged the compliment.

PROPOSED MUNICIPAL OPERA HOUSE.

Mr. Verney had on the agenda the following notice of motion (to be seconded by Mr. Dickinson), but it had not been reached when the Council adjourned:—That in view of the decision of the Council of 14th February, 1905 (p. 426), against the scheme for utilising the island site in Aldwych for a place of amusement, and of the resolution of the Council of 16th May, 1899, in favour of granting a site for a municipal opera-house, it be referred to the Theatres and Music Halls Committee to consider and report upon the whole subject of the Council providing for the benefit of the public a hall for music, dramatic representation and recreation, including particulars as to the probable success, financial and otherwise, of such an undertaking, and the general conditions under which it should be managed, and empowering the committee to seek such assistance for their inquiry as may be placed at their disposal by eminent members in the profession.

THE smart variety entertainment with which the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough entertained the King and Queen and a small but distinguished company, at their beautiful new residence in Curzon-street recently, was contributed by Miss Gertie Miller, from the Gaiety Theatre; Mr. Horace Goldin, from the Palace Theatre; Mr. Norman French, from the Lyceum Theatre; and Mr. Harry Tate, in his motor-car sketch. The entertainment, which lasted about an hour, was arranged and managed by Ashton's Royal Agency, of Bond-street.

IMMEDIATELY Marceline, the Hippodrome's famous clown, signified his intention of taking a sea voyage, Mr. F. Percival Hyatt seized the opportunity and persuaded him to accept a short engagement on his arrival in New York with Mr. Frederick Thompson and Mr. Dundy, at the New York Hippodrome. This is characteristic of the astuteness of Mr. Hyatt. By the way, Mr. Hyatt has been Paul Cinquevalli's agent for many years, and Cinquevalli opens at the London Hippodrome on Monday next.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

The Lichfield Shrovetide Fair was in the hands of P. Collins, Limited, who filled the Market Square to repletion. Their chief attraction was an entirely new cinematograph exhibition—certainly the very best ever seen in this district. Their No. 1 Cockerels and a variety of smaller craft made up a scene of much brilliancy and pleasure. The firm hold their ground under an agreement with the City Council, a fact which testifies to the excellent manner in which it conducts its business.

Berwick-on-Tweed March Hirings Fair on Saturday had William Murphy's Golden Venice, Tom Day's Galloping Horses, Newsome's High-fliers, Miller's Border Theatre of Varieties, Harris, with their Palace of Magic, Broughton's Troupe of Strong Men and Women, Lavin's Assault-at-Arms, McIntosh, with games, Sheeran's shooting saloons, Carter's football games. The weather was remarkably fine, and good business was done.

Many showmen at this time of the year are mapping out their early summer rounds. When the great Whitsun Fairs begin it is not a question of where to go; the difficulty is to decide between the many advantages, a full plethora of fixtures, East, West, North, and South.

Between now and then is where the expert knowledge of the well-travelled showman comes in. There are many small rounds which it will be well to consider, lasting up to Whitsuntide. The round organised by P. Collins, Limited, of Walsall, covers almost entirely the great Midlands, commencing with the important Shrovetide fixtures advertised in our column last week—a continuous run of good places, and linking on with their well-known midsummer and autumn list of fairs.

Showmen thinking of taking this round, cannot do better than write to the company, Gondola Works, Walsall. Their spring fairs include Longton Darlaston, West Bromwich, Smethwick, Oldbury, Dudley, Quarry Bank, Netherton, Stourbridge, Birmingham, Wolverhampton.

John Collins, of Liverpool, advertises an excellent round in our columns, which has already commenced at that important Manchester suburb, Beswick, and includes the Gorton, Hyde Road, and the Queen's Road big Easter revival of Knott Mill Fair, the best of the Manchester round.

In the Liverpool district, the same lessee controls Walton-on-the-Hill, Shore Fields, and others to follow. Showmen had better make a note of the fact that John Collins has the Corporation ground at Wolverhampton for Easter and Whitsun.

Next in order of importance is the well-known round of John Whiting, Manchester, also linked with his old established round of Lancashire and Cheshire Wakes, beginning at Cheetham Hill, from thence to Charlestown, Eccles, Stretford, and Ordsall Lane; then on to Knutsford, Congleton, Rochdale, Kirkburton, Altrincham, Levenshulme, Longsight, Hollinwood, and Gorton Brook, with others to follow.

Amongst the important Easter fixtures those of Collins, Limited, Birkenhead, and H. J. Wallis's fair on the Seaforth Sands. William Holmes, of the Trafford-road Fair Ground, Salford and Mr. E. Holland also advertise capital pre-Easter Fairs. For other fixtures see our advertising columns week by week.

On the great Yorkshire round, business does not begin until the Easter holidays. There are a few places that the Yorkshire people make into fairs in order to be really ready for business at Easter. Brighouse on the 8th of April, Pickering and Pontefract on the 15th, Beverley and Guisborough on the 20th Darlington, North Shields, Todmorden, Huddersfield, and Littleboro'. These, with Rothwell, Jarrow-on-Tyne, Middlesbro', Newcastle, South Shields, Barnoldswick, Barnard Castle, and Padiham, give great choice of fixture for the great Easter holidays of Yorkshire and the North.

For far North and Scotland, we connect the following run:— Addington March 11th; Galashiels and Dumfries on the 15th; Dunfermline on the 3rd of April; Govan, Lanark, and Selkirk on the 4th Levan on the 15th, Arbroath on the 17th, Edinburgh and Glasgow for Easter week, and Bridge of Allan and Cupar Fife on April 29th.

As we have before advised our readers with regard to Wales and the West of England to join Messrs. Studt's or the Hancock's, we do no more than outline possible runs in the far-away parts. Beginning with March 15th, the Welsh fixtures are Penmorfa Corwen on the 17th, Cowbridge and Rhayader on the 18th, Llangyllion, Maes-y-cwmmer, Menai Bridge, Pontypool, and Tredegar on the 1st of April, Newtown on the 8th, Carmarthen on the 15th, Aberdare on the 16th, Llanelly on the 20th, and Merthyr Tydvil, Mold, Newport, Pontypridd, and other places for Easter.

Going down West, we have Leigh (Dorset) on the 25th of March, Gloucester on the 1st of April, Dawlish and Plymouth on the 3rd, Exeter on the 24th, with Malvern, Cheltenham, Portsmouth, Torquay, Exmouth, all for the Easter holidays.

On the Sounthern round we have all the great London suburban fairs, Wanstead Flats, Hampstead Heath, Forest Gate, Sydenham, &c., &c., followed by such places as Folkestone, Hitchin, and Newmarket.

The fairs in the South immediately before Easter, Bedford on the 15th, Luton on the 17th, Newbury on the 20th, and East Grinstead on the 21st. We shall give, nearer the time, a complete list of the great Easter Fairs, our present object being only to indicate connecting links of business fixtures up to the time for determining which of the great summer rounds may be found most advantageous to our readers.

This week will see the publication of the new and enlarged edition of the "Showmen's Year Book." The new features of this necessary business manual will very largely add to its already much appreciated usefulness. All the proved utilities of former editions remain; the additional matter includes a full statement of the showman's position and work in the national well-being. The history of shows and showmen, as chronicled by the Rev. T. Horne, in various articles in The Era, has been usefully condensed, so that it forms a thoroughly reliable vade mecum of the case for the showman in the economy of the State.

The special article on the incidence of bye-laws, touching the business of amusement caterers, has been brought up to date, so that it may be seen at a glance by consulting its tables of reference the conditions under which showmen are permitted to pursue their avocation in life.

The alphabetical list of fairs has been most carefully revised, and places of no business moment excluded, and the new fairs created by showman enterprise added to the list, making the nearest possible approach to a reliable list of fair dates. This work is the result of the unique sources of information available to the Editor.

The extremely useful special local lists for Manchester and Lancashire, Leeds and Yorkshire, the Derbyshire and Nottinghamshire rounds, have been subjected to careful revision, elimination of useless dates, and the addition of numerous new fixtures. The permanent features, such as the names of the executive officers, working committees, honorary members, local chaplains and agents, list of members, constitution, annual report, &c., still remain for reference purposes.

A very pleasing new feature is the series of portraits of prominent showmen and friends of the Guild. Amongst others will be found portraits of the President, Lord George Sanger, the late James Dean, Messrs. F. H. Pedgrift, Tom Norman, and the Reverend T. Horne, Editor of the "Year Book," and Hon. Chaplain of the Showman's Guild.

The important fixtures of Accrington and St. Helens, advertised in our columns this week, deserve attention from showmen. Mr. Mitchell, the lessee, also controls a number of excellent fixtures in Lancashire and Cheshire.

The meeting of the British Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union at Bury Fair last week was well attended, and the business done of a successful nature.

Lichfield Shrovetide Fair opened on Saturday, February 18th, and closed Tuesday, 21st, the important event at this fair being the inauguration of Messrs. P. Collins', Limited, grand new electric exhibition. Two large engines are required to provide the light, and their new organ is ornamented with 1,500 incandescent lamps which change colours alternately. Mr. Beamont, for Messrs. L. Gaumont and Co., supplied the necessaries, and operated at the initial performance without rehearsal. The opening fair has been a huge success.

At Carter's Permanent Waxworks and Wonderland, in Castle-place, Belfast, the following artistes are performing to large and enthusiastic audiences:—Miss Silvia Vigor, the Mexican armless queen; U. C. Ugo, necromancer and illusionist; Prof. Dempster, Scotch stump orator; Prof. Buckley, phrenologist and expert character reader; Frisco, tattoo artist; and Grapho, lightning sketch artist.

The excellent concern of Wm. Haggor and Sons, the Royal Bioscope Theatre, gave a benefit performance at Aberavon recently, for the Railway Men's Orphanage Funds. The Mayor and Town Councillors attended; and great enthusiasm was exhibited. The result was a substantial sum earned for the benefit of the charity.

It was largely owing to the enterprise of Mr. Edwin, of the showmen's Manchester headquarters, that the performance took shape and form. Colonel Clarke, of Cinematograph Theatre fame, recently placed his magnificent show at the disposal of the local committee of the Van Dwellers' Association. The whole of Col. Clarke's variety company entered heart and soul in the scheme, and an excellent entertainment was supplied. Councillors Robey Foy, G. H. Jones, Whittle, and Lees, of the Salford Corporation, gave their patronage. £1 10s. has been handed over to the Guild Funds.

Captain H. Lyons, the well-known rifle and revolver expert, in conjunction with his talented wife (Miss Danvers), after a long and successful tour, are entering on a new venture, and contemplate running the Klondyke Circus during the summer months through the cities and towns of Ireland. Captain Lyons has a wide experience, having travelled through America and the Continent, where his performances have met with hearty approval. He is reckoned one of the best rifle shots in the business, and no doubt the Hibernians, when he visits the Emerald Isle, will fully appreciate his abilities. He has engaged a first-class company of circus and music hall artistes to support him.

Ashington's Cinematograph and Marionette Theatre opened last Tuesday for a short season with a round of dramas, farces, and pantomimes, the entertainment concluding each evening with animated pictures.

"THE FIGHTING PARSON."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Referring to Messrs. Wilkinson and Co.'s letter published in your last issue, the name of their client, Mr. Davis, was eliminated wherever the true circumstances became known. We adhere to everything stated in our letter of the 25th ult. As to the summing up referred to, we quoted from the shorthand notes taken of the case. It is perfectly true that the Judge took no notes; had he done so the appeal would have been heard, and the High Court would then have been able to give its opinion as to whether "chatting the matter over" could in common reason be looked upon as practical collaboration.

We do not wish to prolong a discussion which can have no good results; but we must point out that the sole rights of representation are vested in our client, Mr. George Gray, and cannot be disposed of by anyone but him in this or any other country.

Yours faithfully,
MORRIS and RICKARDS.

The President has collected among his private friends about £300 in addition to the above.

The President wishes it to be known that the funds have almost given out, and that immediate help is required.

The Secretary will be obliged if the ladies and gentlemen having collecting sheets will now forward them to the office.

Secretary, HORACE MARRIOTT.

Offices, 18, Adam-street, Strand.

Mr. Hugh Beresford, brother of J. Cooke Beresford, died, we regret to state, on March 4, of consumption, after an illness of two years.

"A Colonel's Heroic Son," a musical drama, in five acts, by T. W. Taylor, was produced for copyright purposes at Her Majesty's Opera House, Blackpool, on Wednesday.

Mr. Herbert Knight, the humorist at the piano, will give his third annual Bohemian concert at Frascati's, on Wednesday next. He will be assisted by Mr. Fred Reynolds and a host of well-known artistes.

Mr. Frank Harwood, whose highly polished and dramatic singing and acting in the Looking Glass scena, has attracted universal praise and attention, is a Birmingham man who is yet on the right side of thirty, but whose experience, begotten on the boards of the legitimate. He reminds one of the older school of actor-vocalists, and should go far, and fare well.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

The following particulars of the conditions of employment in the theatres and music halls in Chicago have been supplied by Mr. L. M. Hart, secretary of the American Alliance of Stage Employees:—

"In regard to our contracts or agreements with our managers here, we hold none—our word is our bond, and so is theirs; and it has never been broken. . . . Our schedule is as follows:—

Travelling carpenters, $35 per week.
" Assistant Carpenters, $25 per week.
" Property men, $30 per week.
" Electricians, $30 per week.
Home Carpenters, $25 and $30 per week.
" Assistant carpenters, $20 per week.
" Property men, $25 and $20 per week.
" Electricians, $25 and $20 per week.

Chicago theatres give Sunday shows, and quite a number of theatres have fourteen a week. In all theatres giving fourteen performances, stage hands and flymen receive $18 per week. This includes putting on the show Sunday a.m., and taking out the show on Saturday night.

"The rates of pay at all other theatres, with less than fourteen shows a week, and regardless of the prices of admission, are:—Stage hands and flymen, $1.50 a performance, 37½ cents an hour for putting on and taking out a show, giving one half-hour free on Saturday night after fall of final curtain. Rehearsals, $1.50 for first four hours, 50 cents each additional hour. Eight hours to constitute a day's work, from 8 a.m. to 12 m., 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. for week days. Day work on week days, $2 per day; Sundays, holidays, and all time outside the above hours to be paid at the rate of time and one-half. All heads of departments to conform to the above hours, except in putting on and taking out shows, this work included in weekly schedule of work. If alterations are to be made, or a new production presented, the heads of departments, if called upon to work between 12 m. and 1 p.m., 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., or 12 midnight to 8 a.m., shall receive double time at rate of 50 cents an hour single time. The men to report for work at 1.30 p.m. matinées, and 7.30 nights, and to remain until last scene is struck; all other work extra time. A fortnight's notice to be given on either side, unless an employee shall commit such breach of discipline or prove incompetent, when instant dismissal is sanctioned. Light operators shall receive $1 per night, and $1.50 per matinée, and 50 cents an hour for day or extra work, and $1.50 for each rehearsal of four hours.

"Thirty days' notice shall be given by either party to either lower or raise this present schedule of wages, the men to remain at work under the present rate until a final decision has been rendered, and then two weeks' notice shall be given before the manager shall lock the men out, or the employees shall quit. The present schedule of wages, &c., is indefinite.

"We have only one section as regards the regulations of work, and that is: No man shall be permitted to hold two positions in our jurisdiction, nor shall any man be employed in any two departments in any production. This is strictly adhered to.

"We have theatres charging 10, 20, and 30 cents admission, who give ten performances a week, and pay $1.50 a show, the same as the theatres where 50 cents to $2 admission is charged. The same applies to our four muisc halls, where $18 a week is paid for stage-hands, the same as our two show a day cheap drama theatres, and the heads of departments receive the same wages as those of the other theatres."

The members of the Glasgow Branch of the National Association of Theatrical Employees are desirous of establishing a social institute and benevolent fund for the benefit of stage employees. Such an institute would confer many benefits upon the working staff connected with the theatres and music halls in Glasgow and with the touring companies visiting the town. The institute would provide means of recreation for members out of employment, and, by use of the telephone, managers could obtain reliable and competent men, when wanted, at almost a moment's notice. It has been decided to hold a grand prize drawing to help in providing the necessary funds to establish the institute, and any contribution to the list of prizes or to the Institute Fund would be gratefully acknowledged by W. H. G. Hatch, the master carpenter at the Princess's Theatre, Glasgow.

The Heads of Departments Annual General meeting was held on Tuesday last, when the report and financial statement was submitted and adopted. It was decided that ballot papers be issued for the election of officers and committee. The following were nominated for the National Committee: President, Mr. James Cullen, master carpenter, St. James's Theatre; vice-president, Mr. G. H. Dyball, Tivoli Music Hall; trustees, Messrs. W. Barbour, electrician, St. James's Theatre, and C. Porter, master carpenter, Waldorf Theatre; committee, Mr. H. J. Powell, property master, Prince of Wales's Theatre, and Mr. W. Pullinger, master carpenter, Garrick Theatre.

The nominations for office in the Heads of Departments Association are:—President, Mr. James Cullen; vice-president, Mr. E. C. Farmer, Empire; treasurer, Mr. G. H. Dyball; honorary secretaries, Messrs. Wm. Barbour and Wm. Johnson; trustees, Messrs. R. Affleck, master carpenter, Covent Garden, Mr. F. Fox, master carpenter, the Alhambra, and Mr. C. King, property master, the Garrick Theatre; committee, Messrs. C. Porter, G. P. Applebee, electrician, the Gaiety Theatre, Mr. R. L. Chantrell, property master, the Avenue Theatre, Mr. Wm. Pullinger, and Mr. W. W. Wilton, property master, the Vaudeville Theatre; auditors, Messrs. A. Earnshaw, electrician, the Paragon Theatre, and P. Sheridan, electrician, the Crown Theatre, Peckham. It was announced that Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree had consented to be the chairman of the third annual dinner of the Association which will be given in the Victoria Hall, Hotel Cecil, on the first Sunday in April. Tickets may be obtained from members of the Association.

The committee appointed to arrange the concert to be given on Good Friday, met on Thursday. Those present were Messrs. Dyball (chairman), Barbour, Thomas, Palmer, Jones, Thorogood, and the hon. secretary, Wm. Johnson. It was reported that the Grand Hall in the Hotel Cecil had been engaged in accordance with the instructions of the committee. Tickets will be issued in the course of a few days. The programme is being arranged.

Mr. C. Porter has been engaged as master carpenter for the Waldorf Theatre. It is stated that Mr. Digby will be responsible for the electric light department.

A part of the scenery for a new play at the St. James's Theatre is being made by Mr. Cullen, the master carpenter of that theatre. Two scenes will be made by Messrs. Morris and Squires.

At a meeting of the committee of the No. 1 branch, N.U.T.S.E., held on Wednesday evening, two applications for grants from the benevolent fund were considered. One was granted and the other allowed subject to the inquiries to be made being satisfactory. A number of applications for membership were considered. In one case the applicant was reported as having done "the double," which, in theatrical parlance, means booking in at two theatres for the same matinée. This trick is sometimes accomplished when the theatres are close together, and the changes of scene enable the man to run from one house to the other. It is, however, a serious offence in the eyes of stage employees, and the application was referred back. Two other members were called before the committee to answer complaints as to the manner in which they had left their employment.

The societies represented on the Concert Committee are asked to obtain instructions from their society authorising them to act as the Sports Committee for the preliminary arrangements.

A well attended meeting of employees was held in Glasgow last Sunday. It appears that the local branch have issued their appeal for assistance to form an institute and benevolent fund broadcast. Some London managers have received a letter on the subject. This is to be regretted. These appeals should be confined to the locality they are intended to benefit, and, in any case, the London managers probably receive as many applications of this nature from the London employees as they can reasonably be expected to grant.

BRANSBY WILLIAMS IN NEW CHARACTER.

Mr. Bransby Williams commenced an exclusive West-end engagement at the Empire, on Monday, in a new character-sketch, entitled The Last of his Race, which vividly tells the tragic story of a dissolute baronet, one Sir Richard Faversham. As the curtain rises we are shown an apartment in the baronial hall. Cards are strewn carelessly on tables and on the floor, and there are other evidences of a revelry which apparently has not long finished its course. A man in the picturesque costume of the middle of the 18th century is seated on a chair, his head in his hands. The silence is broken by the deep-toned clanging of a bell, which awakens the man from his reverie with its message of "5 o'clock." He rises and looks around him. Despair is written in deep lines on his face, and as he realises once again that he has gambled his estate away, he gazes appealingly at the portraits of his ancestors, and reproaches himself with the words, "Stripped of the lands you won for him by sword and brain."

He has determined to commit suicide, and, picking up a dagger, he is about to use it on his own person when a thought occurs to him. Before he leaves the world he will drink to the health of the ancestors whom he will shortly join. As one by one he speaks to the portraits, he comments on the virtues or failings of each. Last of all he turns to his mother's picture, and gives expression to the lament that he might have been a better man, and that things might have been different with him if she had not died so early. Then, as he prepares to plunge the weapon into his breast, the eyes in the picture seem to him to move. Can it be a message of hope? No! there is no hope for him. Savagely he turns round to the portrait of an ancestor who had left behind none too sweet a reputation. But he had left behind something else—a considerable sum of money the hiding place of which had never been discovered. In a moment of anguish Faversham runs his sword through the picture, and through the aperture so rudely made there rushes an avalanche of golden coins, sufficient to redeem the gambler's bankrupt estate.

The story is an interesting one from start to finish, and it is, moreover, well written. Mr. Bransby Williams, in the character of the gambler, whose losses have driven him to seek a desperate way of abandoning life, reaches a high note in dramatic delivery, and is convincing and earnest throughout.

BIRMINGHAM CHARITY SPORTS.

The Birmingham Charity Sports took place on the 28th ult., when, despite the unpropitious weather, so much success attended the energetic efforts of its promoters, that the institutions concerned are bound to benefit most substantially, all praise being due to Mr. Lester Collingwood, the chairman, and his experienced colleagues. Several striking symbolical tableaux attracted attention at the Villa ground, one of them representing Britannia seated on a throne, with Colonial sons at her feet. Another, from the Alexandra, was a very creditable reproduction of one of the old "wooden walls" of the Navy. At Villa Park the Police Band played selections, and the programme of amusements included events for artistes and others, whilst the race amongst Villa players yielded the following results:—

Sack Race.—C. Hill (Empire), 1; A. Stanley (Royal), 2; J. Cooper (Metropole), 3. 120 Yards Artistes' Costume Race.—T. Cowan (Bordesley), 1; F. Harris (Empire), 2; T. Wyatt (Hamilton's), 3. 120 Yards Villa Players' Race.—There were two heats—Final: Clarke, 4yds., 1; Harris, 8yds., 2; Drennan, 6yds., 3. Time, 13 2-5sec. Call Boys' Race.—J. Ford (Hippodrome), 1; W. Harris (Gaiety), 2; F. Doughty (Metropole), 3. Ladies' Football Race.—Miss A. Rose (Grand), 1; Miss M. Valerie (Alexandra), 2; Miss D. Earsley (Alexandra), 3. Managers' Race.—A. Bushell (Gaiety), 14yds., 1; E. Foster (Bordesley), 2; J. Hindle-Taylor (Metropole), 10yds., 3. The football match between Aston Villa and twenty-four theatricals created much merriment. The referee, Mr. J. Adams, ruled the game in the right spirit, and the theatricals, of course, won.

THE WOMACK FUND.

Mr. George Womack, the stage-manager of the Oxford, whose precarious health prevents him following his occupation, is about to undergo for about eight months a course of treatment for consumption at Bournemouth. A Fund is being raised on his behalf, and any subscriptions will be gratefully acknowledged by Mr. Albert Gilmer, the hon. secretary, or Mr. C. Blyth-Pratt, the hon. treasurer at the Oxford.

STORIES OF SHOWMAN LIFE.

(COPYRIGHT.)

By the Rev. T. Horne.

"TOSCO, THE TROUBADOR."

(TOLD BY THE RINGMASTER.)

"Yes, sir, circus life has a very romantic side. The oft-repeated tale of the jester full of quips and jokes 'setting the whole house in a roar' and yet with sorrow bitter and awful at his heart, has passed into a truism too commonplace for reflection. Of course, I have seen in full fifty years of the sawdust arena many tragedies and many comedies, but on the whole I am able to say that the good has exceeded the bad. The tragedies have been vastly outnumbered by the comedies, and both comedy and tragedy have been sweetened and graced by things in themselves ordinary and commonplace, yet full of the sweet odours of true life—chum and faithful friend, husband, wife, son, daughter, all the highest and noblest relations of life, blessed and being a continual blessing.

"The story I will tell you, sir, is a real tragedy, with desperate deed, and written large in the chronicles of circus romance. It was as far back as 1869, towards the end of the second French Empire. I was ringmaster at the Cirque Imperiale, Paris. Wallett, the jester, and I had a big hit—I remember it well—with The Riggs of Mr. Briggs, the clown and the ringmaster. I fix the time by that success. All Paris came to hear us. I believe half the fun was because we pattered such vile French. However, that's by the way.

"It was there I came across for the third time in my many wanderings 'Tosco, the Troubador,' far and far away the strangest being I ever met. Sometimes he was billed as 'The Wandering Clown,' or 'Tosco, the Tramp,' and not without good reason. Some demon of unrest had driven him east, west, north, and south. No city or town where a circus was found but received a flying visit from 'Tosco, the Troubador.' All lands to him were alike. From Paris to London, London to Hong Kong, thence to 'Frisco or New York, New York, Berlin, Vienna, Buda Pesth, or St. Petersburg, then back again in England at Manchester or Liverpool, Glasgow or Dublin. He was master of all languages, and full of music, although his special line was not instrumental music. He was an 'Improvistore.' His main gags were impromptus, some, of course, on events of the moment. When at his business he was all life and energy; nay, his work was done with such impetuosity of mental and physical vigour that at times his audience could not keep up with him.

"His private life was a profound mystery. Evidently a man of some private means, he hardly ever worked but when necessity drove him. He had been known to pay a large sum to break his engagement when the spirit of unrest gripped him. The desire to move on and to venture into strange parts of the world obtained for him a unique character. Wallett was near the truth when he called Tosco 'The New Melchisedec' or the 'Unknown Quantity,' 'never meaning,' added the prince of jesters, 'a negligible quantity.' Once and only once, was a clue to his nationality obtained, and that was a slip of the tongue that Tosco took infinite pains to retrieve; but no, it stuck. He was a Corsican. Few indeed are the men of Corsica known to be associated with circus life.

"It was, as I have said, a good season with us at the Cirque Imperiale. Tosco's turn was, as usual, a big success. His witty sallies in good rhyme and excellent French, his eccentric make up as a medieval Troubador, his fine, well-trained tenor voice, and his lightning-like rapidity of business, carried the excitable French people away, and the applause was frequent and great.

"I was in the centre of the ring, ready for the cues with him, when suddenly a disturbance arose in the two front seats. Two men were quarrelling fast and furiously. At last, one of the two evidently a workman, shouted out in terror, 'You coward, put back your knife.'

"At the sound of the voice Tosco stood for one brief second or two like a man paralysed, or seized with a cataleptic fit; then, with a leap that cleared the ring, he was in between the two men fighting.

"The whole audience rose and the excitement was intense. The people in the near vicinity to the three men now struggling, for Tosco was rolling over and over with one of them and grasping his antagonist by the throat.

"Suddenly the struggle ceased, Tosco and one of the men stood up, the third man was prone on the seats with a knife embedded in his breast. A shout of horror rang through the building. By this time the police had reached the fatal spot, and, at once concluding that the man who had quarrelled first was the murderer, were proceeding to apprehend him, when Tosco, calm and collected, exclaimed 'No, not that man, I it was who killed him; I am sorry that he had not a dozen lives to satisfy my vengeance.'

"Then looking down into the face of the dead, he added, 'So, Oscar, at last, at last, we meet, and as I vowed ten years ago, it is death.' 'Gentlemen,' he turned to the officers and said, 'I am now at your service.' 'Tosco, the Tramp' has finished his wanderings. The vendetta is achieved.

"It needed no word from the management to empty the house. As the police bore him away the crowd with one consent left the circus, and crowded to the cafés to discuss the tragedy. Paris, from end to end, could think of nothing, talk of nothing but Tosco and the vendetta at the circus.

"The next morning, to the utter surprise of expectant Paris, the mystery was out. All that Paris loves to have drawn out, by its peculiar system of magisterial interrogation of criminals, was in the papers; they all had it. Tosco had had the present contingency in his mind for years, and the material was all ready for the press.

"The story, as told by Tosco, 'The Tramp Troubador,' read as follows:—'I, Gabriel Toscoomi, glory in the death at mine own hands of the enemy of my people, Oscar Laroche, a very Judas. Ten years ago, after a wanderer's life in Eastern lands, I returned to my home in Corsica to find all that I had loved—mother, brother, and sister—vilely done to death. Their murderer, it was incontestably proved, was Laroche, the husband of my sweet-souled sister, Unicea. His command of subtle poisons was complete. As a practising doctor he had the lives of scores of people at his mercy. First, my brother—of course his death provoked no suspicion; then my mother, one of God's ministering saints, was poisoned; and when he needed more money to glut his secret passion my dear sister was offered a victim.

"'All the while these dread deeds were being compassed by this inhuman wretch I was being deluded, by pitiful tales of struggle and poverty, to work with untiring zeal to send money home to their assistance. It was the money thus drained from me that kept the heavy insurance premiums going. Oh! horrible craft of insatiate greed.

"'As I said, I came back to Corsica to find all the world—my world—horror-stricken with the revelation of Laroche's crime. Everywhere I met with the profoundest sympathy. The cleverest detectives of Europe combined to find the prisoner. All their investigations ended only in adding more names to the death roll of his victims. Here was a villain whose continued existence was a menace to society. As a Corsican, as a loyal son and brother to the blessed dead, I could not sit still whilst the sure hand of justice was trying to grip Laroche. I became myself the travelling intelligence officer of the Associated Criminal Detection Bureaux of Europe.

"'Twenty times and more I thought I had tracked him, yet somehow he managed to escape, such was his protean skill in disguise and alias. We could only suspect his presence by the trail of death—all by poison, and all to satisfy his lust of wealth. Six times we came upon him so quickly that only by precipitate flight, leaving all behind him, did he escape. Upon three occasions considerable hoards of his ill-gotten money were found, yet he always escaped. I have tracked him from one end of the world to the other, only to be again and again defeated.

"'Well, you may imagine the thrill of surprise that roused my whole being into action when I heard the voice of Oscar Laroche in high dispute. Here was my life's quest at an end. Here, where I never expected to find him; within my reach and power his voice revealed him. I doubt not that he was utterly astounded when he found that the Avenger at last was at his side. His eyes showed me the unspeakable terror of his craven soul. Ah! it was soon over; the exquisite joy of that one moment, that for years I had longed for, to have him in my power, his miserable life at my mercy.

"'Oh, yes, you may wish to call it madness; but, no! I was absolutely sane and clear in my mind. Not one moment did I doubt the righteousness of my vengeance; the call of the vendetta, "Blood for blood." I knew what I was doing; the supreme joy of that one moment of satisfaction repaid me for a life of work and toil and struggle. I felt in that one thrust of the knife that at last I truly lived.

"'No, I want no trial, no specious pleas of extenuating circumstances. If your human laws demand a life for a life, I shall rejoice once more that I have paid the full price and penalty for an act I would repeat again to-morrow, were mine enemy alive again.'

"So the tale of the Corsican vendetta was more than the usual nine days' wonder. What became of him ultimately was never told by the powers that be. No Parisian jury would convict him. The Code Napoleon, with all its wonderful means of escape for those who know how to use its complex machinery, was never put to better use than in finding a way out of the legal tangle that for a time enmeshed 'Tosco the Troubador,' but a way was found at last.

"Ostensibly sent to a convict colony in the Pacific Ocean, his departure from Marseilles only known to a privileged few, I was one of that select company permitted by the authorities to say good-bye to him. We all met on board the outward-bound steamer for the West, and there, with many a hearty hand-grip, we bade God-speed to 'Tosco the Troubador.'"

MUMMING PLAYS.

This winter has witnessed in West Dorsetshire a revival of the old mock-play, known as the "Mumming Play," the scene of its revival being the village of Bradpole, which adjoins the town of Bridport.

This old-world drama, which is most probably a survival of one of the "miracle" or "mystery" plays of the Middle Ages, was formerly acted regularly at Christmas time by the village youths and adults in many country parishes in Wessex, and, indeed, with certain variations, in other parts of England as well.

In the days when there were no village reading-rooms, technical classes, nor continuation schools, many a long winter evening was whiled away by young fellows in rural districts in learning, practising, and performing this play, the words of which were orally transmitted from generation to generation.

The performances, which were given in a very primitive style, took place in the halls of the manor-houses, the kitchens of the farms, the large rooms of the inns, or in any suitable places to which the "mummers" were invited, or in which they were permitted to appear, refreshments being provided, or gifts of money made, to the performers at the close of their entertainments.

About the middle of the last century, however, the practice of "mumming" greatly declined in the West of England, the few performances which continued to be given being but feeble survivals of the original, the custumes having degenerated into caps and other decorations of tinsel and coloured paper, and the players getting less in number and less efficient in their art, until the custom practically died out, some five-and-twenty or thirty years ago.

This degeneracy and subsequent abolition of "mumming" were, doubtless, largely due to the altered social and educational conditions which have prevailed even in the smallest villages in the present generation, and such a discontinuance is not to be wondered at, although it is perhaps somewhat to be regretted. Feeling that from an antiquarian and historic point of view it would be a great pity for this interesting relic of by-gone times to pass into oblivion, a few residents in West Dorset have recently encouraged a party of youths in Bradpole to revive the quaint old play, while there were still some people living who recollected it. Fortunately an inhabitant of an adjoining village, who was one of a party of "mummers" about thirty years ago, remembered the whole of the words and the traditional mode of acting. A gentleman, too, who lived in one of the old manor-houses of Dorset about the same period, and who is very fond of antiquarian research, took the pains to acquire from a party of "mummers" who played before him and his family, the words of the old drama, and by committing them to writing, preserved them. It is mainly from these sources that the play has again been put on the stage (if, indeed, such an expression can be used where there is neither stage nor scenery), and has been acted with much success at the "Forster Institute," at Bradpole, and at various private residences in the neighbourhood. The actors are simply village youths, with no instruction in the dramatic art beyond what has been imparted to them by this "mummer" of thirty years ago, but they have learned their parts well, and they enter heartily into the spirit of the play. The characters, eleven in number, consist of Father Christmas, his wife Bet, alias Dame Dorothy; Anthony, King of Egypt; St. George, St. Patrick, General Valentine, Colonel Spring, Captain Bluster, Room, a doctor named Martin Dennis, and a servant-man.

The costumes used by this company are effective, though perhaps they display a little anachronism. The military uniforms, for instance, are those of a very recent date, and the "get-up" of the doctor consists of the unromantic frock coat and silk hat of to-day. The actors, however, appear to be quite at home among their surroundings, and in speaking their parts the Dorset dialect is strongly in evidence.

At the "Forster Institute," where the writer saw the play, the performers simply assemled in a porch or ante-room of the building, and entered the hall as their parts came on; in some cases where such an arrangement is not practicable, we are informed they all strand in a group at the back of the room, and step forward as required.

The drama begins with the entrance of the old hump-backed Father Christmas, who speaks a quaint little prologue of self-introduction, and concludes it by inviting a gentleman, named Room, to enter. Mr. Room makes his appearance, and after wishing the audience a merry Christmas, announces the presence of the King of Egypt, St. Patrick, and the noble Doctor, and at the words:—

So now let the Egyptian king straightway appear, that potentate enters, and after having extolled his own mighty acts, brings St. George to the front with these words:—

"No other champion here could me exceed,
Except Saint George, my only son-in-law indeed,
So walk in, St. George."

The patron Saint of England enters, and is shortly followed by Saint Patrick,

"A charming Irish youth,
Who can fight, sing, or dance, or love a girl with truth."

After an interchange of salutations between the two "saints," the patron of England announces to his brother of Ireland that he is expecting four bold warriors, whose challenges to single combat he had accepted. Captain Bluster, the Gracious King, General Valentine, and Colonel Spring then, in succession, present themselves for the ordeal, and Saint Patrick, anxious to befriend his English brother, challenges the first-comer with the words:

"Thee and I the battle try," to which the Captain responds:

"If thou livest I will die."

The fight commences, and soon the Captain falls lifeless at the feet of the Irish Saint. Saint George then expresses a desire to engage the other three combatants himself, and he soon gets the opportunity of doing so, in each instance gaining an easy victory over his adversary.

After a dialogue between the two victors, in which the English Saint expresses a wish that some doctor could be found who could restore to life the four prostrate forms lying before them, Saint Patrick introduces a next-door neighbour of his, an Irish doctor named Martin Dennis, who possesses marvellous powers. This skilful practitioner appears and undertakes for a fee of one hundred pounds to bring back the fallen warriors to life with his "Jerusalem balsam." The little bottle containing the precious fluid is held near the faces of the defunct swordsmen, when, heigh! presto! each man springs up in a most lively manner, and marches off brandishing his weapon. A scene of quite a different nature then ensues. Old Bet, alias Dame Dorothy, arrives and introduces herself as "a handsome young woman, rather fat, but not very tall," and whilst she is thus praising herself, her husband, the hump-backed Father Christmas, comes home from hunting. He says he has "catched" a hare, and wishes to have it fried for supper. The old lady refuses to cook it in that way, but offers to roast it. Father Christmas adheres to his determination to have it fried, and Dame Dorothy persists in her refusal, until, words getting more and more vehement, they begin fighting with their woden crutches, and eventually the dame receives such a blow from her offended sire that she falls lifeless to the ground. This consummation seems to be much more serious than the old man had expected or desired, and he loudly bewails his loss. He is, however, greatly relieved by the entrance of Doctor Martin Dennis, who offers, in consideration of a large fee, to set the dame on her legs again. The offer is accepted, the remedy applied, and the husband is delighted beyond measure to find his wife once more taking her place by his side, and embracing him in a spirit of sweet reconciliation. An effective finale is produced by the aged couple standing in the centre of the apartment, and all the other characters in single file marching round them a number of times, singing a gay chorus.

The original play of which this "mumming" is a curious survival, is considered by some authorities to have been commemorative of the Holy Wars, and the revival of it as a harmless country winter pastime has created much interest in West Dorset.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas opened on Monday evening at the Canterbury in a most attractive series of scenes from Dickens' novels. First we are introduced to Fagin and Nancy, who are having an altercation in Bill Sykes's room, the subject of the trouble being the youthful Oliver Twist. Mr. Lucas gives a fine characterisation of a doddering old Jew in the part of Fagin, and he makes his Bill Sykes as disagreeable a bully as that worthy must have been as he existed in the imagination of the great author. Mrs. Lucas exhibits strong dramatic instinct in her portrayal of Nancy, and when, a little later, she appears as the dying Jo, she arouses sympathy and admiration for the clever and pathetic picture she presents. In the "Bleak House" scene Mr. Lucas is the doctor.

As a concluding item, Mr. Lucas gave an admirable representation of the somewhat knavish, though harmless, Uriah Heep. Mr. Lucas's rendition is excellent in this rôle, which is brought before our eyes with remarkable fidelity. His "most 'umble person living" is a brilliant character study. Mr. and Mrs. Lucas certainly exhibit rare elocutionary and acting powers, and they carry a couple of good scenes. They are booked for three years on the Moss and Stoll tour, this contract being the result of a two nights' trial show at Dublin. When they were appearing in Manchester a fortnight ago the Dickens Society presented them with a fine bouquet.

Mr. Frank Brown, the popular circus impressario of South America, was announced to leave Buenos Ayres on the 10th inst (yesterday) for England, in order to bring back his first company on May 5. Through Mr. H. B. Marinelli's agency, Mr. Brown has booked a large number of English artistes.

Dr. Walford Bodie, the famous exponent of bloodless surgery and medical electricity, finished last Saturday at the Tivoli, Leeds, a phenomenally successful two weeks' engagement with his own company, the huge building being packed to suffocation nightly at early door prices. Although the prices are only 2d., 4d., and 6d., over £1,450 was taken in the two weeks, which is a record for the building. The scene on Saturday night at the conclusion of Dr. Bodie's performance baffles description; the stage was crowded with grateful patients and their friends, who had come to thank the Doctor for his marvellous cures. He was publicly presented with several handsome presents, testimonials, and illuminated addresses. He opened on Monday at the Alhambra, Hull, and has been playing nightly to overflow houses.

Mr. H. B. Marinelli, the well-known agent, has moved his offices from Long Acre to 29a, Charing Cross-road.—Mr. Somers Bellamy has succeeded Mr. Will Spearman as manager of the Islington Empire.—Mr. W. F. Frame, a Glesca laddie, will reappear in the famous city on the Clyde on the 25th inst.

The secretary of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund has received from the Metropole Theatre of Varieties the sum of £1 13s. 9d., result of Pence Box Collection during the last month. The president and committee thank the management for the kind efforts on behalf of the fund.

While rehearsing a new "turn" at Luna Park, Coney Island, New York, Mdlle. Antonio, a music-hall acrobat, jumped 150ft. from a tower into a net, which broke under the strain, the performer sustaining a fractured leg.

Mr. Barney Armstrong deputised on Thursday at the Canterbury in place of Miss Vesta Victoria, who was indisposed. His success was instantaneous. Mr. Fred Miller complimented Barney on his funny business.

Mr. Harry Scott (son of Mr. George Scott, the popular manager of the Alhambra), has been specially engaged to support Miss Ethel Arden and Mr. George Abel in their forthcoming production of the popular Three of a Kind at the Tivoli. The piece reminds one strongly of the amusing farce, Tom, Dick, and Harry.

At the Hackney Empire, on Thursday next, a matinée in aid of the Children's Hospital, Hackney-road, will be given under the direction of Mr. L. G. Stewart. The beautiful theatre of varieties has been very kindly lent by Mr. Oswald Stoll, who takes a great interest in the welfare of the noble institution, which is much crippled for want of funds.

BLACKPOOL COLOSSEUM.—SEASON 1905.
Situate at the junction of the Blackpool and Lytham Tramways, on the Marine Parade, opposite the Manchester Hotel, in the heart of Blackpool.
The Building (which is 127ft. in diameter, 41ft. high to the eaves, and 83ft. to the Lantern) is Lighted by Electricity, and as a place for Animal Entertainments is unique, it being the only building in Blackpool that, in consequence of its being free from pillars and other obstructions, affords the necessary height and space for Diavolo's performance of "Looping the Loop."
The Walls are covered with the World-renowned picture "Niagara" painted by the great artist Phillipoteau.
For the last eight or ten years Blackpool has been extending around and for miles south of the Colosseum in a marvellously rapid manner. Thousands of houses have been built and are occupied, and there has not been any place of Public Entertainment provided for the Masses of the People south of the Tower.
The Colosseum provides a long-felt want in this New and Populous Neighbourhood.
The Authorities estimate that about Four Million Persons visited Blackpool last Season.
The great Popularity of the Colosseum is shown by the fact that, although only partially occupied during a part of a Blackpool Season, upwards of 100,000 paid for Admission during the remaining part of the season.
Offers for the 1905 Season on Sharing Terms should be made to the Undersigned, who will furnish any further information.

WANTED, Known, Lieut. Albini's Mysterious Lady in Black, the Talk of Bath, Thanks to the Headline in the London Daily Mail and the Energetic Manager, Mr. Trussell.

WANTED, Known, to Rely on Exposure is always Risky; to Engage a Practical High-class Showman is a Certainty. The Famous Box Trick was Introduced, after a Two Years' Run, at the Egyptian Hall, Piccadilly, by Prof. Searle and Lieut. Albini, about Twenty-six Years ago, at the Opera Theatre, Crystal Palace; it also had a Sensational Run Later, of Five Months, at the Oxford, by Albini, with an Offer of another Three Months, which was Refused. How many Nights did it Run Exposed at the same place? The Paying Public has no Taste for Exposing Tricks. Any Live Manager Knows this. They Flock to see the Act which Mystifies and Entertains them again and again. The Secret out, the few tell their Friends, who stay away, and laugh at home. I am Prepared to Play any Week with the Would-be Exposer, with my Famous Box Trick, in the same Programme, and I feel Confident the Manager will try and Retain me, and ask him to finish. Mine is an Act, not a Floundering, Slow, mixed-up Muddle of the Showman's Art.

BRIDLINGTON.

TO BE SOLD BY AUCTION,
on the Premises,

On WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22, 1905, at Four o'clock in the afternoon precisely, by Mr. J. MAJOR WILSON, Auctioneer, Bridlington, The WHOLE of the VALUABLE FREEHOLD ESTATE of the BRIDLINGTON PEOPLE'S PALACE COMPANY, Ltd.

Situate in Quay Road, Prospect Street, and Palace Avenue, Bridlington, and consisting of BEAUTIFUL LARGE CONCERT HALL or THEATRE (Licensed), good stage, 29ft. opening, 20ft. deep and 20ft. high, with large gallery. Seating capacity for about 1,500 people.

LARGE REFRESHMENT ROOM (Fully Licensed), 50ft. long, 30ft. wide, 22ft. high, with two good Tea Rooms attached, each being 24ft. long and 18ft. wide. Boiler, heating apparatus, and lift to kitchen. Good cellarage.

SPLENDID BALL ROOM in basement, 90ft. by 50ft., large room adjoining, 50ft. by 30ft., used at present as Shooting Gallery. Lavatories and W.C.'s.

GOOD BOWLING GREEN in Palace Grounds.

TEN THOUSAND YARDS or thereabouts of LAND surrounding the Palace. Very valuable for building purposes.

FOUR GOOD LOCK-UP SHOPS front of the Palace, recently built and well-let.

THREE SHOPS IN PROSPECT STREET, adjoining the Palace Grounds, with commodious Dwelling House attached.

ELEVEN GOOD HOUSES IN PALACE AVENUE, nearly new.

The property has a frontage to the main street from the Railway Station to the Sea of about 125 yards.

The gross Annual Rental of the Houses and Shops, all of which have been recently reduced, is £428, and £12 per annum is also received from advertising panels on wall in front of the Palace.

These rents are quite exclusive of the Palace itself, the Grounds and Excise Licence, so that it is capable of producing more than double the amounts above mentioned.

All the properties are Freehold and in the very centre of the Town (which is rapidly rising in popularity), and would form a very desirable investment.

For further particulars apply to the Auctioneer, Mr. WILSON, Marshall Avenue; Messrs. RICHARDSON & SON, Solicitors, Bridlington; Miss MORGAN, The Palace, Bridlington, or to W. KITCHINGMAN, Secretary, Aquarium, Scarborough.

March 4, 1905.

Dear Sir,

It gives me much pleasure to testify to the admirable work done by you in the cleaning of the exceptionally heavy tableaux curtains of this theatre. It must have been no easy task, especially the bringing up of the gold to the state of perfection you have achieved.

Yours truly,
HERBERT BEERBOHM TREE.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The concert given in the theatre of the Guildhall School of Music on Wednesday evening had many points of excellence, several of the vocal items being unusually good. One of the best was the duet from Gounod's Romeo and Juliet, the English translation being "O Shrine of Beauty." Miss Gretta Dawson and Mr. Bernard Turner sang the duet uncommonly well, the gentleman deserving great praise for his sympathetic rendering of the tenor part, and the representative of Juliet gained much approval. In the famous air from Samson and Delilah, by Saint-Saëns, Miss Mabel Stevens gave the English version, "Softly awakes my heart," which does not adequately express the passion and sentiment of the exquisite original. So if Miss Mabel Stevens did not quite realise the effect of the French air, let us blame the translation rather than the vocalist. Mr. Alexander C. Comfort gave a satisfactory rendering of Clay's ballad, "The Sands of Dee." Miss Elsie Lester sang a new rendering of "As the hart pants," by Miss Allitsen, with the title "Like as the hart desireth," the lines of which have already been set by two great composers. But no fault could be found with Miss Lester. Miss Dora Read was very successful in "Because," by Guy D'Hardelot. Her voice is pure, and of charming quality. In two songs of the same composer Miss Edith H. Dunton gained credit. Mrs. Arthur Jones displayed great skill as a harpist, and won cordial applause. Miss Elsie L. Curtis played brilliantly in the Andante and Rondo from De Beriot's Ninth Concerto. So gifted a writer for the violin should not be entirely forgotten. Schumann's "Grillon" furnished Master John Hope with a pleasing pianoforte solo, to which he did ample justice. Miss Emily B. Foss won laurels in Chopin's Polonaise in C sharp minor, and it is not everybody's good fortune to succeed in the music of this composer. The more exacting "Variations Sérieuses" of Mendelssohn were effectively played by Mr. Arthur L'Estrange, and Miss Sutherland gave a study of Liszt and a Scherzo of Godard with considerable ability. Miss Nellie Lake recited two pieces cleverly. One of them, "Lost and Found," by Hamilton Aidé, is an imitation of the eccentric German author Hoffman. The original is a story of a miner who had been lost by his sweetheart in youth, and when an old woman his body is recovered by her from the mine. Miss Lake recited this tragic story cleverly. Miss Kate Ward accompanied with her usual skill.

ROYAL COLLEGE CONCERT.

Composition is a feature of the Royal College studies, and the concert of Thursday last included the first performance of a quartet for pianoforte and strings by a student, Mr. James Friskin, of a very promising character. Mr. Friskin's name is new to us, but both in his playing and his musical ideas it is evident that he has been well grounded in his art. Mr. Friskin was assisted in his quartet by Vera Warwick Evans, Frank Bridge, and Ivor James. Mr. Friskin might have made a little more of the pianoforte part, but he has the gift of melody in a marked degree, and in the adagio this was especially noticeable. The Scherzo was bright, if not particularly original. The finale was the least interesting. The solo instrument would bear some revision, or even expansion. The composer so pleased the audience that he was four times recalled to the platform. Two solos of Saint-Saëns were performed by Charles Warwick Evans with remarkable expression and equally satisfactory tone. The vocal items included "Devotion," by Richard Strauss, sung by Mr. John S. Appleby; and Miss Gladys Haig was very successful in Schumann's "Aufräge." Miss Christian Keay sang airs by Brahms and Schumann with much taste, and was warmly applauded. A sonata for violin and pianoforte by César Franck, a composer being just now eagerly pushed forward, although he died long before his genius became matured, was cleverly played by Mr. Arthur Armstrong-Dash and Miss Winifred Gardiner, both executants gaining great credit from an audience not so large as usual, owing, no doubt, to the miserable weather. The concert concluded with a quintet for pianoforte and strings, by Anton Dvorák. The executants set down for the quintet were Helen Boyd, Herbert Kinze, William Armstrong, Frank Bridge, and Charles Warwick Evans.

AT the Opera House, Workington, on Monday night, there was a large and appreciative house to witness An Abandoned Woman, by Mr. H. Foxwell's company. Miss Edith Blande proved a great attraction in the part of Ninon; she was intensely dramatic. Mr. H. Hilla was a manly hero, and Mr. C. Vivian as the villain was excellent. Mr. G. Delaforce was humorous and happy as Paddy, and was well partnered by Miss Alice Ramsdale in the part of Sally. Mr. H. Foxwell created interest as Robert Saunders, his acting being efficient; Mr. H. Forbes was good as Sammy; Miss Sheila Walsh was sympathetic as the heroine.

"IN HOLY RUSSIA," a drama in four acts, by Lilian Clare Cassidi, was produced for copyright purposes, at the Prince of Wales' Theatre, Salford, on Wednesday.

MISS FANNY DANGO, who has been playing principal girl in the pantomime at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, collected the large sum of £131 towards the recent Liverpool Theatrical Gala, and the committee, feeling that such excellent work deserved some recognition, have presented her with a set of silver trays.

A DRAMATIC recital was given at Tolmer's Institute, N.W., on Thursday evening, by Mr. Stanley Leverton, assisted by Miss Barbara Allison and Miss Rosie Stevens. Mr. Leverton was heard to most advantage in "The Tell-tale Heart," by Edgar Allan Poe, in which he showed dramatic power. Miss Barbara Allison recited Kipling's "Ballad of East and West" effectively, and played naturally. An amusing little farce, entitled The House Next Door, by Austin by Austin, in which parts were also taken by Mr. Leverton and Miss Rosie Stevens, who made an excellent slavey. Miss Stevens also entertained with a Japanese recital.

MR. AL. LAWRENCE, who has booked already by cable several genuine novelty acts for the United States, at Keith and Proctor's Circuit, through Messrs. Barnard and Deetrich, 7, Clayton-square, Liverpool, of whom he is the sole and exclusive representative for America, sailed on the Baltic for New York, on Wednesday afternoon, from Liverpool. Mr. Al. Lawrence is also a representative in Europe of Chas. H. Waldron, the manager of the Palace Theatre, Boston, and influential director of the Burlesque Wheel Co., of America.

MR. HARRY HAMPSON, of the Hampson Brothers, is lying seriously ill at his residence in Newcastle. He was compelled to give up his engagement last Thursday, at Rochdale, and many thanks are due to Mr. and Mrs. Lee, proprietors of the circus, for their many kindnesses.

"MR. HOPKINSON," which was so favourably received on its production at the Avenue Theatre, on the 21st ult., is now doing well at Wyndham's, to which theatre it has been removed.

MR. ALF. GIBSON concludes to-night a very successful run at the Lyceum. He commences a long provincial tour on Monday, at the Hippodrome, Norwich.

ABERDARE.—New Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews.—When London Sleeps is the attraction here, presented by Mr. E. Finch-Hatton's excellent company Mr. Walter H. Wilson, as Captain Rodney, is a typical stage villain; Mr. Albert Wray is well suited in the part of David Eagleheart; Mr. Edward Vivian is successful as Furnaby Fuller; Mr. Paul Graydon is a first-rate Bob Jones; Mr. D'Arcy Kelway is responsible for much laughter as Sammy Blythe; Mr. Charles Digby is amusing as the Hon. Bertie Broomhead; Stephano Mordicano is well portrayed by Mr. Otto Gottschalk; Mr. Samuel Reuturn is good as Winkles; Miss Mabel Cluer gives a charming embodiment of Queenie Carruthers; Miss Hilda Clyde is a sufficiently bold and crafty Hilda Carrode; Miss Evelyn Clare, as Maudie de Friere is good; Miss Nellie Birchenough is a capital Mrs. Jones; Miss Lily Weldon arouses the sympathy of the audience as Leila; Miss Marah Kelway is a vivacious Adele; Miss Kate Turner, as Adeline Verne, and Miss Olga Noyald, as Phyllis Kenyon, complete the cast.

Palace Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Will Gregory.—The programme here includes The Steens, American mystifiers, who score a success; Harry Seaton is well received; The Bransbys, with their excellent songs, are a strong attraction; The Three Royal Temples, Glee Singers, are applauded; Sam Redfern, with some new songs and exceedingly smart patter, brings down the house; Messrs. Ryde and Beeman, acrobatic grotesques, are received with hearty laughter and applause; the Two Japanese Princesses, equilibrists and contortionists, give a daring turn; Jess Thorne, a sprightly comedienne, scores; the Carls, in their speciality act, Fun in a Café, introduce a trampoline table, and play to the accompaniment of hearty laughter.

ABERDEEN.—Her Majesty's Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah.—Mr. John Leopold's company is here this week with the amusing farcical piece, The New Frivolity. The parts of Oliver Buckwheat, Madame Cobweb, and Jules Vermiglio are humorously represented by Mr. Herbert Lewis, Miss Ruby Wyndham, and Mr. Wilfred Vaughan respectively. Miss Amy Hall and Mr. John Leopold score with their singing; and the company includes several other members of the Leopold family, and the clever and resourceful comedian, Mr. Barry Lupino.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing Director, Mr. Ernest Sheldon.—Miss Peggy Pryde's songs are received with tumultuous applause; and another notable turn is given by Park's Eton Boys, who sing very beautifully. Rice, Rose, Davis, and the Half are as popular as on their former visits; and the John Alexander Company appear in an extremely funny sketch, Our Lodger. Among other artistes who appear with success are Barney Vox, an excellent ventriloquist; Mr. Willie Benn, an accomplished instrumentalist; and the Victorias and Miss Annie Langley, sprightly vocalists and dancers. Mr. Sheldon, the popular managing-director, took his annual benefit on Wednesday. The programme was quite remarkable for its length and attractiveness, and the house was crowded in every part.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Messrs. Preston and Doherty's company opened here on Monday with The Rich and Poor of London. Mr. Sidney C. Cranston gives an excellent rendering of Gussy Lamb; Matthew Grabham is a good performance by Mr. Jack Sidney; Mr. Sidney Dench must be complimented on his performance of Spider Jack. May Braithwaite is a very artistic performance by Miss Dora Dence; and Ruby Redgreave is well played by Miss Marie Ramez.

New Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Wilmott, Potter, Vandy, and Weisker.—A very attractive bill is provided here this week. Miss Alma Obrey must be complimented on her performance; Bob Baxter is also very amusing; H. O. Borie is a smart comedy juggler; the Bros. Harrison are clever comedians and dancers; the Falcons are amusing; Coram is a good ventriloquist; Sheila Deans renders her numbers well; and Ike Scott keeps the house in good humour. The Hippodrome pictures are also an attraction.

ALDERSHOT.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Saunes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—The Two Hussars—a well-known military drama of the sensational type—is being presented here this week, in an able manner, by Messrs. Fred Webb and Wilson Benge's company, the piece being well staged, and the scenery used of an appropriate description. Those responsible for the chief rôles are Messrs. Wilson Benge, Fred J. Webb, Louis Nanton, Jas. Stuart, G. Paradise, Misses Sadie Smith, Lallah Price; whilst others taking part are Messrs. Fred Chapman, C. Walters, R. Charles, Jas. Dalton, C. Fynes, and S. James.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—The Midnight Mail, a drama of a stirring character, by Arthur Shirley, is being staged here by Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company. The chief characters are entrusted to capable exponents, prominent amongst them being Messrs. George Harvard, as the engineer; Mr. Fred G. Evison, who plays a drunken sot with a vein of humour, which the audience find very diverting. The suffering heroine is sympathetically portrayed by Miss Ada Oakley, and the other ladies of the cast who do effective work are Misses Amy Corallie, Mildred Carr, Jennie Watson, Dolly Gilroy and Leslie Vere.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—Among the "bright particular stars" here for the week are the Swift Trio, with a most amusing bicycle entertainment. A daring performance is given by D'Artigan, called looping the loop. Agnes Krembser is a clever lady juggler. Madame De Rose has a phenomenal voice; and George Prince, the crazy comedian; Keith and Merson, eccentric acrobatic singing and patter comedians; the great comedy speciality of Balsamos; the novel act, entitled A Queer Customer, by Johnson and Bert; Little Renee, in her latest success, "An Urchin's Story"; Nellie Graham, comedienne and speciality dancer; and J. H. Hawtrey, actor-vocalist, also contribute.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Claude Seaton.—A welcome return visit is being paid here by Mr. Bert Coote's No. 1 company with The Fatal Wedding. Mr. Stuart Lomath gives a fine portrayal of Howard Wilson, playing with commendable care and finish; Mr. Pascoe Bioletti submits a finished performance as the villainous Robert Curtis; Mr. W. E. Chewd, as Toto is very good, and, with Miss Maud Locker, as Bridget, wins hearty applause for well-timed comedy. Miss Eva Moss, as Mabel Wilson, gives a consistent and sympathetic interpretation of the part; Miss Doris Gilham, as the scheming Cora Williams, does well; little Emmie Thomas, as Jessie, the little mother, is deserving of the highest praise. Other parts are well played by Mr. T. W. Ford, as Peter Schwartz; Mr. Jack Waring, as Policeman O'Reilly; and Mr. Richard F. Symons, as the Rev. Dr. Lanceford. The children's scene, with its songs, duets, etc., given by clever juvenile exponents, is received with great enthusiasm.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Gibbon.—The management here has provided a strong and varied bill this week, and includes a special engagement of the Pender Troupe of pantomimists, in a laughable absurdity, entitled Hands Up; Harry Morris, mimic, and character comedian; Wilfred, Canadian contortionist; the clever Continental Stilt Walkers; Vernando, ventriloquist; Ella Bourne; Mueller and Coyne, American comedy duo; and an interesting series of pictures by the Palace Bioscope.

AYR.—Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—For the present week the Gaiety has been taken by the Ayr Amateur Opera Company, which is presenting The Mikado. The company has been schooled for some time by Mr. Herbert Marchmont, who appeared in the original production of The Mikado at the Savoy. The musical conductor is Mr. Henry Graves, organist.

Town Hall.—Prince Bendon's specially selected company appeared in the Town Hall on Saturday evening, and drew a large audience. The great feature of the entertainment was the cinematograph films of The Passion Play, and the vocal scores were filled in by Miss Myra Norman, contralto; Miss Marie Nilson, soprano; Mr. P. A. Hope, bass; and Mr. P. S. Richardson, tenor. Prince Bendon was a host in himself in his well-known ventriloquial entertainment.

BACUP.—New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—Mr. Alfred B. Cross and company are here this week with The Manxman. The important part of Pete gives Mr. Cross many excellent opportunities of displaying his abilities as an actor. Cæsar Cregeen is carefully portrayed by Mr. Henry Heller; Mr. William Burchill submits a capable impersonation of Philip Christian; and Ross Christian is successfully presented by Mr. Edward McLean. Miss Minnie Watersford displays considerable emotional power in her earnest embodiment or the erring Kate, and Miss Nancy Mitchell wins approval by her performance as Nancy. Miss Leslie Adair as Miss Christian, Mr. Edward Cartell as Monty, and Mr. Harold Wadeley as Prof. Mawley, give efficient help.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. Tom B. Davis's company, in Florodora, is paying a return visit here. Mr. Dalby Cooper, an irresistibly funny Anthony Tweedlepunch, keeps the audience in roars of laughter. He is ably assisted by Miss Leonora Grieve, whose graceful acting and charming singing as Dolores are much admired. Miss Rene Steadman is an entertaining Lady Holyrood; Mr. T. Ellis-Buxton, a versatile and amusing Cyrus W. Gilfain; and Mr. Cyril Dance sings and acts capitally as Frank Abercoed.

Tivoli Theatre of Varieties.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi.—Miss Daisy James has had a great reception here; and the McConnell Trio give an artistic vocal entertainment. The Dummy, a screaming absurdity, by the Gregson Comedy Trio, creates roars of laughter; Kyoto is capital in his juggling, conjuring, and legmania business; the Sisters Caselli dance charmingly; and Miss May Geraldine, comedienne, and Miss Eily Adair, comedienne and dancer, add considerably to the evening's entertainment.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—A singularly attractive engagement is being fulfilled this week by the appearance of Mr. Frank Curzon's company in the musical comedy, Sergeant Brue. Mr. Victor Widdicombe fairly revels in the part of Sergeant Brue, his broad humour and pompous bearing creating endless hilarity. A particularly hearty reception has been accorded that great local favourite, Mr. T. A. Shale, in his new rôle of Crookie Scrubbs, a character creation that is full of clever points. Mr. E. Percy Rogers puts plenty of energy into his impersonation of Michael Brue, and sings with success Miss Millie Lindon's popular song, "Mother Eve," assisted by full chorus. Gerald Treherne is well enacted by Mr. Arthur Stroud, a young vocalist with an agreeable baritone voice. Mr. Cecil Burt makes a capital Mr. Crank. Miss Violet Dene, as Lady Bickenhall, displays vivacity and cleverness. Miss Constance Lait lends much distinction to her portrayal of Aurora Brue; Miss Eliza Earle is a chic Daisy; and Miss Lily Maxwell a taking Mabel.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. W. Trussell.—The management is scoring heavily this week with a strong bill, that includes Miss Bryant, with her highly trained lions and hounds. The Abd'el Kader Trio's rapidity as painters is marvellous. Dandy George and his canine pet Rosie, present a delightful turn. Lola Patey, with a good style, is quite successful; that smart young conjurer, Henri Bekker, improves upon each visit; Nellie Lewis, burlesque actress, secures many admirers; Bishop and Vale, comedians, return to win further laurels; as do Hart and Rudd, comedians, patterers, and dancers.

Assembly Rooms.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Howes.—The "Charles W. Poole's" latest myriorama commenced its annual Lenten visit here on Monday. The Russian-Japan war pictures naturally receive much attention, and the Biograph films likewise come in for commendation. The variety turns include those clever bar performers, the Almo Trio; the Rochester family of musicians and dancers; the Avondale Quartet; the gymnastic feats of Mons. Henri; the Four Burgatiles in a musical interlude; and Allan Hanbury, comedian and cicerone. The orchestra is efficient under Mr. A. G. Morrell's direction.

BATLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Whitty; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. M. Hurst.—Mr. John A. Thompson's pantomime, Aladdin, is the attraction here this week. The company is a good all-round one. Miss Beatrice Varley makes a capital Aladdin; Miss Emilie Cameron is a charming Princess; Mr. Will Dale is much in evidence as Emperor; and the Vizier is in the safe keeping of Mr. Will D'Argan; Chin Chin is capitally undertaken by Mr. Ted Rogers; Mr. Albert Williams creates uproarious laughter as Widow Twankey; and Mr. Charles Wood deserves praise as Abanazar. Some clever specialities were given by the Verona Geisha Girls; Goliath, Herculean expert; the Sisters Isabelle, Mr. Ernest Bactolori, siffleur and instrumentalist; Dale and D'Argan, jugglers and tumblers; and Mr. Chas. Wood with his entertainment, Twenty Faces under One Hat.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Miss Ina Rozant presented The Designers, a farcical comedy by Fritz Zorn, at the County Theatre on Monday. Mr. W. Hargreaves gave a good interpretation of John Huggins, and Mr. E. O'Grady was well suited to the part of Mr. Currie; Wilfred Fry found a satisfactory exponent in Mr. William Luff; the humour was well sustained by Mr. Arthur Dennis as Percy Loraine, Mr. Frank Lester as Taddlebury, and Mr. G. Edwards as Dick. Miss Dorothy Sidney made a charming Mabel, and Miss Ina Rozant was successful as Rachel Huggins.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James. McCann.—We are favoured this week with a visit from Mr. George Dance's company with The Girl from Kay's. There is a competent cast, chief honours being due to the clever comedian Mr. H. C. Barry, who presents an exceedingly droll impersonation of Max Hoggenheimer. Miss Nancy Hervyn plays the title-rôle, and her capital vocalism and smart dancing completely captivate everybody. As Hon. Percy Fitzthistle, Mr. Leslie Roy Cathie is decidedly amusing, and the same remark applies to Mr. Fred Rolph's impersonation of Joseph. Mr. Garnet Wilson plays the part of Harry Gordon with unflagging spirit; and the rôle of Norah Chalmers is charmingly undertaken by Miss Rita Leonhardt, her bright impersonation winning all hearts. Miss Dorothy Firmin is a smart Ellen; as Nancy Lowly, Miss Beatrice Poole is admirable; and Miss Mabel Champion ably impersonates Mrs. Chalmers. Most satisfactory impersonations of Mr. Chalmers and Uncle Theodore are submitted by Mr. Cameron Carr and Mr. Samuel Lysons.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. John P. Beardmore.—The George Bonhair Gregory Troupe head the bill here, and their remarkably clever acrobatic feats have been accorded an enthusiastic reception; the Vivians appear to great advantage in their musical travesty entitled Life's Reverie, which has been received with much pleasure. Mr. Alex Lukos, descriptive vocalist, appears in several character studies with great effect; the Cranks are exceedingly smart trick and comedy cyclists; and Miss Nancy St. John is an accomplished comedienne and dancer. A good reception has been accorded the Zampas duettists and speciality dancers; and also appearing are Mr. Charles Gardener and Mr. Bert Byrne, comedians.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Limited.—General Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Brock.—The Boisset Troupe head the bill and stage with unbounded success, their capital sketch, The Bricklayers, which has created roars of uncontrollable laughter. The fine baritone voice of Mr. Ian Colquhoun has been heard with pleasure in several songs; and an unmistakable hit has been made by Mr. Hugh Stanton's company in Bargain Mad. The Borellis appear to great advantage in their musical tit-bits, being loudly recalled; and the clever international dances executed by Clark and Argyle have been enthusiastically received. Miss Helen Martin is a cultured ballad vocalist; and others appearing are Miss Lulu Gould, a charming comedienne; and Mr. Mark Leslie, coon artiste.

New Alhambra Theatre of Varieties.—General Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The chief attraction at this popular hall is provided by the Bros. Vermane, who have been most successful with their eccentric acrobatic act. The novel ventriloquial act introduced by Oakdene affords much satisfaction; and a good reception has been extended to the San Remo Girls, talented vocalists and smart dancers. Narrow Bros. create much amusement with their knockabout cycling act; and Musical Silvo (inventor of the Silvo Chimes) appears in his unique musical performance. A feature of the bill is the entertainment provided by Weisker Bro.'s Bioscope, the series of new pictures exhibited this week being most attractive. The catchy chorus songs of Miss Carlotta Mayson charm all; and also appearing are Maudie Ford, comedienne; and Mr. Harry Nelson, comedian, who made a big hit on Monday.

BILSTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—A good company is playing The London Fireman, and both Mr. J. Forbes Knowles and Miss Nellie Shirley, as the hero and heroine of the drama (Hal and Ida Curtis), distinguish themselves by clever acting. In the heavy rôle of Viscount Fleming, Mr. Robert Grey does effective service; and a very good exposition of the Countess Fleming comes from Miss Violet Temple. Much hilarity is caused by the antics of Mr. Charles Preece as Nixey Stinger, and Miss Nellie Garside as Polly Bramble.

BIRKENHEAD.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Miss Beatrice Isaacson's company opened on Monday in a drama, entitled A Great Sensation. Miss Isaacson displays great power and ability as Eva Dale; Mr. Sydney N. Hallows gives a manly and effective interpretation of Jack Damer; and Bunko Bates is admirably acted by Mr. Alexander L. Isaacson; Miss Madge Devereux does all possible with the rather uphill part of Sidonie; Mr. Charles Gallier ably depicts the villain of the piece, Harry Escombe, in vivid colours; Mr. William Ames is a good Wiley Jones. The humour of the piece is well sustained by Mr. Sidney Martin and Miss Marion Mayne.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Mr. T. E. Dunville, the popular eccentric comedian, is again scoring heavily here, as is also Miss Florrie Gallimore, a charming and accomplished comedienne, who is always most favourably received at this hall. Mr. Joe O'Gorman, a capital Irish humorist, is a leading attraction; the Levinos are entertaining in an amusing sketch; and Miss Hanid Alexander has made a hit in the well-sustained scena, Home from School; Mr. Harry Zetter, a good comedian and grotesque dancer; Miss Mamie Iris, a pleasing serio and sand dancer; and Miss Frances Haskoll with some admirable illustrated songs, are also appearing with success. The bioscope is an interesting feature.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The first dramatic season of the new Theatre Royal was inaugurated on Monday by Mr. Martin Harvey, who imparted desirable eclat to this epoch-marking occasion, and who was undoubtedly happy in the distinction. Mr. Harvey as that most "noble rogue," the Rat, otherwise Lieut. Beresby, was recalled again and again for his truly admirable performance, while at the end nothing but a speech would suffice. Mr. Chas. J. Cameron realised the stern, unbending Viscount Dorsington; Mr. Chas. Glenney depicted the craven nature of Col. Hungerford to the minutest detail; Mr. Percy Anstey was successful as Cornet Tresham; and Miss Coleridge acted with much tenderness as Margaret. Messrs. A. E. Raynor, Fred Wright, senior, Reene Denbigh, and Miss N. De Silva, who scored as the devoted Batty, were also appreciated by the large audience present.

Prince of Wales's Theatre, Limited.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Messrs. Lawrence Grant's and Malcolm Barrington's company opened the spring season here with Joseph Entangled, which receives a capital interpretation. Mrs. Mouillot essays the rôle of Lady Verona Mayne with unqualified success, her impersonation being womanly, subtle, and tactful; Mr. Lawrence Grant, as Sir Joseph, gives a convincing ring to the text; and Mr. Hugh Ardale, as Mayne; Mr. Everard Digby, as the Professor; Mr. C. Leveson Lane, as Pyecroft; Mr. Guy Lane, as Knapman; Miss Claire Cavendish, as Mrs. Knapman; Mr. F. H. Denton, as Harry Tavender; Miss Evelyn Maxwell, as Mrs. Harry Tavender; and Mr. Arthur Bell, as Tanmere, all rise to their responsibilities, and deserve the highest praise. Heart of Gold follows the comedy, and this also affords fine scope for Mr. Lawrence Grant, Mrs. Mouillot, and Mr. Hugh Ardale, &c.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's company has proved an excellent draw, and The Gay Parisienne, which they represent in the brightest and best possible manner, is applauded by all hands. Mr. Lionel Rignold is fortunately available for his original part of Ebenezer Honeycombe, which indicrous picture of the unco' guid he invests with all its pristine humour; Miss Isabelle Dillon, as the volatile French girl, Bon-Bon, is dainty and captivating; Miss Marie Daltra acts well as Mrs. Honeycombe; Mr. Arthur Powell, as M. Pompier, is well suited; Mr. Rudolph Klos displays much ability as the fiery Fossdyke; Miss Gwennie Harcourt adds to the mirth as Ruth; Miss Ethel Dunbar is graceful as Norah; Mr. Thomas Kennard is popular as Everleigh; and the Imperial Glee Singers discourse in several delightful numbers.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—Dick Whittington finishes its successful three months' course to-night, for which occasion every seat that it was possible to book has been secured long ago; thus another merry and memorable "last night" promises itself. On Monday a matinée was given here in aid of charity, when the popular and clever Miss Minnie Jeffs, and others, appeared, a sum of over forty pounds being realised, which, it being Mr. Collingwood's motto that "Charity begins at home," is to be shared by the Actors' Benevolent Fund, and the Music Hall Artistes' Home, as well as among the local hospitals.

Metropole Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Walter Melville; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—A most potent and irresistible attraction appears here in Mr. Bert Coote's Fatal Wedding company. Mr. Ernest Owttrim plays Howard Wilson in a manly and popular style; Miss Theresa Osborne is much lauded as the wife, Mabel; Miss Beatrice Whitney compels respect, if not sympathy, as Cora Williams; and Miss Gladys Rose Jones, as the Little Mother, is appreciated by all; Mr. Cecil A. Collins acts the part of "the man about town," Robert Curtis, as if to the manner grown; and the comic rôles by Mr. J. Carl Lyle, as Toto; Mr. C. Melton, as Schwartz; and Miss Carrie Fenton, as Bridget, are most successful. The scenery is also a notable feature in this play.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley.—Owner and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben Sydney.—Mr. Howell Webb's company has met with much success here with the sensational and musical comedy-drama, The Convent Bell. The emotional parts are all well sustained, and Mr Stanley Carlton, who, in addition to his clever portrayal of Philip Vautier, sings several successfull songs; Miss Ruby Maude, who acts most charmingly as Marguerite; Miss Emily Huby, as Christine Valgrave; and Mr. Oliver Birrell, in his cleverly assumed rôle of the villain, Henri Cassella, have commanded much applause. The comedy has stood out in bold relief, Mr. Howell Webb, as Pickle Podds; Mr. Teddy Miles, as Jean; and Miss Florrie Mandeville, as Susette, have, with song and jest, scored heavily.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; Manager, Mr. Dan Barnard.—Messrs Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is the attraction here, in The Village Blacksmith, which it transpires is the clever work of an Aston man, Mr. G. Carlton Wallace, to wit. The play gives unbounded satisfaction, being brimful of interest, and thrilling situations which are cleverly contrived. Mr. Sam Livesey appears in the title-rôle, and proves an excellent hero; Miss Laura Walker, as the blacksmith's wife, Kate, has many good and charming features; Mr. Joseph Carter acts the villain athlete, Captain Leo, with capital emphasis; and Messrs. Geo. Campbell, and T. E. Marshall, together with Mrs. T. C. Livesey and Miss Maggie Edwards, sustain the comic interest.

Empire Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Mr. Wilkie Bard is attracting packed houses here, and is loudly encored for his amusing songs and patter. Syd May, in his clever mimicry of popular artistes, comes in for a large share of applause; Nellie Stratton delights with her singing; the Akimotos are expert jugglers and equilibrists; and the Rossow Midgets are exceedingly smart boxers and acrobats. Seeley and West, Arthur Melrose, Daisy Ray, J. P. Dane, and a series of pictures are also included in the bill.

Gaiety Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—An exceedingly bright programme is attracting large audiences this week. The Belle of the Orient, a condensed musical comedy, is paying a return visit; the Sisters Gasch are decidedly clever in their acrobatic display; Sydney James, in his ventriloquial entertainment, is good; Astarte has a novel and mysterious exhibition; and the Antartos, May Henderson, Woodhouse and Wells, and the Ashers add to the success.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Kelly and Gillette, in their billiard table speciality, are both clever and amusing; Carlotta Levey is a capital vocalist. The long bill also includes the Musical Johnsons, Jules Keller, Harry Conlin, Robertus and Wilfredo, Mdlle. Haydee, Juno Salmo, the Golden Mephisto, and a series of animated pictures.

Bordesley Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. George Foster.—The operatic sketch, Jack Sheppard, is being presented this week by Messrs. Verno and Voyce; Roze and Calvert, in their burlesque of Captain Kettle, are most amusing; Drew and Alders are loudly applauded for their eccentric knockabout act; some smart dances are presented by the Four Trees; Dainty Gwennie Hasto and Myra Stansfield are particularly successful with their catchy songs; and H. F. Wilson and Harry Nation add to the mirth of the programme.

BLACKBURN.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Business-Manager, Mr. Reginald Yorke.—Mr. Walter Melville's company in the drama, A Disgrace to her Sex, is appearing this week. Miss Laura Hansen sustains the character of the lady so invidiously distinguished with great ability; Mabel Valleys, the illegal child, and Mildred Carrington, the legal child, are well represented by Miss Elaine Vanbrugh and Miss Nellie Lucas; Mr. Clinton Baddely is also very good as Jules Delarnet; Mr. Arthur Byron keeps the audience well amused as Barnaby Mugg; and he is ably supported by Miss Polly Marsh, as Bella.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—When a Man Hates is being performed here, under the triple management of Miss Olga Audre, Mr. Travis Greene, and Mr. Arthur Hinton. Miss Leila Zilwood appears to advantage as Olga Gwynne; Mr. Arthur Hinton, as Pietro Danelli, also displays great ability; Mr. Sydney Benson, as Peter Pimple, proves himself an excellent comedian. Good work is also done by Mr. Gerald Byrne, as the half-witted Paul; and Mr. Frank Brunell, as Detective Smart. A word of praise is also due to Nana Flensburg, as Dolly Dimple; and Miss Marion Forrester, as Letty, the White Angel.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. W. Murray.—Another excellent company is drawing crowded houses. Ameen Abou Hamad and his Arabian troupe give a marvellous exhibition of acrobatic agility. Aga, the suspended, is also an illusion much appreciated. Johnny Holland and Co. are filling a second week's engagement with their amusing sketch, New Milk for Breakfast. Other good turns are: Charles Chard, comedian; Donaldson Bros. and Ardel; Annie Casey, Evelyn Taylor, and the Foros, equilibrists.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The Golden Ladder, played by Miss Mary Austin and E. Vivian Edmonds' company, is the attraction here this week. Mr. Harry Cullenford essays the rôle of the Rev. Frank Thornhill with marked success, and Mr. John McElroy gives a satisfactory delineation of Samuel Peckaby. Michael Severn finds a suitable exponent in Mr. J. Milne Taylor; Mr. Graham Winsford is well placed as M. Peranza; Miss Conyers Radcliffe makes a charming Lilian Grant; Miss Nellie Graham is amusing as Mrs. Peckaby; and Little Vera is a pretty and clever Vera.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Milton Rays' company is here this week in A Hot Night, in which Mr. Arthur Milton and Miss Madge Duval, assisted by the Eldorado Quartette of Dancers and other artists, give a very amusing performance.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—The star item here this week is A. Ba-Be's pretty act, entitled The Picture Postcard Album. Other contributors are Helen Charles, vocalist; the Geraldos, jugglers; Percy Curry, comedian; Mdlle. Nadji, balancer; Les Papillons, dancers; Mabel Le Blanche, vocalist; and the Labakans, acrobats.

BLYTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. G. E. Good.—Mr. Charles R. Stone's company has occupied the stage here, with the exception of Tuesday, in the musical comedy, What Became of Mrs. Racket. In addition to this Mr. Albert Morron introduces his magic kettle and other mysteries.

Alexander Hall.—Bob Anderson and his clever combination are still in possession, the new arrivals being J. G. Heffron, comedian; and the Sisters Redfern, banjoists, vocalists, and dancers.

BOLTON.—Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Hermann.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company is this week presenting the original drama, The Female Swindler. Miss Constance Elgin cleverly sustains the part of Lu Valroy, otherwise Miss Darwen; Mr. Jerrold Heather is equal to the rôle of Jack Coulson, criminal investigator; Mr. Luke Forster displays some clever comedy acting, appearing in no fewer than four characters; Miss Florrie Kelsey (as May Andrews) and Miss Evelyn Marrable (as Mary Ann Mee) are good in their respective parts. Other characters are in able hands.

Grand Theatre, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—There is another good company appearing here, comprising the Bros. Egbert, "the Happy Dustmen," who appear in an amusing sketch; Smith and Johnson, coloured duettists; George Reeves, eccentric character comedian; Valoni, novelty juggler, with his wonderfully trained pigeons; Miss Fredrica's terriers and pony; Stylo, hoop manipulator; Miss Lily Foy, comedienne; Gus Hindell, comedian; Miss Beatrice Bonnie, comedienne; the Floradora Girls, vocalists and dancers; the Breton Troupe, in their pantomime sketch, entitled The Tramp's Picnic; and the Imperial Bioscope.

BOOTLE.—Royal Muncaster Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. Albert Wilson.—Napoleon the Great is being presented here this week. Mr. Hugh Montgomery gives a fine study of Napoleon, and his clever impersonation is well appreciated. Mr. Frank M. Thorne is a powerful Pierre Pomponnet; and Mr. Phil Harper as Colonel Meuron is well suited. Miss Chrissie Dunbar is an attractive Marie Walewska.

BOSCOMBE.—Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Mouillot and De Frece; General Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Ball.—This week the Trentanovi Sisters are here in their clever trapeze act, and Felix de Marce is also earning golden opinions with his admirably trained troupe of ponies, baboons, and dogs. Henry Troy, a tenor vocalist, is also much appreciated, as are the capital turns of Will Cornish, in his musical bells act The Silver Chimes; Prince Kuroki, the Japanese magician, and the musical clowns, Francis and Melli. Another great success is Joe Mac, vocalist and dancer; while Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope is provided with a new series of excellent films.

BRADFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—The final performance of the successful pantomime, Cinders, was witnessed by a crowded audience on Saturday evening last. The proceedings were of the usual noisy order, but good humour prevailed, and floral offerings and presents were showered upon the principals. Mr. Hart made his customary speech, and the curtain was lowered amidst great enthusiasm. On Monday the Carl Rosa Opera company commenced a short season with Faust, which was finely staged. Mr. E. C. Hedmont gave a fine performance of the title-rôle, and his rich voice was heard to advantage. Miss Lizzie Burgess greatly charmed the audience with her vocalism and pathos as Marguerite. Mr. Arthur Winckworth's Mephistopheles was a finely conceived effort; Mr. Lewys-James made a vigorous Valentine; as Siebel, Miss Anna Hope sang with effect; and Miss Douglas Wilson's Martha, and Mr. Frank Arthur's Wagner, were able efforts. The largely augmented orchestra was skilfully conducted by Mr. Walter Van Noorden. Tannhauser was presented on Tuesday. Don Giovanni, The Bohemian Girl, Rigoletto, Cavalleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, and Maritana, are billed for representation during the week.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Mr. H. A. Jordison's successful Babes in the Wood, was presented in its entirety to a large and highly pleased audience on Monday, and the performance went with a merry swing from start to finish. There is much to admire in the way of scenery, costumes, music and specialities, and in the latter Mr. George Chanti provides a novelty; his changes of character and costume being accomplished with remarkable rapidity. Miss Dolly Cullen and Miss Elsie Jordison are very dainty and particularly precocious Babes, and Miss Madge Daley's appearance and deportment well fit her for the character of Robin Hood. Maid Marion is played in winsome style by Miss Ada Martine. The Baron is capitally played by Mr. Edward Avon, a clever contortionist; Mr. Rowland Hill's Dame Peggie is a most diverting effort; Cullen and Carthy are a pair of funny Rogues; and others who are prominent in the capital cast are Miss Bella Brookland, Miss Ethel Brookland, Miss Edie Duncker, and Mr. W. Francis Greene.

The Empire.—Moss' Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. J. Kelly.—In Fred Karno's Mumming Birds we have a diverting musical burlesque on the modern music hall. Flo Challis, comedienne, in bright style contributes good songs; Rich and Rich are capital comedians; and Harry Lawson is a good eccentric. Rose Archer's mimicry of celebrities is clever. In their vocal character sketches and choruses the Sisters Hayden are popular; Fred Terry's comic songs are acceptable; Elsie Roby, comedienne, in a mono sketch, The Slavey's At Home, displays ability as a pianist, vocalist, and dancer; and the Great Lumars contribute a novel acrobatic act, to which is added an effective electric display.

Palace Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. E. Berry.—Harry Allister is giving a series of clever character impersonations here, and there is capital comedy in the turn by the Esdale Brothers. Lily Flexmore is a smart dancer; Professor Thornbury is distinctly clever as a lightning chromographist and ventriloquist; some wonderful instruments are utilised by the Four Maisanos in their musical entertainment; Charles Ridgewell gives an acceptable character comedy turn; Ethel May contributes successfully as a comedienne; an excellent vocal turn is furnished by Gus Daniels, and there are some enjoyable items, both instrumental and vocal, in the doings of Alice Raymond and John Kurkamp.

St. George's Hall.—Manager, Mr. S. H. Carter.—The New Century company is exhibiting a well; Thomas E. Finglas has some good Negro songs, and is assisted by a charming lady in Japanese costume, who dances gracefully; the Hartley Wonders do a smart jumping act; Ernesto juggles effectively; Edith St. Clare, comedienne, is applauded for her songs; and the Brothers Lavelle are successful as comedy acrobats. The performance concludes with animated pictures.

PALACE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Livermore Bros.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Secretary, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—The Black Troubadour Quartette of vocalists sing well, and obtain much applause; Albert Wyndham and company present a good exposition of scenes from Shakespeare's King John; Urquhart introduces a good act as a foot equilibrist; Nellie Lovell is always popular here as a male impersonator; Rozene and Robini amuse with their speciality, The Jap and the Russian; Lottie Albert is a pleasing comedienne; Fred Karno and company have a good absurdity, The Travellers' Rest; the Danbys score as eccentric comedians; Frank Crisp, comedian, amuses; and the Three Darrels have a pleasing and refined musical act. The performance concludes with animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA, LTD. — Managing Director and Licensee, Mr. James W. Haworth; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. B. Astin.—Mr. Walter Melville's combination, in A Girl's Cross Roads, written by Walter Melville, which is the attraction here. Miss Hilda Beverley as Barbara Wade made a great impression, and added to her reputation. Vice was well presented by Miss Kate Walford as Nellie Meadows; and Mr. P. Barry-Lewers as Cuthbert Lumley. Constance Cornell and Jack Livingstone, the heroine and hero, are pleasingly played by Miss May Straker and Mr. C. A. Melton. Old Farmer Meadows is an excellent study by Mr. Chas. Franmore. Mr. Fred Ingram as Toby Turvey, and Miss Gladys Newcombe as Tilly Vane, are responsible for much comic relief. The staging is excellent.

BURNLEY.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Culeen; General-Manager, Mr. Jas. E. Culeen.—Messrs. Scudamore and Richmond's company on Monday presented The Beautiful Avenger to a large and appreciative audience. Miss Nannie Meade's impersonation of Vashti Volta, the avenger, and Victor Stanhope, the explorer, commands admiration; Mr. Algernon Syms plays the part of Cyrus Telford with inexhaustible vigour; the villainous rôle of Zadoc Foxbane is admirably sustained by Mr. Edwin Walton; and Mr. Charles Dolls is a conspicuous success as Herman. Miss Cissie Podmore makes a noteworthy Edna Volta, and Miss Lilian Hawkins puts plenty of life and humour into the part of Arabella Binks.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—Go-Won-Go-Mohawk and her company are here for the week in the drama, Wep-Ton-No-Mah, a most exciting play depicting Indian life. In the title-rôle a most dignified and realistic impersonation is given by the celebrated Indian actress; Mr. C. H. Charles is a decided success as Colonel Stockton; Mr. Geo. Courtney, as Manuel Lopes, is a desperado of the deepest dye, and in conjunction with Mr. Isaac Shawcross (Captain Franklin), scores heavily. Mr. Guy D. Hackney, Mr. Dan Ryan, and Miss Jessie Hart, are responsible for some genuine fun, and appear with success in the variety scene; Mr. Theo. Alker is good as the Indian Chief; and a pleasing performance is that of Miss Minnie Goepel as Nellie Stockton.

BURY (LANCS).—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mrs. Morton Powell's company in A Woman's Devotion, is playing here this week. Mrs. Morton Powell gives an admirable portrayal of Gilbert Le Grand, and Miss Ethel Tinsley is effective in the part of Cora Eversleigh. Miss Maud Hastings gives a good performance of Maisie Loyale; Mr. George Gaisford plays well as Richard Chesney; Mr. F. Hodson and Mr. Bob Anderson are humorous as Bob Savage and Reginald Montmerancy.

OLYMPIA CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—The Selbinis, clever acrobats and cyclists, are at the head of the bill. Other turns include the O'Malleys, comedians; Miss Leola, juggler; Les Voces, two good vocalists; King and Delane, in a comedy, entitled At the Club; and the Four Jumels, musicians.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead; Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—A good programme includes Bert Williams, ventriloquist; Wragg and Wragg, athletes; Miss Ella Dean, vocalist; Barney Noble, comedian, and Henry Carlton and Co., in an absurdity entitled One Night Only.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Mr. Lewis Waller's company, under the direction of Mr. Peter Davey, commenced an engagement here on Monday with Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner. Captain Harry Peyton was presented by Mr. Norman Partridge in an ideal way, whether as the dashing officer or as the lover. Miss Essex Dane soon gained the sympathies of the audience, and gave a finished rendering of Miss Elizabeth; Miss Leonora Braham as Mistress Sarah Williams was also admirable. Mr. Elliott Ball played the unthankful part of the cowardly Major John Coldon uncommonly well; and Mr. J. Harold Carson was sufficiently humorous as Mr. Valentine.

CARDIFF.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford. Mr. William Greet's company is presenting The Sign of the Cross here this week, and the famous piece has been as successful as ever in drawing large and enthusiastic audiences. As Mercia, Miss Evelyn D'Alroy quickly wins the sympathy of her hearers; Mr. F. B. Woulfe, as Marcus Superbus, brings out all the strong points of that difficult rôle to the best effect; Mr. Bernhardt Turner is clever in his interpretation of Nero; and Mr. Chas. Aldred is a decided success as Tigellinus. Miss Nellie Bonser submits an excellent portrayal of Poppæa; Miss Alma Bolton is praiseworthy as Berenice; and Miss Ivy Millais, as Stephanus, shows unusual ability. Mr. Frederick Wood, Glabrio; Mr. J. Wetherall, Licinius; Mr. Harry Jones, Philodemus; and Miss Cissie Carlton, Darcie, are all very successful indeed.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Bateman; Business Manager, Mr. Robert Sawin.—Messrs. Fred Moule and Alfred Denville's company is appearing at the Westgate-street House in the new drama Bigamy. As Diana de Courcelle, exceptionally hard work falls on Miss Grace Lester, who, however, acquits herself creditably. A pathetic delineation of Lionel Craven is given by Mr. Kenneth Smith; Mr. Chas. Burdon submits a manly interpretation of Frank Merrivale; and an excellent Edgar Craven is found in Mr. Henry Handon. Miss Cynthia Mathews renders a pleasing portrayal of Sylvia Dresdon, while as her father, Sir Charles Dresdon, Mr. Monson Thorpe is well placed. Comedy is in the exceptionally capable hands of Miss Lydia Mannington as Dido; Miss Edith Fleetwood, as Esmeralda Grapes; Mr. Alfred Denville, as Rufus Cherrybull; and Mr. Francis Serle, as Polyphemus Voltaire.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—Owing to a throat trouble, Miss Vesta Tilley has been unable to appear at the Empire this week, and her hosts of admirers who were looking forward to her visit have been keenly disappointed. Her place has been taken by the ever-ready bioscope with excellent views of last Saturday's International match, Wales v. Ireland. The programme, however, is still very strong. Percy Honri is as entertaining with his concertina as ever; Julius Powell's pantomime sketch, A Quiet Room to Let, has not lost any of its popularity; Mr. Frank Seeley, a droll comedian, wins great applause; the Onllow Trio prove to be wonder workers with wire and equipoise; and the Ergotti and King Luis Troupe are undoubtedly a fine company of acrobats. Other clever turns are given by the Allisons, a duo of capable singers and dancers; Harry Wenburn, an eccentric singer of funny ditties; Grant and Allen, in their latest whimsicalities; and Flo D'Orville, the versatile artiste.

CARLISLE. — ALGIE'S HIPPODROME. — Proprietress, Mrs. P. E. Veitch; Manager, Mr. C. Algie.—The Ando Japanese Troupe of jugglers, acrobats and rope walkers top the bill this week, and give a wonderfully clever performance. Mdme. Collard provides a sensational novelty with her troupe of trained dogs. Le Warren's ventriloquial act has several novel features; a comical singer of comical ditties is Mr. Ted Waite; a smart bone solo is contributed by Mr. Will Crowson; Miss Sadie Dana successfully impersonates coon characters; and the Hippodrome Pictures grow in popularity every week.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business Manager, Mr. Henry Masterman.—Very attractive is the visit of Mr. George Testo Sante and company in the sensational drama, The Life of a Showman. Mr. Sante plays the character of Brian Leader, a circus acrobat, in able fashion, his exhibition of strength and endurance in act two winning much admiration. The villainous Hendrick Marasis is capitally undertaken by Mr. Sam Arthur. As Sir Noel Hartland, and afterwards as Stickers, a billposter, Mr. Charles Osborne presents excellent portraits. The part of the Rev. Cyril Arliss in the hands of Mr. Edward Warden, is skilfully portrayed; Miss Amy McNeill acts with force and vigour, and is highly successful as Agatha Winter; Lena is feelingly portrayed by Miss Thorne Hallam. As Angelina Mutton Miss Alice Granville is exceedingly droll, her make-up causing roars of laughter. A skilful sketch of Ned Chuckers is given by Mr. Fred Vaughan, and Mr. Allen Charles as Tommy Allthere, in conjunction with Mr. Johnny Clegg as Ben Tictac, are responsible for much of the humour of the piece.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. George G. Ridley.—Delighted audiences are this week witnessing Saturday to Monday, which is being performed by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company. Mr. Stuart Champion is highly successful as Lord Culvert, Miss Moyra Creegan a delightful representative of Mrs. Wendover, Mr. Dallas Welford's Stanley Pidding is a clever character sketch, and other parts are well filled as follows:—Probyn Dyke, Mr. Jack Hampton; the Rev. Lemuel Toop, Mr. Edwin Ling; Lady Diana, Miss Adeline Lester; Angia, Miss Kitty Doyle; Miss Toop, Miss Josephine Rae; Miss Street, Miss Ida Laurie; and Thompson, Miss Olive Loftus Leyton. The comedy is preceded each evening by Frederick Fenn's Judged by Appearances.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Howard and Collinson are causing plenty of fun in The Porter and the Parcel; the American couple, Hayman and Franklin, score with their scena, A Matrimonial Agency; A Hot Time for One is the title of a boisterous act contributed by the Five Bon-Bons; Bernard and Weston are still big favourites here; while others appearing are the Sisters Albert, vocalists and dancers; Daisy Martell, comedienne and dancer; Laffan B. Jolly, the laughing comedian; pictures, projected by Lacey's Erascope; and Will Johnson, comedian.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank J. Donne.—Apollo tops the bill here, and is astonishing the natives with his skill in feats of strength. The variety items include the Moxons, foot equilibrists; Florence Schuberth, burlesque artist; Starr and Leslie, in their song, patter, and Indian club display; the Pueblo Brothers, singers and dancers; Andy Burn, comedian and dancer; the Sisters Warner, duettists and acrobatic dancers; and the Edisonograph.

CHESTERFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mrs. Henry Swinerd's company, under the direction of Mr. J. W. Cordiner, is appearing here in Dare Devil Dorothy. Dorothy Monrose is well played by Miss Marjorie Cecil, her songs being greatly admired; Miss Kathleen Garnon is well placed as Ruth; Mr. Cecil W. Parke gives a fine performance of Captain George Fielding; the villain, Captain Edward Dudley, finds a good exponent in Mr. Henry C. Ward; Miss Nellie Harcourt as Judith, and Mr. Arthur Verne as Silas Crump, are excellent dancers; Mr. Wilfred Carr makes a capital Featherstone Haugh; and the Sisters Mabel and Lillie Blake execute some clever dancing.

CHORLEY.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé: Secretary, Mr. J. Clay.—Miss Daisy de Roy's pantomime, Dick Whittington, opened here on Monday. Miss De Roy charmingly undertakes Alice; Mdlle. Lucretia is a capital Dick; and the comedians, who are particularly smart, include Mr. Frank Dalens as Captain Shipwreck, Mr. Geo. Welch as Bosun, Mr. J. C. Bland as Jack, Mr. Sydney T. Pease as Eliza, and Mr. James Barrasford as the Alderman. Mr. Fred Bendo capitally undertakes the Cat, and does a clever contortion act. Rae and Rae are also included in the specialities, and give a particularly smart trapeze act. Mr. Harcourt Russell is successful in facial "Portraiture," and the Geisha Quartette are particularly graceful and clever dancers. Mr. Fred Eplett is in charge of the orchestra.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Wilson.—The attraction here this week is The Bells of Haslemere, ably presented by Mr. Charles A. Chandler's company. The Squire of Haslemere is well embodied by Mr. Leonard Yorke; as John Silkstones, the unscrupulous villain, Mr. Montague Turner supplies a carefully studied impersonation; Mr. Charles S. Chandler is a capital Captain Vere, his acting in the third act being especially fine. Miss Harrietta Pollini is all that can be desired as Evelyn Brookfield; Mr. Douglas Hamilton is good as Matthew Brookfield; Miss Mary Hardacre acts well as the much wronged Mary Northcote; Miss Florence Chandler is a fair Norah Desmond; Miss Stafford Smith is a sprightly Dorothy Tremble; and Mr. Charles Cecil is highly entertaining as Reuben Armstrong.

COATBRIDGE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs. Mary Watson; Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—The attraction here this week is provided by Mr. Fred Bulmer's company in Sentenced for Life, and the artistes were well received on the opening night. Mr. Edward E. Louis is rewarded with applause for his able rendering of Lieut. Roy Stillwell. An impersonation of decided cleverness is that furnished by Mr. Ernest Vaughan as Capt. Paul Derrick. Praise is due to Mr. W. Berkeley Hawthorn for his capital performance as Sir Wallace Stillwell; and Mr. T. C. Glenville and Mr. Tom Gilmore are equally successful as Bill Sharkey and Toby the Tadpole respectively. Miss Madge Douglas makes the most of her opportunities as Adele Gray; and Miss Gladys Hawthorn as Kate Rennel and Miss Mary Dalby also render valuable support.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—In Dark Siberia is here for six nights. Mr. W. T. Riley adapts himself to the chief part in a striking manner; Miss Carlotta Anson is a creditable Princess Natalie; and there is distinct merit in the acting of Miss Cecilia Ransome as Paul Gregorovitch, the Hebrew lad, who is the object of a display of anti-Semitism. Mr. Louis Weston, as Sergeant Petrovitch, relieves the piece with his humour. The villainy is capably presented by Mr. Wilson Howard as Major Waroff.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Messrs. Draycott and Peppin's company is fulfilling an engagement here this week, opening on Monday, in the drama, The Best Must Win. Mr. Chas. Draycott ably sustains the part of Gaston, Marquis de Marcie, alias the Panther, and as Paul Dumaresq Mr. Robert Watson is a manly hero Mr. Fred. Aldworth does full justice to the part of Sabritache, an old blind soldier; whilst his daugter, Denise, Miss Lilian Watson Lloyde is highly commendable; Miss Violet Ospringe leaves nothing to be desired in the rôle of Therese Dumaresq; and as Lucille Miss Kate Maynard does well. The comedy element, of which there is not much, is well filled by Mr. Frank G. Kent, as Jacques, and Miss Maud Hetherington as Suzette. The Stolen Birthright was given on Wednesday and Thursday, and East Lynne on Friday.

CORK.—PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—The star turn here this week is Mr. Charles Coborn, who appears in a number of new songs. As an encore on Monday he gave "Four Little Fingers and a Thumb." Lilian Travellie, an American soubrette, contributes some pretty songs; Andrew Moloney gives an interesting turn in Dickens' characters; Johnny Chippendale's songs and dances are most diverting; the Itrams, lady, gentleman, and child, give a sensational acrobatic exhibition; the Wartenberg Bros. have a novel juggling scene; Sam Dalton is a good grotesque; and Tell and Tell are excellent comedians.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Bennett.—The comedy, entitled A Country Mouse, is attracting considerable attention at this house of amusement. The company is under the direction of Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchinson. The part of the Hon. Archibald Vyse is safely entrusted to Mr. Percy Hutchinson, while as the Staid John Bowlby, M.P., Mr. Charles Harley is very satisfactory; Mr. F. G. Thurstans capably acquits himself as the Duke of St. Kitts; Mr. Edward Bonfield makes a very good Lord Robert Wykeham. Angela, the country mouse, is charmingly represented by Miss Violet M. Harley. Miss Dorothy Cacey is capital as Violet Aynsley; the same remark applies to Miss Violet Ley as Lady Sylvia Bowlby.

THE HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. T. M. Sylvester.—Chief amongst the attractions here is the special engagement of Miss Marie Lloyd, who quite upheld her reputation and was repeatedly recalled. The Morton Trio possess well-balanced voices; Rosell proves to be a clever trapeze artist; Miss Ella Lane is a good serio and dancer; and Fred Loyle and Co., in a sketch, entitled The Blind Spinster, prove attractive. An excellent set of animated pictures are also being shown.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor.—Messrs. Polini and Melford's company is appearing here this week with The Silver King. Mr. Herbert Ford, in the character of Wilfred Denver, gives due emphasis to the emotion of the part; Nellie Denver is played by Miss Lilian Bethel in an affecting manner; Mr. E. J. George displays his well-known art in his original character of Daniel Jaikes; Mr. Charles Levey gives the subtlety necessary to the part of the Spider; Cissy Denver is sweetly played by Miss Amy Manfree; Olive Skinner is efficiently sustained by Miss Phyllis Dailley; the character of Elijah Coombe is humorously depicted by Mr. Arthur Rooke; and Baxter, the detective, is cleverly portrayed by Mr. A. E. Palmer.

CROOK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Wallace Davidson, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Wallace Davidson.—This week the management are trying, as an experiment, two houses a night, with Mr. Dock Watson's variety company, which includes Gentleman Bobby Dobbs, boxer, and two pitmen boxers (Sharp and Simpson); Flora Hayes, song and dance artiste; J. C. Whitman, comedian; Captain Hutchinson and merry family; the Sisters Seymour, Clara Adams, and Doyle and Gibson.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Lawrence.—Croydon playgoers are grateful to Mr. Lambert for giving them a rich dramatic treat in the production of The Walls of Jericho this week. The company has been well selected, and the acting and mounting reflect credit on all concerned. Miss Dorothy Thomas shows great histrionic abilities, and her impersonation of Lady Alethea reaches a high level of excellence; whilst Miss Estelle Winwood gives a portrayal of Lady Lucy Derenham which wins for her genuine approval. Mr. Lawson Butt has cleverly studied the part of Jack Frobisher, and deserves all praise for his successful efforts; Mr. Alfred S. Baber hits off to a nicety the rôle of Hankey Bannister, and comes in for a large measure of applause; and other characters are acted with judgment and tact by Misses M. Ravenscroft, Mary Weigall, May Brooke, Eva Titheredge, and Messrs. Cecil Brooking, W. L. Owen, H. Kendell, W. Cadogan, and Morris Harvey. The orchestra here is conducted with skill by Mr. Leonard Gautier; and Mr. Reginald Lawrence is an affable acting-manager.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James.—Rich and Poor of London is being staged here this week. Mr. Douglas Vigors gives a fine, bold rendering of Dr. Leonard Morton; Mr. J. J. Bartlett is satisfactory as Mark Stanley; Mr. Edwin Coates acts and sings capitally as Gussy Lamb; Mr. Edward Boddy submits a neat sketch of Daniel Drake; and Messrs. Fowler Thatcher and Alf. Lester are commendable as Matthew Grabbam and Spider Jack. Miss Daisy Scudamore is much liked as May Braithwaite; Miss Florence Dalton is clever as Ruby Redgrave; Miss Blanche Stanley renders sterling services as Auntie Scrimp; and Miss Lucy Beaumont is a lively Polly Philpot.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Resident General Manager, Mr. Eustace H. Jay.—The amusements here are giving much pleasure. Mdlle. Violi, instrumentalist, is very good; Minnie Mace, comedienne and dancer, is admirable; the Bale troupe of cyclists are smart; Hal Forde is an excellent comedian; Walter Emerson, comedian, makes a big hit with his song, "Another One Off to America"; Will Musgrave, comedian, is much liked; and interesting turns are given by Ida Royston, comedienne; Katie Marsh, pot-pourri artiste; Leslie Reed, vocalist; Tom Bass, comedian and patterer; Atroy, juggler and hoop roller; Ethel Yorke, comedienne; Cissie Dryden, in naval scena, Sailors of the Empire; the Three Stars, dancers; Edgar Granville, comedian; and Violet Choice, comedienne and dancer.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manageress, Mrs. T. W. S. Jennings.—Messrs. Carson and Granville's company is here this week with Defending His Honour. Mr. John Davidson plays with force and earnestness as Douglas Bryce; Mr. Godfrey Tearle gives a capital performance as Stephen Graid; Mr. Harry Rutland is well suited in the part of George Duncan; Mr. Terry Davis is successful as Richard Verison; Mr. Kenneth Black, jun., works hard as Dick Verison; Jack Damish has an able exponent in Mr. J. Russell Bogue; a clever character sketch of David Beller comes from Mr. Thompson Carruthers; Miss May Smart is good as Harry Bryce; and Miss F. Melrose Millett, who is seen as Ethel Bryce, gives an effective representation.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. E L. Ormsby.—We are being favoured this week with a visit from Mr. F. S. Gilbert and his English Opera company. An excellent performance of Maritana was given on Monday night. Miss Marie D'Alcourt, in the title-rôle, sang with taste and expression, achieving an undoubted success. Mr. F. S. Gilbert, who met with a hearty reception, sang exceptionally well as Don Cæsar; Mr. Frank Halpin was heard to advantage as the King of Spain; Mr. Karl Mora was effective as Don José; and Mr. Stuart Bolton amusing as the Marquis; Miss Sara Marchani was pleasing as Lazarillo; and Mr. Kate White made a good Marchioness. On Tuesday evening Il Trovatore was given, preceded by a short piece of Suppe's Lovely Galatea. Miss Marie D'Alcourt was again successful as Lenora, and Mr. F. S. Gilbert, as Manrico, merited the reception he obtained. The chorus on both nights was capital. The programme for the remainder of the week includes Faust, The Bohemian Girl, and the Daughter of the Regiment.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Florodora is once more delighting local audiences, its exponents being Messrs. J. H. Callan and Wentworth Croke's company. Mr. William Everard plays Lord Abercoed with distinction, and as Dolores Miss Violet Leslie acquits herself admirably, the songs of both being warmly applauded. The part of Cyrus Gilfain is capably assumed by Mr. C. Young Fixott; while Tweedlepunch is divertingly depicted by Mr. Arthur Lenville. Lady Holyrood has a vivacious exponent in Miss Cissy Sephton, whose singing and dancing add much to the charm of the production. Mr. Frank Grans as Captain Donegal, Mr. W. W. Rousell as Leandro, and Miss May Yates as Angela Gilfain, all richly merit special mention. There is an excellent chorus, and the comedy is admirably staged. The orchestra has been augmented, and is under the direction of Mr. K. E. Irving.

PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—The head of an excellent bill here this week is the Boganny Troupe, whose sketch, The Lunatic Bakers, is decidedly clever, and causes much hearty amusement; the Bros. Lang are paying a return visit, and their diverting boxing act is as popular as ever. Little Dando, another local favourite, is accorded a hearty welcome; Herr Fritz, a clever magician and illusionist, gives a wonderful exhibition; and Miss Bouvrie Pleydell sings and dances in pleasing style, and scores a complete success. Rae and Lea appear in a praiseworthy comedy ring act; and the Three American Idols merit mention for their singing and dancing. De Voy, Hurst, and Frederick's funny sketch, Black Justice, is heartily appreciated.

DEWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Resident Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—The appearance here of A Royal Divorce, under the general supervision of Mr. W. W. Kelly, is giving universal satisfaction. Miss Edith Coles as Josephine again essays this trying rôle in excellent style; Mr. Frank Lister is a new Napoleon, but his rendering of the part requires special mention; Mr. H. Gray Dolby portrays the facetious Talleyrand in his accustomed good way; and Mr. Trevor Lowe is altogether satisfactory as De Beaumont. Mr. Alfred Grenville as Augereau is well placed; while praise must be given to Mr. Dennis Bryan for his portrayal of Grimaud. Miss Maggie Sardiff plays the little King very well, and the performance of Miss Ethel Murray as Marie Louise is acceptable. Friday evening was set apart for a complimentary benefit, and special attractions were announced, the whole being under the auspices of the Mayor (Major Chaley Fox, J.P.).

HIPPODROME AND VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Geo. Weldon.—Interesting and laughable turns are in much demand here. They include Miss Della Doree, who has a very refined style, and her songs are well selected; the Two Neroes, in a legmania act, are much appreciated; Tom E. Cliffe, comedian and dancer, is good; Hyam Long, musical comedian, repeats his former triumphs; Lynn, the singing newsboy, is heard to much advantage; and Carle and Carmanelli do well. The Jetneys, coloured comedians, find much favour. The Bioscope still continues to meet with hearty approval, no doubt owing to the constant supply of new films.

DONCASTER.—NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—The King's Pardon appeals to Yorkshire people because it is founded upon facts in the life of Spence Broughton, who was hanged in chains on Attercliffe Common, near Doncaster, in 1792. Mr. Charles Stirling gives a vigorous impersonation of Noel Blake; Mr. Charles Whitlock is a manly Clifford Yorke; Major Melville in Mr. George Thorpe's hands is absolutely safe; Mr. George Willis, as Spence Broughton, is pleasing; Mr. Horace Butler, as Simon Leigh, butler at the Grange, is well placed; and as Amos Neal, a lawyer, Mr. Jack Haines gives a lively embodiment. Miss Pollie Denville has every reason to be pleased with the interest she creates; Miss Violet B. Clarke is pretty, and as Marjorie Yorke is popular; and Miss Georgina V. France, in the rôle of Clifford's wife, is unquestionably clever.

DOUGLAS.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Sugden; General-Manager, Mr. Roberto-Lena.—The audiences at this playhouse have been large and appreciative. The revival of that thrilling, sensational drama, The Face at the Window, has proved most popular. Mr. Priestley's performance of La Loup, alias the Chevalier del Gado, was emphatic and impressive; Mr. Ernest Percival was interesting and romantic as Lucien; Mr. George Ogden amusing as Peter Pottlebury; and Mr. Frank Fox effective as Monsieur de Brisson. The detective of Mr. Roberto-Lena was well balanced and convincing. Miss Gertrude Lovel, a charming comedienne, was entertaining and effective as Babette; Miss Lena Lewis as Marie de Brisson showed that she possesses power, pathos, passion, and can use those gifts to advantage. The staging of Mr. Ernest Percival was excellent. On Friday evening a grand complimentary benefit was tendered Mr. Roberto-Lena, and a special programme was presented.

DOVER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—A capital entertainment is being provided this week by Messrs. Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholls' company in The Grip of the Law and Called Back. Miss May Grayse as Rose Hocaday is a winsome and sympathetic heroine, and acts with natural charm and unforced pathos. Miss Olive Parker shows marked ability in the rôle of Marion Arkwright, and Miss Ada Lucelle, by reason of her clever acting, gives prominence to the small part of Mrs. Raddicombe. Miss Ada Frank, a dainty comedienne, portrays the part of Beulah Bliss in a bright and pleasing manner, and, with Mr. Sam Roberts as Andy Blunt, is responsible for most of the fun of the play. Mr. Edwin Maydew plays with praiseworthy zeal and marked success the rôle of the hero, Dave Arkwright; and Mr. Courtney Robinson is excellent as the bluff old farmer, Jacob Hockaday. Mr. Herbert Evelyn gives an effective character study of Noel o' the Night, and his passionate speeches are well declaimed. Sergt. Frank Paul is impersonated by Mr. William Matthews, and this gentleman is to be commended for a thoroughly well-studied and artistic performances; Mr. E. D. Nicholls creates merriment by his portrayal of Zeph Sorrel, the stuttering detective; Mr. James Hill is dignified and impressive as Sir Digby Dunstan, and the same may be said of Mr. W. Gorrick as Inspector Martin. Mr. Hal Lowe is clever as Gabriel Pilgrim; and Mr. Stevenson, as Ezra Brown, is equally good. On Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, the drama, Called Back, was presented.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessees, Michael Gunn, Limited; General Manager, Mr. Charles Hyland.—Mr. Lilford Arthur's company opened here on Monday with the farcical comedy, A Prodigal Father. The rôle of Catesby Duff as played by Mr. Mallalieu is a remarkably clever and humorous performance, and Miss Ruby Chester is seen to advantage as Dolly Bonde. Stanley Jones is in the capable hands of Mr. Charles Collette, and as Birdikins Miss Irene Ross is admirable. The part of Tom Breeze has an able exponent in Major David Sellar, and Miss Rosamund Bury is all that could be desired as Kate Jones. Percy Jones is capitally played by Mr. Edmund Beresford, and as Beadle Miss Mabel Luxmore is excellent. Mr. Ernest Wintour is good as Smith. A one-act comedietta, By Mutual Consent, precedes.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—Mr. Frederick Mouillot's company commenced a four weeks' engagement here on Monday night, when The Shop Girl was the attraction. In the character of Miggles, Mr. Fred Lynne gave an admirable performance of the part, and caused no end of amusement, and the Septimus Hooley of Mr. Alfred C. Sandoe was undoubtedly a capital and humorous performance. Miss Ethel Netherton, who appeared in the rôle of Bessie Brent, was most pleasing and effective, and danced and sang her songs with effect. Miss Beatrice Edwards (who is well-known here) made a fascinating Lady Dodo Singleton, and her vocalism was heartily enjoyed. Miss Marie Shields gave an amusing portrayal of Ada Smith, Mr. Leslie Gaze acted excellently as Charles Appleby, and Mr. H. G. Hunt successfully presented Brown, of Colorado. Mr. Howard Cridland was good as Bertie Boyd, and the other parts were admirably filled. The choruses and orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. D. J. Damont, did their work excellently.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur S. Figgis.—The Four Welshmen are the principal turn here this week, their harmonious rendering of popular songs being warmly encored. Harry Grey, who remained over from last week, sang "Just tell them that you saw me," with great success; and Fred Lincoln's abilities as an eccentric comedian were highly enjoyed. The Proveanie Troupe do a neat and novel cyclist performance; the Sisters St. Julian excelled as duettists and dancers, and the vocal renderings of George Adams were particularly good. Albert Le Fre gave a good display of dancing, and Rackett and Hazard's musical turn was enjoyed. Milner Verren, tenor vocalist, and Martin and Quigg, comedy artistes, together with the Empire pictures, were also good, and received due recognition.

TIVOLI THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The Six Brothers Luck are here this week with the laughable sketch, The Hermit, which is well received. Will Dalton, character comedian, meets with considerable success, as does also Major Moss and Son, vocal scena artistes. The turn of La Belle Lily and M. Albert, trapeze performer and clown, merit applause, and Maude Clifton is a pleasing comedienne. The Wambas are capital musical artistes, and the songs sung by Percy Hannan, boy baritone, are appreciated. Shang Hia, Chinese conjuror, does some good tricks of legerdemain. Ethel Loftus, comedienne and mimic, scores; and Bert Lytton, comedian, is a favourite.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The company engaged here includes:—France Kimball, vocalist and instrumentalist; Prof. Anderson, ventriloquist; P. J. Leopold, comedian; C. H. Nelson, comedian and dancer; Harry Scott, pianist and vocalist; Fergus Volanti, comedian, whistler, and mimic; Madam Hypa, clairvoyant; Eugene, palmist; and Lucy Moore, the American giantess.

SAMUELS' EXHIBITION PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels. The following artistes are appearing here:—Ida Campbell, serio; Tilly Wood, male impersonator; J. H. Walsh, Irish comedian and dancer; Eily O'Mara, serio; the Singing Trunk, ballad vocalist; and George Harcourt, tenor.

DUMFRIES.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Mr. F. R. Benson's North Shakespearean company is here this week. The Merchant of Venice was given on Monday. Mr. Henry Herbert acted with great power as Shylock; Mr. Owen Chambers was well placed as Antonio; Mr. T. A. Shannon, as Bassanio, was all that could be desired; Mr. Alex Begbie, as Lorenzo, was very successful; Miss Gladys Vanderzee gave a fine rendering as Portia; and Miss C. Laws a finished impersonation of Jessica. The other plays for the week include As You Like It, Merry Wives of Windsor, Romeo and Juliet, She Stoops to Conquer, and Hamlet.

DUNDEE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; General-Manager, Mr. Sandon Perkins.—A Chinese Honeymoon pays a welcome return visit, and has lost none of its freshness and charm. Miss Vera Vere gives an excellent performance as Fi-Fi; Miss Nellie Wigley as Soo-Soo gives a capital rendering of the song "Egypt"; Miss Jose Collins as the jealous bride sang and acted well; and Miss Alice Drammond as the mother-in-law was all that could be desired. Mr. Philip Haydon as the Emperor has a capital voice and a handsome stage presence; Mr. Percy Yorke as Tom Hatherley created a favourable impression; and Mr. Leonard May made a capital Lord High Admiral.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—The Lightning's Flash pays a return visit here. Mr. Leonard Robson undertakes the rôle of Stephen Merrick with conspicuous success; Mr. Sydney Hearns makes a capital Gordon Garville; and Mr. Will Harradine enacts the part of Jim Bargiss with success. Mr. Harry Vernon, an old favourite, and Miss Blanche Vernon, fill in the comedy work with much acceptance; Miss F. Russell makes a sympathetic Kate Merrick; and Miss Eva Reid is a clever Zulu.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Will Parker; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. Alf. Ross.—Miss Effie White pays a return visit here, and charms everyone with her artistic kaleidoscope dances; Mr. Jack Lorimer remains for another week, and still further enhances his reputation; the Five Warwicks go through an amazing trick cycling act, and A. P. Foswell contributes a smart juggling ex

S. Anchor does well as Balthazar. A strong, tuneful chorus, under the bâton of Mr. H. H. Shaw, and excellent scenery, complete the very satisfactory production.

The Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—At the top of the capital variety bill here is Mr. Sam Mayo, who sings his clever songs in a quaint and novel style; Miss Alice Lorette and her wonderfully trained dog appear in very pretty and appealing tableaux; Messrs. Onda and Artell display much daring, strength, and smartness in their trapeze act; Mr. Charles Ulrick is a past-master in the art of foot-balancing; Miss Gracie Taylor is a pretty comedienne; Mdlle. Yetta is a graceful and accomplished wire artiste; Miss Ivy Dawn scores as a ballad vocalist; and a new series of Hippodrome pictures amuses the audience.

EBBW VALE. — King's Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Knight.—During the week Mr. Fred Karno's company, in the musical farce, His Majesty's Guests, has provided a most amusing performance. Mr. R. H. Kitchen, a popular and clever comedian, took the part of Fritz; while Sergeant Lightning was now entrusted to Mr. George Hestor, and he furnished the audience with a remarkably fine performance. Mr. Charles Usher, as Mr. Miffin, was exceedingly comical; Bunker was well portrayed by Mr. Harry Taylor; Miss Hetty Gale, as Dolly, and Miss Blanche La Rose, as Miss Manley, scored in their respective parts.

ECCLES.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Potasch and Wardle; Manager, Mr. P. Potasch; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Ryan-Smith.—Local playgoers are having a musical treat this week in the visit of the Moody-Manners Opera company, who opened on Monday in Tannhäuser. Mr. Edward Arthur essayed the title-rôle, and sang the difficult music extremely well. Miss Enriqueta Crichton played the part of Elizabeth, and sang and acted with artistic ability. Mr. Walter Barrett was good as Wolfram and Mr. T. H. Wood made a capable Landgrave. Miss Gertrude Booth scored in the part of Venus. The week's programme includes Traviata, Faust, Maritana, Cavalleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, and The Bohemian Girl.

EDINBURGH. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Limited; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Hollister.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company in The School Girl, which proved such a big attraction on its first visit to Edinburgh as a Christmas entertainment, appeared at this theatre on Monday. Mr. Herbert Darnley was the life and soul of the piece as Sir Ormsby St. Leger, his gaiety keeping the house thoroughly amused. As General Marchmont Mr. Charles Adeson provided a capital study of the red-nosed old roué, and Tabby Bedford was impersonated with the necessary guileless simplicity by Mr. Alfred Leslie. Mr. Cecil Kingsley was earnest and unaffected as Edgar Verney; the Overend of Mr. Charles W. Anson, and the Corner of Mr. Frank Sutton were both good performances. As Lilian Leigh, Miss Nellie Hodson was full of brightness; Miss Kate Forster rendered the music of the Mother Superior tastefully, also making a handsome figure as Mrs. Marchmont; Miss Jenny Bonney was a charming Cicely Marchmont; and Miss Bessie Maddox, as Mamie Rockfeller, scored in her "Little Canoe" song.

Lyceum Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Limited; General-Manager, Mr. G. T. Minshull.—A visit from the Moody Manners Opera company is always an attraction here, and on Monday Tannhauser drew a large and appreciative audience. Mr. Joseph O'Mara once more appeared in the title-rôle, his performance being marked by artistic restraint and dramatic power throughout. His clear resonant voice was admirably suited to the fine declamatory music, and he was loudly recalled after each act. Mr. Charles Magrath's Landgrave was a dignified performance, and Mr. William Dever as Wolfram sang with expression and feeling. Mr. N. Davidson gave Walther's music with much effect; Mr. F. H. Erle was a satisfactory Biterolf; Madame De Vere made a welcome appearance as Elizabeth, singing and acting with great charm and grace. Miss Toni Seiter sang with power as Venus, and Miss D. Eshelby appeared as the shepherd. The chorus and ensemble were again a feature of the production, and the enlarged orchestra, under the efficient direction of Herr Richard Eckhold, gave a beautiful rendering of the music. On Tuesday Carmen was presented Lohengrin was given on Wednesday, Tristan and Isolde on Thursday, La Favorita on Friday, and the Bohemian Girl is down for to-night.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Eade Montefiore.—The closing week of "the successful Tilleresque," Dick Whittington, has drawn crowds to this popular place of amusement, and the prosperity of the run of pantomime so ably engineered by Mr. Eade Montefiore has continued to the end. This week Miss May Murray is appearing as Alice with complete success. Miss Gracie Grahame, Mr. Bob Selvidge, and Mr. Dan Thomas are still prime favourites.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—Saturday to Monday always provides a constant supply of mirth. As John Willie Jaggs, Mr. Kitchen is the embodiment of fun, and the pace never slackens when he is on the stage. Miss Lily Langtry can always be relied on to keep things lively, and her songs have gone with a rattle. Belle Davis and her pick-chick actors provide a good turn; Conway and Leland, the monopedes, have once more hopped into favour; Walter Stanley's songs have been sung with great gusto; and a warm welcome has greeted the tried and trusty comedian, Mr. James Fawn. Other turns are: The Brothers Obo, smart patter duettists; Fred Neiman, ventriloquist; George Antill, comedian; and Carlo and Maie, comedy acrobats.

Pavilion Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Tom Ellis.—The Black Mask, given here this week, has provided plenty of sensation. Mr. George Hunter appears as Henri Le Noir, captain of "The Black Mask;" Mr J. Clifford Wright as Walter Blackmore, the hero, and Miss Georgina Thomas as Nellie. Mr. Fred Cherry and Miss Kitty Thomas introduce some bright comedy relief.

EXETER. — Theatre Royal.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Fred Pollard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—The Scarlet Woman is being represented here by Miss Rosalind Scott-Watson's company. The four-act drama has many amusing as well as realistic scenes, and the laughable portions of it are sustained with much ability by Mr. Tod Squires as Samuel Hopkins, Miss Ruby Hamilton-Belasco as Charlotte Simpkins, and Miss Lily Marshall as Fanchette. Miss Rosalind Scott-Watson herself impersonates the character of Marie Brandon (the scarlet woman), and portrays the rôle with great artistic ability. Mr. Reginald Fox, as Richard Marchant, the confiding and deceived husband, gives a dignified rendering; Mr. Harry E. Robinson, as Will Raymond, alias Oscar Brandon, well merits the opprobrium he so "honestly" earns. A special word of praise is due to little Miss Bertha Adams, who gives a realistic rendering of the poor little outcast Jeanne. Mr. Basil Hillier also does well as Phillip Gordon.

FALKIRK.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—The Compton Comedy Co. provided the entertainment for the first three nights of the week at this theatre. The piece produced on Monday was the perennially-attractive Davy Garrick, and in the title-rôle Mr. Compton acquitted himself with rare distinction. His interpretation of the character was excellent. He was ably supported by Miss Haidee Gunn as Violet; her charming presence and finished acting were much admired. The other major parts were entrusted to Miss Mackenzie (a daughter of Mr. Compton), Miss Marie Hassell, and Messrs. Henry Crocker, A. B. Imeson, G. W. Johnston, Chas. R. Stone, and Arnold Lucy. Tom Noddy's Secret made a pleasing curtain-raiser. On Tuesday, The School for Scandal was witnessed by a large audience, and on the Wednesday, when Mr. Compton took his benefit, there was a big house. The new fantastic play, entitled To-morrow, was given that evening for the first time in Falkirk, and produced a very favourable impression. On Thursday evening, Messrs. Haddon and Loader's No. 1 company began a three nights' engagement in the sensational drama, The Greatest Scoundrel Living.

FARNWORTH.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Morton Powell.—Miss Lena Stanton's company is here this week, in the musical comedy, The Belle of Bangalore, a go-as-you-please musical play, in which a large number of music hall turns are successfully introduced. The part of Princess Koko is played in a fascinating manner by Miss Stanton, who acts and sings throughout with verve and animation. Mr. Bruce Green is a capital representative of Rajah Roo, and helps to keep the ball of fun rolling merrily. Mr. G. James, as Rum Omyo, is another fun maker who is very successful in his comic endeavours. The part of "It" (a mystery) is played in excellent style by Little Keeno, who is styled, "The young Dan Leno," and his efforts meet with success. Other parts are played by Miss Marie Gerrard, as Small Sing; and Miss May Clark, as Sighno. There are several specialities introduced, and the play is excellently mounted.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Miss Lilian Dundas and company, in The New Magdalen, were here the first three nights of the week. Miss Lilian Dundas as Mercy Merrick played with rare power and feeling; Miss Ethel Caryllon was a capital exponent of Grace Rosebery; Mrs. Walter Bentley gave a pleasing rendering of Lady Janet Roy; Mr. A. W. Tyrer acted exceedingly well as Horace Holmcroft; Mr. Sidney Young deserves mention as Ignatius Wetzel; Mr. A. Mansfield and Mr. E. Barrington Foote were both good in their respective parts of Captain Arville and Surgeon Surville; Mr. Vivian was excellent as Detective Chisholm, and Mr. Henry Dundas gave a well-studied representation of Julian Gray. The Ben Greet company, in La Poupée, was the attraction on Thursday and Friday.

GAINSBOROUGH.—King's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Jack Cromo. — This week the above theatre has been opened as a variety house on the two houses a night principle. A strong company has been engaged, consisting of the three Sisters Adrienne, who contribuated a smart turn; Bondoni, a clever musical expert; Miss Kitty Rayner, who gives some charming items; Mr. Will Sanders, a clever dancer; La Belle Sylvia, a juvenile club manipulator; and Mr. Albert Frecar and Ethel Mohr.

GATESHEAD. — Queen's Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Smith.—Mr. Harry Starr and company in Otto the Outcast, Napoleon the Man, and Schwenk the Dreamer have attracted crowded audiences to this theatre during the week. The two latter productions were played on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings. As Otto the Outcast, Mr. Harry Starr scored a distinct success; Mr. Richard Harris made a first-rate Roderique D'Estalier; Mr. Wm. Miller was seen to advantage in the character of Daddy Bruneau; and Mr. Max Coutts as a capable Marquis Marcel de Laporte. Miss Queenie Fraser Brunner displayed much talent in the character of Lara, a flower girl; Miss Edma Lester scored a distinct success in the rôle of Susette; and Miss Rita Rosslyn was a first-rate Corrinne Jarbeau. In Schwenk the Dreamer, Miss Ethel Danbury acted feelingly as Greta von Clump.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting Manager, Mr. T. France.—The comic conjurer, Imro Fox, supplies the chief turn here in an entertaining bill. The Waldrons, burlesque adepts, provide an acceptable entertainment; Ara, Zebra, and Vora are a trio of acrobats who give a good sketch, entitled Indian Pastimes; Chas. F. Best is responsible for a quaint show in "Mac Bunker the Mountebank"; and Sadie Simpson provides a good turn as a coon and dancer. Primavesi is an entertaining juggler, and the rest of the bill is made up by Fred Cane, vocal comedian; Cribb and Cribb, comedians; and Geo. Trusty, vocal comedian.

GLASGOW. — Theatre Royal, Limited. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—The Orpheus Club are this week, in the cause of charity, giving six performances of Gilbert and Sullivan's popular opera, Princess Ida, which is produced in a manner that would do credit to professional combinations.

Royalty, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—A return visit is being paid this week by Miss Ada Reeve and her company in Winnie Brooke, Widow. Miss Reeve again captivates the audience with her dainty and amusing impersonation of the widow, her songs, too, are given with excellent effect, and find great favour with the house. Mr. Charles Weir takes the part of Dudley Mayne, and his gentlemanly bearing is admirably suited to the character, while the spirited acting and expressive singing of Mr. Edgar Stevens make the part of Reginald Frampton notable; the Montague Brent of Mr. Harry Halley is a happy effort; and the Rev. Elihu Garside and his wife are a highly amusing couple as depicted by Mr. Frederick Tyrrell and Miss Alice Lawrence. Mr. L. Ashton-Terry extracts a deal of fun from the part of Julian Croft, and capital character sketches are submitted by Mr. Ulick Burke as Toby and Mr. Donald Brice-Evans as Hercules. The Honoria of Miss Drusilla Wills has many effective touches; and Gracie and Nora are bright and engaging girls as played by Miss Mabel Murray, and Miss Ruth Hazelwood respectively; the Hannah of Mrs. Charles Maltby being also good. The play is produced by Mr. Wilfred Cotton, and has the advantage of a full chorus and orchestra under the direction of Mr. J. A. Robertson.

King's Theatre, Limited. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Macfarlane.—The Orchid, played by Mr. George Edwardes's company, is here this week. Miss Rita Everard makes a charming Lady Violet; Miss Gertrude Gilliam is equally so as Josephine; Thisbe, by Miss Amy Payne, being likewise successful. Miss Irene Verona, delightful as ever, takes the part of Caroline; Miss Ethel Griffies as Zelie, and Miss Katie Leechman as the Countess are both of much value to the cast. Mr. George Gregory is once more the irresistible Meakin, and the Guy Scrimgeour, the doctor, the Zaccary, and the Count of Messrs. Chas. Brown, Donald Hall, E. W. Coleman, and Clifford Seyler, are altogether most successful. Mr. A. S. Clunes made a capital substitute on Monday evening for Mr. Ellis Ogilvie (indisposed), as Mr. Chesterton.

Royal Princess's.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey's company is here this week with The Colleen Bawn, in which Mr. Mackey sustains the part of Myles-na-Copalleen with all his usual drollery; while Mrs. Mackey gives an excellent representation of Anne Chute. Mr. Charles Horner supplies a vigorous rendering of Hardress Cregan, and Mr. John S. Chamberlain is effective as Danny Mann. The title-rôle is charmingly played by Miss Lalla Stanhope; while the rascally Squire Corrigan, in the hands of Mr. Haughton Macaulay, brings upon himself the execrations of the gallery. Mr. H. Sainsbury makes a fine paternal Father Tom; and Miss Adele Liddon a dignified and matronly Mrs. Cregan. Miss Mona Russell as Ducie Blennerhasset; Mr. Henry Danson as Kyrle Daly; Mr. Harry Mason as Bertie O'Moore; Mr. George Edwards as Hyland Creagh, and Mr. John Dawson as an attendant, complete an effective cast. The play is enlivened with some good songs. His Last Legs is given as an afterpiece, in which Mr. Mackey takes the part of Felix O'Calligan.

Grand, Ltd.—Managing Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Mascard.—Mr. Charles Frohman's company is appearing here this week in the well-known play Sherlock Holmes. As the cool, self-possessed detective, Mr. H. A. Saintsbury is the soul of the piece, his admirable conception of his subject hugely delighting the audiences. The Madge Larrabee of Miss Maud Linden is a capital bit of acting, and Mr. Leslie Carter deserves commendation for his study of James Larrabee. As Professor Moriarty, Mr. W. F. Stirling is in every way suited; and Mr. Lawrence Leyton is an ideal Dr. Watson. The pathos of the piece is introduced by Miss Vera Longden, who, as Alice Faulkner, acts with great effect. Miss Lilian Locke as Therese, and Miss Ethel St. Leger as Mrs. Smedley, sustain their parts with success. Mr. Pelham Rayner as Sydney Prince; Mr. J. Poole Kirkwood as John Forman; Mr. Milo M. Loomis as Parsons, and Mr. Walter Hicks as Billy, are happy selections.

Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Dunbar.—Mr. Frank Lindo and company are presenting Home Sweet Home here this week. Mr. Frank Lindo as the hero, Stephen Armitage, is seen to capital advantage; and Miss Marion Wakeford as Joan, acts with much pathos. Mr. Wilson Coleman as Lucas Lyle is a much detested villain; Mr. George Jervis displays ability as David Armitage; and Mr. George Overs is well suited as Dick Redmayne; while the Duke of Ancaster is ably presented by Captain Gerald Gambier; the Hon. Percy receives good treatment in the hands of Mr. Sidney Bryant. As Sybil Fay, Miss Gertrude Bingham is very effective; Miss Madge Bingham impersonates Dora with success. Mr. Jack Lennard does well as Solomon Heary, and Mr. Ernest E. Owens scores as Lord Silvermere.

Lyceum.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Mr. Gus C. Livesey's company is here with the new sensational drama, The Crimson Club. Owing to the sudden death of Mr. Livesey last week, several changes have been made in the cast. Mr. Bert H. Pearson now takes the part of Richard Fenton, and gives a clever performance. Mr. Lionel Thomson makes a callous and vindictive Sir Philip Garside, the evil genius of the play. A well acted part is the Hon. Herbert Selby of Mr. E. Calham Burke. Mr. Jerold E. Reed, acting-manager of the company, ably fills the breach caused by the transfer of parts, and cleverly doubles the parts of Silas Craddock and Richard Steele. Mr. Percy Shaw, as the impecunious Reginald Adolphus Garside, gives an extremely good impersonation of a hard-up swell, and as a singer and a "sifleur," is a big favourite. Miss Elsie Mesnerd is a sympathetic heroine as Muriel Lockwood; Miss Frances Waring is well placed as the designing woman of the world, Julia Marsden. Miss Lily Day gives able effect to the part of the wronged girl, Esther Craddock. Miss Connie Arden as the eccentric wife of the hard-up Garside, ably contributes to the comedy scenes. The play is well staged.

Empire, Limited.—District-Manager, Mr. S Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Aldin.—A company of all-round excellence is appearing here this week, the chief attraction being the engagement of Malcolm Scott, comedian and patterer, who has had a flattering reception. Staley's Transformation Company, including Miss Ada, are retained another week. The Bros. Leslie give a pleasing musical performance, and Palles and Cussick maintain their reputation. Albert Whelan, comedian, gives clever impersonations of Chirgwin, Stratton, and Harry Lauder. Albert and Edmunds' Company provides a comical sketch, entitled A Trip to Boulogne; and Morton and Elliott, speciality artistes, are first class. The other members of the company include Florrie St. Clair, dancer; T. C. Callaghan, comedian; and Harry Clifford, comedian.

Tivoli and Queen's, Limited.—General Manager, Mr. S. King Alexander; Acting-Managers, Messrs. P. Mackay Findlay and T. J. Colquhoun.—Lily Morris and Messrs. Regan and Ryan, after their respective successes at the Princess's during the pantomime, are drawing crowds to these halls, and proving big favourites. Mahatma provides one of the best thought-reading and telepathy displays we have seen here. Robert Robertson and Florence Lambeth make a big hit with the clever sketch Scotch Folks Wooing. Louis Hardt shows wonderful muscular development for a young man, and accomplishes some marvellous feats of strength; Dale and Vale are extremely neat dancers; Booker and Narbis give a lively American variety sketch; Ivy Graham, Fred Casburn, Bros. Teviotdale, smart gymnasts and strong men; R. Y. Macdonald, George Foyle, Sheila Barrett, Bert Bruce, and Bendon's Bioscope complete a first-rate bill.

Palace.—Proprietors, Messrs. Rich. Waldon and Thos. Barrasford; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. M'Kelvie.—The principal item in the programme here is that of the Three Rainats in a flying trapeze act. Cliff Ryland, comedian and story-teller, is also favourably received. In addition, the company includes several attractive turns, such as Texas Hattie, tight rope artiste; Two Erolls in an equilibristic act; La Belle Wilma, artist in sand and smoke; Maud Vera, descriptive serio; the Villions Troupe, acrobats and cyclists; Miss Russell, comedienne and dancer; and the Animatograph with a series of up-to-date pictures.

Britannia.—Lessee, Mr. Jas. Anderson; Manager, Mr. Harry Hemfrey.—The old Glasgow favourite, Mr. N. C. Bostock, goes well here this week in a budget of songs. Mr. Hemfrey dons the entertainer's mantle in a sketch, entitled Prince and Tinker, with a capable party, and variety is added by the illusions of Dr. Oliver, very clever and entertaining, which include a "magic kettle" display, and the singing mannikins by Jaco. Ballads are tastefully sung by Miss Nellie Elliene, and as patterers, singers, and dancers, the Bros. Allison come in for considerable applause. The Scotch comic songs by Johnnie Walker take well, and a first-rate turn is that of Rose Montague, vocalist and dancer; Harry Williams, vocal comedian, also scores. The Sprangelettis circus business is most interesting, and evinces good training.

Harmonic Concerts.—Musical Secretary, Mr. William Biggam.—J. A. Wilson's negro entertainment is as good as ever; Clyo and Rochelle are clever in song and dance; Hubner's Animatograph in a series of pictures, is much enjoyed. Nelson and Thomas, in their comedy sketch On the Ra-Ta, are responsible for much merriment; Mackinnon Family, instrumentalists and dancers; George Rae, Scotch comedian; Rene Best, comedienne; W. W. Kinniburgh, baritone; Jack Henri, comedian; and Bessie Matheson, soprano, all provide attractive turns.

GLOUCESTER. — Theatre Royal. — Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. W H. Weller.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's company in A Chinese Honeymoon, has received a cordial welcome. Miss Florence Hallam is a captivating Soo-Soo; and Mr. Sydney Bart has a part that suits him excellently; Mr. Steane Lough possesses a capital voice, and is heard to advantage as the Emperor; Mr. Louis Ashmeade plays cleverly as Chippie Chop; Miss Ettie Cinders proves fully equal to the rôle of Fi Fi, and is responsible for a good deal of merriment; Tom Hatherton has a smart representative in Mr. Arthur Foote; and Miss Alicia Norton is successful as Mrs. Pineapple; Mr. Maxwell Stewart is good as High Ling; and a vivacious embodiment of the bridesmaids are given by Misses Daisy Dale and Marie Ford. Miss Dulcie Garland is entitled to praise as Mrs. Brown, as is Miss Haidee Heath as Mi-Mi; Mr. W. Ross is noticeable as Coolie; and Soo Soo's Maids of Honour are neatly enacted by Miss Love and Miss Jean Templeton.

GOOLE.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson.—An excellent programme is provided this week by Mr. Harry Firth's Bioscope and variety company. The variety company is a strong one. Miss Clarice Mignon contributes a capital musical turn; Miss Maudie Kendal is a smart dancer; Miss Madge Osmond, Miss Ethel Mohr, and Miss May Vincent are also worthy of special mention. A capital ventriloquial turn is given by Lieutenant Charles Valvo; Mr. Tom Leamore is a funny comedian; and Professor Fred Earle a clever conjuror. Mr. Ernest Wilson, actor-vocalist, also meets with a hearty reception.

GREAT GRIMSBY. — Prince of Wales's Theatre. Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. Tolfree.—The drama, The World's Desire, has appeared here this week. The author, Barry Williams, has departed from his usual line, and instead of a costume play has constructed a modern melodrama of the semi-sensational type. Mr. and Mrs. W. Giffard's company is responsible for its representation. Mr. Giffard has much hard work in portraying the characters of Robert and Henry Selkirk, but accomplishes good work in each. Mrs. Giffard infuses a combination of tragedy and the reckless spirit of the woman of the world into her interpretation of Dora Mutley. Mr. Clifford Rean satisfactorily depicts the rascality of the Hon. Ellis Tridley, and as his misguided partner, Nathaniel Mutley, Mr. J. O. Dupone fulfils all requirements. Miss Ella Seton is good as Helen Berkshaw, and Miss Graham Edwies causes much amusement as Justerina.

New Palace Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. Stewart Cecil.—The electric review, "In Paris," has proved as novel as it is entertaining. Mr. J. W. Rowley, an old Grimsby favourite, has proved as popular as ever. The vocal duets of Russell and Roper have been much appreciated, whilst the same may be said of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Bronte, who are responsible for a bright comedy sketch. Clever equilibristic work has been accomplished by Moretti and Alice, and the rope walking feats of Geo. Linton gain considerable applause. Artistic modelling in clay is the speciality presented by Bicknelle, and Ida Ross, comedienne, and Star and Gerome, vocalists and dancers, complete a capital programme.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Arnold, jun.—The Tyrolean songs and dances of the Sarnthaler Troupe have caused much favourable comment. Smart patter and songs have been contributed by the Bros. Ralston, and their song speciality, "Blind Leading Blind," is a rather original idea. Robert Gilbert's dogs and cats give evidence of careful and patient training. May Fellowfield has charmingly rendered up-to-date American songs; Arthur has shown exceptional ability as a mimic; Vincent's exhibition of tumbling is quite unique; Herbert Rule has proved a quaint comedian, and the Bioscope pictures are interesting.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—Royal Aquarium.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Mr. C. Watson Mill and company are here this week with the successful melodrama, A Wrecker of Men. The author of the play, Mr. C. Watson Mill, enacts in vigorous fashion the rôle of the burglar, Jim Murley; Mr. George Harvey plays well as Railton; Pharosaphus is capitally represented by Mr. Charles Yorke; Mr. Percy Horton is effective as Guise Strange; Mr. J. W. Ryder as Karnaphus and Ezekiel Isaccs gives an exceedingly clever interpretation; Mr. Frank Oliver is very successful as the Hon. Reggie Verincourt; Mr. Gilson Brooke is earnest and manly as Eric Melville; Miss Rosalind Tate is excellent as Risca Mallison; Miss Victoria May is sympathetic as Doris Melville; and Miss Gracie Garside is admirable as Vavasole Slopper.

GREENOCK.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The Executors of the late Mr. Alex. Wright; Managers, Messrs. A. B. Wright and J. J. Wright.—Miss Mary Austin's company is playing The Cotton Spinner here this week. Mr. John S. Haydon as John Prescott acts throughout with great power; Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds fills the rôle of Arthur Northbury with ability; and the part of Lord Northbury is excellently played by Mr. Edwin L. Fisher. Mr. Ernest C. Edwards is amusing as Major Stratton, and Mr. Frank Eaglesfield is a capable exponent of Foster Cunningham. Miss Mary Austin acts with charming grace and naturalness the part of Mary Prescott; Miss Mag Grimshaw ably impersonates Constance Harrington; and Miss Bella Power is amusing as Lady Needy.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—The bill here is headed by the Two Bees, who give their Hiawatha scena, which is appreciated; King Leo, ventriloquist, is very clever; the Du Gros Trio give an amusing gymnastic act; James Grant, comedian and dancer, is applauded; the Rushforths, with illustrated songs, do an excellent turn; and the Smythsons are seen in an amusing sketch, The Lie Alarm.

HALIFAX.—Grand Theatre.—General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—Lucky Durham is proving a great attraction this week. The company producing it is to be complimented on the undoubted success achieved. The title-rôle is admirably played by Mr. William F. Grant, whose conception of the part, and the execution of it, are worthy of commendation. Mr. Henry de Solla gives a clear, clean, crisp performance as Lord Mountfallon; Mr. Daniel McCarthy is a worthy representative of Mr. Vallerton; Mr. Paul Belmore plays his part with consummate skill. It is a part that might easily become ridiculous, but it is presented with a nice appreciation of the character—that of the Hon. Reginald Steighton. Miss Molly Pearson gives a bright, cheerful and attractive portraiture of Helen Vallerton; Miss Jessie Winter, in a small part, is very successful; and Misses Louisa Gourlay, Emily Levettez, Gertrude Robins, and Frances Irving, are contributors to the general success.

Palace Theatre.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—The Four Darktown entertainers are well received here this week. Their work is smartly and well performed. Belrose and De Velin, duettists, sing well. A sketch, entitled A Bit of String, is smartly performed by B. Harris and Lilly Pearl; Mdlle. Olga is a graceful and clever trapezist; Yandinoff is a rapid painter in oils; and the Lannons, duettists and dancers; D. W. Watson, post horn soloist; and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Knox, are also in the bill.

HANLEY.—Royal, Limited. — Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Howard. Beauty and the Barge is the attraction here this week, and Mr. Cyril Maude's company is one of excellence. Mr. Blake Adams, as Captain James Barley, acts cleverly; Lieut. Boyne finds a capital exponent in Mr. Horace Lane, who plays the young naval officer admirably; Mr. Percy Knight, as Herbert Manners, is well placed, and makes the most of his part; Major Smedley, the retired officer, finds a suitable representative in Mr. Walter Pemberton; Mr. Chas. Goold contributes a fine piece of character acting as Tom Codd; Mr. Fred Knight, as Dibbs, the gardener, is good; and Mr. Chas. Caffrey is well placed as the landlord of the Old Ship Inn; Mr. Forrester Harvey, as Augustus, is deserving of much praise for this impersonation; Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite, as Mrs. Porter, cleverly depicts the landlady; Miss Mary Griffiths, as Mrs. Baldwin, is also an admirable portra[illegible]; Miss May Stalman and Miss Mary Deverell [illegible]seen to advantage in their respective parts a[illegible]rs. Smedley and Lucy; Miss May Fairclough, as Ethel Smedley, is charming, and acts with much grace. Beauty and the Barge is preceded by a smart curtain-raiser, That Brute Simmons, which is well acted Grand.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. James Wynes.—At the head of a good bill is Mr. A. C. Lilly and company in that military episode, Drummed Out, which is well acted, and proves most interesting. Another highly successful turn is provided by Miss Nellie Wallace, whose songs, patter, and mannerisms are exceedingly funny; Farley, Rennie, and Farley are seen in a capital sketch, Fun in a Railway Station, in which is introduced tumbling, singing, dancing, etc.; Madame Alice Simmons has a fine voice, which is heard to much advantage in several good songs; Miss Marie Reeve is a charming comedienne; Sibb and Sibb return in their clever double trapeze performance. The Grand pictures are always up-to-date.

Empire, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—J. W. Hall heads the bill this week, and, as usual, is highly successful; Cissie Curlett, mimetic vocalist, is successful; Captain Slingseby, as a ventriloquist, has but few rivals, his performance proving most entertaining; the Clayton Twins are seen in the funny sketch, Pepper and Salt; Fred Hallam is a good comedian; Beattie Kent is a pleasing commedienne; Tray and Rich are an entertaining couple in their black and white comedy business; and the Solar Duo, instrumentalists and vocalists are excellent. The Empire pictures are good.

HARROGATE.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cyril Fielding Smith.—Messrs. Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company presented J. M. Barrie's play, Little Mary, here on Monday and two following nights. The Earl of Carlton and Mcira Loney were cleverly interpreted by Mr. Geo. Mudie and Miss Ethel Dare respectively; Miss Elspeth acted with admirable fervour; and Mr. Geo. A. Brandram was good as the specialist. The play was preceded by The Monkey's Paw. As Midnight Chimes was billed for Thursday.

HARTLEPOOL.—Empress.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Craggs; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—The programme this week includes the Eight Yiulians, a clever troupe of Risley acrobats. The Brewster Troupe of lady vocalists and speciality dancers go through a lance and sword exercise in a style that meets with much appreciation; their combination banjo playing and dancing are also well done. Lily Lonsdale, soprano; Ernie Meyers, patter comedian; the Fordyce Nippers, two precocious youngsters; the Paul Hesse Trio of clever wire walking acrobats; Frank Coyle, who does as well as ever; and Vera Mayne, burlesque actress, are all on the list; and an extra turn, cleverly done, is given by the Zemblah Brothers, acrobats.

HASTINGS. — Gaiety Theatre. — Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Gaze.—On Monday Mr. Fredk. E. Philpott's company, in the new musical comedy, The Girl from Japan, gave its first performance in Hastings, affording much pleasure to a well-filled house. Miss Rita Tomkins played the title-rôle with much vivacity; the incongruous Bingle was very amusingly played by Mr. Frank Sherlock; Mr. George Hudson was well placed as Lord Allenbury, and his involuntary impersonator, the Rev. John Smith, played by Mr. H. Carlyle Pritchard, was an effective contrast of temperament. Mr. Charles Lupton, as Sir Mulberry, was sufficiently frivolous, and Mr. Percy Baverstock was forceful as the scheming adventurer, the pseudo General Baugh. Mr. Colet Dare, the author, was entertaining as Horatio Binks. Miss Florence Nelson as Lady Flippington, and Miss Effie Rydon as the Countess de la Rue, were effective respectively. A pas seul by Miss Jean van Dalle was markedly pleasing, and speciality dances by the Sisters Violet and Lillie English won considerable favour. Encores were numerous, the songs of Miss Rita Tomkins (Polly) and Mr. George Hudson (Lord Allenbury) winning much applause. The piece is staged and dressed well.

Pier Pavilion. — Pier-Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter. — Under the direction of Mr. Francis Everard, Mr. Herbert Fuller's play, entitled A Triple Vengeance, is holding the boards here. Mr. F. C. Wybert, in the part of Harry Gilbert, displays good dramatic ability; little Miss Florrie Sorsby, as Reggie, is bright and clever; the English Rose, Rita Lingham, is charmingly represented by Miss Gwendoline Hastings; villainy is played in a very natural manner by Mr. E. Gibbon, as Jim Darkey; Miss Edith Mitchell is an ideal representative of Clarissa Beringer.

Hippodrome Palace of Varieties. — General-Manager, Mr. Harold Penny.—Mr. Alf. Aubyn, a coloured comedian opens a very good programme this week; Miss Louie Dacre is an attractive comedienne and dancer; an eccentric comedy act is given by Messrs. Vasey and Ramsey; Mr. Harry Seymour cleverly imitates the characteristics of various artistes; a skilful ventriloquial sketch is presented by Mr. Horace White; a revolving ladder act by the Rigoletto Brothers is original and exciting; the Sisters Hall are excellent vocalists; and Griff, assisted by Alpha, highly amuses the audience.

HOYLAND.—Metropole Theatre.—Owner, Mr. Arthur Carton; Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—Mr. Frank Stevens' company is here this week in the exciting play, Because I Love You, which met with a cordial reception on Monday night. The plot is interesting, and the company employed do justice to their respective rôles. Nemo, the Vulture, a part vastly different from the general run of characters, is creditably performed by Mr. Frank Stephens; Mr. Matthew Bolton is a manly and impressive Captain Sterling, and Mr. H. W. Hatchman contributes a capital performance as Christopher Chados. The rôle of Professor Predate has a good exponent in Mr. H. L. Tracey; whilst Mr. H. A. Stephens does all that is possible with the part of Eddie Puplett. Mr. H. Buckley is an amusing Nebuchadnezzar Moke, and is greatly assisted by Miss Nell Ingram, who makes a lively Cleopatra Cotton. The comic element is left entirely in their hands, and hearty laughter at intervals during the evening is the result. Miss Madge North gives a natural and unforced reading as Norinda Chandos, and must be congratulated on her very agreeable performance; Miss Agnes Stinton is satisfactory as Mrs. Puplett, and Miss Trissie Hum orthodox villain. Miss Elsie Roberts and Miss Louise Vansittat personated the two chief ladies' parts in a manner that proved they were accomplished actresses, and the rest of the characters in a strong cast found adequate representatives.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. F. Barrett.—The new turns at this place of entertainment include Dainty Daisy Dormer, an accomplished comedienne and dancer; Will McIvor, tenor; C. Rutland and Bob Eagle, comedians; Kitty Laurel, dancer; Florence Gwyne, as the stage-struck slavey; and the Casino Girls, in a clever instrumental performance.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company is here this week with the interesting drama, entitled Honour Thy Father.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. W Thompson; Manager, Mr. William Childs.—This week's company includes Ernest and Hilda Dillon, in a first-class aerial act; Miss Connie Barry, serio; Chant and Chant, comedy vocalists and patterers; Toga, the marvellous Japanese juggler; Herr E. Blumenfeld, with his troupe of performing dogs; Jas. Lowery the singing furnace man; Bros. Kirby, in a refined musical performance; Miss Edie Charnley, comedienne and dancer; and the Eltenos, triple bar performers.

KEIGHLEY. — QUEEN'S THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Barnes.—Amorelle, seen here for the first time, received a hearty welcome on Monday. Mr. Levilly's company is excellent. Miss Empsie Bowman does full justice to the melodies allotted to her, and makes a dainty and petite Amorelle. Mr. Leon Simkin, as Dr. Crow gives a genuinely funny performance, and is highly appreciated. An undoubted triumph is achieved by Miss Ada Grey as Lesbia; her singing is delightful. Jules is in the capable hands of Mr. Arthur Cozens; and Francois is ably played by Mr. Edward Granby. Mr. Arthur Elwyn's Count is satisfactory. The orchestra is under the direction of Mr. W. H. Davin.

KIDDERMINSTER. — NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon, jun.—This week we have a return visit from Mr. Harold V. Neilson and company. On Monday and Tuesday The Money Spinner was played, while on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday the comedy The Tyranny of Tears was the attraction. In the first-named play Mr. Harold V. Neilson as Lord Kingussie gave an excellent representation, a remark which is equally applicable to Mr. John Detlive as Baron Croodle. Mr. W. Lemmon Ward and Mr. J. F. Fox, as Harold Boycott and Jules Faubert, were respectively good. Miss Helen Phillips ably portrayed the character of Margot, and Miss Amy Sangster was effective as Millicent Boycott; Dorinda Croodle was well sustained by Miss Beatrice Marsdene.

KILMARNOCK.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Hales.—This week we have here A Royal Revenge, presented by Mr. J. H. Clyndes, and a powerful company. As Estevan Alvarez, Mr. Clyndes is a great success; and good work is done by Mr. Jas. Willoughby, as Nicholas Vargas, and Mr. Chas. Jordan, as Manual Mondega. Miss Bessie Elma gives a capital impersonation of the part of Inez Alvarez; and Miss Evelyn Shannon is good as Cora Casilda.

KIRKCALDY.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Rex Sudgen.—Messrs. Haddon and Louder's company appeared in the Greatest Scoundrel Living on Monday night. Mr. Jack Haddon, as the Greatest Scoundrel, gives a fine artistic rendering of the part. Frank Fielding is admirably played by Mr. Norman A. Overton, and Mr. C. Anival is successful as Jasper Moulton. Tom Masters is smartly and effectively played by Mr. JackLenoll, and Mr. Fred Harning is successful as Sam Grubb. Miss Violet Lytton plays Rose Moulton with feeling, and Miss Marie Rayner gives a good rendering of Mabel Cross. Miss Effie Macintosh is brisk as Bessie Bright, and Mr. S. Herbert scores as Philip Astrea. On Thursday Mr. Edward Compton and company opened for three nights.

LANCASTER. —ATHENÆUM. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Hy. Wilkinson. — This week Mr George Mitchell and Mr. John Belton's company is appearing in The Conscript and The Unknown. The former piece was presented on Monday, Mr. Mitchell appeared to advantage in the title-rôle, Karl Truevitch; Mr. Howell Travis was successful as Ivan Manloff; and the same may be said of Mr. John Belton as Dor Doggervitch. There is a vein of humour in the piece, and this was supplied in an excellent manner by Mr. Harry Tilbury and Miss Belle Tilbury, as Tretch Trotoff and Wanda respectively. The staging was most effective.

PALACE.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. W. J. Fergusson and John Porter.—Carl Mysto, who heads the bill this week, fairly baffles his audience; Grey and Welford, comedy boxers, receive an ovation; and David Poole, ventriloquist, is a great favourite. The Sisters Bartholomew, duettists, are paying a return visit, and others who contribute to a capital programme include Toto, lightning cartoonist; Blanche Mildred, comedienne; Minnie D'Aubyn, coon vocalist; and Walter Payne's Animated Pictures.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—At the beginning of the week Mr. Ben Greet's competent company in The Eternal City occupied the boards. The three outstanding parts were all played in an artistic manner, that of Baron Bonelli being sustained by Mr. D. Lewin Mannering; Miss Helen Kaye gave a powerful portrayal of Donna Roma; and Mr. T. A. Shannon's Rossi was a successful study. The Pope received a dignified representation at the hands of Mr. Leonard Gray, and the other rôles were in good hands. For Thursday and following nights Peggy Machree was billed.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—La Poupée is still a profitable attraction, to judge by the full house which gathered for its opening here on Monday. Mr. Eric Thorne is again the inimitable Hilarius, and spontaneous laughter and merriment greet his every appearance; Miss Stella Gastelle is still associated with the piece as Alesia, and her portrayal has lost none of its charm and grace; the part of Launcelot, too, in the hands of another favourite, Mr. Gerald Clifford, is all that can be desired. The Baron Chanterelle and the peppery Loremois are cleverly played by Mr. Robert Fairbanks and Mr. Fred Seymour; and in the rôle of Father Maxime the fine singing of Mr. Frederick Hobbs is most enjoyable. A correct and careful study of Madame Hilarius goes to the credit of Miss Madge Avery, and excellent service is rendered by Miss May Bradbury.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—In the Ranks holds the boards here, and Messrs. Carlton and Armitage's company has played it to good houses throughout the week. Ned Drayton is presented with power by Mr. Edward Lloyd, and equally effective is Mr. Herbert Cecil's assumption of the villainous Gideon Blake. A charming effort is that of Miss Edith Blair-Staples as Ruth Herrick.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. C. H Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—The Still Alarm is being presented here by Messrs. Glenville and Osmond's company. Jack Manley is depicted with power by Mr. Matthew H. Glenville, and a fine example of the stage villain is furnished by Mr. Paul Lovett. Miss Mary Lovett is responsible for a charming portrayal of Elinore Fordham.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. Mooney.—Ernest Shand is the bright particular star at this popular place of entertainment, and with new songs and racy patter he keeps his audiences thoroughly well amused. At the bottom of the bill figures Tom Costello, always a huge success here. Gipsy Woolf and her Piccaninnies are seen in a new vocal scena; Ralph and Nellie Howard please all with a capital musical turn; and James Stewart, the tramp, at the piano, does the usual funny business. Excessively humorous is the sketch, Two Old Rogues, by Driscoll and Beattie; and Burns and Evans create much fun also in a comic sketch; Paul Mill is a comedian with a distinctive and clever style; the Sisters Meredith have an artistic vocal turn; and Jenny Belmore, comedienne, completes a varied and attractive programme.

TIVOLI. — Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; Managers, Messrs. Edgar O. Waller and Chas. Weldon.—A clever and entertaining sketch by May Edouin and Fred Edwards, entitled A Bachelor's Dream, is the outstanding feature of this week's bill, and the presentation is thoroughly enjoyed. Harry and Fanny Dent are responsible for a smart vocal and comedy turn; the Sutcliffe Troupe do a Scottish song and dance speciality; and of comedians are well catered for by Frank Coyne, a huge success, as usual. Acrobatic exhibitions are again a feature, those of the Bros. Baldwin and the Clarus Bros. being specially good. Pollo Jerome is a lady gymnast of considerable ability, Bertha Pertina a phenomenal dancer, and Carrie Joy (comedienne) also makes a successful appearance.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—The Leopolds head the bill here with a fine acrobatic act; Billy Farrell, the popular comedian, is having a successful time with numerous new items; and more expert acrobatics are presented by the Three Brothers Huxter. Fred Poplar is a favourite comedian, and the Corty Bros. submit a diverting comedy sketch. Other popular contributors are Kitty Wager (comedienne), the Paragon Trio of vocalists, and Lily Sharplin (vocalist and mimic).

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. M. Slater; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. D. Leigh.—A most attractive engagement is being filled here this week by a first visit of Mr. Frank Curzon's company, who presented before a large and appreciative audience on Monday the musical comedy, Sergeant Brue. The various artists in a talented company acquit themselves admirably, and the pretty scenery and dresses are also adjuncts that greatly please the eye. In the name-part, Mr. Edward Kipling keeps the house in continual merriment; and Mr. George Barrett as Crookie Scrubbs, makes a big hit. Mr. Charles Hanbury is in every way a success as Michael Brue; Mr. Campbell Bishop creates a good impression as the Magistrate, Mr. Crank; and Mr. Paddy Duprez, as Inspector Gorringe, and Mr. Thomas Holding, as Gerald Treherne, are also responsible for clever portrayals. Miss Hebe Bliss acts and sings charmingly as Lady Bickenhall; and Miss Hilda Antony imparts a freshness and vivacity to the rôle of Aurora Brue which win for her the greatest admiration. A word of commendation should also be awarded to the work of the chorus and augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Ernest Herman.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; General Manager, Mr. Geo. M. Slater; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. C. Candler.—The attraction here this week is Mr. and Mrs. W. Maclaren's company, in the romantic drama, Proof. The costumes are especially good, and the mounting of the play, combined with an excellent company, leaves nothing to be desired. Mr. William Maclaren scores a conspicuous success as Pierre Lorance; and Miss Lily C. Bandmann is also seen to great advantage as Valentine; Mr. Richard Fulton renders a good account of himself in the dual part of Lazare, alias the Count de Laval; Mr. Ardene Linden is to be highly complimented on his assumption of the part of Chamboran; Mr. Kingsford Pearce scores as the Duke D'Aubeterre; Miss Gertrude Evans makes an excellent Adrienne; and as Little Adrienne, Miss Gertrude Coates is capital; Mr. E. St. Claire Vayne, as Hector de Laugney; Miss Wynne Hanley, as the Duchess D'Aubeterre; Mrs. S. Hay, as Madame Deprets; and Miss Nellie Bilbe, as Julie, should also be singled out for performances of much merit.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leonard Vidal.—The great attraction in this week's excellent bill of fare is Cliff Berzac's St. Leger, which arouses the greatest excitement. The race takes place on a travelling track, the panoramic scenery adding greatly to the vividness of the production. During the week an amateur walking competition takes place on the track. Walton and Lester, aptly described as the world's worst wizards, are scoring a success; Professor Bernar's miniature theatre and marionettes, provides a most enjoyable turn, the puppets being cleverly worked; Ida Heath, the well-known quick change dancer, is cordially received; Sable Fern, a dainty and popular artiste, is here again on a successful return visit; Marie Collins sings her songs in a style that meets with well-deserved appreciation; Alf Arnesen is responsible for a first-class gymnastic show, which is very popular; Lukos Herford introduces his cleverly-trained dogs, who go through a performance that reflects great credit on their trainer; Rumbo Austin creates the utmost merriment with his troupe of parody acrobats; James Bard, the wonder in white or black, gives a clever show on the wire.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Dewhurst.—Mr. Charles Harrington and company are paying a welcome return visit with Uncle Tom's Cabin. Mr. J. Carr gives a forcibly effective rendering of Uncle Tom; Mr. Charles Harrington appears with much success as Phineas Fletcher; Mr. Guy P. Ellis ably portrays the character of George Harris; Mr. J. H. Rogers, as Legree, presents the villainous slave owner in a very forcible manner; Mr. Walter Langford causes much amusement as Marks, a lawyer. Miss Zerlina Zerbina plays with much force as Cassy; Miss Hettie Johnson makes a sympathetic Eliza Harris; Miss Sylvia Stella is extremely successful as Topsy, her singing and dancing being appreciated; Little Minnie makes a satisfactory Eva. The plantation scenes are good, some effective singing and dancing being introduced by a company of real negroes.

LICHFIELD.—ST. JAMES'S HALL.—On Monday Mr. Ben Greet's company, under the management of Mr. J. Bannister Howard, appeared here in Florodora. Mr. Gus Danby proved a most humorous Tweedlepunch; Mr. Edward Chester made a characteristic Cyrus W. Gilfain; Mr. Edward Cropland a satisfactory Frank Abercoed, and Mr. Charles Stevenson an excellent Captain Donegal. The Dolores of Miss Daisy Lake was a fascinating performance. Miss Louie Danby was the Angela Gilfain, and Miss Fanny M. Newman Lady Holyrood.

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—A welcome return visit of Mr. George Edwardes's company with The Duchess of Dantzic has during the week attracted large audiences here. Sans Gene is in the hands of Miss Amy Augarde, who is rapturously applauded for her delightful impersonation. To Mr. Matthew Brodie praise is due for his finished and impressive Napoleon; a gallant and manly Lefebvre is presented by Mr. Herbert Clayton. The Bethune of Mr. Leonard Mackay proves very acceptable, both his singing and acting earning for him cordial recognition. Miss Edith Fink submits a charming Renee.

ROTUNDA THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.—Good business has been done at the popular north-end house during the week with The Poor Must Live, presented by Mr. Geoffrey Fulton's company. Mr. Geoffrey Fulton was a typical villain; Miss Olive Fulton played Olga D'Eyncourt, a leader of the people, with dramatic effect; Mr. Herbert Clifton, as Dick Sully, and Mr. Dick Thomas, as Hooker Holdsnitch, were responsible for much of the humour; Miss Pattie Elliott was a vivacious lavender girl, and sang sweetly; and the other members of the company filled their respective parts with credit. The scenery was very appropriate.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—A highly-interesting and popular programme is drawing packed houses nightly. Hettie King, who has made herself a great favourite in Liverpool, is loudly applauded; Rosaire and Doreto are original in their comedy acrobatic act; as a ventriloquist, Ed. F. Reynard would be hard to beat; Louden Cameron is a conjurer of no mean order; Edie Endin makes a hit with her songs and dancing; and Walter Adams is laughable; as also is Dan Conroy. Edie Gray and her White Coons sing very well; the Carnia Sisters are clever musicians; and Dainez' Comedy Circus creates much amusement.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. H. Fineberg; Acting-Manager, Mr. M. Simmons.—A Soldier and a Man is being presented by Mr. A. Clifton Alderson's London company. The character of Harold Sinclair was in the capable hands of Mr. Alderson, who played with much dramatic force; Miss B'Eare Doyle presented a Rose Melbury full of charm and tenderness; and commendable work was done by Messrs. Paul Beckett, Harry F. Wright, W. A. Norman, F. J. Waller, and H. K. Aylin. The military uniforms and scenery were particularly striking.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Granville; Manager, Mr. Fred Granville; Business-Manager, Mr. Frank Mundill.—A Day in Paddy's Market is very familiar to Liverpool playgoers, and the comedy has much that is amusing. Mr. Will Hebden is the principal artiste, and creates much laughter with his several types of familiar street characters. He is supported by a goodly array of artistes, and the scenery is appropriate.

EMPIRE, LIMITED.—District-Manager, Mr. T. A. Cook; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Stratton.—Mr. Harry Lauder is at the head of the bill here this week, and delights everyone with his funny songs and quaint sayings. The wrestling bears of Richard List go through a remarkable performance; the Jackson family put in a second week with their excellent musical entertainment; the Paul Courtney Combination presents a laughable sketch, entitled The Doctor; as acrobats, the Wotpert Trio are above the average; the Japanese Guards, a troupe of young ladies, give a smart display of drill; and others in the list are Nellie Vanderbilt, comedienne and dancer; the Two Bostons, comedians; G. W. Foster, comedian; Victor Travers, eccentric coon; and Delmore and Wilson, character comedians.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—A long list of good things is presented here this week. At the head are the Holloway Trio, who go through a surprisingly clever acrobatic wire act. The Harmony Four keep their audience in a good humour with a neat musical comedy; Miss Ethel Cunningham and company have a smart sketch, entitled The King's Hat; Linda a graceful descriptive dancer, surprises the audience with a quick transformation; V. J. Dehenau, by means of his feet, paints with marvellous effect; Iben Obed is an accomplished equilibrist; as a dainty juvenile vocalist, Miss Molly Doon is acceptable; Mdlle. Aladina has a troupe of well-trained cockatoos; and others on the programme are George Barrow, comedian; Mdlle. Kloet, "artiste modèle"; and Ella Rose, soprano.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. O'Toole.—The stage here is this week held by Percy Boucher and company in their sketch, The Mystery of the Mersey, or the Unknown. Variety turns are given by James Stephens, comedian; and Lucie Victor, dancer; and an attractive item is Hughes's electrograph, which shows the "Rise and Fall of Napoleon."

NEW PARTHENON.—Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—A good all-round programme is given here this week. Foremost are the accomplished Sisters Aindow, in a neat musical speciality; Stern and Stern are a couple of smart comedians; John Arthur and Jane Ashby are applauded for their comical trifle, "Fantacies of the Phiz"; Tom E. O'Neil is a quaint comedian; Lilian Rigby sings and dances pleasantly; and Arthur Stacey is an accomplished dancer and eccentric comedian. The bioscope continues to prove an attractive feature.

PADDINGTON PALACE, LIMITED.—General-Manager, Mr. J. Kiernan-Gillin, a ventriloquist of high merit, is at the top of the bill here this week. His turn is somewhat unique, and he introduces a deal of humour into his work. Kydd and Kydd, a couple of funny patter comedians, are very acceptable; Mannering and Anderson have a laughable sketch, entitled The Other Charlie; Wright and Aitken, assisted by Miss Belle Adams, present an amusing duologue, The Lady Sport; Chris. Masters's songs go with a swing; Joe Cookson gives a good turn as a vocal and speciality ventriloquist; and Frank Tyrell is a comedian and dancer.

WESTMINSTER.—Proprietor, Mr. M. Montgomery.—Much laughter has this week been heard within the walls of Mr. Montgomery's popular place. Will Onda's company being at the head of the bill with the pantomimical absurdity, A Quiet Night. Then again, another excellent turn is that given by Eno, an accomplished mimic, with his capital impersonations of principal music-hall stars; Eric Graham is a humorous coster comedian; Demi and Semi give a smart instrumental patter and dancing act; Millie Harris sings sweetly; Louis Murray is a popular actor vocalist; and the Ross Clyde Comedy, whose sketch, I Must Have It, created uproarious laughter.

PARK PALACE.—Director, Mr. James Kiernan.—The principal feature of the bill here this week is the performance given by the Vyponds (Fred and Maude), whose sketches, The Honeymoon and The New Servant, have caused much laughter. A capital turn is that of the Dagonets, whose American banjo song and dance has proved very acceptable; George Edney scores as a character comedian; the Radium Girls are neat vocalists and speciality dancers; Arthur Aiston shows himself a clever comedian and dancer; Fox and Melville are a pair of accomplished song illustrators; and Mayzy Osmunde sings several charming pieces.

LLANELLY.—ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. John Tully.—Opera affords delight to the patrons here this week, Mr. Hilton St. Just's company performing Maritana, Bohemian Girl, Faust, Lily of Killarney, and the beautiful opera comique by Flotow entitled Martha, or A Story of Richmond Fair. In the first-named opera Miss Louise Van Dalle does exceedingly well as Maritana; Mr. St. Just is successful as Don Cæsar; as Don José, Mr. Frank Land does good work; Mr. Kneale Campbell scores as Marquis de Montifiore; Mr. Fraz Crisp as the King of Spain, Mr. Jas. Hicks as Captain of the Guard, and Mr. William Hill as Alcade are all very good, and so are Misses Fanny Emerson and Beatrice Torrance as Lazarillo and the Marchioness. As Arline in The Bohemian Girl Miss Elsie Lynham is a charming and clever vocalist and actress; Miss Maud de Vere is a smart principal dancer. There is a very good chorus, and the theatre band, under Mr. W. A. Tatten, is augmented, Mr. Albert May being the musical director.

LONG EATON.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Meakin.—Mr. Jasper Redfern's cinematograph and vaudeville company are here this week. The pictures are up-to-date, and the company includes the wonderful American wizard, Mersano, whose sleight-of-hand business is simply marvellous. Some very good instrumental music and singing make up a bright performance.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Secretary, Mr. Charles E. Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Louis Beaufort.—Patrons of the drama are this week enjoying that famous play, Two Little Vagabonds, which is presented by Messrs. Clift and Foster's capable company. Miss Elena Lonsdale is seen to advantage as Marion Thornton; and Mr. Cyril W. Mackay as Captain Darville, Mr. Ernest Shiel-Porter as George Thornton, and Mr. Charles Brandon as Bill Mullins, all deserve special mention. As Dick and Wally, the two little vagabonds, the Misses Frances Ferina and Eva Lumley give a good account of themselves. Excellent support is given by the remaining members of the company. The scenery and staging are good.

LUTON.—GRAND.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Resident-Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—A Noble Brother is here this week, and this drama receives an excellent interpretation at the hands of a capable company, brought together by Mr. Charles Carte. Mr. Carte's performance, as Jerry, the tramp, is one of exceeding ability; and Miss Doris Brookes, as Nona Leigh, is worthy of all praise. The orchestra renders able service under the bâton of Mr. J. H. Kisten.

MACCLESFIELD. — ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Mr. Ian Maclaren and company are appearing here in the highly sensational drama A Prince of Rogues. The part of Frank Farrell is in the hands of Mr. Leonard Clarke, and a manly and effective impersonation is given. Miss Ruby Maclaren submits a convincing study of Winifred Harwood, her manner and appearance being well suited to the rôle; as the scheming Geoffrey Flint Mr. Ian Maclaren is very realistic. Mr. Henry Howard does well as Richard Harwood; Miss Dorothy Mackenzie as Rita Congreave plays her part with unaffected grace. Mr. Henry Wilson as Stephen Leyton gives a clever portrayal. The comedy element is kept well to the front, Mr. Francis Hope instals himself as first favourite as Gilbert Kenny; Mr. James F. Firth as Josh Buggins is highly amusing; Miss Kythe Mackenzie as Polly Dibbs acts well, and her songs are favourably received.

MANCHESTER.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—A packed house witnessed the performance here of The Cingalee on Monday by Mr. George Edwardes's principal company, when a brilliant rendering was given of this charming musical comedy. The piece is embellished by new songs, new dresses, and new dances, and the singing and acting reach a high standard of excellence. Mr. E. Statham Staples is really funny as Chambhuddy Ram, and creates endless laughter with his "inverted" or "mixed" quotations and sayings. Mr. Reginald Kenneth is decidedly pleasing as Harry Vereker, and a great success is made by Mr. Harold Thorley as Bobby Warren, his singing being particularly fine. Mr. Colin Coop as Boobhamba, and Mr. W. J. Manning as Sir Peter Loftus, both acquit themselves admirably. Of the ladies, Miss Florence Smithson is entirely pleasing as Nanoya, Miss Lily Elsie figures well as Lady Patricia, and the four tea girls are charmingly presented by the Misses Clare Marsden, Claire Pridelle, Kathleen Severn, and Doris Lester; while as Peggy Sabine Miss Eva Sandford scores a very notable success, playing with fine spirit, singing delightfully, dancing gracefully, and altogether proving herself a highly talented comedienne. The solo dances of Miss May Gould are beautifully executed, and the Devil dances by the Rubies and Mr. Willie Warde, jun., are very effective.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—An attractive répertoire, consisting of Othello, Under the Red Robe, Macbeth, The Three Musketeers, and Hamlet, is presented here this week by Mr. Edmund Tearle, supported by Miss Kate Clinton and a well selected company. Mr. Tearle played the title-rôle in the first-named play on Monday with capital effect, and was well assisted by Miss Esther Tearle as Desdemona and Mr. William J. Miller as Iago, the general rendering of the tragedy being highly satisfactory, and a credit to the entire cast. The arrangement of the plays is nicely varied, and each one is staged with impressive and picturesque completeness in details. Beside the capable artistes mentioned, able and varied interpretations of character are given by Mr. J. V. Fairley, Mr. Vernon O. Crabtree, Mr. Thomas W. Benson, Mr. Frederick Kelsie, Miss Mary Campbell, and others.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. W. H. Broadhead; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The late Wilson Barrett's domestic comedy-drama, The Sledge Hammer, was given here on Monday by a capital company, under the direction of Messrs. Alfred Northway and W. V. Garrod. Although considerably relieved by a humorous element, the story is a grimly powerful one, made particularly effective by the fine acting of Mr. W. V. Garrod as the hero, Mr. Alfred Northway as the villain, and Miss Bertha Kingston as the heroine. Other good parts are in the practised hands of Mr. Chas. Herberte, Mr. Lawrence Konrad, Miss Fanny Thorne, and Miss Ellaline Thorne; while Mr. Frank Litchfield and Mr. Frank Dallas are excellent in comic rôles. The staging is good.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—An excellent programme here this week comprises Max Sterling, in a smart Japanese act; the New York Comedy Four, entertaining vocalists; the Gladenbecks, in a speciality act; Arthur Gilbert, a cheerful comedian; Post Mason, refined baritone; Beattie Worth, comedienne; Walter Curtis, society entertainer; Fred Rose, vocalist; Jack and Evelyn, entertainers; and Sam Shipley, eccentric comedian.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey present here this week an attractive Oriental drama, A Traitor Prince. Interesting from start to finish, and staged elaborately, the story is unfolded with excellent effect by a well-graced and talented company. Mr. G. M. Montanini is seen in the title-rôle, and other essential parts are forcibly rendered by Mr. Alex. Temple and Miss Lilian Rosebery; while Mr. E. Carter Livesey, Mr. Austen Mortimer, Miss Cissie Cleveland, and Miss Jane Massey, among others, contribute plenty of comedy relief.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. M. Potasch.—Mr. Bert Coote's company in The Fatal Wedding, is the attraction here this week, and a good house witnessed the play on Monday night. All the parts are in capable hands, Miss Gertrude Harrison figuring boldly as the adventuress, and Mr. S. Herbert-Humber being seen to great advantage as the hero. Miss Marjorie Lawrence does well as Jessie, the "little mother," Mr. Oliver Rogers is effective as the villainous Curtis, Miss Nona Hoffe gives a sympathetic rendering of the wife, and humour is provided by Mr. Tom Macfarlane, Mr. Charles Kenny, and Miss Harriet Clifton. The scenery and general effects are good.

HIPPODROME (HULME).—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The programme is full of good things here this week. The Bristons, exceptionally smart acrobats and trick cyclists, head the bill, and meet with a warm reception. Sinclair and Whiteford are highly successful with their mirth-provoking sketch, entitled Getting Even; and Larry Lewis, with his quaint style, proves himself a capital comedian. The Three Gardeners are clever and amusing in a musical absurdity The Rat Catcher; and the Leotard Brothers contribute a most entertaining item, including hand balancing and expert hat throwing. H. A. Kisbey, the "call boy," is decidedly pleasing; George Collins is a comedian of ability; and Shingleton, the singing collier, is well received. Other enjoyable items are the charming Sisters Hayward in a high-class speciality; Harlens, "the man with the hat;" and the Hippodrome pictures.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Wallonells give a clever comedy bar act here this week, and are well received. The favourite comedian, J. W. Rickaby, is well to the fore in a number of amusing songs. Rem Lang presents an entertaining burlesque sleight-of-hand performance; the Four Magnets sing well and dance gracefully; Dawson Dewick phases with his patter and good singing; and the Sisters Terry are clever versatile comediennes. The Weimars offer a droll turn called Sloper on the Wire, which ends with trumpet and bugle calls, and a song by Trumpeter C. Duly. Good turns also are Oliver Conroy, eccentric comedian; Charles Ashdowne, comedian and dancer; and Saxo, who plays the corner and the saxophone very ably.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Alexandra Dagmar is here this week in new songs, and is highly successful in her burlesque scena The Duchess of Dantzic. Another excellent turn is Julia Kent and Alec Keith in their amusing sketch, The Waiter and the Barmaid, the house being kept in continual roars of laughter the whole time they occupy the stage. The Davenports are clever conjurers and card manipulators; and Otto and Olga are delightful comedy vocal instrumentalists. Fred Herbert is a capital topical vocalist; Maude Beaumont is a pleasing burlesque artiste; and Tom Drum and Kitty Major have some good patter, do some sand dancing, and swing the bâton. Other good turns are Ada Whitton, male impersonator; Marcus Boyle, comedian; and the Brothers Hannaway, comedians and dancers.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Will Collins.—A big spectacular and vocal sketch, John Tiller's Ohio, in which the many characters employed figure in the various phases of a coon's holiday, is at the head of the bill here this week. Another highly successful and sensational turn is furnished by the ten acrobatic Arabs of the Achmed Ibrahim troupe. Beside these remarkable items, we have Ross and Grayson, a most amusing comedy duo; the Vandyke troupe of pantomimic sketch artists; Boy Glen, a smart young raconteur; Edie Rivers, vocalist and expert dancer; Okito, Chinese magician; Ambrose Thorne, refined vocal comedian; and some fine pictures on the Bioscope.

PALACE.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. P. Watson; Assistant-Secretary, Mr. J. Hewitt.—The Gothams top the bill here this week, and present their latest musical exhilarator, The Midnight Belle, which is full of capital songs and amusing business. Edwin Boyde sings three songs in his droll style, and is loudly applauded. The Sisters Govell, vocal comediennes, are, as usual, full of charm; and Daisy Mayer, "the Yankee Girl," sings coon songs and does some smart sand dancing. Lillian is a charming and clever trick cyclist; McPhee and Hill go through a remarkable horizontal bar and casting act; and Kathleen Gray is a pleasing burlesque artist. Other entertaining items are Charles Lillburn, comedian; Hettie Chattell, character burlesque actress; Harry Carmen, comedian; and the Palace Pictures.

MANCHESTER HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—The attraction here this week is the one and only Eugene Stratton in his latest successes, "My Little Black Pearl" and "The Coon Drum-Major." On Tuesday evening he also sang with telling and artistic effect, "I May be Crazy," and was enthusiastically applauded. A remarkably clever and elaborate item is Venetia, the original act of the well-known Kellinos, whose performance is of a high order from start to finish. Another clever turn, also well received, is that of Les Brunins, the modern billiard experts. Baker and Balfe contribute several pleasing selections on the xylophone; Cora Caselli sings a dramatic Spanish song with characteristic dance in excellent style; and Arthur Gill amuses with his smart patter and capital vocal imitations. Alma Grey is an expert dancer; Burg, Hand, and Wise introduce much clever and eccentric business in their amusing speciality Ye Browne Cow Inn; the Bioscope shows a novel in seven tableaux, entitled "The Blacksmith's Daughter;" and the Hippodrome choir sing "Nobody Cares for Me" effectively.

MERTHYR TYDFIL. — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Will Smithson; Assistant Manager, Mr. Albert J. Lewis.—Mr. F. Monillot's company is appearing here this week in a welcome return visit of A Message from Mars. Mr. F. Rawson Buckley's impersonation of Horace Parker is artistic; Mr. W. H. Brougham's handling of the Messenger is excellent; Mr. Bruce Lindley as the Tramp is effective and appealing; Mr. Frank G. Dunn is an earnest and natural Arthur Dicey; and Miss May Saker is both pleasing and interesting as Minnie Templar. Miss Parker and Mrs. Clarence have suitable representatives in Miss Flora Hastings and Miss Joan Meredith.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—This week we have Mr. Chas. W. Poole's Myriorama paying their annual visit. A strong variety combination is engaged, which includes Miss Daisy Graham's collection of trained birds; Little Doretta, acrobatic song and dance artist; Harry Stewart, protean change artist; Florry and Lily Zetina, acrobatic dancers; the Clevelands, lady and gentleman acrobats; Leonard and Mac, eccentrics; Kitty Woodford's canine circus; and William Stewart, guide and vocalist.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Messrs. Griffin and Drake provide the attraction here this week with their pantomime, Dick Whittington. Miss Lily Jackson fills the title-rôle in good style; a capital Alice is found in Miss Emmie is appreciated; and the Two Butterflies, clever juvenile gymnasts, come in for rounds of applause. Will H. Fox, "Paddywhisk," is as popular as ever; Nina Martino (La Grande Chanteuse) is deservedly popular; and Ryan and Hall, in an acrobatic act, are accorded warm recognition. The Three Fortunes, in a novelty comedy act, are entertaining; Swan and Bambard, America's Premier Knockabouts, keep the house in roars; and the Bioscope, showing some interesting suburbanite and other films, complete the bill.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Rogues of the Turf has received a warm welcome here this week. Mr. John F. Preston, as Joe Flaxman, gains great applause for his able performance of the old trainer. Captain Dudley Clifton and Moses Solomons are ably represented by Mr. Hamilton Deane and Mr. H. H. Rignold; Mr. Hardy Macro is an efficient Sir Gerald Heathcote; Mr. Ernest R. Allen plays well as Arthur Somerton; Mr. Chas. Jackson as Mr. Peter Dawson is a typical family lawyer; Mr. Alfred Wade scores as the fashionable jockey, Steve Burton; Mr. A. Hartley as Jem Strongarm, Mr. A. Hamilton as Rogers, Mr. Stanley May as Dr. Maitland, and Mr. A. Newman as Williams, all give effective assistance. Mr. Harry Benson, as Sam Flaxman, furnishes plenty of fun, with the able assistance of Miss Mabelle F. Barlow as Phillis Warzell. Miss Maude Stewart Drewry, as Nellie Flaxman, gives a pleasing rendering of the trainer's daughter; and Miss Hilda Shirley submits a rendering of the villainous Lady Heathcote that has the merit of not being overdone.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Robert Barton.—The programme presented this week includes the Three Schaffers, the clever equilibrists; Miss Florence Watson, Irish soprano; Mdlle. Alençon, lady magician; Stevens and Stevens (Ernest and Lily), in a mixture of dancing, singing, and acrobatism; Kahn and Kahn, necromancers; Frank Boyce, comedian; Professor Dunning, ventriloquist; Charles Osborne, comedian; and Charlie Deane, comedian.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee. — Mr. Frank Bertram's company, with The Convict's Daughter, is the attraction here this week. As Michael Graham, Mr. J. W. Wilkinson deserves great praise for his admirable representation of the character, and Mr. G. Moreton-Williams appears with distinction as Jasper Thorn. Mr. J. K. Walton gives a capital impersonation of Frederick Neville; Mr. Adrian Lovett presents a clever rendering of Harold Trevalyen; and Mr. Alfred Terris causes hearty laughter as Patrick O'Laragan. Miss Nellie Clyde displays much ability as Edith; Miss Grace Harlington does well as Betty Hyne; and Miss Maud Osmond makes the most of Marion Thorn.

NEW CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. William Mould.—The Fred Cullane Trio, in their vocal comedy act, The Ladies' School, top the bill here, and are received with much favour. The Franklin troupe of Russian vocalists and dancers are very entertaining; and Messrs. Gaertner and Weston, Continental grotesques, are amusing. Mr. T. B. Talbot, dialect comedian, gets a good reception; and Miss Carrie Leslie, vocalist; the Two Hanlons, musicians; Messrs. Gold and Sterling, musical comedy artistes; and the Bio-photoscope also meet with much favour.

NORTHWICH. — CENTRAL THEATRE. — Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden; Manager, Mr. Percy Webb.—On Wednesday night last Mr. Percy Webb took his first annual benefit, when a large audience assembled to testify their appreciation of the beneficiaire. The Northwich Amateur Dramatic Society (including their orchestra), and Mr. J. Foulkes, of Chester and North Wales Concerts, were responsible for the evening's entertainment. At the close of the performance Mr. Webb came forward and thanked the proprietress for her continued kindness, the several artistes for their help, and the audience for their patronage.

NORWICH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Godfrey Lamplugh's company in the musical comedy, Miss Mischief, opened here on Monday. Mr. P. E. Conover, as Private Harris, created much fun. Mr. Cecil Curtis was in excellent voice, and sang well as Capt. Jack Bethune. Mr. Frederic Mantell was good as Lord Percy FitzSherry; whilst Mr. Arthur Jenner as Admiral Sir H. Bethune, Mr. Beresford Lovell as Hiram Q. Pegg, Mr. H. Ellesmere as Count von Hemmelblau, and Mr. R. P. Plows as Jules, ably filled their respective parts. Miss Isa Bowman was charming in her acting, singing, and dancing, and was several times recalled. Miss Cissie Francis became a favourite as Mary Anne Smith; whilst Miss Roza Richenberg as Graf von Gruber, Miss Ida Campiona as Frau Schmults, Miss Eileen Guilbert as Lady Orrery, and Miss Madge Brander as Furst von Ahrensheimer, gracefully filled their respective rôles. The chorus and band were most ably led by Mr. Spencer Dickenson, and the scenery and dresses were admirable.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—Staig's original motor sensation, "Looping the Aërial Circle," heads the bill, and creates a great sensation. Sadie Seymour, comedienne, a favourite here, was billed to appear, but disappointed, owing to indisposition. Hazel Burt appeared, and her singing was much appreciated. The Bros. Zampah, one-legged marvels, did some extraordinary jumping; Charles Coverdale is an amusing comedian; George Dardini, assisted by his black satellite, is an amusing juggler. Billy Hobbs scores as a coon comedian and dancer; Bromley and Fontein are entertaining as operatic humourists; whilst Rivington and Gordyn are very good in their comedy duologue, "He, She, and It." The Four Cliftons are marvellously clever in their herculean feats; and the Bioscope exhibits some amusing pictures.

NOTTINGHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The visits of Mr. and Mrs. Kendal with a répertoire of plays gives a greatly appreciated opportunity of again witnessing these gifted artistes and their capable company. On Monday The Elder Miss Blossom was presented, and on Tuesday they were seen for the first time here in The Housekeeper. This delightful play was received with the utmost enthusiasm, and the curtain was raised again and again in response to repeated recalls. In the part of Colonel Trent, Mr. Kendal has a rôle that fits him perfectly, and his embodiment was a triumph from first to last. Mrs. Kendal's performance of Lady Audrey was, as might be expected, a perfect piece of stage work. Mr. Bassett Roe played Lord Runswick with a sincerity that gained warm approval; Mr. Ernest Hendrie was perfectly natural as Hickson; and the Subaltern had a tactful exponent in Mr. R. Sheldrick. Miss Elsie Clarens gave a quaint sketch of the designing widow, Mrs. Rillington; and Mrs. A. B. Tapping supplied a capital impersonation of the good-natured Lady Robertson.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—A Victim of Villainy is a stirring drama, and the audience of Monday received it with loud acclamations. Mr. Walter Howe, the author of the play, gives a fine delineation of his hero, Frank Manton, whose clever invention of a submarine forms the groundwork for all the villainous schemes and plotting of Stephen Cavanagh, a part played with great force by Mr. C. E. Wilton. Miss Rosa Lehmann invests Mary Manton with becoming grace and pathetic tenderness. A spirited rendering of Alice Cavanagh is given by Miss Muriel Dean; and Miss Adela Harvey makes a pleasant and winsome Norah Maloney. The bibulous character of Maria Blobbsy receives full justice from Miss Blanche Nicholls, and a fund of good amusement is provided by Miss Marjorie Carroll (Vera Diamond), Mr. Chris. Mason (Tommy Leckey), and Mr. George Mallin (Patrick Maloney.)

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. W. Bull. A canital company has been organised by Mr. Julian Malvern, under the direction of Mr. C. M. Malvern, to present the interesting drama, I Defy the World. Mr. Roy Fortescue brings his wide experience to bear on the part of Leon Darville, whose many troubles are shown with earnestness and feeling. The sinister character of Count de Beaulion has a strong exponent in Mr. Richard Vane; Mr. Alfred Donning is a capable interpreter of the staid old soldier, General Delaporte; Mr. Charles Conway adds his share to the nefarious designs of the Count; and Mr. H. Creagh Hunt satisfactorily impersonates André. Miss Maud Malvern puts all she knows into the part of Blanche Darville, a faithless wife; and Miss Trixie St. Albans acts with tender devotion as Pauline Delaporte. The humorous element is capitally sustained by Miss Lillah Shelton and Messrs. Chas. M. Julian and Harry Emerson.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker.—The quaint sayings and humorous songs of Cruikshank's are always a source of pleasure to patrons here, and his appearance this week has been most welcome. Hale and Frances are marvellous manipulators of the hoops, and the clever balancing feat of Francis on a large globe evoked a storm of applause. The Norman and Leonard Trio provide a musical treat, their performance on harp and violin being exceptionally clever. Another musical item is that of the Five M.I's, a quintette of vocalists, whose songs and glees arouse the utmost enthusiasm. A skilful and interesting acrobatic turn is given by the Three Donals; Miss Nellie Lomas, a young Nottingham artiste, adds to her former successes with the song, "Farewell, my little Yo San"; and Basalari, of double voice fame, wins golden opinions. Ryder Slone's latest scena, Are 'Yer Asleep, is given with his usual success. Frank Leslie, descriptive vocalist, and the Kieffer Company, in a pantomimic sketch, close an excellent programme.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. J. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Miss Dorothy Oswald's company, with the musical version of East Lynne, is drawing good houses. Mr. Herbert Barrs gives a careful study of Archibald Carlyle, and as Lady Isabel Miss Dorothy Oswald is exceptionally impressive. Mr. Arthur E. Pringle is well suited in the cynical part of Francis Levison. Miss Tilly Stewart sings and acts well in the part of Barbara; Miss Maggie Stewart as Joyce is a favourite, and gives her songs and dances in good style. Others deserving mention are Mr. George Beel, Mr. Geo. Harvie, and Miss Norah Caronne.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr. Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hulme.—The Blanchard Diamonds is being played here by Mr. John Hart's company. Mr. Albert Ward as Nat Stearn, acts his part with a manliness that is cordially appreciated; Mr. Benson North, as Richard Croal, gives a clever interpretation of the villain; Mr. Walter Russell is pleasing as the old Baronet; Mr. Edmund F. Kennedy, as Erie Blanchard, is commendable; Mr. Edward Rochelle, as Joe Tregellis, supplies an excellent portrayal of the fisherman; Miss Maud Hildyard, as Ruth Tregellis, contributes a powerful performance; as May Sherringham Miss May Congdon is successful; Miss Julia Kennard, as Lady Blanchard, is effective; Mr. Joe Rowland as Farmer Gummidge; Mr. Jos. Hudson as Jerry Bickerdyke; Miss Nellie Dallas as Phœbe, and Mrs. Richard Edgar as Mrs. Gossett, are admirable in their respective parts.

ROYAL, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr. Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Knowles.—Another excellent programme is submitted here. Miss Lillie Soutter, comedienne, is delightfully entertaining; Jack Lane, the Yorkshire rustic, is clever; Maxwell and Frances, comedy artistes, are successful; Tom Stuart, character actor, is well received; Sanford and Lyons, comedians, are warmly appreciated; Baroni and Kemp, Protean artistes, are cordially received; Walter Munroe, Irish comedian, is warmly greeted; Dezmonti and Mora score in their triple bar act; and Florence Esdaile is a charming operatic vocalist.

GAIETY, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—A popular programme is presented here this week, including the Four M.P.'s., who are well received in their musical speciality, entitled Officers at Play. Angeline gives a capital juggling performance; Alec. Aubrey is well received for his silver ring performance; Frank Zara, American comedian, scores; Mdlle. De Vena gives a capital performance of club juggling; Miss Daisy Palmer, serio and dancer, is smart; Miss Katie Epieta, comedienne and dancer, is excellent; and the Bioscope continues to be successful.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill.—We are having a delightful treat here this week in the visit of Mr. Charles E. Hamilton's company in Peggy Machree. Miss Marie Dainton, in the title-rôle, plays with a fascination and a roguish humour that simply bewitch her audience. Mr. Denis O'Sullivan scores a complete success as the light-hearted Barry Trevor; Miss Dorothy Garden makes a charming Emily; Miss Jenny Dawson is altogether perfect as the Aunt, and Miss Florence Vie does well as Moira. Mr. Graeme Campbell hits off the dour Scotch major domo to the life; Mr. E. Lang gives a successful study of Laurence Borthwick; and Mr. Dan Fitzgerald makes a most interesting and effective Michael. Miss Ida Lawrence contributes some pretty dances.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. G. P. Wells.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clifford's company is fulfilling an engagement here with At Twelve Midnight. Mr. Charles Clifford presents a good character study of the villain, Sir Robert Dare, whose accomplice, the Earwig, finds a capable exponent in Mr. E. T. Birdsley. Mr. Leonard Williams is manly as Dick Holland, and Mr. E. Morton is seen to advantage as Lieut. David Kingston. Mr. Harry Cooke is lively as Sammy Bimbo; Mr. T. Dyson makes the most of Miser Dene; Miss Maud Camfield is a sympathetic Hazel Dene; Miss M. Tremere a vivacious Sally Wigans, and Miss F. French a stately and convincing Gertrude.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—For the first three nights of the week Mr. W. H. Powell's company occupied the boards with There and Back. Mr. Edwin Ramsdale was irresistibly funny as Henry Lewson; Mr. Victor Hill's William Waring was a capital portrayal; Mr Wilson Roberts was admirable as Jack McRae; and a fine embodiment of Guy Grinding was submitted by Mr. Frank Wheatcroft. Miss Gwendoline Burney impersonated Mrs. Lewson charmingly; as Mrs. Waring Miss Blanka Stewart was exceedingly smart; and Miss Ada Broughton gave a captivating presentmentof Marion Antoinette Smith. For the remainder of the week Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's Cousin Kate company was billed.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Delno Fritz.—Here this week are Tom Bassett, Shakespearean tragedian; Sheen, Fox, and Sheen, comedians, comedy boxers, and knockabouts; Vance Bros., comedy instrumentalists; Sisters Brand, comediennes and dancers; Tom Packer, comedian; Brothers Brooks, in a comedy act; and the Boston Twins, comedians and knockabouts. The Empire cinematograph gives new pictures.

PENTRE. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Sole Owners, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. Eugene Hardie.—Mr. John H. Tomkinson's musical combination, The Royal Gipsy Children, is paying a welcome visit this week. The choruses, duets, solos, are smart, and the various dances are cleverly executed. The variety programme consists of Elsie Rubina; the Florida Troupe of cake walk dancers; Fred. McLean, the popular character comedian; the Musical Keiths, the clever manipulators of various instruments; Miss Evie Lynn, the charming skirt dancer; and the Lizzette Troupe of acrobats and tumblers. The Girls' Orchestra contributes largely to the success of a refined entertainment.

PERTH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Miss Emma Hutchinson's and Mr. Percy Hutchinson's principal company was engaged here the first half of the week in the comedy, Cousin Kate. Miss Edith Walker acts the part of Kate Curtis with force and vivacity; and Mr. Walter Ringham is equally characteristic in the rôle of Heath Desmond; Mr. Donald MacLean scores as the Rev. James Bartlett; Master Vyvian Thomas proves a self-important Bobby Spencer; Miss Nina Cressy hits off Mrs. Spencer with admirable taste; Miss Hilda Honiss is well placed in Amy Spencer; and Miss Betty Spencer also scores. A Case for Eviction is given as a curtain raiser, in which Mr. Donald MacLean and Misses Betty Castle and Hilda Honiss, as Frank, a young doctor, Dora, his wife, and Mary, a servant, respectively, ably take part. Mr. W. H. Powell's company in Charles Hawtrey's latest success, There and Back, was booked for the latter half of the week.

PETERBOROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—A Country Girl is being attractively presented here this week by Mr. Charles Macdona's company. Miss Anna Robertson cleverly assumes the broad countrified manner of Nan, and also sings in good style; Miss Daisy Davis distinguishes herself as Marjorie; Miss Lucie Lever scores as the Princess; and Miss Sadie Neville meets with approval for her bright and lively performance as Madame Sophie. Barry is acted with irrepressible buoyancy and humour by Mr. Richard Telford; Mr. Bernard Vaughan is good as the Rajah; Mr. Geoffrey Chaloner is well represented by Mr. Herbert Standing, jun.; and Mr. W. O. Billington as Sir Joseph Brity and Mr. M. Ravin as Lord Ancheeter, also appear to advantage.

PLYMOUTH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The Cardinal is being staged here this week by Mrs. Russ Whytal's company. To Mr. Philip Cunningham falls the important task of representing the Cardinal, and it is a most impressive study, abounding in good qualities; Mrs. Russ Whytal is admirable as Filiberta, acting with much intelligence and power; Mr. Gerald Kay-Souter is an ideal Guiliano de Medici, and as Chigi Mr. Oscar Adye is a success. Mr. Douglas Gordon achieves good results as Strozzi, whilst Mr. George Ingleton is a dignified magistrate. Miss Katherine Maude's artistic impersonation of the Cardinal's mother elicits warm admiration.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is appearing here this week in Her Forbidden Marriage, which is proving a strong attraction. Miss Isla Garnet Vayne acts with much grace and charm the part of Lucy, Miss Barbara Gott's impersonation of the Mother Superior is striking, and Miss Georgette Thierry's portrayal of Lady Lancaster is a clever study. An artistic and skilful presentation of George Madison is forthcoming from Mr. Horace Hunter, whilst Mr. Clarence Hague plays in commendable fashion the character of the villain. Mr. Alfred Wellesley and Miss Marie Kildare provide a feast of fun, and other parts are well sustained by Mr. J. Stone, Mr. Edgar L. Hocking, Mr. G. Heron, and Mr. W. Browning.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton.—A very interesting play, which naturally nowadays attracts the play-going public, is Mr. Walter Howard's play, Under the Russian Flag, now being performed here by Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company. Conspicuous in a strong cast are Mr. Alfred Paumier and Miss Annie Saker, who fill important rôles with conspicuous success, both reaching a high standard of excellence in the emotional scenes. Others deserving of praise are Miss Ivy Chandos, Miss Queenie Nigel; Messrs. H. Roberts, W. S. Hardy, F. H. Constable, E. Lever, W. Parkin, R. C. Haws, H. Garner, and E. Lambert.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Livermore Bros.; Manager, Mr. J. Field.—A capital show is attracting fine houses here this week. The star turn, and certainly the most sensational, is that provided by the Tom Davis Trio, whose daring cycle feats are both clever and wonderful. Skilful displays on the tight wire, acrobatic exhibitions, and musical items are included in the show provided by the Five Whiteleys; Mr. Harry Bedford's funny songs and patter are well received, and Miss Belle Braham's vocalism is also much appreciated. Forest and King dance and tumble very smartly indeed; Mr. Nelson Hardy's ventriloquial sketch is entertaining, and sprightly dancing and singing are provided by the Sisters Clive.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Business-Manager, Mr. Rex. Dooley.—On Monday, and two following days, Mr. Bedford staged Mafeking at this theatre. Colonel Playden Howell was admirably portrayed by Mr. Henry Bedford; Mr. Sid Bedford put any amount of go into the character of Tommy Atkins; Mr. Alec Alexander was a typical captain; Lieutenant Cecil Rayne was in the able hands of Mr. T. Edward Evans; Mr. G. W. Hewetson scored as Pat; Mr. Leonard Page was a decided success as Sandy McPherson; John Jones was capably portrayed by Mr. T. R. Walters; Mis Bessie Bedford is worthy of high praise as Alice Leigh; Miss Gertrude Gilbert was an admirable Lady Muriel Denbigh; Miss Maud Steeple was a great success as Sister Ursula; and Annette was excellently portrayed by Miss Jennie Risley.

PORTSMOUTH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Messrs. Charles Frohman and Arthur Chudleigh's company is here, presenting the agreeable farcical romance, The Duke of Killicrankie. Mr. Scott Craven in the title-rôle gives a clever interpretation; Mr. Arthur Grenville is a most amusing and humorous Pitt Welby, M.P. Lady Henrietta Addison is played in a winning and natural manner by Miss Doris Templeton; Miss Aida Jenoure as Mrs. Mulhollard does full justice to the part; and Miss Margaret Damer is a dignified Countess of Pangbourne. The chief piece is proceeded by Barbara, with Miss Margaret Damer in the name-part.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—The sensational melodrama, Hearts Adrift, is being successfully presented here this week by Mr. Arthur Bertram's company. Mr. Julian cross plays with intense earnestness the part of Captain Teddy, a man with a past; Edmund Gerne, promoter and inventor, is admirably acted by Mr. Percy Rhodes; Pidgeon, in the hands of Mr. J. P. Dryden, leaves nothing to be desired; Little Tim is cleverly rendered by Harry Pleon, jun. Miss Celestine Bertram interprets Rosie very naturally; Miss Ella Dixon as Peggy McGuire, Miss Beatrix Bell as Energy Mugs, and Miss Maud Chery as Mother Hagslow are all satisfactory.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—A most attractive programme is provided at this hall for the week. Carrie Laurie and her Juveniles, in the Kindergarten, meet with a flattering reception; May Moodie, piccolo soloist, is a popular and pleasing item; Fred. Albini, prestidigitateur, presents his mysterious Lady in Black, a most diverting turn; Doody and Wright, the Australian comiques, create roars of merriment by their business; Fred Spencer, pantomime dame, is good; Francisco, equilibrist, with some new tricks, is clever; Spring, Spring, and Rosie Carlo, champion acrobatic barrel jumpers, give a capital display of balancing and jumping; and Lanton and Lane, speciality artistes, Alec Kennedy, actor vocalist, and Amy Clack, Indian songstress, also appear.

PRESTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Mr. George Dance's principal company, in The Orchid, provides a welcome attraction here this week. Miss Ethel Bryant is a dainty Lady Violet Anstruther. In the rôle of Caroline Vokins Miss Madge Lucas gives a clever and amusing impersonation. Miss Elsa Werner as Zelie Rumbert, Miss Chrissie Ralland as Thisbe, and Miss Ida Chichester as Countess Anstruther are good in their respective parts; and a pleasing embodiment of Josephine Zaccary is submitted by Miss Sylvia de Lacy. Mr. G. Davy Burnaby infuses the necessary sangfroid into his delineation of Guy Scrymgeour; Dr. Fausset has an excellent representative in Mr. Edmund Hollick; Mr. Ernest Darrell acquits himself well as Mr. Aubrey Chesterton; Mr. Edmund Page is a praiseworthy Count Cassignat; and Mr. Bertie Wright supplies a large share of the fun as Meakin.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's No. 1 company is appearing here in The Sin of Her Childhood. The Rev. Alan Grey is ably played by Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves. The villainy of Stephen Haysel is well portrayed by Mr. Austen Milroy. Mr. J. A. Campbell admirably sustains the part of Captain John Thornton. Miss Jennie Hicks is worthy of praise as Maria Haysel. Miss M. Fulton in the rôle of Mary Haysel plays he part excellently. Little Edith makes a good Erick Dugdale. Little Dot Moss, as Hannah Spry, receives deserved applause with his songs and dances. Mr. Fred Elvin, as Barney O'Reilly, and Miss Nellie Freeland as Eliza Muggins render valuable assistance.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident-Manager, Mr. Clement Freeman.—A very enjoyable programme is provided here this week. Miss Madge Grey heads the bill, and is well appreciated as a dialect comedienne. Lachie Thompson's Topweights (Tom and Neil) deserve praise for their boxing, wrestling, and club swinging. Miss Ema Don and her black and white quartette of vocalists, bring the house down with a series of songs. Mr. Guy Ryder, the whistling comedian, is a clever turn. Clown Barker and his troupe of well-trained animals go through a good performance. Geoffreys and Benson provide a mirth-provoking sketch, entitled A Little Bit of Bacon. Mr. Harry Maxam is worthy of mention. Mr. Tom Skeers, vocalist, and Amstel and Luie, comedy artistes and dancers, complete the programme.

RAMSGATE.—AMPHITHEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—The Russian play, Slaves of Passion, has been presented here this week by Mr. Vivian Grantham's company. Mr. V. W. Carlyle gives a capital performance as Ivan Dronski, the sculptor, and the same remark applies to the Paul du Beaupre of Mr. Alfred H. Majilton and the Sir John Hawthorne of Mr. Vivian Grantham. The villainous element is efficiently represented by Mr. H. F. Maltby as Prince Mazaroff, and Mr. Tommy Nelson does capitally as Harry Dunn. As the French adventuress, Leoni Devigne, Miss Joan Pereira acts with power; Miss Kate Hallam is quite at home in the rôle of Princess Sonia de Mazaroff, as is Miss Maude Henderson in the part of the Baroness Valinski. Lisette is played in excellent fashion by Miss Maude Merrick. As for the leading lady's part, Zara Dronski, that is impersonated in a truly artistic style by Miss Constance Medwyn.

RAWTENSTALL. — GRAND THEATRE.—Co-Proprietors and Lessees, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Ellis Miller.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company opened here on Monday with a successful performance of Greed of Gold, the play being received with marked appreciation. Miss Agnes Verity gave a fine rendering; as also did Miss Hettie Woods as Cecil her son. As Harry Hood, Mr. Carthage Caldcleugh made an excellent villain. Mr. W. Heilbronn as Arthur Errol gave a fine manly impersonation; as also did Mr. T. S. Warry as Brightson, K.C. Mr. Walter M. Cameron as Cull Snig was excellent, and the comic element was well sustained by Mr. Joseph Macgoath and Miss Winnie Donovan as Con Creamer and Patty Mayfield. The chief interest was, however, centred in Mr. B. Fox as Tom Wolstead, the dumb man, whose pantomimic rendering of his part was exceedingly good.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr. Reginald Taylor.—Mr. Norman Macowan's company is providing a special attraction this week in Monsieur Beaucaire. Mr. Norman Macowan gives a fine impersonation of the title-rôle. Mr. F. Stuart Willson as the Duke of Winterset, Mr. H. P. Owen as Major Molyneaux, Mr. P. Ramsey Forman as Captain Badger, Mr. Wilfrid Compton as Beau Nash, Mr. Edgar Kent as Mr. Bantison, and Mr. Hans Schlesinger as the Marquis of Mirepoix are all worthy of special mention. Miss Violet Sterne acts very effectively as Lady Mary Carlisle.

ROCHDALE.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—An excellent performance of the charming play, Sunday, was given on Monday. The title-rôle was delightfully acted by Miss Jean Sterling MacKinlay, Colonel Brinthorpe was powerfully impersonated by Mr. J. Edward Pearce, Mr. Ernest A. Douglas made a capital Tom Oxley, and the four boys were well portrayed by Mr. F. Powell as Towzer, Mr. John H. Manley as Davy, Mr. T. Norman Walter as Lively, and Mr. Whitford Kane as Jacky. Mrs. Elizabeth Watson submitted a clever portrayal of Mrs. Naresby.

CIRCUS OF VARIETIES.—A most attractive programme is submitted here this week. The Goldinis, acrobatic carpet spinners, introduce a novel and clever act; Mike Cray is an irresistibly funny comic juggler; Lil Gorman, vocalist; Willette Bros., comedy pair; Reed and Lerne, novelty comedians; Agnese and Arthur Lynch in American picture songs; Charles Woodward, actor vocalist, and Vernon's Bioscope are other attractions.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Packed houses have been the rule here every night. The Seven Savonas, musical marvels, give an astonishing and marvellous display of music and effects, the "storm scene" from William Tell being admirably performed. They also appear as the Cycling Elliotts in a clever exhibition of cycling. Other turns are successfully given by Patty Yole, comedienne; Fred Horsfall, mimic and humorist; Cassie Walmer, the dusky Princess, a great favourite here; Victor Newman, actor mimic; Ralston and Frances, in musical scena, and the Empire Bioscope.

ROTHERHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Manning.—Mr. John Wainwright and company are here this week with the ever-green drama, It's Never Too Late to Mend. Mr. John Wainwright delights the house as Tom Robinson, and Mr. Wilfred Graham is a manly George Fielding; Mr. Charles F. Johnson as Rev. Francis Eden is a typical muscular Christian, and Mr. Henry Lee scores as Peter Crawley; Mr. Edwin Davis is seen to advantage as Isaac Levi, and Mr. Charles Carlton is deserving of mention as William Fielding; Mr. W. R. Weldon is a bluff Mr. Merton, and Mr. Fred Owen is amusing as Jackey. Miss M. Ashton is pleasing as Mary, and Miss Minnie Wilton gives capital portrayal of Josephs. Miss Kate Randolph as Susan Merton submits a realistic rendition of a sympathetic rôle.

RUNCORN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. H. W. Caddick.—The Gipsy's Oath and East Lynne are being played here this week, under the direction of Mr. Wilfrid Protheroe. The company works hard, and was rewarded by a packed house on Monday night. Both pieces were well put on. Mr. Wilfred Protheroe, Mr. Holland Day, and Mr. G. Newall especially met with favour, as did also Miss Marie Stoddart and Miss Eva Warren, and Miss Hilda Merrilees was admirable as Barbara, her reading being far above the usual. The minor parts and the comedy scenes met with entire satisfaction.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy evidently seems to be a great favourite here, as his appearance in the title-rôle of Dan the Rake was fully welcomed by a large audience on Monday. He and Miss Lilian Clare, as Madge, kept the house in roars with their Irish drolleries. Miss Ada Roscoe did full justice to the character of Mrs. Donelly; Mr. Frank Copeland as Lieut. Charles Kavanagh, and Miss Florence Halton as Helen, were successful. The traitorous Captain Tom Cooper was well placed in the hands of Mr. Frederick Biron; and Mr. Frank Orchard worked well as Colonel Flamer.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Frederick Yates.—A good bill is this week headed by Martin Conway, an amusing comedian, who is a favourite in this locality. A clever comedy sketch, Turning the Tables, is contributed by Brady and Johnson. A good strong show is given by the Three Seebornes, equilibrists; Oakley and James have an amusing sketch, introducing singing, juggling, and acrobatic feats; some clever concertina work is done by Concerto; and other good turns include George Helm and Emmie Cozens, in The Doctor and the Patient; Rosie Newport, serio; and Davie McNeil, versatile vocalist.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. J. B. Taylor.—There is much variety in the entertainment provided this week. A pleasing act, entitled The Magic Album, represents picture postcards; Wee Mona, a clever artiste, is exceptionally good; Marie Winsome, male impersonator, scores heavily; the novel musical act of Clown Charlton is highly appreciated; Lavers and Lake's comedy company is seen to advantage in the screaming absurdity, The Spectre of Mildew Chase; and other acceptable turns include the Three Clarions, comedy artistes and expert dancers; J. Wilson, bones and glass soloist; Sisters Neilson, duettists and expert dancers; and Frank Dunlop, comedian and story teller.

L. AND N.W. PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. A. Higham; Manager, Mr. Sam Higham.—Among the artistes here this week are Mr. Charley Murray, Irish comedian; Mr. Joe Hunt, comedian; and Miss Lizzie Round, serio and male impersonator.

BRIDGE HOTEL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Tom Bradbury.—Mr. Sam Ridgway, comedian, heads the bill this week, and an enjoyable entertainment includes Mr. Harry Hanson, comedian, and Mr. Tom Gaffney, tenor vocalist.

SCARBOROUGH. — PEOPLE'S PALACE AND AQUARIUM.—Managing-Dirtector, Mr. W. Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—The programme this week consists of a variety entertainment. Le Wist's vaudeville company affords much amusement; Henry Reno proves a smart conjurer; Nellie Stuart, serio and dancer, evokes a good reception; Witty Will Pearce is a good comedian; the Five Rhynes, musical comedians and dancers, are fully appreciated; Betts' performing fox terriers do some clever tricks; and Fred Lawrence, American versatile artiste, and the Herbal Queen help to make the entertainment most enjoyable. Bioscope views are also exhibited.

SEACOMBE.—IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kierman.—Messrs. Gerald Alexander and Galway Herbert's company is here this week in Facing the Music. Mr. Ernest Cossart is screamingly funny as John Smith; Mr. George Percy is equally successful as the Rev. John Smith, and Mr. Charles Fancourt, as Dick Desmond, and Mr. Gerald Alexander, as Colonel Duncan Smith, are quite successful in their respective rôles. Miss Katherine Parry is excellent as Mabel, and Miss Eve Erskine does well as Nora; Miss Dolly Beaufey gives an excellent rendering of Miss Fotheringay, and Miss Rose Carew is satisfactory as Mrs. Ponting. The piece is preceded each evening by My Lady Help

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—A week of pantomime has again been arranged for the patrons of this house, and on Monday The Babes in the Wood was presented by Madame Willoughby's company. The artistes of outstanding merit are Miss Pattie Fairley, a dashing Robin Hood, Miss Eva Frere, a pleasing Maid Marion, Misses Violet and Daisy Mottley, charming Babes; Miss Violet Robson, a fairy queen with a capital voice; Mr. Gilbert Payne, a ruffian with a fund of humour; Mr. Alf. Foy, a capable dame; and Mr. Geo. Bankes, an admirable Uncle; whilst the minor parts are carefully played. Pretty dresses and effective scenery are undeniable success; the McKays patter smartly, and wind up a clever turn with a lightning sketch; Lydia Dreams wins golden opinions for his clever sketch, The Last Call; Los Granadas excel as gymnasts and acrobats; and the Olive Trio, comediennes and dancers, prosper well. Others who contribute to the success of the programme are Rosie Bartlett; Chris Baker, and Fielding and Hull.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA. — EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Marlow, sen.; Manager, W. Marlow, jun.—Mr. Percy D. Standing's company commenced a three nights' engagement on Monday with The New Boy. Mr. Percy D. Standing ably acquits himself as Felix Roach; Mr. William Allison, as Archibald Rennick, or "the new boy," displays considerable talent; Mr. C. W. Standing is well suited as Dr. Candy, LL.D.; Mr. R. J. Danson makes an amusing Theodore de Brizac; Mrs. Rennick finds an able exponent in Miss Phyllis Manners; and Miss Joan Ellis is a most captivating and characteristic Nancy Roach. The one-act play, entitled At Evensong, precedes. His Excellency the Governor was presented on Thursday.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—General-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hemming.—Mr. Leigh Lovel's company is this week presenting for the first time here Captain Marshall's farcical romance. The Duke of Killicrankie, which was much appreciated. Miss Octavia Kenmore played the rôle of Lady Henrietta Addison with artistic charm, and with a fine appreciation of the requirements of the part; Mr. Leigh Lovel submitted a successful interpretation of Henry Pitt Welby; Mr. Herbert J. Bentley gave a highly creditable representation of the Duke; and the minor parts were all well sustained.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—The Belle of New York is paying a third visit here this week. The Ben Greet company includes Mr. Harry A. Meymott, an immensely droll Ichabod Bronson; Mr. Harold Wardroper, who successfully portrays Harry Bronson, lending excellent assistance to the Fifi, this latter part having an admirable and talented exponent in Miss Ada Elliston. Miss Mora Hersee, in the title-rôle, possesses a sweet voice. The idioscyncrasies of Karl Von Pumpernick are made sufficiently palpable by Mr. Walter Emro; Blinky Bill has a painstaking representative in Mr. Morrice Holmes; and Miss Florence Hersee is a bright Mamie Clancy. Miss Louie Codman is an acceptable Cora Angelique; and Mr. Colin M. Johnston handles well the part of Doc Snifkins, being capably supported by Mr. Bert Danson, a ludicrous Mugg; and Messrs. Lionel Yeoman and R. L. Cody as the Portuguese twins respectively. Miss Nellie Barnwell tastefully renders the coon song, "Ma Starlight Queen." The chorus and full orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. Ernest Hartmann, are praiseworthy.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—The vocalisation of the James Strolling Players affords enjoyment; Harland and Rollison, in a clever musical act, are thoroughly entitled to the good position they occupy in the bill; W. J. Ashcroft, the original solid man, figures advantageously in a sketch, entitled Jane Ann O'Hoolahan; the Knick-Knacks, in love duets and tricky dances, are pleasing; Harry Morgan, a negro comedian and dancer, is conspicuous; Geo. Ridgewell possesses a rich baritone voice, which is skilfully used; and the remaining items are Flora Leonard, a good ballad vocalist; Katie Butler, comedienne; Sisters Morgan, duettists and dancers; and the American Bioscope.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr. Jos. Sweeney.—Maggie Rimmer, who appeared so successfully here last week, is retained, her dainty dancing and singing being again the feature of the programme. The Novells hold the premier position, and their smart acrobatic and tumbling performance merits loud applause. Good gymnasts are the Three Dorians, and Lily Turner is a fascinating serio and descriptive vocalist. Others turns are ably submitted by Chas. Craston, Bennett and Martell, T. B. Fayme, and the Tivoli Bioscope.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—Messrs. Carson and Granville's company is appearing in a return visit of The Heart of a Hero. Mr. Fred A. Goddard displays genuinely artistic abilities in the arduous rôle of Jem Resdale, whilst as a foil, Mr. Chas. E. Johnson's callous and malignant demeanour as Wilfred Marl was certainly a success. Miss Cissie St. Elmo gave a sound impersonation of Nell Resdale, and nothing could be more appropriate than Miss Lily Langley's finished portrayal of May Ryder. As Jack Collinson Mr. G. Sutherland did some good work; as Mark Marl Mr. A. B. Mackay was successful; and Mr. Eric Forth displayed skill and discrimination as Dave Pritchard. Laughable comedy was supplied by Mr. Hugh Brady as Timothy Heighno; and Miss Ida Mackay assisted very cleverly and vivaciously as Susie Slacke. In the rôle of Mrs. Ryder Miss Beatrice Hudson was seen to advantage.

STAINES.—TOWN HALL.—Inez Howard's company (under the direction of Henry Chattel), in The 10.30 Down Express, visited Staines on Tuesday. The well-known sensational drama was well played by a capable company, and the striking scene from which the piece takes its name was very effectively worked. Miss Eva Trevenna was excellent as Bessie Leigh, the heroine, and Mr. Wilson Summers as Lieut. O'Malley gave a manly representation of the part. Mr. George Arthur made a sufficiently sinister villain. The disowned wife, Olive Coombes, was capitally played by Miss Nora Evelyn, whose make-up was striking. As Sam Wagstaffe, A.B., Mr. Harry Howe has a rich comedy part, of which he makes the most, and, supported by Miss Lillian Ramsdale as Peggy Potts, and Mr. J. O. Depone as Bletherby Bags, keeps the house amused.

STALYBRIDGE.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Leighton Rooke.—Mr. J. Gar. Kiddie, and his Little Bo-Peep pantomime company, are paying a visit here. Miss Lizzie Payne is happy in the title-rôle; Miss Nora Beverley has a fine presence, and sings melodiously as the Fairy Moonbeam; Mr. Kiddie causes much amusement as Tommy Long; and Mr. J. W. Groves, as Granny Brown is capital. The specialities comprise grand tableaux of living statuary, ballet of white china, the Milsted Quartette, the Solon Trio, the Hammersley Ballet Troupe of lady dancers.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—This week we are again favoured with a visit from Mr. W. H. Hallatt and company with a visit from Mr. Two Little Sailor Boys. The company is an excellent one, including, as it does, Messrs. W. H. Hallatt (Tom Yorke), W. H. Sams (Noel Tregarthen), Oscar Power (Jack Jolly), Tom E. Sinclair (Ben Baxter), Ambrose Horton (Royston), Miss May Grey and Miss Ethel F. Greene (the two Sailor Boys), and Misses Blanche Steele (Lola Yorke) and Mabel Scudamore (Mildred Grey). The mounting of the play is exceptionally good.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. T. Barrasford, W. Sley, and F. Willmott; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—The leading position here is filled by Fred Karno's troupe of comedians in the musical travesty, Mumming Birds, which is provocative of much mirth. Others appearing are the Kimberley Boys, popular comedians; Robins and Collier, eccentrics; Viviana, "the dancing girl;" Frank Cass, Bert Woodward, comedy cyclist; Houston Brothers, comedians and dancers, and Weisker's Bioscope.

ST. LEONARDS.—PIER PAVILION.—Pier-Master and Entertainment Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—Mr. Langhorne Burton's company is appearing here in the popular play, Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace. The piece is well-played. Captain Mowbray is cleverly embodied by Mr. Langhorne Burton; Miss Frances Davie is dainty and charming as Mrs. Gorringe; and in the character of Lieut. David Cairne, Mr. Langdon Bruce quite excels; the Isabel Kirke of Miss Kathleen Russell is a performance of conspicuous ability; Mrs. Jardine is well-played by Miss Viola March; and the old Colonel is naturally personified by Mr. Causland Stewart; Mr. Brember Wills makes a good detective; and Miss Haidee Hemsley does full justice to the part of Vicky.

STOCKPORT. — NEW THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—A Country Girl has been a decided attraction here this week, the performances of Mr. Geo. Dance's company being much admired. Mr. Johnny Osborne is exceedingly mirth-provoking as Barry, and as Geoffrey Challinor, Mr. Cyril Thompson sings and acts with successful results. Miss Maud Harvey as Marjory sings pleasingly, and Miss May Glen is in every way delightful in the character of Nan. Miss Addie Lennard as Madame Sophy, and Miss Nina Carlton as Princess Melaneh, are both highly satisfactory in their respective parts.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs. Weldon Watts; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder.—The new drama, by Max Goldberg, The Voice of the People, is given here by Dan F. Roe and F. B. Woulfe's company. As Barry Phelps Mr. Jos. Monkhouse acts with much dry humour, and his apt quotations keep the house merry; Mr. James Duncan's Rev. Walter Meredith is both clever and vigorous; Mr. Dan F. Roe's Adolphus Green is funny, and Mr. Henry Rutland's Morris Morris life-like. Steve Morris is well played by Mr. W. Howard Barlow; Mr. Tom Fuller's Jem Butterworth is capable, and the same may be said of Mr. Alfred Wade's Captain Goodman. As Maggie Miggs Miss Annie Thomas is funny; Miss Violet Lawson's Mary Maynard is good; and Miss Gertrude Bonser's Liz is a neat conception of the part.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Batty; Manager, Mr. W. Batty.—The chief attraction here is Tom Graves and his cycling sensation. Other clever turns include Fred Harcourt, in his clever conjuring; Lilian Warren, in illustrated songs; Kit Keen, comic; Bertha Winder, an uncommon dancer; Fields and Lewis, in burlesque; Percy Farrimond, the singing collier; the wonderful illusion, "Lilith," and new films by Payne's Bioscope.

STOKE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—The premier position this week is held by Mons. Hagedorn, in a delightful scenic exhibition. The effects obtained are really beautiful, and the turn is received with much enthusiasm. Casselli and James are clever banjoists, their playing being of a high standard; the Wynford Brothers give a smart exhibition of barrel jumping, &c.; Hicks' Six Clerks sing and dance admirably and are assisted by Little Peter; Ford and Hanson, in their musical turn, are excellent; Dot Stanley sings and dances well; Fred Curran, a singer of parodies, is well received; and Happy Attwood is a comedian of merit.

STOURBRIDGE. — ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—On Monday Mr. Henry Furnival's company opened for a week's engagement with Lost in Paris. The leading rôles of the Two Orphans were undertaken with marked ability by Misses Kate Willoughby and Louisa Peach. Miss Pattie Hastings gave an admirable rendition of the part of La Frochard, and Miss Alice Oliver undertook, in a dignified and pleasing manner, the part of the Countess. The principal male characters were in very able hands. Mr. W. J. Butler did well as the Count de Liniere. Mr. Edward Valentine was good as Jacques, and Mr. Henry Furnival was a satisfactory Pierre.

SUNDERLAND.—AVENUE THEATRE. — Proprietors, The Sunderland Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; General-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and John Walter's successful juvenile pantomime, Little Red Riding Hood, is appearing here. Miss Molly Rafferty wins all hearts by her conception of the title-rôle; Miss Lottie Harper is a dashing Boy Blue; and as Little Miss Muffet Miss May Gibson is excellent, her vocal efforts being heartily appreciated. Miss Flo Le Roy is a charming Robin Hood, and the same may be said of Miss Isa Gibson as Marjorie Daw. Mr. Paddy Mills, as Sunny Jim, is responsible for most of the fun, and receives valuable assistance from Mr. Fred Ellis in the rôle of Dame Trot. Messrs. Dan Dougherty and George Swinhoe prove themselves clever knockabouts; and the Sisters Allen and the Margueritta Quartette contribute some charmingly executed dances.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Sunderland Theatres, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; General-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—A Wife's Triumph is the attraction here this week. Frank Wilton is in the able hands of Mr. G. C. Doughty; and Mr. W. H. Garbois plays with considerable power as Ellis Jordon. Mr. Ernest R. Abbott's portrayal of Robert Dewhurst is a finished performance; Mr. Edwin Keene is amusing as Ben Bradford; Miss Ada Abbott, as Bessie Dewhurst, proves herself an actress of no mean order; and Miss Isabel Singleton is a pleasing Alice Wilton. Miss Elsie Jones is a bright Little Frank, and the remaining parts are all capably filled.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Livermore Bros.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George V. Wybrow.—Margaret Ashton, who is paying a visit here this week, had a flattering reception on Monday; Goggin and Davis, in their acrobatic act, are most amusing; Wal Pink and company score in their sketch, Peggy; Terry and Bentley present a capital comedy farce, The Hunt; and the Moyondos, speciality artistes, Charles Dixon, eccentric singer, Juan and McQue, comedians, and Kate Lynd, comedienne, also contribute excellent turns. There is also an up-to-date show of animated pictures.

SWANSEA.—THE GRAND THEATRE, Singleton Street.—Proprietors, Messrs. David Allen and Sons; Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Oswald Brooks and J. W. Woodbridge; Resident Partner, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks.—Sapho has been the attraction during the week, presented by Miss Annie Bell and company. Fanny Legrand was very capably played by Miss Annie Bell, who won hearty applause for her capital work; Mr. Frederick Ross gave an admirable impersonation of Jean Causin, and shared the applause with Miss Bell. Able support was rendered by Mr. H. W. Curnock, as Paul Dechelette; Mr. Archie Helsby, as Eugene Flamant; and praise is due to little Lottie Ray, a clever child actress.

THE NEW STAR, Wind Street.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Morton Powell; Acting-Manager, Mr William Coutts. The attraction here this week has been Judy, or the Fatal Hand, played by Mr. Geo. Kirk and Miss Mary Neil and company.

THE NEW EMPIRE, Oxford Street.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Mitchell.—The programme here this week includes Ludwig Amann, a clever impersonator of notabilities; Chas. Walker and Ida May, coloured singers and clever eccentric dancers; the Brothers Webb, musical Grimaldis; Unthan, the armless wonder; Signorina Verera, charming Italian chanteuse; the American bioscope; Pat Carey, refined Irish comedian; Johnny Gilmore, a quaint comedian; Paul Sandor, in his clever circus entertainment; and Selkirk's naval juvenile spectacle, The Handy Man, performed by 100 children.

THE PALACE, High Street.—Lessees, the Swansea Varieties, Limited.—Manager, Mr. W. D. Roberts.—The company here includes Harry Bent, humorist and mimic; Mdlle. Rosella, gymnast; D. J. Pedley, eccentric comedian and dancer; Cliffe Dover, comedian; Les Allesors, comedy gymnasts; Carlotta Lunn, comedienne; Marie Joyce, comedienne; and Martino, in A Nest of Vipers.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Responsible-Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners; Musical-Director, Mr. F. H. Lucas.—A large and appreciative audience welcomed a return visit of Mr. E. Hoggan-Armadale's Répertoire company to this playhouse on Monday, when The Sleigh Bells was neatly staged. The keenest interest was centred in Mr. E. Hoggan-Armadale's remarkably clever and powerful embodiment of Mathias; Mr. Fred Emery played Christian with commendable judgment, and Mr. W. F. Clitherow undertook Father Herman very effectively. Miss Violet Wilson was pleasingly natural as Annette; and Miss Marie Florence did well as Madame Mathias. The comedietta, A Kiss in the Dark, was the curtain-raiser. On Tuesday The Vicar of Wakefield was staged; and David Garrick and The Lady of Lyons are also in the répertoire.

TAMWORTH.—ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Manager, Mr. F. Hughes.—On Tuesday Mr. Ben Grett's Florodora company appeared here on a return visit, under the direction of Mr. J. Bannister Howard. Mr. Gus Danby was highly amusing as Tweedlepunch; Mr. Edward Chester made an excellent Gilfain; Mr. Edward Crossland sang and acted well as Frank Abercoed; whilst Mr. Chas. Stevenson, as Capt. Donegal, received a trinle encore for his song, "I Want to be a Military Man." Miss Fanny M. Newman acted with much chic and abandon as Lady Holyrood; Miss Daisy Lake was a charming Dolores; and Miss Louie Danby was successful as Angela Gilfain.

TON-Y-PANDY.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Counsell.—An old favourite attraction, Mr. John Tully's company, in Uncle Tom's Cabin, occupies the boards here. Uncle Tom is admirably undertaken by Mr. W. Tayler; Phineas Fletcher finds an able exponent in Mr. Jno. Tully; Mr. F. G. Kay shines as Simon Legree, and is ably supported by Mr. E. K. Taylor as Dan Haley. Miss Kitty Wood is decidedly a quaint Topsy. In Act 4 several pleasing specialities are introduced.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Messrs. C. and F. Renad's company is paying another visit here with The Swiss Express. The Brothers Renad again distinguish themselves in their clever rendering of the parts of the eccentric servants, James and John; Mr. Wilford Bailey acts well as Dr. Gull; and Mr. George Martin gives an admirable embodiment of Rob Rollingstone; Mr. Alec Wylie is amusing as Dudley Green; and the character of the landlord, Rhino, is well filled by Mr. George Power. Miss Nellie Fern makes an effective Mrs. Septimus Squeeze; Miss Iris Banfield is charming as Virginia; the Four Brighton Girls execute some smart speciality turns and dances.

HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. Geo. S. Douglas.—Miss Lily Marney, characteristic comedienne, heads the bill this week, and wins well-deserved applause; Miss Addie Dorina gives a clever protean entertainment, assisted by Mr. Gilbert Fernie; Craig, Rose, and Craig are smart athletes; Curtis and Vanity, comedy duo, are enthusiastically received; Mr. Julian Mack, comedian, makes a hit; Mr. Fred Dunstone, comedian, does well. Other turns are Miss Beatie Foster, descriptive vocalist; Ray and Miles, in an interesting turn; and Mr. Wallace Whitney, eccentric comedian.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Mr. George Dance's company is here this week in the musical play, The Girl from Kay's. Miss Elsie Molloy, with much animation and brightness, fills the part of Winnie Harborough; Miss Emily Taylor charmingly portrays Norah Chambers; and Miss Mabel Dent's dancing, in the character of Ellen, is very graceful. Mr. Jack Durant is very humorous as Harry Gordon; Mr. George Blunt is exceedingly funny as Max Hoggenheimer; Percy Fitzthistle is admirably represented by Mr. Henry FitzGibbon; Mr. Clinton Meynolds does well as Theodore Quench, K.C.; and Mr. H. Pauncefort as Mr. Chambers; and Mr. Fred Payne as the magnificent hall porter, Joseph help with their capital impersonations to keep the fun going.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Mr. F. Marriott-Watson's company is occupying the boards here this week in A False Wife. Mr. George Langham gives a capital impersonation of Sir Colin Mansfield; Mr. Scott Leighton is exceedingly good as Lieutenant George Mansfield; Mr. John Cecil is most comical as Zorak; and Miss Florence E. Florence in the title-rôle displays considerable power.

WALTHAMSTOW. — PALACE. — Managing-Director Mr. G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr. Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatter.—Miss Grace Merton, the "street singer," has made herself a popular favourite here; Slippere, the blind pianist, continues to display his wonderful control over the Brinsmead; the New York Trio are young ladies whose acrobatic dancing seems much in favour; and a pretty turn is that of The Fitzroys (Fred and Lilian), society gymnasts, whose performances is marked by grace and dexterity. Martine and Son give their illustrations of American songs with much success; a very laughable performance is that of Zarmo, juggling comedian; Coco, the human baboon, plays with an amount of reserve force that many more "legitimate" actors might envy. Mr. Austin Rudd contributes two capital songs in his well-known manner; and Sally in Our Alley is played by Mr. John Lawson and his talented company in powerful fashion. For the latter half of the week, the ever-popular Humanity occupies the place of honour.

KING'S THEATRE.—The interesting Russian drama At the Foot of the Altar, written by Mr. Frederick Jarman, is the attraction here this week. Mr. Sanderson Moffat, a fine-built representative of the wicked Captain Nevski, acts with considerable power; Mr. Percy Maitland, as the persecuted Paul Orloff, plays with a force and vigour that are never boisterous. A favourite with the audience is the Ivan Gualonski of Mr. Bernard Dunstan, whose brightness is quite infectious. The Grand Duke Victor of Orenberg, and the Czar Alexander are capitally "doubled" by Mr. John Paley; and Mr. George Burt is excellent as Major Peterson. Miss Phyllis Hamilton as Princess Natalie has a part that suits her admirably.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter.—Mr. W. H. Kirby's company in The New Mephisto is reappearing here this week under the direction of Messrs. Paul Kaye and Clarence Lindon. Mr. Albert Weston, an old favourite here, enhances his reputation by his versatility. Miss Nellie Burdette, as Dolly, acts and sings with grace and charm, and strikingly amusing are the portrayals of Dick Pilgrim by Mr. Willie H. Vernon, and Becky Pilgrim by Miss Marion Armitage. Mr. Clarence Lindon scores as Captain Meredith, and Mr. Hubert St. John and Mr. Arthur Randal as Lord Hummingtop and Major Bantam respectively. The three jolly widows have able representatives in the Misses Dorothy Cecil, Leah Howard and Lilian Gregory. The Thalian Glee Singers are heard to advantage.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements Mr. F. Willmot.—Tom Lloyd, a really smart comedian, heads the bill here this week and has served well. Gus Harris, the Hebrew character vocalist, again makes many friends, and Will Hall is one of the most accomplished mimics that has been seen here for some time. Rose Waller is a charming comedienne, and Watts and Dean are entertaining coloured vocalists and dancers. La Belle Tosca goes through a graceful performance on a tight wire, and the Jansons supply a novel gymnastic act. Vanda submits a clever act on the rolling globe; and the Royal Bioscope, manipulated by Mr. J. L. Weisker, shows several amusing pictures.

WEDNESBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. J. Cranston.—This week Mr. Charles H. Phelps' specially selected company is here in the new musical comedy drama, entitled, One Woman's Wickedness. Mr. Lawrence Brien, as Philip Beaufort, and Mr. Hubert Humphreys as Paul Roque, do excellent work in their respective parts. The important rôle of Jem Craggs, an escaped convict, is in the capable hands of Mr. Chas H. Phelps; Mr. Carlton Harget makes the most of the part of Lord Fossett; the comedy part of Lord Algernon Fitznoodle is admirably portrayed by Mr. George Byrne; as Lillian Craggs Miss Amy Dalby is well worthy of special mention; Miss Ethel Asbury gives a highly capable interpretation of Jenny Jiggles; and excellent work is done by Miss Frances Jessop in the part of Marienne Beaufort and Miss Florence Lloyd as Janet Raymond WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. P. Moore.—Mr. George Dance's company in A Country Girl is paying a first visit here. Mr. Harry Buss as Barry enters thoroughly into the rollicking fun of the part; Mr. Percy Davidson acquits himself well in the part of Geoffrey Chaloner; Mr. G. J. Williams scores a distinct success as Sir Joseph Verity; Mr. Cliff Davis is good as the Rajah of Bhong; the same may be said of Mr. W. Haywood's Lord Anchester; the rôle of Douglas Verity is ably undertaken by Mr. Ernest Plumpton, who also distinguishes himself as an excellent stage manager; Mr. Henry G. Shaw gives a clever piece of character acting in the part of Granfer Mummery; Miss Ada Watson delights the house with her Princess Melaneh; Marjory Joy has an accomplished exponent in Miss Pauline Hague; Miss Daisy Gay's Nan is a sterling performance; and Miss Veronica Brady does full justice to the part of Madame Sophie.

WEST HARTLEPOOL. — GRAND. — General-Manager (for Mrs. Weldon Watts), Mr. Sidney Bacon; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred Conneaux.—That a visit from Mr. George Dance's company is always welcome here goes without saying. The Duchess of Dantzic was played on Monday evening to a well-filled house. Miss Rita Presano, in the title-rôle, endows the part with admirable naturalness, and her musical abilities are such as to find great favour with the audience. Mr. Thomas C. Maxwell, as Phillippe, obtains a flattering reception for his rendering of the song in the first act; throughout the play his assumption of the character is excellent. Mr. Mackesay Cullen submits a good interpretation of the rôle of François Lefebvre; as Napoleon, Mr. Frederick Moyes is excellently suited. Humour is well represented by Mr. Colin Mackay, as Papillon, and Miss Alice Coverick is daintily attractive as Renee.

PALACE. — Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—The bill here is headed by Walton and Miss Ella's canine speciality; Dolly, Agnes, and Maud, the singing cardboard box makers, have appeared here before, as also has Martin Henderson, the gifted blind musician, both of which turns have had a good reception. The speciality dancing of Susie and Protti is provocative of hearty applause; Ella and Rose contribute an amusing dancing act, Lost, A Husband; the excellent juggling feats of Larola are made intensely funny by his droll method of performing them. Harry Cotton, comedian; Sinclair and Parr, in a sketch; and Rose Cabani, comedienne and dancer, are also on the list.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Miss Ada Wallis and her company are here this week with the musical comedy, The Major. The author of the piece, Mr. T. C. McGuire, is really funny as Major Barney O'Neil; and as George Goodman Mr. Frank Hartley is very good. Mr. Alec. Godfrey does well as Jeremiah Stoney; and as Ezekiah Stoney Mr. G. Whitey does equally well, being ably assisted by Miss J. Hughes as Mrs. Emma Gampney. Miss Ada Wallis is excellent as Angelina Touchemup, creating much merriment in her delineation of the part. The specialities introduced, including the Sisters Valli, instrumentalists; and the Sisters Verne, skipping-rope and top-boot dancers, are well received.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mr. T. C. Rawes; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Williams. — Miss Marie Dagmar and company are paying a visit here this week with the sensational drama, entitled, A Life's Revenge, in which Miss Dagmar finds full scope as an actress in the part of the Princess Ivyala; whilst the remaining characters are ably sustained by the other members of a well-balanced company.

WHITEHAVEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Clark.—Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company is engaged here in the sensational drama, The Face at the Window. Mr. Augustine Knight is effective as Lucio Delgado, and as the detective Gouffet Mr. T. W. Dunscombe is excellent. Mr. A. Warne is good as Lucien Cortier; and the character of Le Blanc is well enacted by Mr. Gilbert Hall. Comedy is well represented by Mr. C. Alan Hineson as Peter and Miss Gwynne Warren as Babette, and the part of Marie de Brisson has a charming exponent in Miss Marie Barrett.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE. — Managing Director, Mr. John Worswick.—Mr. Leslie Norman's company, in the musical comedy, A Trip to Chinatown, has drawn appreciative audiences during the week. The part of Welland Strong is ably sustained by Mr. Charles Sequin; and Miss Harriet Fawn, as Mrs. Guyer, acts, sings, and dances admirably; Miss Daisy Revett, as Flirt, also sings and dances charmingly; and Mr. Jerrold Manville, as Ben Gay, ably represents the character.

GRAND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr. J. Worswick.—Dida is the subject of a tank illusion; that is, she is made to mysteriously appear in a tank of water, and the performance evokes considerable speculation. The Baboon Crais' Prodigies, including a young baboon in cycling the loop, are interesting; and Frank Hartley, the boy juggler, is exceedingly clever; Fred Cary, eccentric comedian, delights the audience with his songs and original patter; and Sally Williams, a soprano vocalist, hailing from Wigan, possesses a fine voice and sings with good expression; Lavan, contortionist; Cecile de Paso, lady clay modeller; Gus Balsiger, comedian and trick instrumentalist; Jay Laurier, in his comedy sketch; and Stanley and Vandyke, in a comedy act, form the complement of a good programme.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Manager, Mr. W. Birchall.—Syd Herman is here a week longer; and the Two Dawsons give a laughable sketch, entitled Denby and Dent. Miss Lilian Neville, soprano vocalist; Walter Gurney, comedian and speciality artist; Lily Mason, comedienne; and Mons. Lawrence, conjurer, complete a popular list of artistes.

WINDSOR. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Licensee, Mr. Fred L. Connynghame; General Business-Manager, Mr. Worton David; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Nash.—Why Woman Sins, the well-known naval drama, is being presented here by Mr. Fred S. Jennings and Miss Florence Harles's company, under the direction of Mr. Arthur Herbert. The rôle of Capt. Carlton, R.N., the villain, is powerfully played by Mr. Edward Beecher; Mr. Jackson Hayes skilfully and in manly style impersonates Lieut. Harry Maxwell, R.N., the hero; Mr. Cecil Churton makes the most of the somewhat feeble Cecil Spencer; while Mr. J. E. Savery is sufficiently good as Jim Rainbird; Mr. Forbes Harrison, as Orlando Whiffles; Mr. Harvey White, as Sam Spavins; and Mr. F. Rilings, as Bobby Beans, provide excellent humour. The Waif, Jack Smith, of Miss O'Sullivan, is a touching and well-rendered character; Ida Valette, the woman with a past, is vigorously and realistically played by Miss Gussie Everitt; Miss Edith Savery presents a pleasing conception of Nell Desmond, the much persecuted heroine; Miss Marie West is excellent as Nancy Nibble; and Miss Dorothy Greaves is pert, lively, and smart as Lily de Vere, a music hall star.

WOLVERHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival.—The Sorrows of Satan, which is presented by Mr. C. W. Somerset, is this week's attraction. Mr. Somerset himself impersonates Prince Lucio in an admirable manner; Mr. Talbot Homewood capably sustains the part of Paul Carruthers; Mr. Richard Norton is an efficient Grafton Lyle; and Mr. Keith Fraser is a capital Lord John W. Burrows. Miss Agnes Russell is excellent in the part of Margaret Foster; Miss Leah Marlborough is effective as Lady Delia Dragnette; Miss Laura Clement is praiseworthy as the Countess Dragnette; Miss Geraldine Somerset is smart as the Hon. Ethel Cholmondeley; Miss J. Burnside proves efficient as Mother Wurrell; and Miss Daisy O'Neill is a charming little Mary. The scenic effects are good.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—The various attractions at this establishment include Charles Baron's burlesque menagerie; the Lindon Vaudeville Company, in their vocal scene, Monks at Play; Morris and Morris, eccentrics, in Fun on a Broom Handle; Lozelle, gymnast; the Lorrisons, comedians; Fine and Hurley, comedians; Veno, Walter Clyde, and the Bioscope.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—His Majesty's Guests is on a return visit this week, and Mr. Fred Karno's company has experienced a popular reception, their capable acting and the boisterous fun of the piece being much appreciated. Mr. Frank Morton as Lord Easem, and Mr. Harry Roxbury as the police-sergeant and shop-walker, won much applause, as also did Miss Edith Oger (Dolly) for her singing. Miss Leonora Castelle as Lady Easem, and Miss Amy Rogerson as Manley, were capital; and some clever business was shared by Mr. Harry Howe (Selina) and Mr. Fred Whittaker (Bunker). Mr. Chas. Usher's character sketch was good, and Mr. R. Wise (Jonah) and Mr. M. Johnson (the German) were well suited.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. Herbert Nicholls.—This week the chief attractions here have been the Three Musical Japs, in their refined and picturesque instrumental pot pourri; Lee and Arden, comedy dialogue artists, in their musical sketch The Lady and the Watchman; and Mr. Dan Noble, a popular comedian and vocalist. Miss Violet Anton, comedienne and dancer; Miss Marie Yorke, chic comedienne; and Mr. Fred C. Brookes, comedian and stump speech orator, also take part in a well-arranged programme.

YORK. — THEATRE ROYAL — Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. H. Barrow.—On Monday Under the Red Robe was given for the first time here by Mr. Norman V. Norman and company. Mr. Norman as Gil de Berault got through a tremendous amount of work triumphantly; Miss Beatrice Wilson gave an extremely sympathetic rendering of Renée de Cocheforet, acting with refreshing ease and grace; Mr. Robert Hilton made a picturesque and interesting Richelieu, and Mr. Herbert Morgan was manly and vigorous as Henri de Cocheforet.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE. — Managing-Director, Mr. William Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke. Variety again holds sway here, the principal turn being Franco Piper, whose wonderful manipulation of banjos is greatly enjoyed; the electric wonders, the Marconis, astonish all, and the Imperial Boys' Orchestra provide a musical treat greatly enjoyed. Ormonde, Penstone and Tsaon Nigo in their conjuring act are a great success, and as a ventriloquist Professor Hulbert has few equals. De Lil in his speciality is very clever; Eva Ward sings sweetly, and Mark Anthony and Ryder Davis are comedians of recognised ability, whose achievements meet with hearty applause.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

SYDNEY, FEB. 7.—The Lyceum Theatre, purchased by Mr. George Musgrove for £25,000, will undergo important alterations after the conclusion of the present season. The last bill is Old Heidelberg, admirably staged and capitally acted. Miss Nellie Stewart's Kathie is very captivating, Mr. Harcourt Beatty, too, is good as the Prince, and Mr. Dudley Clinton's Dr. Zuttner deserves mention; Mrs. Maesmore Morris is doing well; Mr. James Lindsay is a forceful valet Lutz; and Mr. Malcolm Dunn makes the students' leader, Graf von Asherberg, a manly personage. The stage-manager, Mr. Harry Parker, in addition, plays Kellermann most humorously; and the winsome Miss Amy Singleton adds to the completeness of the cast.

GILBERT AND SULLIVAN still hold the stage at Her Majesty's Theatre, where The Pirates of Penzance is doing good business. The next revival will be Iolanthe, on the 11th, when Miss Vinia De Loike will undertake the name part. Miss Dolly Castles and Mr. Charles Kenningham are also in the cast.

MR. BLAND HOLT sees no reason for changing his bill at the Royal, for The Best of Friends is drawing well.

THE TIVOLI audience gave a hearty welcome "home" to Fred Millis,

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, March 13,
"THE COMEDY OF ERRORS."

Mr. F. R. Benson's season at the Coronet comes to a close this week, after an eminently successful stay. On Monday The Comedy of Errors was presented, and roars of laughter accompanied the exposition of Shakespeare's comedy. The piece was excellently mounted and staged, and the Greek costumes proved admirably effective and becoming to the ladies engaged in the production. Mr. Benson has a pretty wit, and with many a quaint conceit and original device does he embellish this droll imbroglio, but all his acts and antics are well within the limits of becoming mirth. Nothing could be more ludicrous and laughable than the "confusion worse confounded" of act iii., scene 2, in the street in Ephesus; throughout uncontrollable mirth shook the audience. In manner and make-up the twins, both masters and men, were wonderfully alike, and only the voices served to differentiate between them. Mr. F. R. Benson realises to the full the the audience. In manner and make-up the twins, both masters and men, were wonderfully alike, and only the voices served to differentiate between them. Mr. F. R. Benson realises to the full the opportunities for ripe fun and mirth-moving characterisation in the part of the perplexed and affrighted Antipholus of Syracuse. Mr. Percy D. Owen, as his twin brother Antipholus of Ephesus, acts with appropriate vigour and impetuosity under the indignities that are put upon him. Mr. Arthur Whitby gives a thoroughly droll, artistic, and able embodiment as Dromio of Ephesus, and Mr. George R. Weir contributes a sound and humorous exposition of the character of his twin brother of Syracuse. Miss Gertrude Scott, as the jealous and shrewish wife Adriana is entirely admirable, and speaks her lines with point and passion. Miss Mabel Moore is very sweet and gracious as Luciana, and "Lesbia hath a beaming eye" and a most prepossessing appearance in the person of Miss Roxy Barton. Mr. Clarence Derwent acts with appropriate dignity as Solinus, Duke of Ephesus; Mr. B. A. Pittar is good as Ægeon, a merchant of Syracuse; whilst Miss Elinor Aicken as the Abbess, Mr. Philip Saunders as Angelo, the goldsmith, and Miss Leah Hanman as Luce, among others, do good work.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, March 13, the Romantic Comedy, by Arthur Shirley, entitled
"THE ADMIRAL'S LADY."

In place of Zaza, a performance of Mr. Arthur Shirley's romantic comedy, The Admiral's Lady, was given by Mrs. Lewis Waller and company at the Pavilion on Monday evening, and was received with every sign of approval by an enthusiastic house. Mrs. Lewis Waller achieved a notable success as Lady Rumbelow, entering so thoroughly into the character, and investing it with such admirable comedy, as well as the requisite pathos, that the impersonation stands out as one of rare skill and charm. Mr. H. Gomer May submits an excellent portrayal of Admiral Rumbelow, while a capital exposition of the unthankful part of Captain Braddon is rendered by Mr. Eric Mayne. Miss Minnie Rayner is singularly spirited as the maid, Betty, and acts with a freshness that is delightful. Miss Alice Langley plays most engagingly as Isabel, and Miss Ethel Warwick depicts the Marquise da Villaflor with the necessary dignity and hauteur. Mr. Edmund Waller is a manly Harry Rumbelow, his performance being marked with artistic finish. As the Marquis da Villaflor, Mr. Edgar J. Coyne displays undoubted ability, and presents a careful study, and Mr. Strickland, as the Major-domo Ildefonso, introduces much genuine humour into the part. A capable exponent of Peter Simpson is found in Mr. J. Henessey, and Mr. Frederick Jacques is acceptable as Joskin. The comedy is beautifully staged, while the uniforms are handsome and the dresses charming. Zaza was played on Tuesday and Wednesday, when Mrs. Lewis Waller repeated her previous triumphs in the title-rôle.

THE BRITANNIA.

"SIBERIA."

A strong attraction is supplied here this week in the popular drama Siberia Miss Rose Ralph must be complimented on her delineation of the character of Sara. As her sister Marie, Miss Edie King leaves little to be desired, proving herself an actress of high merit; Mr. Maurice Hoffman faithfully portrays Nicholai, and Mr. Chas. A. East's Jarakoff is a true example of Russian barbarity. With Miss Marie Wright as Vera and Mr. Willie Scott as Trolsky, the horse is kept in a state of excitement, both making themselves great favourites. Mr. H. Barrington does good work in the dual rôles of the Governor-General and Count Stanslau, and Miss Florence Lovell is an admirable Theodora. As the Priest, Mr. J. Booth is seen to advantage. Other parts are equally well filled. The scenery and dresses are excellent.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

"THE COLLEEN BAWN."

A highly interested audience assembled at this theatre on Monday night, and hugely enjoyed an excellent representation of this celebrated drama. Mr. Ernest E. Norris undertook the part of Hardress Cregan, and his acting was skilful and natural throughout. As Myles-na-Coppaleen, Mr. Howard Templeton gave an interesting representation of the rollicking dare-devil Irishman. Mr. Paige Lawrence is to be congratulated on his powerful portraiture of Kyrle Daly, and Mr. Clifford Bowen acted capably as Father Tom. Mr. Edwin Bennett, as Mr. Corrigan, scored a success, and Danny Mann was cleverly depicted by Mr. Henry Herne. The character of the Colleen Bawn was charmingly sustained by Mrs. Bennett, and her acting was, as it always is, characterised by that sympathetic touch that at once displays the true artiste. Miss Judith Kyrle looked fascinating as Ann Chute, and played the part in a vivacious manner. Miss Emily Dowton was good as Mrs. Cregan, and Miss Edie Martin was effective as Sheelah. The play was excellently staged, and the elaborate water tank scene, in which Mrs. Bennett, Mr. Howard Templeton, and Mr. Henry Herne all took active parts, received a great ovation. Special music had been composed by the clever chef d'orchestre, Mr. J. Nurnberger, under whose skilful bâton the band rendered every justice to the several selections introduced. Several Irish songs were well sung by the Shamrock Quartette.

THE ALEXANDRA.

On Tuesday, March 14, Shakespeare's
"OTHELLO."

Mr. F. W. Purcell, after a run of musical plays, is presenting this week a welcome change of programme in the shape of a visit for the first time to this theatre of the celebrated Osmond Tearle Shakespearean Répertoire Co. The plays set down for representation during the week have been Hamlet, Othello, The Lady of Lyons, The Merchant of Venice, Romeo and Juliet, As You Like It, and Macbeth. The company has the advantage of possessing as its leading man that sound and experienced actor, Mr. Walter Bentley, who on Tuesday held the attention of the audience in every scene in which he was concerned by his powerful and masterly performance of the jealous Moor. Mr. Bentley received excellent assistance from the company supporting him, notably so in the case of Mr. John Burton, whose Iago was a well-thought out and artistic piece of work. An admirable Cassio was found in Mr. Fred Sargent, who was seen to great advantage in the drunken scene, which he played with great tact and judgment. Miss Lillian Herries, as Desdemona, fully brought out all the sweet and womanly attributes of the character. The remaining parts were satisfactorily filled by Messrs. Cyril Este, William Lowe, Vivian Gilbert, Charles Kingsley, L. Evans, and E. Beverley, and Misses Phyllis French and Fanny Chamberlain.

THE GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, March 13, the Musical Comedy, in Three Acts, entitled
"MY SWEETHEART."

Miss Minnie Palmer and company are playing at Fulham this week in My Sweetheart, with Miss Palmer as Tina, her original part. The play appears to have been brought up to date somewhat—at least as regards topical allusions and some of the interpolated songs. It is now so well known that comment or description is unnecessary; it still has a fine air of idyllic simplicity, and was received on Monday with all its accustomed favour. Miss Palmer is bright and vivacious as ever; her songs, her dances, and all her quaint attitudes and sayings bring down the house. Naturally, as she has so made the part her own, the action of the piece largely revolves round her, but her company is well selected, and supports her admirably. Mr. Robert Howard takes the part of Tony, and both acts and sings excellently. Mr. F. Jerrard gives a quiet and sympathetic rendering of the Wyndhamesque part of Dr. Oliver, the man who puts things right for everybody else. Mr. H. Pollock is an imperturbable villain, and Mr. Hann gives an amusing study of the typical Yankee-Dutch farmer. Mr. F. W. Leonard makes a weird figure as Joe Shotwell, the broken-down sport, husband of the adventuress, Mrs. Fleeter, and Mr. Alfred Ibberson ambles to and fro as the amorous buffoon, Dudley Harcourt, and provokes roars of laughter at every appearance. Miss M. Sylvester plays the adventuress, Mrs. Fleeter, and is so quiet in manner and charming in appearance as to make one almost forget her heartless stage behaviour. Miss Amy Fanchette is a capital representative of the farmer's wife, Mrs. Hatzell, and the small part of Peek-a-Boo was satisfactorily filled by Miss A. Florence.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, March 13, for the First Time in London, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Hal Reid, entitled
"AT CRIPPLE CREEK."

Joe Mayfield	Mr. Mark Blow
Martin Mason	Mr. F. Vernon Travers
Manuel Alvarez	Mr. C. Douglas Carlile
Wahketah the Eagle	Mr. R. Harley-West
Ben White	Mr. Albert Rogers
Reggie Harwood	Mr. Will Hook
Rev. Dr. Wilson	Mr. Charles Watson
Davy	Mr. Tom Sharp
Puncher	Mr. Alfred Cooper
Sloggings	Mr. George Thorne
Maggie Mason	Miss Daisy Carlton
Belle Gordon	Miss Hope Maine
Little Tatto	Little May Douglas
Sarah Lively	Miss Leslie Wynne
Ann Marbury	Miss Marie Houseley

The pistol is in possession of the elegant Borough Theatre at Stratford, where this week has witnessed the first performance in London of the American drama, At Cripple Creek. Originally produced in this country at the Theatre Royal, Dover, on Jan. 5, the piece made an immediate hit, the incidents being freshly conceived and carried out with a direct appeal to the sympathies. There is an original vein of comedy, unlimited in its supply, to which no objection is possible, and the attitude of the large audience on Monday was throughout one of extreme satisfaction. Cripple Creek, the place where the action begins, is asserted to be the healthiest spot in Western America, but there is a danger of its forfeiting its reputation, considering the frequency with which the ready revolver is produced. The firearm appears first in Martin Mason's dance hall, and is wielded by Maggie, Joe's reputed daughter, who resents her father's efforts to chastise her for shooting a bear that was about to kill Tatto, the adopted child of a young miner named Joe Mayfield, whose leanings to righteousness have earned him the sobriquet of "The Parson." Mason is an unmitigated scoundrel. Having already ruined a girl named Ann Marbury, he is at the rising of the curtain in negotiation with Belle Gordon, a young lady from New York, whom he had enticed by an artfully-worded advertisement for a teacher. When Belle on her arrival finds out the character of the place, and would depart, she is prevented by Mason and his accomplice, Manuel Alvarez, a Mexican desperado. A little "swell" from Boston interposes in her behalf, and fights a round with Alvarez, in which the Mexican is knocked out, but in spite of that Belle is still detained until the arrival of Joe Mayfield. Joe offers Belle safety and shelter in his cabin, and is about to depart with Tatto and Maggie Mason, but Martin demands the surrender both of Maggie and Tatto, whom he claims to be his daughter's child. Joe refuses to part with either, and Mason decides to put them up at auction, when, after a lively conflict, the Mexican outbids Ann Marbury; but Joe Mayfield, not so easily daunted, organises his forces, and his little party cover the villainous group with their revolvers and make their escape.

Joe keeps his promise to protect the ladies, and in the second act they are seen in residence at his cabin among the rocks. In the intervals of digging and taking lessons from Belle Gordon, Joe has found time to fall in love with that attractive young lady, while the youthful Maggie Mason has begun a desperate flirtation with the Boston Boy. But a plot is on foot to kidnap Tatto, and Mason and the Mexican soon arrive with that object. Mason has another project in view, and that is to get possession of Joe Mayfield's mine, which has hitherto proved barren, but which Mason knows to contain a rich vein of gold. He offers to relinquish Tatto if Joe will surrender the mine to him, but Ann Marbury warns Joe not to give it up. Meanwhile, the Mexican has got possession of the child, and appears with it at the edge of a precipice far above their heads. Mason declares the Mexican will drop the child to the bottom unless Joe signs the paper, and on the latter's refusal to do so Manuel hurls the girl to destruction, but an Indian devoted to Joe swings out on a hanging branch, and catches the child in her descent.

The depredations of the villains are elaborated in the third act, which takes place in the interior of the Last Dollar Mine, as Joe's claim has been called. It is Mason's intention to blow up the mine with dynamite, the explosive also to serve the purpose of killing Ann Marbury, and Belle Gordon, who is tied with ropes to the wall. Here again the Indian is of use, for, though bound and gagged by Mason and Manuel, he manages to cut the cords and release Belle and Ann, who possess themselves of the scoundrels' pistols, while, with the arrival of Joe and the Boston Boy, the tables are completely turned.

By some intuitive means both Martin Mason and Alvarez make good their escape, and to the last prosecute their dishonest plans, even breaking in upon a wedding party, of which Joe and Belle Gordon are the central figures, in their determination to compass the death of the bridegroom. The faithful Ann Marbury, however, intercepts the bullet and is killed; and the villains eventually meet with well-merited punishment, while Maggie is discovered to be the sister of Belle, and nothing remains to interrupt a felicitous ending.

Many incidents of an enthralling description are added in the working out of the story, and are admirably treated by the members of Mr. Mark Blow and Miss Ida Molesworth's company. One scene in particular to be commended is that in which Maggie Mason arranges a match between Belle Gordon and Joe Mayfield. It was carried out charmingly by Mr. Mark Blow, who gave a perfect realisation in the part of Joe Mayfield of his description of "Nature's nobleman," delivering his lines with fervour and with earnestness, and establishing himself a firm favourite by the vigour with which he declaimed his lines. Miss Hope Maine as Belle assisted materially in the development of the sympathetic feature of the play by her comeliness and by her admirable delivery, the quiet reserve of which did not mar its effect. Miss Daisy Carlton added brightness to the piece as Maggie Mason, singing very well a coon solo, and joining in a duet about a crocodile with Reggie, "the Boston Boy," whose presence on the stage was ever an excuse for laughter, so drolly was he depicted by Mr. Will Hook. The unfortunate Ann Marbury was affectingly and none the less gracefully acted by Miss Marie Houseley, who imported the requisite fire into her passionate lines, and a well-spoken child was found in the Tatto of Little May Douglas. Mr. F. Vernon Travers put abundant malice into both word and deed as Martin Mason; Mr. C. Douglas Carlile affected the melodramatic mood strongly as the Mexican; and as the Indian, Warketah, Mr. Reginald Harley-West gave a finished portrait of the faithful savage. A "nigger" bar-tender named Ben White enters largely into the fun of the piece, and Mr. Albert Rogers made so much of him that every action was the signal for mirth. The play was well staged, and as the scenery is all carried, the success which it attained on Monday at Stratford gives promise of constant repetition.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 13, the Musical Piece, entitled
"THE DANDY DOCTOR."

Mr. Edward Marris and company are appearing this week at the Dalston Theatre in what is described as a "musical something to laugh at," and entitled The Dandy Doctor. This medico (Arthur Vandyke, M.D.), whose general appearance quite warrants his being called a dandy, finds a lively exponent in Mr. Cecil Clayton, and the character of his "intended," Ivy Pendred, is vivaciously played by Miss Mena Eckermann. Mr. Edward Marris reserves to himself the part of Melchisadek Brown, the "tinned meat millionaire." It is a character admirably suited to his style, which is beneficially bracing in the matter of implied energy, while his sense of humour is pronounced. Another distinctly funny individual, also of the breezy type, is Colonel Pendred, who has a vigorous representative in Mr. James Danvers. Mr. Walter Nugent, as Bertie Bolingbroke, of the genus dude, is quite a success, and as the Doctor's locum tenens he is especially busy in the second act, the surgery scene. Miss Florence Smithers, as Jane, general servant in Colonel Pendred's household, causes literally roars of laughter by her many eccentricities. The cast also includes Mr. J. P. Twist, who, as P.C. Quick, is most zealous for duty; Mr. Owen Dacroy, who represents one of the doctor's patients; and the Misses Norah Melton, Lillian Dacroy, Jessie V. Wray, Florence Allen, and Elsa Nicholson. Specialities are provided by Mr. James Danvers, as Paderewski up to date; the Dandy Belles, the Misses Ethel, Gertie, and Eva Ray; and Mr. Ben Rowe and Miss Holden, society cake walkers. A full chorus and troupe of dancers add to the general success, and the musical director is Mr. Hubert Bogetti.

EALING THEATRE.

On Monday, March 13, the Drama, in Four Acts, by F. Marriott-Watson, entitled
"WHAT A WOMAN DID."

Mr. Wm. A. Armour, with his excellent company, in What a Woman Did, is paying a visit here this week, and has been well received by appreciative audiences. The principal part of Conrad De l'Orme is played in fine style by Mr. Wm. A. Armour, who shows considerable ability. Mr. Percy E. Wright as the villain, Raffaelle Duroe, is quietly and effectively portrayed, and the kind-hearted Fritz Von Hoegitheim of Mr. Jim Woods is highly commendable, and wins applause. Mr. Fred Rignold creates much amusement by his depiction of the quack doctor, Perfect Pippin, and Pitou is ably undertaken by Mr. Frank Carlton. Mr. Vincent Hales has made a typical servant. The fascinating Miss Dora Price cleverly sustains the part of Elise De l'Orme, and the pretty and graceful Miss Alice Raymer, as La Papillion, must be complimented on her acting. The gay Miss Edna Hana shows experience and skill as Marie Brisson, and Miss Edith Marlow well fills the part of Terese Herve. Miss Louie Lonora sings with great taste, and is a capable Fanchon. The vivacious and lively Miss Norah Waylett highly distinguishes herself, and is an excellent exponent of the part of Nanetta. The minor parts are in good hands.

WEST LONDON.

On Monday, March 13, the Pantomimical Play, in Three Acts, by W. T. McClellan and H. Rousby, entitled
"LAUGHTER LAND."

As a vehicle for exploiting the wonderful acrobatic feats of the marvellous Craggs, this pantomimical absurdity serves its purpose well. In the second scene this clever troupe give an exhibition of skill and endurance, quite as fresh and amazing as when first the doings of the Craggs took London by storm. As Professor Sylvanus, Mr. Henry B. Lewis works with a will, and Mr. Harry Rousby, as Dick Marlow, is full of life and go, singing his songs in good style. Mr. Arthur E. Behan, as Squire Topsam, has met with a good reception, his topical ditty, "My Diary," hitting the tastes of the Maryleboners to a nicety. Mr. Victor C. Raymond is most successful as Archie Trentham, causing much merriment; Mr. Craigie Edwards has hit the mark as Alderman Trentham; and Mr. G. Westacott scores as Sir Vincent Marlow. As the Sisters Belgrave, Miss Cissie Dawes, Miss Kitty Lingard, and Miss Minnie Saunders are great favourites. They sing and dance in pleasing fashion, the coon number and cake walk meeting with uproarious recalls. Miss Amy Hastings, as Clarice Trentham, was a vision of loveliness and grace, and Miss Louise Millward scores as the love-lorn Clothilda. Others in the cast are Miss Doris Hanley (Miss Tudor), Miss Evie Daring (Miss De Vere), Miss Cecilia Hawthorne (Dinah), Miss Mary Leslie (Lulu), Mr. Leigh (Mr. Wilkins), Mr. Fred Leon (Mr. Kean), Mr. S. Bastick (Mr. Wingate), and Mr. Bert Muckle (Mr. Roland). The piece is light, wholesome, and cheery, and full of fun and liveliness.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 13, the Musical Comedy,
"THE PRINCE OF PILSEN."

Mr. George Musgrave's excellent company obtained a great success this week at the Kennington Theatre. Beautiful dresses, lovely scenery, splendid voices, and catchy songs, assisted by a large and well-trained chorus, are the chief delights of The Prince of Pilsen, the plot of which is obscured in a delightful dream of melody. Mr. Edwin Adeler, as the Cincinatti brewer, contrived to keep the audience amused the whole evening, his song, "It is the Dutch," being capital. Mr. John M. Hay gave a fine manly embodiment of Carl Otto, "the Prince," singing many nice songs. Of the ladies, Miss Beatrice Lamotte certainly deserves praise for her excellent singing and charming impersonation of Edith Adams, a Vassar girl. The duet, "In the Spring Time," with Lieutenant Tom Wagner, admirably played by Mr. Villiers Arnold, was a distinct hit. Nellie Wagner, afterwards Princess of Pilsen, was sweetly played by Miss Ruby Verdi. Mr. Alfred Selby was exceedingly nimble as François Concierge, of the Hotel Nationale, his queer antics and clever dancing delighting the audience. Miss Nell Emerald looked the French maid exactly, also dancing charmingly. The American idea of the titled snob was carried out to the letter by Mr. Laurence Wensley, as the Earl of Shrimpton, his song, "Artie," being well received. Mrs. Madison Crocker, a fascinating widow, was excellently represented by Miss Millicent Marsden; Miss Meg Hamylton took the part of Jimmie, a bell boy, with great spirit; Mr. D. O. Uglass doubled the rôles of Cook's Courier and Sergeant Bric, the gendarme.

THE BRIXTON.

On Monday, March 13, the new Comedy-Drama, by Walter Reynolds, entitled
"MR. SMITH."

The attraction here this week is the new comedy-drama, Mr. Smith, which had a very successful send-off last week. There is no need to repeat the story, as it was fully noticed in our columns. It is performed by a capable company, including that popular actor, Mr. Hamilton Stewart, who plays Mr. Smith. He is no doubt the right man in the right place, and has the audience with him throughout the three acts, and gives a capital impersonation of the engineer. Mr. E. Dagnall submits a fine character study of the Americanised-German millionaire, who has made his money in lager beer. The caddish Lord Angleland has a fine exponent in Mr. Lumsden Hare, and Mr. Sydney Blow does well as his friend, the Hon. Dudley Dysart. Mr. Arthur Burne makes the most of his opportunities in the part of Jack Berkeley, and the Earl of Oxted has a vigorous representative in Mr. Henry Latimer. As to the ladies, the place of honour must be given to Miss Olive Temple for her very winning manner and charming portrait of Lady Mary. Miss Phyllis Relph made an excellent impression by her performance of Ruth Anheuser, the millionaire's daughter. Miss Henrietta Cowen, as Mrs. Smith, supplies an admirable study of an uneducated but thoroughly business-like country woman. Miss Linda Ylderson is well placed as Benson, a maid. The play was evidently to the liking of the audience on Monday, as the applause at the termination was both prolonged and loud

SHAKESPEARE, CLAPHAM JUNCTION.

"THE GIRL WHO LOST HER CHARACTER."

Sensationalism is the order of the day at the above theatre, and the audience show their appreciation of good, wholesome drama by giving excellent support. A play of human interest always appeals to the Battersea public, and crowded houses watch with delight this fine production. Mr. Frank Adair gives an easy and powerful interpretation of the character of Captain Caversham, and scores accordingly; Jack English is well portrayed by Mr. Wingold Lawrence; and Mr. Edwin Collins, as the Rev. R. Everton, puts a good deal of feeling into his part. Mr. Fraser Brunner gives a capital depiction of James Sutton, the repentant forger, and Mr. G. H. Asquin creates much amusement as Dick Punch. A very fine representation is that of Miss Ada Marius, as Molly Vernon, "the girl who lost her character," the second act giving her plenty of scope for fine dramatic work. Miss Marie McAulay scores as Marion Franklyn, the London Mystery, and Miss Ethel Bracewell makes a winsome Rose Seymour. Other parts are in the hands of Miss D. Maynard, Mr. F. Loyd, and Miss N. Brunton, and are well sustained.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, March 13, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Nita Rae, entitled "HER FATAL PAST."

War is being waged with sensational effect this week between the forces of good and evil at the Terriss Theatre, where large audiences have been deeply moved by the enthralling scenes which are presented in Her Fatal Past. From beginning to end the excitement is kept alive, the first act culminating in a gallant rescue from drowning, in the course of which the sluice gates of a mill weir are opened, and real water pours out in torrents, while further stimulation of the nerves is provided in the abduction of a child, during which horse and motor car are brought into keen competition. The striking episodes of the drama have been made thoroughly prominent by Mr. T. Edward Ward's company. Miss Ward bears the weight of woe which rests on the lady of the title with profound pathos, and her picture of Honor Symes, whether in her passive moments or in her fierce scenes of invective, is one that draws tears of compassion from those who love to weep over the tribulations of the heroine. Miss Adeline Raby does double duty in the working out of the play, and while she invests with no little charm the character of the lovable Ruth Ferndale in the first act, her assumption in the later portions of the piece of a lady not so estimable is undoubtedly the work of an artist. Her venomous accents harmonise with the malicious glitter of the eye, and Bella De Lara, as depicted by Miss Raby, becomes the object of the most intense dislike with the audience, the warmth of whose reception it is impossible to express in cold print. Mr. T. Edward Ward is a pillar of humour in the part of Jonathan Buckstone Nobbs, raising at all times a whirlwind of mirth, and in this department is greatly assisted by the drolleries of Mr. Victor Mason, who, as the diminutive Dicky Bird, manages to score many laughs. Mr. Percy Brown bears himself gallantly as the noble-minded lover, Mark Desmond, delivering his lines in a fine ringing voice that goes home unfailingly. The brief appearances of Leonard Fernside are made effective by the dramatic skill of Mr. Bernard Dunstan, and as Gilbert, Mr. Charles H. Lester portrays with vivid colouring the fell designs of the villainous cousin. Kitty Springwell has a vivacious and pert exponent in Miss Amy Maitland, who misses no opportunity to put the sense of humour to the test, and Miss Marguerite Thorne makes a buxom and jovial Martha Springwell. The peculiarities of the postman are cleverly outlined by Mr. Arthur Paget; Little Holly Haslewood is pretty of speech and appearance as the boy Leonard; and characteristic assumptions of Sal Jenkins and Constable Smithers are given by Miss Kate Newman and Mr. Reginald South.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, March 13, the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, entitled
"THE EARL AND THE GIRL."

For the first time at Holloway we have had an opportunity of witnessing Mr. William Greet's company in The Earl and the Girl, and the manner in which the representations have been given by the large and exceptionally efficient company has resulted in a very satisfactory engagement. Mr. William Stephens, as the central figure, Jim Cheese, a dog fancier, with his quaint and perfectly natural manner, has kept all sections of the audience in peals of laughter. He sings and dances well, and scores the most, perhaps, with "Satisfied with life." Mr. Percy Carr is particularly happy in his rendering of Dick Wargrave, and, having plenty of opportunities, makes good use of them. He sings various numbers very well, but proves himself the most finished artiste in his song, "The Cosy Corner Girl." Messrs. Fred Hill (Hon. Crewe Boodle), Mr. William Walshe (Bunker Bliss), Mr. Will Hindson (Downham), Mr. J. C. Graves (Talk), and Mr. T. Redmond (Hazell) are well suited to their parts. Miss Aimee Grey sustains the rôle of Elphin Haye, and proves herself an ideal exponent of the part. Miss Dot Carey is quite successful in the part of Liza Hoddam, and Miss Gladys Fontaine is very amusing as Mrs. Shimmering Black. Miss Florence Imeson's histrionic abilities and vocalisation have won her the hearty applause of this week's large audiences, her best effort being a song entitled "Freddie." Miss Helen Langton makes a success as Miss Virginia Bliss, and Lady Rosedale is in the competent hands of Miss Millicent Field. The chorus is to be specially commended for its work. The elaborate scenery, very gorgeous costumes, and every detail of the production are exceptional, and the orchestra is ably conducted by Mr. Evelyn Baker.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, March 13, 1905, the Comic Opera, entitled
"THE GEISHA."

At a time when Japan is the most talked about nation in the world, it was a happy inspiration for Mr. Mulholland to revive Owen Hall's popular Japanese opera, with its characteristic and melodious music, so delightfully composed by Sidney Jones. Needless to say, the opera met with a deservedly successful reception on Monday evening, when a large audience testified their ample appreciation by demands for encores of the songs and dances, and by happy laughter at the efforts of the talented company. Mr. Mouillot's artistes are new to London, but they display considerable ability. The O Mimosa San of Miss Violet Moore is excellent, both histrionically and vocally. Miss Violet Kenyon undertakes the part of O Juliette Diamento with real skill; Miss Aubrey Ashton makes an imposing and fascinating Lady Constance Wynne; Miss Florrie Saunders is decidedly good in her lively and charming presentation of Mollie Seymour. Very vivacious are Miss Florence Lake, Miss Lucy Egerton, and Miss Marie Gilbert, as Ethel Hurst, Marie Worthington, and Mabel Grant. The four tea-house girls, O Kiki San, O Hana San, O Kinkoto San, and Konuraski San, find bright representatives in Miss Edith Rimmington, Miss Laura Humphreys, Miss Daisy Browne, and Miss Lydia Bland. Mr. Arthur Cartwright could not be improved upon as Reggie Fairfax, his good looks and pleasant acting soon ensuring his popularity. Dick Cunningham is very capably enacted by Mr. Bay Russell, and Miss Blanche Browne proves herself a dashing Tom Stanley. Mr. J. Hornby is a manly Captain Takana. A humorous Wun Hi is Mr. Edward Carlton, whose antics are greatly to the satisfaction of the audience. The solidity of the Marquis Imari is exceedingly well brought out by Mr. Lionel Braham, who adds greatly to the success. The chorus is capital, and Mr. Frank Barrett ably directs the orchestra. The two scenes are artistically painted. The light opera, A Greek Slave, was announced for Friday.

THE CAMDEN.

"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

An old friend is visiting us this week in the shape of Charley's Aunt, and the old lady "from Brazil, where the nuts come from," has evidently taken quite a new lease of life. In years to come, doubtless, we shall find that she is "still running." The present company is under the direction of the author, Mr. Brandon Thomas, which fact probably explains to some extent the excellence of the representation. Mr. Stanley Cooke appears as Lord Fancourt Babberley, and he is untiring in his efforts to amuse. He is the cause of endless merriment. Jack Chesney has a capital exponent in Mr. Arthur Soames, who plays in a natural and easy manner; and Mr. Richard B. Mason is in every way excellent as Charley Wykeham. Mr. Brandon Thomas himself appears as Sir Francis Chesney, and fills the rôle admirably. Mr. Simon Ord is very amusing as the peppery solicitor, Stephen Spettigue; Miss Lena McNaghten makes an imposing Donna Lucia; and Miss Dorrie Roberts is quite captivating as Ela Delahay. A very charming Kitty Verdun is found in Miss Violet Cooper; and Miss Geraldine Greville is equally fascinating as Amy Spettigue. Praise is due also to Mr. Sydney Compton for his neat sketch of the college scout, Brasset. The comedy is preceded by a one-act play, Fourchette and Company, of which Mr. Brandon Thomas is also the author, and in which Mr. Henry Adnes appears with much success as Count Monte. Miss Ruth Suffield and Mr. C. B. Keston also give valuable assistance in this little piece.

THE GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, March 13, the Musical Comedy,
"THE CINGALEE."

Mr. George Dance's company has been here this week with The Cingalee, giving a thoroughly good all-round representation of this popular musical comedy. Mr. Lauri de Frece was certainly the right man in the right place as Chambhuddy Ram, for his rendering of the Baboo lawyer, with his affectation of English manners and weird misapplication of English terms, was really life-like, for all its ludicrous exaggeration. Mr. de Frece was loyally assisted in his efforts to keep the house thoroughly amused, by Miss Mabel Sealby, a young artiste of much personal charm, who played Peggy Sabine with a lightness of touch and sang and danced with a grace and energy which should carry her far in the profession. Miss Nancy Freyne was very successful as Lady Patricia Vane, acting easily and naturally, and receiving several encores for her rendering of the songs entrusted to her. Miss Ethel Negretti gave a pleasing representation of Nanoya, and sang with expression and feeling. Mr. Kenneth Wynne was responsible for an entirely satisfactory representation of the Hon. Harry Vereker, acting in straightforward fashion, and managing his well-trained voice with good effect, his song, "Cingalee," being especially well received. Mr. Fred W. Pattrick was a great favourite as Boobhamba, several of his songs being loudly re-demanded; Mr. F. W. Ford was genuinely amusing as Sir Peter Loftus; and Mr. George Mudie, jun., was well suited as Bobby Warren. A noteworthy feature of the performance was the excellent singing of the chorus.

THE COUNTY, KINGSTON.

On Monday, March 13, the Play, by David Belasco, entitled
"THE DARLING OF THE GODS."

The attraction at the Kingston playhouse this week is The Darling of the Gods, which is being produced by the Ben Greet company, under the direction of Mr. J. Bannister-Howard, by arrangement with Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree. Good houses have been the rule, and the play, which visited Kingston for the first time, received a most favourable reception on Monday. The play was presented with all the accessories, in the shape of dresses, scenery, and effects almost identical with those employed at His Majesty's Theatre. The company, too, is a remarkably strong one, even in the minor characters. Mr. Alfred Goddard, who appears as the outlaw prince, Kara, and Miss Inez Bensusan, who impersonates Yo-San, display considerable ability in those parts. Other artistes appearing in the play, and who deserve special mention, are Mr. Edward A. Warburton (Zakkuri), Mr. A. P. Kaye (Prince Tagon), and Mr. S. S. Sinclair, as Inu; and a success is scored by Miss Mary Mannering in the part of Setsu. The remarkable scene that closes the play, "The first celestial heaven" (in the clouds), was most successfully reproduced, under the direction of Mr. C. Dodman, jun., the theatre's young electrician.

"OFF THE RANK."

Farce, in Three Acts, by Lawrence Sterner, played for the first time in England at the Strand Theatre, on Saturday, March 11.

Mr. Quayle	MR. WALTER BEAUMONT
Captain Philip Cathcart	MR. FARREN SOUTAR
Theodore Ponjab	MR. EDMUND GWENN
Joe Higgins	MR. HENRY J. FORD
William Hawkins	MR. EDWARD NAINBY
Police Inspector	MR. F. LACEBY
Watty Walker	MR. WILLIE EDOUIN
Lady Florence Harborough	MISS SUSIE VAUGHAN
Edna	MISS NORA LANCASTER
Cynthia Ponjab	MISS VIOLET LORRAINE
Mrs. Crop	MISS EUGENIE VERNIE
Cherry Smart	MISS RUTH SAVILE
Nellie	MISS MARIANNE STAYTON

It would be useless to apply the ordinary canons of criticism to Off the Rank, which was produced at the Strand Theatre on Saturday evening last. That it was received with hearty laughter should be sufficient to prove its practical suitability to the tastes of the patrons of this house. The Strand has a clientèle which is entirely its own; and who shall dispute the verdict of the people who, like the traditional Irish pig, "pay the rint." Mr. Lawrence Sterner's farce may be described as a "go-as-you-please" piece, with Mr. Willie Edouin in the principal, the all-important, part. Mr. Edouin has seldom had so many opportunities in one play. He appears in succession as a cabman, an inventor, a plumber, and a milliner; and in each of these characters he is "screamingly" funny.

What plan there is in Off the Rank is based upon the extravagances committed by two persons while in a state of intoxication. Captain Philip Cathcart has "gone on the spree" on the eve of his marriage with Edna, the daughter of Lady Florence Harborough, who is living in Cork-street with her relative, Mr. Quayle, a police magistrate. While "disguised in drink" the Captain put himself under the protection of a kindly cabman named Watty Walker, who soon shares the Captain's inebriety, so that what they have done overnight is unknown to them. Walker has come home with Cathcart to Cork-street, and the action opens with his awaking from his slumbers. To account for the cabman's presence in the house, Cathcart introduces him as Theodore Ponjab, an inventor, who is expected by Lady Florence to arrive from India. Walker shaves off his whiskers, dishevels his hair, and impersonates Ponjab extravagantly. He then takes charge of events, and, thenceforward, the piece becomes a mad revel, with Walker as its presiding genius. He may be likened to a rabbit pursued by the ferret Fortune from burrow to burrow. In order to escape recognition by Quayle, whom he has injured in a cab accident, Walker dresses up as a plumber, who is hanging about the premises. Matters are further complicated by the facts that the real Ponjab and Mrs. Ponjab come on the scene and have to be got rid of and deluded somehow. Still flying from his pursuing Nemesis, Walker assumes the attire of a milliner, trims a hat in sight of the audience, and measures Mrs. Ponjab for a dress, the operation permitting various little freedoms which are received with roars of laughter by the appreciative audience. In the character of the milliner, Walker presents himself to the magistrate as an old love of his, a certain "Little Nougât," and obtains from him damaging admissions of early frivolities. In the end, the truth comes out; but as it appears that, while under the influence of Bacchus the night before, Walker and Cathcart saved Ponjab from robbery and assault at the hands of some ruffians, peace is easily concluded between the parties.

As we have already noted, Mr. Willie Edouin had the lion's share of the "fat" of the piece; and he takes advantage of it with his usual quaint originality and droll humour. As the pretended inventor and the sham milliner, he was equally effective; and he bore the burden of the fun-making almost entirely on his own shoulders. The support he received from the rest of the company was very valuable. Mr. Walter Beaumont gave a smooth, sound, and urbane interpretation of the character of Mr. Quayle; and Mr. Farren Soutar was unobtrusively but actively excellent as Captain Philip Cathcart. Mr. Edmund Gwenn, well made up, realised the inventor, Ponjab, satisfactorily; and Mr. Henry J. Ford struggled valiantly with the rather tiresome part of a conventional mechanic, Mr. Edward Nainby hitting off neatly the peculiarities of a waiter. Mr. F. Laceby was efficient as a Police Inspector; and Miss Susie Vaughan, who had a cordial reception on her first appearance, made a pleasing and characteristic Lady Harborough. Miss Nora Lancaster was firm, yet flexible, as Edna, and gave due emphasis and expression to her performance of the rôle; and Miss Violet Lorraine's absolute naturalness lent increased point to the scenes in which she appeared. Miss Eugenie Vernie played a housekeeper prettily; and Miss Ruth Savile made the most of the little rôle of a blackmailing barmaid, Miss Marianne Stayton being commendable in a servant's part. Off the Rank, which had it first production in South Africa some time since, evoked hearty laughter, especially from the popular parts of the house. It was preceded by Mr. Lawrence Sterner's one-act piece, The Water Cure, which we noticed at its recent production at the Comedy. In this Mr. Charles Steuart was good as the lawyer, Miss Ruth Savile gave a creditable performance as Kitty Weedon, and Miss Maggie Bowman, as Dorothy Derry, deserved cordial praise.

THERE was an enthusiastic audience, which quite packed the house, at the last performance of The Sleeping Beauty at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, on Saturday, the principals being accorded demonstrative greetings as they respectively came upon the stage. At the close of the performance, Mr. Chute said it was with feelings of genuine regret that they celebrated the farewell performance of The Sleeping Beauty, the success of which he could only describe as remarkable. Mr. Hickory Wood, the author, had provided them with a version which gained immediate approbation, and he was fortunate in securing the services of the company, to whom he tendered very cordial thanks. He also expressed his deep sense of gratitude to his patrons for having accorded an unbroken allegiance for upwards of eleven weeks. His thanks were also due to the entire staff of the theatre, and to his able lieutenants, Mr. George Chapman, Mr. George Jackson, and Mr. Henry Turner. In sounding the sad note of farewell to their happy pantomime season, he would borrow the words used so frequently by Miss Lil Hawthorne, and say:

"But ere we part, let Britons do their duty,
And give a cheer for England, home, and beauty."

There followed a tremendous cheer, and the curtain was rung down with "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem. At the fall of the curtain, Miss Lil Hawthorne, on behalf of the principals of the company, presented to Mr. George Chapman, musical director, a turquoise and diamond pin; to Mr. Henry Turner, stage-manager, a piece of silver plate suitably engraved; and to Mr. David Miller, assistant stage-manager, a silver-mounted lizard skin wallet. Mr. Turner was also presented with a silver pencil case by Mr. W. H. Rawlins.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER has decided upon the title of A Scrupulous Man for the one-act adaptation by Max Hecht from Octave Mirbeau's Scrupules, which will be produced at the matinée for the unemployed at the St. James's Theatre on Thursday.

"EVERYBODY'S SECRET."

A Comedy, in Three Acts, adapted by Robert Marshall and Louis N. Parker, from Pierre Wolff's "Le Secret de Polichinelle"; produced at the Haymarket Theatre, on Tuesday, March 14.

Sir Michael Parkes, Bart.	MR. CYRIL MAUDE
Captain Pierrepoint, late R.N.	MR. EDMUND MAURICE
Lieut. Richard Parkes	MR. CHARLES BRYANT
Mickey	MISS I. HAWKINS
Smith	MR. F. PERCIVAL STEVENS
Lady Parkes	MISS CARLOTTA ADDISON
Mrs. Mellor	MISS HELEN FERRERS
Mrs. Wilmot Cooper	MISS ELISABETH KIRBY
Miss Wilmot Cooper	MISS DAGMAR WIEHE
Rebecca	MISS ADELA MEASOR
Nell	MISS JESSIE BATEMAN

The items of Messrs. Frederick Harrison and Cyril Maude's programme at the Haymarket Theatre are very effectively contrasted. For "first piece" they have chosen, with admirable judgment, A Case of Arson, an entertainment unique of its kind, and tragically strong and thrilling. This is followed by an amiable, amusing, and charming adaptation from the French. Messrs. Robert Marshall and Louis N. Parker have eliminated from the story of M. Pierre Wolff's piece, Le Secret de Polichinelle, all that could possibly be offensive to English taste, and made of it one of those "sugared" pieces which are scoffed at by the cynic, but have a way of running for considerable periods. There is really no more than this to be said concerning Everybody's Secret, which owes most of the favourable reception which it obtained at the Haymarket on Tuesday to the excellence of the acting.

An amiable old couple, Sir Michael and Lady Parkes, have a son, Richard, who is a lieutenant in the Guards. He falls in love with a young woman who is assistant in a flower shop, marries her, and conceals the fact for four years from his parents. There is a child, a boy named Mickey; and, the expenses of the ménage increasing, Richard asks his father to increase his allowance. This request is refused, with the suggestion that he should "make up to" a certain heiress, who has a good opinion of him. This leads to the confession by Richard of his being already wedded, and a sternly expressed refusal of his parents never to visit their son's wife.

The fun of the two remaining acts of the play consists in the relenting of the father and mother, both keeping secret the divergencies from their original decisions. In the second act, Sir Michael is seen at his son's flat, revelling in his grandfatherdom, and the willing slave of all little Mickey's caprices. The Lieutenant's brother, Captain Pierrepoint, has also been a frequent visitor to the flat; and eventually Lady Parkes even ventures to visit the young couple. On the arrival of Pierrepoint, Sir Michael conceals himself; but eventually he and Mickey's other uncle meet, and there is some amusing rivalry between them for the boy's affection. In the last act, after a certain amount of "beating about the bush," there is a general confession, and the piece ends with a complete reconciliation between the Lieutenant and his parents, and the reception of Mrs. Parkes and Mickey into the family circle.

As we have said, the excellent acting atoned for the weakness of the piece. Mr. Cyril Maude was "simply delightful" as the kindly and comical old Sir Michael, an excellent make-up having much to do with his complete success in the character. The absolute naturalness of his acting, its dry humour, and its marvellous ease and polish, carried conviction, and gave obvious satisfaction to the audience. Mr. Edmund Maurice was the bluffest and best-dressed ex-naval officer imaginable, and acted with a hearty jollity and vigorous good nature which were very effective. Mr. Charles Bryant's style as Lieutenant Richard Parkes was irreproachable, and he played a not too thankful part quite discreetly and decisively. Miss Carlotta Addison was charmingly sweet, timid, and gentle as Lady Parkes; and her performance was a worthy companion picture to Mr. Maude's Sir Michael. Miss Adela Measor was easily efficient as the garrulous servant, Rebecca; and Miss Jessie Bateman was as arch, winning, and simple as ever as Nell. The success of the evening, however, may be said to have been achieved by Miss I. Hawkins, whose Mickey was a wonderful piece of juvenile acting. Her laugh was absolutely spontaneous, and her performance was agreeably free from the false notes and artificiality so common in the acting of children on the stage. As for Miss Elisabeth Kirby and Miss Dagmar White, they looked so "nice" in their very becoming and "up-to-date" costumes, and acted with so much brightness and pleasantness, that one felt sorry they had not more opportunities. Everybody's Secret was preceded by the English version, by Howard Peacey, of Herman Heyermans' play,

"A CASE OF ARSON,"

A Magistrate	MR. H. VIBART
An Usher	MR. H. A. TONGE

A Case of Arson is interesting because it shows the favourable side of the foreign juge d'instruction system. The defects of the method may outweigh its merits; but it is evident that the ends of justice are often served by it. The danger of the system is that it leaves too much power in the hands of a single individual; and, as The Arm of the Law, at the Garrick, proved, a juge d'instruction may become a kind of professional fiend. The merit of Mr. Henri de Vries's impersonations is that they are studies, and not caricatures. We feel in witnessing them that there are being exhibited to us genuine Dutch types of character, observed with a keen and solicitous eye. The illusion this creates is very powerful; and when the climax approaches, when the quivering criminal is forced into confession by the relentless logic of the magistrate's deductions, the conviction which the whole performance carries is half the force of the piece. Mr. de Vries is a consummate artist; and in A Case of Arson he presents an entertainment which is so strong and original that no visitor to the Haymarket should miss seeing it, even at the cost of early arrival. It is only fair to Mr. H. Vibart, as the magistrate, to say that his embodiment is not in the least behind Mr. de Vries's in truth; and Mr. H. A. Tonge's usher is the acme of quiet and subordinate realism.

MR. MARSHALL B. HERN has discovered the possibility of improving the tone of the violin by means of his invention, which he calls "Resonatone," or flexible tail-piece, which has met with the complete approval of Mr. Herman Finck, musical director of the Palace Theatre, who after a thorough investigation has had the invention applied to a number of violins in his orchestra. Mr. Finck writes:—"I must admit that it has produced a marvellous effect. I consider that it will vastly improve the sweetness of tone and power of any stringed instrument, and I recommend it with confidence to every violinst, because of the extended test that I have caused to be made, and the unanimous opinion in our orchestra concerning it. I desire you to make immediate arrangements for fitting up the balance of the stringed instruments in the orchestra at the earliest moment, and we shall use it exclusively. Another advantage that I note in connection with the invention is that it does not change the appearance of the instrument in any way."

"VERONIQUE" AT THE APOLLO.

One need not sigh over the alleged decline of musical comedy, when its place can be taken by such a perfect comic opera as Véronique, which on Saturday registered its 300th performance at the Apollo. It was first introduced to the British public on May 5, 1903, by a French company at the Coronet Theatre, where it won such unrestricted praise that Mr. George Edwardes had the play adapted by Mr. Henry Hamilton, and produced on May 18, last year. The composer, M. André Messager, conducted the first performance, when the brightness and charm of the score, the happily conceived story, the strength of its comedy, and the excellence of the representation, all combined to secure a triumphant première, and this triumph was repeated on Saturday before an audience containing not a few of those who were present at the first production and were adding to the joy of life by repeating a delightful experience.

There have been many changes in the cast since the first night. Mr. George Graves, the original English representative of Coquenard, played at the Opera Comique by Regnard, had to take up a pantomime engagement, and his resignation let in Mr. John Le Hay, who has many a time and oft proved his value in elaborating the humorous element in musical comedy. Mr. Le Hay's generous interpretation of his responsibilities as the henpecked little florist make for the heartiest laughter, and though we shrewdly suspect that he says more than is set down for him, who would have it otherwise when the result is the greatest hilarity. Coquenard's snatches of polite French (à la Ollendorf) are deliciously funny, and the comedian's reputation is greatly enhanced by an impersonation that may claim to be one of the funniest in London.

Mr. Hayden Coffin, who recently took up the part of Florestan de Valiancourt in the place of Mr. Lawrence Rea, makes a fervent and irreproachable lover, and breathes into his musical numbers an impassioned sentiment that is truly characteristic of his style. He is buoyant in his opening solo, "Life is short, my dear friends"; but as a contrast to the gaiety of this number, we may instance the melancholy tenderness of his interpretation of the effective letter song in the second act.

Miss Ruth Vincent, who graduated in that best of schools—the Savoy opera—has but deepened her hold on public favour by her impersonation of Hélène de Solanges, who masquerades as Véronique. She takes the senses captive in the "Swing song" of the second act—a pretty melody indeed; and no comic opera heroine quite so charming has been seen since Miss Florence St. John made her triumphant appearance at the Strand, as Madame Favart. Her embodiment is sweetly girlish, and full of dainty refinement.

Miss Kitty Gordon, much to the advantage of the general representation, retains the character of Agatha, an arrant flirt, and gives just the necessary acidity to the character. By her impersonation, Miss Gordon gives us to understand that Madame Coquenard is a woman of spirit, fiercely jealous, and with a liking for taking the bit between her teeth. But she has her sentimental moods, too, and in one of these she sings, "One day 'neath an apple tree," with its pretty pizzicato accompaniment. Miss Gordon sings the melody in cultured style, and repetition has done much to sharpen the outlines of her capital character sketch.

Mr. Aubrey Fitzgerald, who originally represented Séraphin, is now the M. Loustot, assigned on the first night to Mr. Fred Emney. Mr. Fitzgerald makes quite an amusing character of the bailiff, and in the second act is quite a jaunty ladykiller, his scene with Agatha causing much laughter. He also scores in his dialogue with Coquenard.

Mr. Ralph Nairn, as Séraphin, has his best chance in the second act, where the newly-married groom thanks his guests for their welcome. He has a charming partner in Miss Coralie Blythe, an excellent dancer, who makes a coquettish Denise. Miss Sybil Grey now plays the part of Ermerance Countess of Champ Azur, in succession to Miss Lottie Venne, who in her turn succeeded Miss Rosina Brandram in the part. Miss Grey has very slight responsibilities as a singer, but she is decidedly diverting in the protestations of the Countess to Coquenard concerning her accident. Miss Dorothy Dale is neat and effective in her embodiment of Aunt Benoit; Miss Jessie Broughton sings exceedingly well the solo, "Like the bee to the garden of roses," displaying the rich quality of her contralto voice to great advantage; and the parts of the florists have pretty and engaging representatives in Miss Valli-Valli, Miss Hilda Coral, Miss Tilly May, Miss Madge Vincent, Miss Irene Kay, and Miss Dorrien Hood; and Mr. William Ashdown, Mr. Blair Headsworth, Mr. Henri Adnes, and Mr. Blair Dudley also aid the success of the piece by their capable work in minor parts. The lovely wood scene in the second act, with its hawthorn and chestnut bloom, is from the brush of Mr. Joseph Harker, and Mr. Julian Hicks realises in his fine interior the stateliness of a reception room in the Tuileries. Mr. Arthur Wood's able conduct of the orchestra results in an excellent ensemble, and the exquisite stage pictures owe much to the lovely colour harmonies in Mr. Percy Anderson's dresses. Véronique is still at the height of its prosperity, and should run for many months to come.

"SIBERIA."

A Dramatic Sketch, in Three Acts, produced at the Surrey, on Monday, March 13.

Michael Janakoff	MR. JAMES C. AUBREY
Nichali Neigoff	MR. WILLIAM CLAYTON
Truesky	MR. EDWARD RANIER
Zara	MISS VIOLET CLAYTON
Marie	MISS GRACE JONES
Vera	MISS ALICE MAUDE

Anything appertaining to Russia, either social or political, is sure to engage the earnest attention of the whole world just now. The new production, Siberia, is a boiled-down version of the great spectacle which, under the same name, was the chief attraction at the London Hippodrome not so very long ago. But the story is of such absorbing interest that it will always prove an undeniable attraction wherever presented. The story opens in one of the Southern Provinces of Russia, whose new Governor, Michael Janakoff, bearing a bad reputation, forces his evil attentions on a young married Jewess flower seller, Zaza, whose husband is away. Finding his overtures scornfully rejected, he, with the aid of his spy and interpreter, causes a general massacre of the Jews, and in the melée kills Zaza's father. He is denounced by Zaza's sister, Marie, as the murderer of their father, and he in turn charges them with being Nihilists, and has them banished to Siberia. Marie's soldier lover, Nichali Neigoff, is a Nihilist, and easily gets a comrade and co-patriot to exchange papers with him, and forms one of the military escort to Siberia. The last scene opens in "The Wilds of Siberia," where we find the villain, Michael Janakoff, installed as Governor, and still persecuting both Zaza and Marie. He suggests to the latter that she should become his housekeeper. On her refusal he has her whipped, but she is still obdurate, and declares she prefers death to dishonour. Zaza's baby is dying for want of nourishment, and Nichali Neigoff suggests to Marie that she should help herself to a jar of cream, and give it to Zaza. This she does, but directly she hands it to Zaza, the guards search her, and finding it in Zaza's possession, the villain Michael orders her to be flogged. Nichali is so enraged that he gives the signal to his Nihilist friends to revolt, and amidst the confusion Michael's father, the Governor-General, comes on the scene, and pardons all the prisoners, and denouncing his son as a renegade and despot, sentences him to banishment for life in the mines of Siberia.

The climax is a very striking and effective stage picture, with the snow clad mountains in the distance, the pretty ponies and sledges, the crowd of soldiers and prancing horses, making it one of the most realistic scenes ever witnessed on a variety theatre stage, and reflecting the highest meed of credit on Mr. Frederic Baugh, who is responsible for the production.

For the company there is nothing but praise, all working so well together for the common good that assures success. As the villain, Michael Janakoff, Mr. James C. Aubrey manages to bring into prominence the sinister crafty nature of the man with ungovernable passions, and he creates the strongest feeling of abhorrence. Mr. William Clayton, as Nichali Neikoff, plays with a manly earnestness that is at once effective and convincing. The lighter and more amusing passages are capitally treated by Mr. Edward Ranier, as the love-sick idiot Truesky, and Miss Alice Maude, as the vivacious and pretty young flower girl Vera. As Zaza, Miss Violet Clayton imbues her part with a depth of pathos and feeling that easily wins the hearts of her audience. As Marie, Miss Grace Jones scores all the time, and is warmly to be congratulated on her excellent impersonation. Others who give a highly commendable performance are the Spy, the Prince, and the Old Jew; all the small parts are carefully filled and skilfully handled. In fact, Siberia is a very vivid and interesting twenty-five minutes' drama.

"EINE PALAST—REVOLUTION."

A Farcical Comedy, in Four Acts, by Richard Showronnek, produced at the Great Queen-street Theatre, on Monday, March 13

For the closing nights of the season of German plays at the Great Queen-street Theatre, a farcical comedy has been selected, and much amusement has been derived by appreciative audiences from the four-act piece by Richard Showronnek, entitled Eine Palast-Revolution. In this are to be found some neat sketches of character, and the dialogue is bright and amusing. For a farcical comedy the piece is remarkably free from complications, nor does it bear any resemblance to those productions of French origin in which the principal characters engage in an exciting game of hide and seek.

A very ordinary love affair between two young people forms the pivot of the story. Lilli Weibrecht is the charming daughter of an eminent professor of literature, and she, it seems, is secretly engaged to Dr. Hans Neuland, who happens to be her father's greatest literary opponent, and is, moreover, the chief representative of the modern school of literature in Berlin, and co-editor of an up-to-date paper called The Waage. In this journal scathing articles, under the signature of Dr. Neuland, have appeared, in which the Professor's literary opinions have been treated with derision, though the Professor himself, an absent-minded, dreamy old bookworm, has taken but scant notice of them. Not so his wife, Frau Weibrecht, a strong-minded woman, who rules the household with a rod of iron, and is exceedingly angry with the writer of the articles. The Professor receives a letter from Hans Neuland, asking consent to his marriage with Lilli, and, doubtful where he has heard the name of the writer before, he hands the missive to his wife, who is furious at its contents, impressing upon the Professor that it is his duty to deal firmly with this impudent suitor. In the midst of the storm Dr. Neuland is announced, and the lovers plead their cause to Frau Weibrecht, but her reply is to send her daughter to her room, and to forbid Hans any further intercourse with Lilli. He is compelled to leave the house, but he vows that he will marry Lilli in the end, at any cost. The second act, the scene of which is the office of The Waage newspaper, does not advance the plot very much, but we make the acquaintance of Findeisen, an elderly journalist of a humorous turn of mind, who is a staunch friend and admirer of Hans Neuland, and an old college friend of his father's. In the next act, Lilli and her brother Alfred, who, contrary to his own wishes, but in accordance with his mother's, is being trained as a lawyer, make a united appeal to their father, begging him to stand up for them in opposition to their very severe mother. He promises to take their part, but when the formidable frau enters the Professor is quickly vanquished, and poor Lilli is compelled to accompany her mother to the railway station, en route for Dresden. Findeisen interviews his former friend, and they discuss matters over a glass of wine. The result of this is that on condition that Findeisen accompanies him as a "kind of moral support," the Professor agrees to follow his wife to Dresden, and assert his authority in favour of his daughter. The fourth and last act is devoted to bringing the story to a satisfactory conclusion. As one foresees, the hard heart of Frau Schweiger is touched at last, and she consents to her daughter marrying the man she loves. This change of attitude is partly brought about by Findeisen, who reminds her of her own youth, and her love for a certain poor journalist, no other than himself, whom her parents would not allow her to marry.

Herr Rudolf Leyrer deserves every praise for a carefully-studied portrait of the absend-minded, henpecked Professor. Herr Johannes Koerner is also very successful in his humorous embodiment of the old journalist, Findeisen. Fräulein Betty L'Arronge cleverly represents the despotic Frau Schweiger, and Fräulein Rosie Grawz plays with considerable charm the part of Lilli. Herr Heinz Pabst scores as Alfred, whose sweetheart, Florence Farber, an American, has a fascinating exponent in Fräulein Camilla Dalberg. Herr Hans Stock deserves praise for his easy and natural rendering of Dr. Hans Neuland. Fräulein Ida Weiss is well placed as the loquacious landlady, Frau Bade; and other minor rôles are carefully handled by Fräulein Adele Meysel, Fräulein Lina Marschall, Herrs Bruno Wiburger, Thilo Ulrich, Adolf Walther, Rolf Yversen, F. Stern, and others.

MR. SEYMOUR HICKS hopes that his new theatre in Aldwych will be ready for opening on Boxing Day. A novel feature of the appointments will be an act-drop, painted by Mr. Hawes Craven, representing a green-room in which are grouped all the prominent actors who have graced the London stage since 1870, the year of Mr. Hicks's birth. A new fairy play will be the opening attraction, and in the evening the comedy by Mr. Hicks and Mr. Cosmo Hamilton, entitled The Beauty of Bath, will be produced, with Miss Ellaline Terriss in the title-rôle. Miss Terriss, who is now at Bournemouth, may be expected to resume her part in The Catch of the Season at the Vaudeville next month.

MR. ROBERT EVETT, having relinquished his engagement at the Lyric Theatre, will join Mr. George Edwardes's company for the new play at Daly's.—Miss Lytton, the daughter of two favourites of the Savoy, on Saturday afternoon undertook Miss Marie Studholme's part in The Orchid, at the Gaiety, playing and singing with such confidence that she won warm encores.

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, MARCH 16.—It has become to some extent the fashion to exhume the antique here, and to modernise Socrates, Sophocles, and other ancient play-writers. In accordance with the mode, therefore, we witnessed an adaptation of Œdipus on Saturday at the Deutsches. It is the work of Herr Von Wilamowitz-Moellendorff, who, it must be confessed, has adapted the powerful tragedy admirably. For the general public, nevertheless, these ancient plays possess, I fear, but little interest, and it is usually a case of labour lost to stage them. The interpretation was good; Herr Albert Heine in the important rôle of the King, acted with much power and discretion, and was efficiently supported.

HERR LOTHAR SCHMIDT'S three-act comedy, Der Leibalte, has been revived at the Schiller Theatre. It was produced at the one-time Secessions-Bühne, some three or four years ago, and was then described in your columns. The reception accorded to it at the Schiller was most cordial, astonishingly so when the poorness of the piece is taken into consideration; probably the bright acting had something to do with it. Fräulein Freida Brock was particularly sympathetic and pleasing in a difficult part.

"DER FAMILIENTAG," Herr Kadelburg's latest farce, has reached its 100th almost consecutive performance at the Lustspielhaus, and is still attracting. Herr Schönfeld is still the star of greatest magnitude, his impersonation of Baron Ludolf Von Wollien being one of the most successful efforts of this genial actor.

AT the National Theatre, Mozart's Don Juan was given on Friday, before a crowded house. Unhappily, the cast was not all that could be desired, although a good deal of pains had been taken with it. The title-rôle was inadequately acted and sung by Herr Masano, and the rendering of Octavio by Herr Zeitschel was equally poor. The Zerline of Fräulein Saccur, and the Donna Anna of Fräulein Roxy King were capitally sung and acted, while Herr Mantler was a first-rate Leporello. Chorus, orchestra, and mounting, were all praiseworthy, and an indulgent audience closed one eye—as the Germans say—to the uneven cast.

"DAS VEILCHENMADEL," a farcical operetta, by MM. Krenn and C. Lindau, music by Josef Hellmesberger, is doing well at the Apollo. It is very Viennese in tone, the bright waltz-like melodies hailing unquestionably from the Austrian capital, and Herr Willi Bauer, a Viennese singer, is one of the chief attractions. The Berlin comic-song singer par excellence, Herr Robert Steidl, however, makes a very decided hit with some laughable couplets, and the whole is prettily staged.

A DRAMA by A. Trinius, entitled Schiffbruch, having been very successfully produced recently at the Court Theatre at Hamburg, is to come on to us within a short time. Venus Amathusia, Herr Max Dreyer's new play, is, on the other hand, postponed for production at the Schauspielhaus until next season.

FRAU NIEMANN-RAABE, an actress who, in her prime, was one of the first artistes in Germany, is rapidly recovering from her long nervous illness, and, we learn with gratification, will soon be able to return to public life.

NEW THEATRE AT GLOSSOP.

The new Theatre Royal at Glossop was opened on Monday under auspicious circumstances by Mr. Sydney Spenser, whose recent enterprise at Hucknall Torkard was cut short by the stoppage of the collieries. The theatre, which is elaborately furnished and fitted with electric light, was crowded with an audience which included members of the Glossop Town Council and magistrates of the district.

MR. SPENSER, who received a hearty ovation, in the course of a speech, thanked the audience for their presence and patronage, and hoped they were satisfied with the new venture. He felt assured that the success of the theatre, in a large measure, depended upon himself, and he was going to ask them to give him their support. The theatre would hold as many as 1,000 people. Now, what was one man against 1,000? He wished to take them all into his confidence, and make them all managers of the theatre. They were all equally responsible with himself for the well-being and the proper manner in which the theatre was conducted, because upon each one devolved the duty of behaving himself or herself. Personally, he intended to do his best, and he earnestly hoped they would support him, and it would be his endeavour to bring the very best companies that could possibly come to this town. Before he retired from the stage, he would like to read one or two little messages he had received from friends he had left behind, especially from one who was a prince in his profession—he referred to Sir Henry Irving. He was more than a prince, he was a king amongst actors, and he was sorry to say he was lying on a bed of sickness at the present time. But notwithstanding that fact, he did not forget such a little manager as himself (Mr. Spenser), and he sent him the following telegram:—

"Sydney Spenser, Theatre Royal, Glossop.
"I heartily wish success to your good enterprise, and hope the new Theatre Royal may become a place of wholesome recreation for the people of Glossop. "HENRY IRVING."

The reading of the telegram was received with loud applause. Continuing, Mr. Spenser said Mr. Arthur Collins, the manager of their national theatre, the Drury Lane Theatre, London, wired him as follows:—"Heartily wish prosperity to the new theatre." Mr. Beerbohm Tree had telegraphed: "You have my best wishes for your success with your new theatre." They would thus see, continued Mr. Spenser, amidst applause, that even the big managers sometimes had a thought in their minds for the struggling little chap who was just starting.

An overture was then played by the members of the Urban Electric Band, under the conductorship of Mr. J. M. Higginbottom, after which the musical comedy, The New Mephisto, was given by Mr. W. H. Kirby's company. Mr. Albert Weston, in the title-rôle, created abundant merriment, and the quaint humour of Mr. Willie H. Vernon was similarly effective in the part of Dick Pilgrim. Miss Marion Armitage was a charming Becky Pilgrim, and the other characters were admirably sustained.

"PRINCE CHARLIE; OR, KING OF THE HIGHLAND HEARTS," by Duncan Tovey and Sidney H. Sime, will be produced, for the first time, by members of the London Scottish Rifle Volunteers at the Great Queen-street Theatre on Thursday evening. The performance, which will be repeated on the 24th and 25th inst. and at a special matinée on the latter date, will be on behalf of the Queen Victoria School for the Sons of Scottish Sailors and Soldiers, and the funds of the regimental gazette.

MR. C. P. LEVILLY'S company with La Poupée is now in its eighth year of touring, and demonstrates the taste of the public for genuine comic opera. At the Lyceum, Sheffield, last week, the receipts were the largest ever taken in that town with the piece, though the visit was the seventh one with the same company, and again in Manchester the week previously record was again nearly reached. The success of the charming opera is justified by the elaborate nature of the production and the excellence of the company, which is considered to be the best that Mr. Levilly has yet sent out.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree, at the banquet at which he was entertained on Monday by the Oxford University Olympian Dramatic Club, stated that when he wanted to produce Œdipus Rex, the Lord Chamberlain had forbade the performance of the piece except in Greek. Mr. Redford, the Examiner of Plays, thinks Mr. Tree referred to the well-known French play, Le Roi Œdipe, which many years ago he thought of presenting in English. Mr. Redford then suggested that it would be better not to bring the play before the English public, as it might shock them. We should have had a worse fear—that it would bore them.

Sir Squire Bancroft and Miss Annie Hughes are organising a special benefit matinée for Mr. H. B. Conway, whose health has completely broken down. The performance will be given on Thursday, May 4. Mr. Frederick Harrison and Mr. Cyril Maude will lend the Haymarket Theatre, and contributions to the programme will be made by Mr. Tree, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Cyril Maude, Miss Winifred Emery, Mr. Lewis Waller, Mr. Henry Kemble, Mr. G. P. Huntley, Mr. Huntley Wright, Mr. Maurice Farkoa, Mr. Hayden Coffin, Miss Evelyn Millard, Sir Charles Wyndham, Miss Mary Moore, and Miss Jessie Bateman, who will appear in a one-act piece of which Miss Hughes is the authoress.

Mr. J. L. Toole reached his seventy-fifth birthday at Brighton on Sunday, when a number of friends, including Mr. Thomas Thorne, dined with the veteran comedian in celebration of the event. Sir Henry Irving, true to a custom hallowed by many years, sent his old comrade a basket of the choicest blooms. "With dear love, dear friend, many happy returns of the day," he telegraphed in the morning, and in the evening came the message over the wires: "Love and good wishes. I drink your health." Mr. Lionel Brough, Mr. and Mrs. Weedon Grossmith, Mrs. John Billington, Mr. Sidney Brough, Mr. Charles Lowne, Mr. George Shelton, Mr. Harry Nichols, Mr. Ambrose Manning, Mr. Sidney Paxton, Mr. Joe Bracewell, and many others also sent congratulations to Mr. Toole.

A negress, accompanied by her daughter, recently purchased two tickets at the Circle Theatre, New York. After the women had taken their seats, they were asked to leave the theatre, and refused to do so. They were then told to go to the box office to have their tickets stamped. When they reached the box office the tickets were seized, and a $1 bill was thrown to them, with the remark, "No niggers are wanted here." The negress brought an action for damages against the manager, Mr. Percy Williams, and the jury gave her a verdict for $100. The case, in the opinion of several prominent lawyers, not only bears on the Civil Rights Law, but on the exclusion of James S. Metcalfe, the dramatic critic of Life, from various theatres. Jacob Newman, counsel for the negress, said that the suit was brought under the same enactment of the legislature as the action now contemplated against the managers who have excluded Mr. Metcalfe. Mr. A. H. Hummel, counsel for the Frohmans and nearly every prominent theatrical manager, said that a theatrical manager or proprietor of a theatre has an absolute, arbitrary right to exclude any person from his theatre without giving any reason therefor. An owner of a theatre could exclude the President of the United States or any other reputable person, simply because he wanted to do so, but if a negro was excluded, and the reason given was that of colour, the negro could recover on that ground alone.

Mr. George Edwardes has engaged Mr. Ambrose Manning for the part of Michu in the forthcoming production of Two Little Girls at Daly's Theatre. The rôle is that of a grocer, who is presented with the problem of deciding which of two babies who have been mixed up in their bath is his own, and which one a scion of nobility entrusted to his care, and Mr. Manning, whose invaluable work with the late Wilson Barrett's company is fresh in the memory, may be relied upon to make the very most of it.

Mr. Manning is a son of the late John Manning, who was well known in his time as actor and manager of the old Grecian Theatre in the City-road. It was there that Mr. Manning made his début, at the age of seven, in pantomime. At fourteen he retired, to study as an architect; but he eventually returned to the stage as prompter for Mr. E. A. Sothern, at the Haymarket. Mr. Manning was a member of Mr. Wilson Barrett's company for many years, making his biggest successes as Glabrio, in The Sign of the Cross; Cæsar Cregeen, in The Manxman; and as "the man in the Park," in The Lights o' London.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, who begin a week's engagement at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Monday, with The Elder Miss Blossom, will on Wednesday produce for the first time in London a one-act play, entitled The Bird at the Neck, in which both eminent artists will appear. The new piece will precede Still Waters Run Deep, which is the Wednesday attraction.

Miss Lena Ashwell, at the conclusion of the run of Leah Kleschna, will join Mr. William Greet in the management of a first-class West End theatre, for the business side of which Mr. Greet will be mainly responsible, while Miss Ashwell will control the stage. The plays selected will naturally afford special scope for Miss Ashwell's talents, but the new management will be fairly catholic in their choice of plays, and it may sometimes happen that Miss Ashwell will play a small effective part rather than the nominal leading one. Mr. McLellan, the author of Leah Kleschna, has accepted a commission to write a new play for Mr. Greet and Miss Ashwell, and one of their first productions will be Mr. Michael Morton's adaptation of Maurice Donnay's Oiseaux de Passage, which he has just finished.

The secretary of the Royal General Theatrical Fund acknowledges the receipt of a five-pound note from "C. E. T." "C. E. T." is hereby thanked for his donation, which he sent to the old address of the fund in Catherine-street, Strand. The secretary hopes this generous patron will, to avoid possible loss, make a note of the present address of the fund, which is at the Savoy House, Strand, W.C.

Mr. Otho Stuart's arrangements with regard to the revival of Hamlet at the Adelphi Theatre will necessitate the early disappearance of The Taming of the Shrew from the evening bill. It will therefore be withdrawn on Saturday, the 1st of April, and on the following Tuesday, April 4th, Hamlet, with Mr. H. B. Irving in the title-rôle, will be revived. The Wednesday matinées of The Taming of the Shrew will be continued. The public demand for seats being still very great, Saturdays only will be available for matinées of Hamlet.

Mr. Edward Terry is meeting with great success on his Canadian tour, under the management of Messrs. Liebler and Co., of New York. Crowded houses have been the record everywhere, and his visits have not sufficed to accommodate all who wished to see the popular comedian. On Saturday night last, when he appeared at Ottawa, the Governor-General of Canada, Lord Minto, with Lady Minto and suite, were present, and the Russell Theatre was packed to its utmost capacity.

Miss Grete Hahn, who is engaged for the part of Leontine in The Thieves' Comedy, to be produced at the Court Theatre, has already appeared in the original German version, Der Biberpelz.

Miss de Silva (Mrs. Martin Harvey), who is announced to play Ophelia in her husband's revival of Hamlet at the Lyric, has not only acted many boys' parts, but figured on play bills under the name of "Mr." Ferro. It was at the time of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey's long engagement at the Lyceum, when they toured, during the yearly vacation, with their own company. Miss de Silva's great part is Mimi, in The Only Way. She is the daughter of a Spaniard, the late Don Ramon de Silve Ferro, and possesses a name—as Mr. Harvey once said—"longer than her own small person—Angelita Helena de Silva."

Mr. H. B. Irving writes us to explain that, at the time at which he resumed the chairmanship of the Actors' Association, he informed Mr. Charles Cruikshanks, the secretary of the Association, by letter, that he—Mr. Irving—was interested in the formation of an Actors' Union; and stated in the same letter, a copy of which Mr. Irving has sent us, that he only again took office on the understanding that circumstances might arise which would make it expedient that he should resign his position.

Mr. E. Harcourt Williams, who has been playing Romeo at Manchester and hopes to resume the part in a few days, was obliged to take a short rest in consequence of the following strange and decidedly exciting accident. He was travelling to London in a sleeping car a few weeks ago, intending to spend Sunday in town, and dreamed that the train was on fire. So vivid was the impression that he must have leapt to his feet in a frantic desire to escape. The compartment was quite dark, but he dashed to the window, and sent his left forearm through it, smashing the glass and receiving some very severe cuts. The shock awakened him, and he rushed into the passage, where the car attendant and a gentleman occupying the next berth came to his assistance. As Mr. Harcourt Williams's arm was bleeding profusely, his unknown friend, with the aid of the attendant, laid him on his back and bound his hand to the rack above, and he had to remain in this uncomfortable position until the train reached Bletchley, where a doctor examined the wound, and recommended him to go to University Hospital directly he arrived in London. Fortunately, no after effects are anticipated, although the popular young actor's muscles were badly mauled and some tendons severed.

Mr. J. M. Barrie's new comedy, the title of which is at present a secret, is to be produced on Tuesday evening, April 5th, at the Prince of Wales's Theatre. Miss Ellen Terry and Miss Irene Vanbrugh will appear in two of the most important feminine rôles.

Mr. Hall Caine has determined upon a "happy ending" for the dramatic version of his novel, The Prodigal Son, which is to constitute Mr. Arthur Collins's autumn attraction at Drury-lane. Of the four acts which the piece contains, three are laid in Iceland, and one in the Riviera, and playgoers may confidently expect that Mr. Collins will take full advantage of the opportunities for scenic display which the localities afford.

Since the German police authorities have become so rigid in their precautions against fire in the Berlin theatres, the expenses of the managers have increased owing to the extra surveillance. To meet these expenses it has been proposed to levy a "fire-tax" upon all tickets issued, ranging from 20 pfennig to a mark, according to the seat. That the public are not in sympathy with this scheme it is hardly needless to state, and a comprehensive protest is in process, signed among others by Ludwig Fulda, Barnay, Joachim, Franz Von Liszt, and Friedrich Haase.

The Metropole Theatre, Snow Hill, Birmingham, was on Thursday sold by auction at the Grand Hotel, by order of the trustees of the late Mr. Andrew Melville and the late Mrs. Alice Jane Melville. The Metropole was in its early years a music hall, and was subsequently acquired by the late Mr. Andrew Melville. For many years, under its old name, the "Queen's," and later, as the "Metropole," it has been the recognised home of melodrama in the city. After Mr. Andrew Melville's death the theatre was let to Mr. Sounes, and when his lease ran out it passed again into the hands of the Melville family. There was a fairly large attendance of theatrical proprietors from London, Manchester, Swansea, and various parts of the country when Mr. Charles F. Redfern offered the building for competition. Bidding began at £3,500, and the theatre was eventually acquired for £5,400 by Mr. Andrew Melville Robbins, third son of the late proprietor.

Mr. "Happy" Attwood has just concluded a successful pantomime engagement with Messrs. Little and Darey. He has been secured by Mr. Milton Bode for 1905-6 and 1906-7, to play a principal comedy part.

"Peter Pan" will celebrate its 150th and last performance of this season on Saturday night, April 1. It is to be reproduced on December 14 for the Christmas season of 1905-6, and it speaks well for the reputation the play has already carned when one hears that seats have been already booked for the Boxing Night performance.

Mr. Ernest E. Norris has acquired the suburban and provincial rights of Tommy Atkins, which will form the Easter attraction at the Elephant and Castle Theatre, and will be sent on tour in the autumn.

Miss Tita Brand, in her revival of Othello at the Shaftesbury, on Saturday, April 8, will have the assistance of Mr. Henry Ainley, who, by permission of Mr. Charles Frohman, will play Cassio. Miss Charlotte Granville will enact Emilia, and Bianca will be in the care of Miss Lydia Busch.

Mr. Charles Frohman has secured the English and American rights of M. Pierre Berton's drama, La Belle Marseillaise, recently produced at the Ambigu, Paris. The piece, the title-rôle of which gives unlimited opportunities for comic acting, deals with the dilemma of a captivating Parisienne ordered by Napoleon to marry for the second time, while her husband, who has merited the Emperor's displeasure, and is supposed to be dead, is still in the land of the living.

Mr. Frank Curzon will next week put in rehearsal a new musical play by Mr. W. H. Risque, with music by Mr. Howard Talbot, which may be expected at one of Mr. Curzon's theatres about Easter.

The dresses worn by the fair members of Mr. George Musgrove's Prince of Pilsen company can only be described as sumptuous. Miss Beatrice Lamotte, as the Vassar Girl, on her first entrance is garbed in an exquisite "creation" from the Rue de la Paix, consisting of mauve satin cloak trimmed with soft foamy lace and tiny brilliants, revealing at intervals a satin skirt and lingérie in the same delicate tint, the whole surmounted by a coquettish little pill-box-shaped toque, with bird of paradise plumes. Later on she appears in a dainty white cloth riding habit lined with black satin, with which is worn a white beaver top hat. Her last gown, with which she carries a posy of scarlet poppies, is a daring but strikingly effective contrast in colours, the skirt being of turquoise blue satin, cut in Louis XI. style, embroidered in scarlet poppies with a décolletage of pale blue chiffon, and decorated with stripes of royal blue sequin embroidery, which falls in sash-like ends to the hem of the gown.

Miss Julie Herne, a daughter of the late James A. Herne, the American dramatist, has written a four-act play called Richter's Wife, which was recently submitted at a series of matinée performances at the Manhattan Theatre, New York. The authoress, a girl of twenty, and her elder sister, Miss Chrystal Herne, were both in the cast, their mother, Mrs. James A. Herne, superintending the production. The Misses Herne appeared in several of their father's plays during his lifetime. The younger daughter is anxious to make a name for herself as a dramatist, and the critics have found much to praise in her first effort, although the play has been styled a weak imitation of Ibsen. Richter's wife, Elsie, is a petulant, hysterical young woman, who is easily roused to jealousy. Richter is the leader of an orchestra, and he becomes interested in his wife's cousin, Helen Warner, who is visiting them, and who expects to become famous as a singer. Richter is a dreamy individual, with a constant longing for sympathy. His wife gives him none, and from mere professional interest in his pupil he passes into a sentimental regard for her. But the girl is frightened when he speaks to her of love, and decides to go away. She is on the eve of a great professional triumph, however, as Richter has given her the solo part in an oratorio which he is producing. He expresses his regret that his words have hurt the girl, promises to be silent on the subject in future, and persuades her to go on with her studies under his direction. On the night of the concert Helen breaks down. Her announcement of the fact upon her return home is received by Richter's wife with every manifestation of pleasure, as she has made no effort to conceal her hatred of her cousin. A little later, Richter returns home, and eventually Helen confesses to him that she has loved him all along. Richter suggests that they go away together, but to this the girl will not consent. Reminding him of his duty to his wife, she tells him that they must now part for ever. The wife surprises the pair whilst they are in each other's arms, but says nothing until the next day, when she summons Helen to her room. She tells the girl that she knows Richter is in love with her, and bids her be happy if she can. Then she drinks poison and dies. Miss Julie Herne, as Elsie, Miss Chrystal Herne, as Helen Warner, and Mr. John E. Kellerd, as Michael Richter, won praise for their impersonations.

Miss Victoria Bateman, an American actress, has been seriously injured in a fire which occurred at an hotel in Edwardsville, Ill., on the 6th inst. Miss Bateman was taking an afternoon nap in her room, when a member of the company playing at the local theatre, who had gone to summon her, saw smoke issuing from beneath the door. The proprietor broke in the door, crawled in on hands and knees, and encountered the form of the unconscious woman lying on the floor. She was dragged out. Medical attention was given her, and she now lies in a precarious condition.

Mrs. Langtry and her company paid a flying visit to the Theatre Royal, Manchester, on the 9th inst., and gave a very successful performance of Mrs. Dering's Divorce before a large audience. Mrs. Langtry's charming depiction of the lady of the title met with a flattering reception, and capital support was rendered by Mr. Leonard Boyne, as Captain Dering, other important parts being well played by Mr. Frank Hollins, Mr. Courtenay Thorpe, Miss Jean Morrison, and Miss Anne Mildmay.

Mr. A. B. Walkley, lecturing at the Midland Institute, Birmingham, on "Some Aspects of the Modern Stage," said the unreality of the drama arose from the fact that it could only give the illusion of reality by a system of conventions, or departures from reality which the spectator willingly agreed to accept as the price he paid for his pleasures or which were forced upon the dramatist as the price he had to pay before he could give pleasure to a large number of persons assembled together. In other words, the conventions of the drama were those imposed by its medium, and those imposed by the nature of its public. He deprecated the extravagant claims that were often made for the modern drama. Only such ideas could be dealt with as were capable of being conveyed in terms of emotion. Mr. Walkley stated that his faith in the future of the stage was based upon the hope of the development of a "new crowd" on a higher plane.

At the Grand Theatre, Islington, this week, a beauty competition has created great excitement amongst the fairer portion of the Islingtonians. The competition was run on very novel lines, viz., the first prize of two guineas going, as usual, to the lady receiving the greatest number of votes, but the second prize of one guinea being awarded to the lady receiving the least. Under the new management of Mr. James, of the Hammersmith and Croydon Theatres, every effort is being made to maintain and increase the attractiveness of this popular theatre, and next week Ben-ma-Chree will be played by Mr. Arnold Bell's company. Mr. Neuman Meurien, the new acting manager, is most assiduous in his courtesy and attention to all.

Miss Nellie Clyde, who is playing the title-rôle in The Convict's Daughter, met with a painful mishap last week at Grimsby. As she was crossing the road, she was knocked down by a motor car containing four people. The lady was for a short time insensible, but she recovered sufficiently to be assisted to the nearest doctor, where it was found that, although Miss Clyde sustained a very severe shaking, no bones were broken. She very pluckily appeared as usual in her part the same evening.

Mr. Frank Goldsmith, who has been playing in Letty with Mr. Chas. Frohman's company in America, has just been re-engaged by that management for another year, making his fourth with Mr. Chas. Frohman. Mr. Goldsmith hopes to spend a short vacation in England this summer.

Mr. F. R. Benson's season at the Coronet Theatre has been strikingly successful, the advance booking being unprecedentedly heavy. At every performance during the four weeks that Mr. Benson has been at the Coronet, there has not even been standing room.

Mr. Lilford Arthur has found it advisable to restore to the farce-comedy, Jones's Jaunt, its original title, A Prodigal Father. The piece is going well, and this week in Dublin, where Mr. Charles Collette is a great favourite, it has been received with enthusiasm.

The production of The Prince of Pilsen by Mr. George Musgrove's company at the King's, Hammersmith, last week, marked a red letter night in the annals of Mr. Mulholland's handsome theatre. Society, art, literature, and the drama, were well represented on the occasion; and looking round upon the brilliant audience, the casual spectator might have imagined himself assisting at some West End première. The principals were accorded hearty receptions, encores were the order of the evening, and the enthusiasm of the audience, which had commenced with the opening number, culminated in a demonstration of cheers and calls.

A Profit of £1.134 6s. 8d. was realised for the Actors' Orphanage Fund at the garden party held at the Botanic Gardens in July last.

During Miss Marion Terry's indisposition, her part in Mollentrave on Women at the St. James's was played by Miss Edyth Olive.

"Everybody's Secret," the comedy in three acts, produced on Tuesday night at the Haymarket Theatre, reveals some smart dresses which will be of special interest to the ladies as examples of the latest spring fashions. To Miss Carlotta Addison's share as Lady Parkes fall some handsome matronly toilettes, one of which is made of green shot taffetas, with a full skirt pleated upon the hips and a cross-over bodice draped over a vest of rich cream lace and gold embroidery, with an inner vest of white lace. Her very novel and smart green cloak is made of green chiffon velours decorated with sable, and she wears a stringless green bonnet prettily trimmed with clusters of grapes. In another scene Miss Addison wears a long velvet pelisse trimmed with sable gathered in at the waist, the revers and collar of which are edged with sable, which is exquisitely softened by a cravat of cream lace.

Miss Jessie Bateman to suit the exigencies of the play is robed throughout most simply but becomingly in the palest blue cloth, the full skirt of which is edged with tucks, to match which tucks are added to the bodice and sleeves. The waistband fastens at the back with a buckle, and the pretty collar and cuffs are made of muslin and lace; the former is worn above the black stock tie.

Miss Helen Ferrers, as Mrs. Mellor, a sister of Lady Parkes, wears the two most distinguished and fashionable frocks in the play. Her first appearance is made in a very attractive-looking gown. It is a toilette of orchid mauve chiffon with a full and flowing skirt flounced thrice, and a cross-over bodice of the same fabric. Over it is worn a very original and beautiful looking three-quarter-length transparency coat of the finest lace adorned with embroidery; it has short sleeves, and the puffs of the mauve elbow ones appear beneath them. A handsome muff and stole of moleskin lined with ermine, and a hat turned up at the side to show a bunch of ostrich feathers, complete the scheme.

Miss Ferrers's dress of the third act is a beautifully modelled Princess gown of champagne cloth, hanging full from the hips, and trimmed with enormous cloth buttons centred with steel. It has a high bolero drapery upon the bodice and very full sleeves, respectively trimmed with revers and cuffs of embroidered silk. The mauve chip hat is trimmed with lilac and roses, and gives an excellent touch of colour to the prevailing neutrality of the rest of the toilette.

Mr. Frank Curzon will reopen the Comedy Theatre shortly with an original comedy in four acts, entitled Lady Ben, by George Pleydell Bancroft, for the title-rôle of which Miss Darragh has been specially engaged. The cast will also include Mr. Frank Cooper, Mr. Charles Fulton, Mr. J. D. Beveridge, Mr. Charles Maude, Mr. Guy Cavy, Mr. W. F. Lloyd, Miss May Pardoe, Miss Dorothy Grimstone, Miss May Martin, Miss Fanny Coleman, and Miss Callish.

The Battison Hayes prize (composition) of the Royal Academy of Music, has been awarded to Montague F. Phillips, a native of London; Benjamin J. Dale being highly commended. The R.A.M. Club prize (composition) has been secured by Benjamin J. Dale, London; Stanley Marchant being commended. The examiners in each instance were Messrs. Eaton Faning, Edward German, and W. G. McNaught. The Goldberg prize (contralto) has been won by Constance Dugard, of London; Gladys Roberts, Ethel Mann, and Amy Dewhurst being highly commended. The examiners were Mr. S. Brereton, Madame Edith Hands, and Miss Margaret Hoare (in the chair). The Sterndale Bennett prize (female pianists) fell to Irene Scharrer, of London; Marie Letheby being commended. The examiners were Messrs. Fritz Read, Rud Zwintocher, and Ernest Fowles (chairman).

The twenty-first annual dinner of the Playgoers' Club will take place at the Hotel Cecil on Sunday, when the toast of the drama will be proposed by the President, Mr. I. Zangwill, and replied to by Mr. Lewis Waller. Sir Alexander Mackenzie and Mr. Alfred Sutro will respond for the visitors, whose health will be pledged by Mr. B. W. Findon

The old Theatre Royal, Bold Lane, Derby, which has for forty years been a Gospel hall, has had an interesting record. It was erected in 1773 by James Augustus Whiteley, and among the stars who appeared there were Charles Kemble, the elder Kean, Mrs. Siddons, the elder Mathews, Sheridan Knowles, Madame Vestris, Maria Foote (afterwards Countess of Harrington), Helen Tree (Mrs. Charles Kean), Charles Kean, Helen Faucit (Lady Theodore Martin), Macready, and Dibdin. In 1865 the old Theatre Royal was purchased by a missionary, and has since been used for religious purposes.

Mr. Fredk. Mouillot's company opened at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, on Monday, with The Shop Girl, and played to a packed house. Musical comedies are having a run at this theatre, for A Runaway Girl, The Circus Girl, and An Artist's Model follow on in immediate succession.

Miss Isa Bowman having relinquished the title-rôle in Miss Mischief for the leading part in Mr. Eade Montefiore's Edinburgh production of A Trip to the Highlands, Miss Ethel Beech, who has for some time been playing in The Schoolgirl, on tour, will, next week, undertake the part.

Miss Margaret Auglin is appearing in an emotional drama called Zira. The plot is founded on that of Wilkie Collins's novel The New Magdalen, and the piece is written by J. Hartley Manners and Henry Miller. The action opens in Pretoria just after its capture by the British troops, and ends in a fashionable London mansion.

The much-debated sketch question seems in a fair way to be settled at last. On Tuesday, at the House of Commons, Captain Jessell, the member for South St. Pancras, presided over a conference between representatives of the Theatrical Managers' Association and the London Entertainments Protection Association. We understand that the discussion dealt with points in the Entertainments Bill, concerning the length of sketches performed at music halls, and the number of principals and supers to be employed. It is confidently expected that a modus vivendi will be attained. There will be a general meeting of the Theatrical Managers' Association on April 4, when the matter will be again discussed.

The principal artistes at the Bristol Musical Festival, which begins on October 11, will include Mme. Albani, Mme. Melba, Miss Lucile Hill, Miss Muriel Foster, Miss Ada Crossley, Mme. Kirkby Lunn, Messrs. Ben Davies, John Coates, William Green, Andrew Black, Charles Knowles, and Ffrangcon Davies, the Misses Verne, and Herr Kriesler. Mr. George Riseley will conduct. The festival will open with Mendelssohn's Elijah. In the evening are to be performed the "Symphonie Fantastique" of Berlioz, and also its sequel, "Lelio." Mendelssohn's Œdipus at Colonos will form the second part of the programme. On Thursday morning will be given Richard Strauss's ballad for soloists and full orchestra, Taillefer (The Battle of Hastings), and the second part will comprise Sir E. Elgar's Dream of Gerontius. In the evening there will be a miscellaneous concert, including The Song of the Fates (Brahms) On the Friday morning will be performed the Grand Mass in C minor of Mozart, followed by Beethoven's Engedi. At the evening performance Lohengrin is to be given, without cuts, and Handel's Messiah will conclude the festival.

Master Cyril Smith is, we are glad to hear, now so well on the road to health that he was, barring accident, to leave the Borough Hospital on Wednesday, and stay until his complete recovery is assured with Dr. Wilmot, who has attended him during his illness. He rejoins Sir Henry Irving in May.

Mr. William Gillette, in Sherlock Holmes, is the current attraction at the Empire Theatre, New York. It is announced that this is to be his last appearance in New York in the rôle of the famous detective. The play was first presented by Mr. Gillette, at the Garrick Theatre, on Nov. 6, 1899, and it was revived at the Knickerbocker Theatre, on Nov. 4, 1902. The present revival is attracting large audiences, Mr. Gillette's embodiment of the imperturbable Holmes proving as interesting and effective as ever. Mr. Ralph Delmore repeats his excellent impersonation of James Larrabee, and Mr. George W. Wessels, the original Professor Moriarty, gives a portrayal of the crafty criminal that could hardly be improved upon. Miss Hilda Spong appears with complete success as Madge Larrabee.

Signor Luigi Manzotti, the famous Milanese ballet master, died this week in his sixty-seventh year. Manzotti, some of whose productions won world-wide fame, was named the Moltke of the ballet, and his Rolla gained a prize from Pope Pius IX.; and after the success of Sport the people of Milan presented him with a bronze bust.

Mr. Frank Keenan, the American actor, has taken the little New York playhouse, which has been called by various names during the past year, and has lately reverted to its original title of the Berkeley Lyceum Theatre, his intention being to conduct it on the same plan as the Théâtre Antoine, in Paris. For the opening bill three short plays were presented. The first was a dramatic tabloid, by Jackson D. Hoag, entitled At the Threshold. It is the story of an elopement frustrated by a burglar, who reads a runaway wife and her tempter a moral lecture; and then, recounting his own experiences to drive the lesson home, discovers that the woman is his own daughter.

An entertainment will be given at 154, Holland-Park Avenue, on Monday evening, under the patronage of Lady Edmund Talbot, in aid of the funds to establish St. Martin's Convalescent Home for the literary, musical, and dramatic professions. Mr. Barton McGuckin, Signorina Paola Teodoras, Miss Elsie Southgate, Miss Florence Venning, Miss Sarah Berry, and other artistes will contribute to the concert, which will be under the direction of Mrs. Vermulen McDonnell, and St. Vincent's Orchestra will be conducted by the Very Rev. Monsignor Poyer.

A "Shakespeare Ball" will take place in aid of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, in the Empress Rooms of the Royal Palace Hotel, Kensington, on Thursday, May 4, under distinguished patronage, including that of Princess Christian and Princess Louise Augusta of Schleswig-Holstein, and many leading representatives of the dramatic and musical professions.

Mrs. J. W. Gordon, the manageress of the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Southampton, will be accorded a farewell benefit on Friday. Mrs. Gordon, who is relinquishing the management of the theatre on Saturday, after many years of arduous work, was for five years co-lessee with the late Mr. J. J. Ploughman, and on the latter's death in 1898 she undertook the responsibilities of the place alone. Many offers of assistance have been forthcoming for the benefit performance, which will include Mr. William Bourne's Co. in Voices of London; Mr. J. D. Hunter; and the first act of My Sweetheart, in which Mrs. Gordon will appear as Tina, and Mr. Fred Davenporte as Tony. Mr. Fred. Mouillot, who also runs the Grand Theatre, has secured a lease of the Prince's from the executors of the late Sefton Parry, and will open the house as a drama theatre on Easter Monday next.

Messrs. G. M. Polini and Lauderdale Maitland will tour during the autumn with The Coal King, the five-act drama by Edward Martin and Fewlass Llewellyn, which was produced at the Elephant and Castle last October. Mr. Polini is well known on the road, and his partner, a member of a well-known theatrical family, has toured in many leading parts in melodrama. Mr. Maitland will play the principal rôle in The Coal King, the business management of which will be in the hands of Mr. Polini.

In our summary in last week's issue of the case at Bow-street Police-court on the 6th inst., in which Mrs. Clement Scott was summoned by the trustees of the Neilson Fund to show cause why she should not deliver up certain books and documents relating to the fund, we stated that "there were a cash book and many letters and documents which the trustees were anxious to secure." Mr. Alfred A. Robinson, on behalf of Mrs. Scott, now informs us that no evidence was adduced in support of such statement. The assertion was taken from counsel's speech, and we inserted it merely as a part of our report. We regret that our reproduction of the counsel's statements should have given Mrs. Scott any offence or annoyance.

Miss Ellis Jeffreys made her first appearance before an American audience on the 6th inst. at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, and scored an instantaneous success as Queen Sonia in The Prince Consort, a comedy adapted from the French, by William Boosey and Cosmo Gordon Lennox. The play was produced in a very handsome manner by Messrs. Liebler and Co., and Miss Jeffreys was supported by an excellent company, including Miss Kate Phillips, Mr. Ben Webster, Mr. Henry E. Dixey, and Mr. William H. Thompson.

Miss Fanny Brough has been sustaining, in the United States, with great success the rôle of Mrs. Mulholland in that delightful comedy, The Duke of Killicrankie. At the Nixon Theatre, Pittsburg, recently, Mr. Charles Frohman's excellent company, with Mr. John Drew at its head, gave a finished representation of the piece. Mr. Drew, as the Duke, was ably assisted by Mr. Ferdinand Gottschalk, as Henry Pitt-Welby, M.P.

Mr. Robert Arthur has made arrangements with Madame Sarah Bernhardt by which she will appear at the Coronet Theatre in the coming June.

The first meeting of the Exhibition Finance Sub-committee (No. 3) of the Scenic Artists' Association, was held at the offices, 5, Robert-street, W.C., on Friday, 10th March. In the absence of the chairman (Mr. Walter Hann), Mr. William Raphael was elected to preside. There were also present:—Mr. G. R. Hemsley, Mr. W. T. Hemsley, and Mr. G. H. Wallis (auditor), and Mr. H. Lawrence Harris, secretary. The sub-committee made arrangements for the collecting of two or three remaining subscriptions to the Exhibition Guarantee Fund.

At the usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association, held last Tuesday, Walter Selby was nominated for election. The honorary solicitors reported they had advised several members, and were requested to consider certain matters in connection with the contracts handed to them for that purpose. Mr. A. H. Brewer, junior, M.R.C.S., &c., was elected as an hon. medical officer of the A.A.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS CLARA NICHOLLS.

MISS CLARA NICHOLLS made her first appearance under the management of Mr. John Hare, at the Court Theatre, walking on as one of the girls in Olivia. The following Christmas she spoke her first lines in the small part of a fairy in the Surrey Theatre pantomime, for which Mr. W. Holland engaged her. Mr. Henry Pettitt was Miss Nicholls' next manager, who entrusted her with a juvenile part in his piece entitled Love and Money, which had a tour of five months.

As the Princess, in the pantomime of Aladdin, produced by Mr. James Buchanan, Miss Nicholls scored a decided success. Following this was a re-engagement to tour as Josephs in Never too Late to Mend. Miss Maude Forester next engaged Miss Nicholls to play the rôle of Onezia in the well-known piece, Maseppa.

The Christmas of 1886 found Miss Nicholls as principal girl at the Theatre Royal, Preston, in the pantomime, entitled Crusoe, and there are many who will remember with pleasure the bright and dainty manner in which Polly Atkins was portrayed by the subject of this sketch. The following year Miss Nicholls accepted an engagement as Cinderella with Messrs. Roberts, Archer, and Bartlett.

Then came one of her longest engagements, touring, as she did, for over three years with the famous Silver King, playing Oliver Skinner, and understudying Nellie Denver. In 1891 Mr. P. Hardacre engaged her to play Barbara Hare in East Lynne. This was a tour of twelve months, including a stock season at the Comedy Theatre, Manchester, where Miss Nicholls played Mrs. O'Regan in the*Colleen Bawn*, Kate Nickleby in Nicholas Nickleby, and, again, one of the sons of Rob Roy.

At this time Miss Nicholls gave up the stage for a somewhat lengthened period. On her return to it, she played Dick Whittington at the old Clapham Theatre. This has always been one of her favourite parts, and one in which she made a decided success. Miss Nicholls' next engagement was one of quite a different character, for she was engaged by Mr. Julian Hartleagh to play Lady Marchant in the beautiful play, A Bunch of Violets, which rôle she sustained during two tours, starting in April, 1896.

Then followed a tour with the Gaiety Girl (December, 1896) as Lady Virginia Forest. Mr. Isaac Cohen next secured Miss Nicholls for the heavy part in The Hue and Cry, which he produced at the Pavilion Theatre in April, 1897. This engagement was the first of many others at the same place. As Madam Cobweb, in Mr. Leopold's Frivolity company, she had a part quite out of the ordinary, and the many acrobatic feats performed by her she can never forget, and even yet cannot quite realise.

In September, 1898, Miss Nicholls left London with the English Comedy Company, bound for Gibraltar and Malta. While on tour with this company, she played Donna Lucia, Mrs. Brindle in The Dove Cote, Margaret in Dream Faces, Mrs. Pinglet, and Mrs. Chadwick in her brother's piece, Jane. Following this came a short tour of How London Lives, when she joined Mr. Chattell to play Margaret Maitland in Tommy Atkins.

In August, 1901, Miss Nicholls was engaged by Mr. Maskell to play the part of Mrs. Callender in Mr. Hall Caine's famous play, The Christian. Another tour followed this engagement. Miss Romney in the Strange Adventures of Miss Brown was Miss Nicholls' next venture, and this was a long tour under the management of Miss Lydia Donovan.

When the above tour terminated, Mr. Wentworth Croke arranged with Miss Nicholls to play her old part of Mrs. Callender (Christmas, 1903-4), for which he re-engaged her for his autumn tour.

MR. CECIL KLEIN.

MR. CECIL KLEIN began his theatrical career some eight years ago, creating a juvenile heavy part in a new play. The following autumn he went on tour in The Sign of the Cross, playing Philodemus. He succeeded so well with this character that he received an offer for the spring from Mr. Charles Warner to play Rochefort in The Three Musketeers. Two days before the opening date of the tour Mr. Klein was laid up with a severe attack of influenza, which kept him a prisoner in his bed for nearly three months. Nothing daunted by this stroke of evil fortune, the next autumn found his active and energetic, and happily restored to health, playing Murat and stage managing in a tour of A Royal Divorce. After this he toured in a répertoire of society plays, acting such widely dissimilar parts as Pete in The Professor's Love Story, Dumby in Lady Windermere's Fan, and Lord Jura in Moths, &c. This engagement gave him practice in many and various rôles. Then came a tour in The White Heather, and upon his return to London Mr. Klein appeared in several special productions. His next move was an ambitious one, as Mr. Klein took out his own company in three of the St. James's Theatre successes, playing Lord Augustus Lorton in Lady Windermere's Fan, John Worthing in The Importance of Being Earnest, and the Hon. Mandeville Hobbe in His Little Dodge. This first venture in management gave Mr. Klein enough confidence in his own powers to essay a tour with the Haymarket play, The Red Lamp, which was sufficiently successful to be prolonged for eight months, Mr. Klein making a conspicuous hit as Allan Villiers, the American journalist. In looking about for another suitable play, this enterprising young manager made a choice of William Gillette's fine American drama, Secret Service, in which he played the leading rôle. Though far from being the financial success it deserved, this tour stamped the young manager as an actor of strength and promise, for in Mr. Gillette's part of Captain Thorne he found the most congenial character he had yet played. It was during this tour that a new drama by Miss Chapin was produced, and with such satisfactory results that Mr. Klein will undoubtedly tour it in the near future. Returning to town, Mr. Klein became associated with Mr. George Dance as assistant-general manager at his offices in Shaftesbury-avenue, subsequently going on tour as business manager of The Three Little Maids company. Mr. Klein's ambitions, however, are to succeed as an actor, and the summer found him playing Captain Gavor Gilchrist in Bootles' Baby for several special weeks; a short engagement as juvenile lead in The Biggest Scamp on Earth followed. After this he joined the stock company of the Grand Theatre, Islington, playing juvenile and light comedy parts. Among the many rôles he has essayed under this management may be mentioned Surgeon O'Neil in A Woman from Gaol, Richard Carston in Bleak House, Harry Mayle in Oliver Twist, Dick Hare in East Lynne, Sir George Mcdhurst in After Dark, Herbert Digby in The Bridge of Sighs, Hon. Dick Dowdeswell in The Woman from Nowhere, Matthew Brookfield in The Bells of Haslemere, and Kyrle Daly in The Colleen Bawn. Mr. Klein is still on the right side of thirty, and if hard work and persevering energy go for anything, should make for himself an honourable position in his profession.

MR. ARTHUR BAWTREE.

MR. ARTHUR BAWTREE'S first engagement was with Mr. Rutland Barrington, at the St. James's Theatre, in October, 1888, to "walk on" in a scene of The Dean's Daughter. In January of the following year he commenced his first touring engagement under the management of Mr. Chas. Harbury and Miss Helen Mathews, with their Shakespearean company. The répertoire consisted of The Merchant of Venice, Othello, and The Tempest, Mr. Bawtree's parts being Lorenzo, Montano, and Old Gonzalo. Then followed engagements with Messrs. Miller and Elliston, Cuthbert and Cobbe, and Chas. Dornton, during which he played the leading and juvenile leading parts. He then accepted an offer from Mr. Kyrle Bellew and Mrs. Brown Potter to accompany them on their tour to South Africa. The company opened in Cape Town on Jan. 25, 1892, but the season was brought to an abrupt termination on account of the theatre being destroyed by fire. The company returned to England, and Mr. Bawtree was re-engaged by Mr. Bellew for his production of Hero and Leander at the Shaftesbury Theatre. His next engagement was with Messrs. Cartwright and Tapping's Idler company, in which piece he played the part of Sir John Harding. Then two seasons on the Pier at Hastings with Mr. J. D. Hunter, and a tour with Mr. Wynn Miller's Walker, London, followed. Mr. Bawtree then accepted an offer from Mr. T. V. Twinning to join Mr. Bellew and Mrs. Brown-Potter on their tour to India and the Far East. The répertoire consisted of about twenty pieces. During this engagement he played, among other parts, Tybalt, Horatio, Bassanio, Beauseant, Mario Cavaradossi (La Tosca), Hastings, Marcellus (Theodore). The company visited Calcutta (season of five months), Singapore, Penang, Hong-Kong, and Canton. The tour altogether extended over ten months, and was by far the most enjoyable it has been Mr. Bawtree's lot to experience. A few days after his return to England, he received a cable from Mr. Bellew, offering him an engagement in America, which he accepted, and the tour lasted over nine months, during which he played the juvenile and leading parts in Charlotte Corday, Francillon, and Camille. On his return to England he was engaged by Mr. Milton Bode for his tour of Settling Day. In the meantime, he signed an engagement with Mr. W. J. Holloway for his South African tour. They opened in Johannesburg on Boxing Night, 1895. The following week the memorable Jameson Raid took place, with disastrous effects to theatre business. However, matters were soon settled for the time being, and their season lasted over twenty weeks. Trilby had the record run of three weeks. They afterwards travelled down to Cape Town, playing there three or four weeks, and then returning home. On arriving home, Mr. Bawtree was re-engaged by Mr. Milton Bode for the part of Harold Wilson in Tommy Atkins, with which play he toured during the autumn of 1896 and the spring of 1897. Then followed engagements with Mr. Henry Dundas, Messrs. A. and S. Gatti (Adelphi), and Mr. C. J. Abud. He was re-engaged by Messrs. A. and S. Gatti for the autumn drama, The Gipsy Earl at the Adelphi, in which he played Lord Trevannion. Then followed engagements under the management of Messrs. Herbert Sleath (The Mariners of England), Leonard Boyne (Sporting Life), Lionel Rignold (The Wrong Mr. Wright), Wilfrid Franks and Julian Hartleigh (The Span of Life), J. F. Elliston (The Absent-Minded Beggar), and Henry Dundas (The Ladder of Life). In February, 1902, Mr. Bawtree accepted an offer to once more visit South Africa, on this occasion with Mr. Willie Edouin. The tour lasted about six months. In April, 1903, he joined M. Auguste Van Biene for his English and South African tours. They left England in June, and arrived home again on Boxing Day the same year. Mr. Bawtree accepted an offer of a re-engagement for the spring of last year, and the tour extended over twenty weeks, terminating at Douglas, Isle of Man. He was re-engaged for the autumn tour, which opened on Bank Holiday (August 1st), at the Lyceum, Sheffield, Mr. Bawtree playing the part of General Ivanoff. He is now on tour in Australia with the same play.

MISS VERA FORDYCE.

MISS VERA FORDYCE graduated at the late Miss Sarah Thorne's school at Margate, and, curiously enough, made her first appearance in a speaking part (a very small one—two lines only) in The Lady of Lyons with Mr. Cosmo Stuart (Claude Melnotte), in whose charming play, The Marriage of Kitty, she is now acting with such marked success. After she had finished her probation with Miss Thorne, that lady engaged her for second girl in her pantomime of Robin Hood. After that Mr. Dundas engaged her as understudy in The Derby Winner, and, being a very quick study, she was called upon to play the character of Mary Aylmer at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, at half an hour's notice, although the part had only been given to her the previous night. Then came two engagements in stock season at Brighton with Mr. Thomas Sidney, when she played such rôles as Mary Blenkarn (The Middleman), Hattie (Niobe), Ruth Rolt (Sweet Lavender), &c. Next Miss Fordyce was secured by Mr. Ben Greet for Berenis, in The Sign of the Cross, which she played with great success for two tours. In consequence of this, Miss Annie Hughes engaged her for Barbara, in her tour of Sweet Nancy. After this came a short engagement with the late C. W. Garthorne as Olive, in The Colonel, and a brief special engagement as May Edwards with Mr. A. E. Drinkwater. In August, 1900, Miss Fordyce was engaged by Mr. Frank Thornton for the part of Nora (the other Mrs. John Smith), for his tour of Facing the Music. After playing this character for two tours, with Mr. Thornton in the part of the other John Smith, and one tour with Mr. J. J. Dallas in the same rôle, Miss Fordyce was engaged by Mr. Thornton for entire lead in his comedy répertoire company, Facing the Music, The Private Secretary, Charley's Aunt, A Little Ray of Sunshine, Sweet Lavender, and The Strange Adventures of Miss Brown, throughout his tour in Australia, Tasmania, and New Zealand. Returning in October last, Miss Fordyce created the part of Lily, in Mr. Walter Stephens's A Trip to Margate at the Crown Theatre, Peckham. Among other parts played by Miss Fordyce are Janet, in Mr. Charles Hannan's charming play The Setting of the Sun, in which she scored a great success, being very highly complimented by the author; Mrs. Sternhold, also Mrs. Mildmay, Still Waters; Mrs. Midhurst, The Solicitor; Kate Butterscotch, The Guv'nor; Violet, Confusion; Lucy, Our Flat; Lucy, Jane; Dorothy Hubbard, The Romance of a Shopwalker; and Jenny, Sweethearts.

MR. WINGOLD LAWRENCE.

A LONDONER by birth, and being a stage-struck youth, Mr. Wingold Lawrence started as a local amateur. He then drifted into the fit-ups, where he stayed three years, gaining good experience by hard work, and playing, among others, the following parts: Sir Leicester Dedlock (Poor Joe), George Peyton (The Octoroon), Timothy Clinker (The Ring of Iron), Hardress Cregan (The Colleen Bawn), Paul Fairweather (The Streets of London), Bob Brierley (The Ticket-of-Leave Man), Taffy (Trilby), Laburn Brood (British Born), Archibald Carlyle (East Lynne), and Tony (My Sweetheart). He also had a short fit-up tour of his own, playing Tony in My Sweetheart. He then wrote, stage-managed, and produced a pantomime, Beauty and the Beast, which was toured for six weeks by Mr. Ernest Raymond in fit-ups.

Mr. Lawrence then started in the theatres, being engaged by Mr. Matt. Wilkinson for Squire Lyndhurst, in Sons of the Sea. A few weeks afterwards he was offered by Mr. Wilkinson the eccentric comedy part of Adolphus Brown, in Sons of the Sea, which he played for over 300 nights, with songs and dances. He went to the Queen's, Birmingham, for seven weeks' stock season, in the summer of 1897, playing juveniles and comedy parts in The Queen's Colours, A String of Pearls, The Golden Chance, Green Bushes, All that Glitters is not Gold, East Lynne, &c. He was then re-engaged by Mr. Matt. Wilkinson for an autumn tour, to play George O'Kennedy in The Green Bushes. Altogether he toured with Mr. Wilkinson for three years—a most happy and comfortable engagement. In 1898 and 1899 Mr. Lawrence's services were secured for summer stock seasons at the Theatre Royal, Bristol, where he created the part of Nickey Nobbs on the production of Saturday Night in London, and also toured the play for a short time. Nickey Nobbs was a comedy coster part with songs and dances; and whilst playing it, he was under contract to Mr. John A. Atkin for juvenile lead. As an actor does not always get credit for versatility, Mr. Lawrence was afraid that if seen with close-cropped hair, and a broad East-End dialect and a mouth organ, looking anything but the romantic juvenile, the contract might be cancelled; but all ended well, and he duly opened in The Grip of Iron, playing Robert de Belfort. Two months later he was engaged for Paul Blanchard, in The Grip of Iron, and acted the same part for three tours. He was then engaged to play the heavy part in the production of The World, the Flesh, and the Devil, at the Surrey Theatre. He was next engaged for lead by Miss Marie Dagmar in A Life's Revenge, and at the end of the tour was re-engaged, and stayed three tours. Then followed an engagement with Mrs. Langtry for her London season at the Imperial Theatre. He was engaged for Baron de Lomanie in Mademoiselle Mars, and re-engaged for The Degenerates, which followed. Mr. Frederick Melville then secured Mr. Lawrence for lead in The Streets of London, at the Terriss Theatre, Rotherhithe, where Mr. Walter Melville saw him, and engaged him for lead in The Worst Woman in London. He also appeared as Jack Livingstone in A Girl's Cross Roads. Last July Mr. Lawrence was specially engaged by Miss Winifred Maude to create the leading part in her new drama, The Sins of a City; and in the autumn Mr. Melville re-engaged him for A Girl's Cross Roads at an increased salary. More recently he appeared as Jack England in The Girl who Lost Her Character, a part he is still playing on tour.

MR. DAN F. ROE.

MR. DAN F. ROE, although only twenty-seven years of age, has been on the stage for seventeen years, having started as a boy of ten with Mr. Montague Roby's famous Midget Minstrels, in the Jubilee year, 1887. Miss Louie Freear was a member of the company at that time, also Miss Mabel Allen (now Mrs. Alfred Hemming), Mr. Daley Cooper, and Mr. Roe's brother, Willie, who, during the South African war gained his captaincy, and was honourably mentioned in Lord Kitchener's dispatches. Other names Mr. Roe recalls are the Misses Nellie Merton, Clara Reid, and Annie Warner. Mr. Roe started with the Midgets as a boy singer, but was promoted after a very short time to be a "corner man," and after some years, in fact, at the age of seventeen, he became assistant stage-manager, and at eighteen was stage-manager of from 35 to 40 boys and girls. Mr. Roe almost from the beginning played some of the principal parts in the farces and small musical pieces produced, and he has a distinct recollection of one farce, wherein Louie Freear and himself sang a duet which always received two or three encores. Mr. Roe attributes his success to the admirable training and stage-management of Mr. B. Soane Roby ("The Guv'nor"). The company had to work hard, but the results were well worth it, and when it was over they were always well rewarded by the many outings and sports arranged for them. When Mr. Roe left Mr. Roby he went straight to the Leopolds to play Sammy, in Frivolity (no easy part for a youth of eighteen).

MR. DAN F. ROE.

After Frivolity, which, by the way, he was with for a twelvemonth, he went into drama, joining Mr. Wallace Davidson to play the low comedy part in Sins of the Fathers, remaining with this company for nine months. A tour of My Sweetheart followed. He then joined Mr. John F. Preston's Secrets of the Harem company, which, after a time, Mr. Roe toured himself for fourteen months, the tour coming to an abrupt conclusion at the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham Junction, on the occasion of the licence being withdrawn by the Lord Chamberlain. A stock season at the Gaiety, Hastings, followed, and then Mr. Roe went into partnership with Mr. J. F. Preston with The Bank of England, in which he created the light comedy part. After that came a stock season at the Grand and Princess's, Glasgow. In the autumn he toured with the domestic drama, Through the Divorce Court, Mr. Roe being general-manager and playing Algy Fitzmaurice, a light comedy boy's part, which was specially written for him by the author, Mr. Max Goldberg. Mr. Roe next went into pantomime (playing the Ugly Sister in Cinderella), and the following spring he accepted an offer to act Lord Cyril Garston (Mr. James Welch's part) in the New Clown. He remained with this company throughout the year, and at Christmas, 1903, joined Mr. Lawrence Brough to play Dick Whortles in The Lady of Ostend, also playing Captain Joycelyn in The Saucy Sally. In the April following he created the part of Christopher Cash in Mr. Guy Boothby's new farce, In Sunny Ceylon, at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester. Mr. Roe's hobby is bulldogs, and he informs us that he has a most promising puppy with which he hopes to win some prizes later.

MISS MARY FULTON.

MISS MARY FULTON'S professional career has not been a very long one, as her first appearance was made at the Theatre Royal, Bournemouth, in the autumn of 1896. Praise and encouragement from critics and artists such as Howard Russell, Compton Coutts, Edith Garthorne, and others, when playing in amateur performances connected with her uncle's regiment at St. George's Hall, caused her to seek an engagement. This was fortunately secured with Messrs. Roberts, Archer, and Bartlett's Repertoire Co. She stayed two years with them, playing Beattie in The Magistrate, and Mary Melrose in Our Boys, in the autumn; but Christmas found her playing principal girl in these gentlemen's Aladdin pantomime. It was in this admirable school for ambitious young folk that her first chance of playing lead was obtained, for she continued with this firm all through 1897, playing such parts as Susan, in Black-Eyed Susan; Lady Isabel, in East Lynne; Louise, in A Woman's Faith; &c. This proved to be excellent experience for her, for soon afterwards she received two excellent offers, but was unable to accept either. One was a three years' engagement with Mrs. Bandmann Palmer, who, after hearing her recite, offered juvenile lead in her company; the other was the part of Mercia, in The Sign of the Cross. But previous contracts demanded her services, and no release could be effected. Then came an engagement with T. Edward Ward, and afterwards the Ogilwy Comedy Co. Ill-health supervened at this time, but soon recovering, she had an opportunity of proving herself a quick study by taking up at an hour's notice (through sudden illnes of her sister), the part of Miladi, at the Royal, Windsor. Then came an engagement with John Tiller, at the Palace, Newcastle, on the termination of which she joined Mr. John F. Preston for the dual rôle lead in Soldiers of the Queen. Her next offer was to play Lil Garth in Honour the Father, for Mr. Morton Powell, which proved a most happy engagement, and is one of her favourite parts. Another offer soon came from Mr. Preston to resume her old character in Soldiers of the Queen, and during this engagement she had the unpleasant experience of being burnt out at the Lyceum, Sheffield. In the spring of 1900, she was selected by Mr. Preston to play lead in his new drama, Rich and Poor. From this she joined Mr. J. A. Campbell in The Red Coat, which proved to be an engagement in another way, for shortly afterwards she married Mr. Campbell. For her husband's next costume production of A Bid for Fortune, she designed and made every costume, and added not a little to the great success of this romantic play. Then Mr. Campbell wrote the play, entitled The Sin of Her Childhood, with an especially good part for his talented young wife, and this piece has met with really wonderful success. Miss Fulton's performance of Mary Haysel is considered to be the best thing she has ever done.

MR. EDITOR.—Sir,—I note in a par. in The Era of Saturday my name is mentioned as the author of The New Barmaid, whereas the piece was written in conjunction with Mr. Bowyer, and not alone by, yours faithfully, WILL. EDWARDES SPRANGE, Boswell Villa, Southend-on-Sea, March 13.

MR. EDITOR,—Sir,—In your notice of Coventry, in your current issue, you mention the part of Abdullah being played by Harry Delmar. It should have been, yours truly, ALFRED W. HARVEY, Theatre Royal, Bedford Leigh, Lanc.

PRESENTATION.—On Saturday last, at the termination of the successful pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Bristol, Mr. Ernest Carpenter, on behalf of the members of the Robinson Crusoe company, presented Mr. Trueman Towers with a magnificent silver-fitted dressing case. Mr. Carpenter thanked Mr. Towers for the good work he had done, and was pleased to tell them that he had re-engaged him for next year.

PRESENTATIONS.—At the final performance of Mr. Hart's very successful pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Bradford, on Saturday, Mr. J. E. Nightingale, on behalf of the company, presented Mr. T. F. Doyle, the general-manager and the producer of the pantomime, with a beautifully executed illuminated address conveying the good wishes and esteem of the company; and Mr. Carlton, on behalf of the members of the orchestra, handed to Mr. C. W. Chambers, the conductor, a silver-fitted dressing-case as a mark of regard.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. Henry Johnston, the able acting-manager of the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, was on the 10th inst. presented with a cheque for a hundred pounds and an illuminated address. The presentation was made at the Olde Royal Hotel by Mr. Councillor Freeman, who, on behalf of the subscribers and himself, testified to the esteem in which Mr. Johnston is held.

THE SCENIC ARTISTS' ASSOCIATION.

The 21st meeting of the committee of the Scenic Artists' Association was held on Monday evening, with Mr. W. Hann in the chair. Messrs. Edmund G. Banks, Richard Douglass, G. R. Hemsley, W. T. Hemsley, R. C. McCleery, H. W. Owen, Harry Potts, W. Raphael, George Tweddell, H. Warner, and H. Woods, and Messrs. H. Mapleson and W. Telbin, and Mr. H. Lawrnece Harris, secretary, were present. The Chairman signed the minutes of the 20th meeting, held on the 27th of February, 1905, and also the minutes of the sub-committee meetings held as follows:—Entertainment Sub-committee, Tuesday, the 28th February; Invitation Sub-committee, Saturday, 4th March; and Selection Sub-committee, Tuesday, 7th March.

Mr. W. A. Lowe and Mr. Ernest R. Jones were elected members of the Association.

The committee considered an application for relief from the benevolent fund, and voted a gratuity to the applicant.

The secretary read letters from Mr. A. C. Rogers offering loan of oil painting by C. Sebastian Estelos, and some old Drury-lane day bills; from Mr. Frederick Smallfield, offering loan of "The Twa-Dogs," by the late M. Morgan; and from Miss Evelyn Clyde, offering black and white drawing of the interior of Westminster Abbey, by Mr. Hawes Craven. The secretary also read other letters in connection with the exhibition. It was unanimously resolved to ask Sir Henry Irving to open the exhibition.

The secretary presented the balance sheet of the 28th February, 1905, duly audited by Messrs. G. R. Hemsley and G. R. Wallace.

The second meeting of the Exhibition Selection Sub-committee, was held at their offices, Robert-street, Adelphi, on Tuesday. There were present, Mr. Richard Douglass (in the chair), Messrs. E. G. Banks, G. R. Hemsley, R. C. McCleery, Harry Potts, H. W. Owen, and H. Warner, and Mr. H. Lawrence Harris, secretary.

The secretary reported that up to the present time he had received promises from members to send to the exhibition at the Grafton Galleries in April next, 32 models, and 150 oil paintings, water-colour drawings, charcoal sketches, &c.

The sub-committee selected 86 representative works of famous deceased scene painters from the list prepared by the secretary of offers from members who would lend to the exhibition.

The Exhibition Entertainment Sub-committee held their second meeting at the offices, on Tuesday, when the chair was taken by Mr. Edmund G. Banks. There were also present, Messrs. Richard Douglass, G. R. Hemsley, R. C. McCleery, and H. W Owen, and Mr. H. Lawrence Harris, secretary.

The secretary having reported the offers he had received from members of the dramatic and musical profession of their services at the daily matinées of the exhibition of the Scenic Artists' Association at the Grafton Galleries the week of April 10th, the committee drew up the programme for Monday, April 10th, and instructed the secretary to prepare draft of programmes for the following five days of the week, and submit same for the approval at the next meeting of the Entertainment Sub-committee, which will be held at the office of the Association at 8 o'clock on Tuesday.

The Association will give their first annual exhibition of theatrical models and sketches by members and famous deceased scene painters at the Grafton Galleries, Bond-street, London, from Monday, April 10, to Saturday, April 15 (both inclusive). The committee are anxious to obtain specimens of the works of John Absolon, J. Williams Allen, of Bolena, William Beverley, Sam Bough, George Chambers, William Chambers, David Cox, R.A., Sidney Cooper, A. W. Calcott, Gates, John Grieve, Thomas Grieve, Hunt, Richard W. N. Keen, T. L. Leitch, R. P. Leitch, Loutherbourge, W. B. Laidlaw, Marinare, Charles Matthews, Mulready, R.A., Matt Morgan, Marshall, W. T. Muir, Nasmyth, Pitt, Dareth Roberts, Clarkson Stanfield, John O'Connor, Michael Angelo, Rooker, Robson, Charles Tomkins, W. Telbin, and other distinguished deceased scenic artists. Owners willing to lend to the exhibition are invited to communicate with the secretary, Mr. H. Lawrence Harris, at 5, Robert-street, Adelphi. Every afternoon during the exhibition, concerts will be given in the grand hall of the Grafton Galleries, and amongst the many artistes who have already volunteered their services are Messrs. George Alexander, Rutland Barrington, Dion Boucicault, Lionel Brough, Reginald Groom, Geo. W. Cockburn, Percy Colson (violin), Henry Derouette (the Belgian violoncellist), Frank Boor, Mervyn Dene, W. L. Barrett (flautist), H. Chevreau (violin), E. R. Welby (violin), and Mesdames Irene Vanburgh, Madge Crichton, Lottie Venne, Daphne De Rohan (mandolinist), T. C. Chevreau (harp), Pattie Upton (violin), Rose Yule, Ierne Fitzgerald, Elinor Foster, Nellie T. Brooke, Alma Evelyre, Eugenie Sassard, Byam Yates, Nellie Ganthony, and Mrs. Albert Barker.

At the Grand Theatre, Margate, on Tuesday, was produced, for copyright purposes, a play, in four acts, by Justin Huntly McCarthy, entitled The Dryad.

"Heart of Gold," recently produced at the Coronet Theatre, was written by Mr. Lawrence Grant, in collaboration with Miss De Burgh. It was Mr. Grant—not Mrs.—who played the principal part in While the Cat's Away, produced recently at Dublin.

MR. TREE AT OXFORD.

Mr. Tree's performance of Hamlet at the Town Hall, Oxford, on Monday afternoon, caused quite a sensation in theatrical circles there. He took down his company from His Majesty's Theatre, and although scenery was dispensed with, and the play progressed through its entirety against a background of draperies, a finer performance has never been witnessed. The entire fit up, electric stage lighting, and limes were supplied by Mr. Albany Ward, of the Empire Theatre, Oxford. Mr. Tree gave all the profits to the funds of the new University institution, the Olympian Dramatic Club, under whose auspices he played, and as the spacious hall was filled with an audience largely composed of University professors and heads of colleges and tutors and their families, the club should be placed on a fine histrionic basis by Mr. Tree's generosity. The Hamlet of Mr. Tree was the scholarly and intellectual rendering that was expected of him, and the "Alas! poor Yorick" was an especially fine example of tactful elocution, while "To be, or not to be" was delivered with wonderful effect. For Miss Beatrice Forbes-Robertson's Ophelia there was also universal praise; her acting in the mad scene was superb. Miss Frances Ivor was a dignified and quite satisfactory Queen; Mr. Henry Nevillo put his usual good work into the part of the King; Mr. William Haviland was most impressive as the Ghost; Messrs. B. Gill and J. L'Estrange did capital work as Horatio and Laertes; Mr. Fisher White delivered his lines with much point as Polonius; and Mr. Lionel Brough met with a big reception for his clever performance of the First Grave Digger. There was tremendous applause at the fall of the curtain, and Mr. Tree had to make a speech in which he said that seven years had elapsed since he played Hamlet, which he confessed was his favourite part. In the evening, Mr. Tree, with many other distinguished guests, dined with the Olympian Club, when, in response to the toast of "The Drama," he delivered the following speech: Gentlemen,—After listening to the vice-president's speech, I feel that I shall be more in touch with this convivial meeting if I do not address you in set phrase, or with a too learned disquisition on the abstruse questions of the sanity or insanity of Hamlet, or whether his commentators were really mad or only feigning madness. No, I will not force upon you the wormwood of criticism; I will only seek to extract honey from the flowers blown by the passing breeze of your president's eloquence. I take it that we have assembled to celebrate the birth of the Olympian Club, and to pour libations to its long life and usefulness. That you should have done me the honour to invite me to respond to this toast is a great joy to me, for nothing is so refreshing to him who is fighting the dusty, thirsty battle of life as to drink a deep draught at the crisped spring of youth, to take part in the joys of the younger generation, which is always knocking at our door, even if it sometimes runs away with the knocker—and I am told that even in austere Oxford this ancient sport is not unknown. It is the wisdom of middle age to seek the suffrages of the younger generation. A friend of mine who was visiting at a country house at which the late Lord Beaconsfield was a guest, told me that that great man was particularly kind and courteous to him, listening to all he had to say with great interest, and that he was indeed almost deferential to his hasty opinions. My friend was greatly touched by this tribute to himself, and when Lord Beaconsfield was leaving the house he thanked him, and ventured to ask him why he had been so kind to him. "Well," replied that venerable and wily politician, with a frankness which is the statesman's deepest subtlety, "Well, my boy, I always like to make friends of the younger generation." Well, I hope that this young society will do as good work in its own domain as the O.U.D.S. has done in its domain, for to the drama the older society has done great service. I remember witnessing here the performance of Julius Cæsar and of The Merry Wives of Windsor, and I remember being struck by the youthful art of Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Mr. H. B. Irving, both of whom are bright ornaments of our stage to-day; but, indeed, Oxford is well represented on the modern stage, for we have Mr. F. R. Benson, who is associated with a good many of the classical representations which have taken place here, and who has done so much to minister to that classical taste throughout the country. I remember appearing here with Mr. Benson many years ago, on which occasion I played Iago to his Othello. And I remember an incident which shows that even Shakespeare must adapt himself to the requirements of our modern civilisation. I had to catch a train that night in order to appear in London. Iago's last words are "From this time forth I never will speak word," but I had to leave the stage before my cue in order to catch the train, and so, giving a whispered good-bye to Othello, I hurried from the theatre, and as I was passing through the stage door, I heard Othello's voice ringing forth, "From this time forth he will never speak word." I understand that the new society will not confine itself to the purely classical lines which the older society has laid down. At the same time, I hope that Shakespeare, who touched the loftiest height of the drama, who lends splendour to the English language, who gives us the keenest insight into nature, who is the most modern because the most eternal of all dramatists, and who affords to the actors the best opportunities of exercising their art; I hope that Shakespeare will have a place of honour in your history. Mr. Rentoul has spoken of Racine and Moliere, and it might be well if the members of this society would occasionally give a scene from these classical works, for not only would they be of dramatic value, but the doing so would tend to a practical study of the French language, which even in these days of compulsory Greek is recognised to be an important factor in life. And what we study for pleasure makes a more lasting impression than what we study by pain. To show you how advisable it is that great attention should be given to the study of Greek, I wanted to present Œdipus Rex on my stage. I went to the Lord Chamberlain to ask his permission. "No," he replied, "certainly not." "But," I answered, "they do it at Oxford." "Yes," said he, "but they do it in Greek, and nobody understands it. You do it in Greek, and I will give you my permission." That was compulsory Greek, with a vengeance. But the merit of Shakespeare is that he preserves the strength of the English language. The charm of Shakespeare's English, the English of John Bunyan, the English of the Bible, is that it is strong, and broad, and virile. Its stately march had not then fallen into the mincing step of finicking gentility. The good form of the moment even among public men is to be careless and slipshod, and somewhat refined. Your society will do good work if it teaches people to speak with that strength which Shakespearean English demands. The greatest curse of the age is what I may term "refainment," as distinguished from refinement. And just as instinct is greater than knowledge, just as humour is greater than wit, just as intelligence is greater than intellect, so it seems to me, for the work of life, native vigour is greater than cultivated refinement. I would not be so silly or so impertinent as to belittle the culture of the mind, but I do venture to deprecate as dangerous the narrowing influence of that cult of "refainment" which is stifling to the elemental, the individual in man; and I have noticed in all the great men I have met in my life that they have been distinguished by simplicity and a detachment from the limitations imposed by what is for the moment thought to be good form. The man who affectedly talks about woe must, I imagine, find it difficult to realise what woe really is. The open vowel is essential to healthy English. Nobody can listen to the average pulpit or platform utterance without wishing that the speakers had had an early training in vigorous speech, and not in those accents which, according to the fashion of the day, are supposed to be gentlemanly or lady-like. This vigour the study of Shakespeare gives. And here I may say a word touching my lord Hamlet. I am fully aware that in presenting perhaps the greatest of all Shakespeare's plays with studious simplicity, as I here gave it to-day, I may seem to have outraged all the traditions of His Majesty's Theatre. But for any shortcomings which you felt, I must ask you to blame not me, but Sir Edward Clarke, at whose suggestion I ventured upon this original treatment. Any vote of censure which you may in your wisdom pass upon that presentation will, I trust, be connected with the distinguished name I have just mentioned. But, jesting apart, I consider myself under a debt of gratitude to your honoured guest and my learned friend for his suggestion, for I feel that Shakespeare's masterpiece loses nothing in being presented in such a way as to show the soul of that great creation unshadowed and unhindered by the accessories of the stage, for Hamlet is essentially a work of the imagination, and, indeed, the less the scenic treatment obtrudes itself on the retina of the physical eye, the more freedom is given to that other eye of the mind. Illusion is the very soul of the theatre; everything that tends to the creation of illusion is of necessity excusable. For my part, I can sympathise with the two extremes—either with that simple treatment, that sketch which leaves the imagination free to furnish the stage with its trappings, or I can sympathise with that other treatment, which gives to the spectator a finished picture of life, a picture so artistically complete that we do not dwell on the detail, but see it as a finished and satisfying whole. Many of Shakespeare's plays, notably such plays as A Midsummer Night's Dream and The Tempest, seem to me absolutely to demand elaborate treatment; indeed, their meaning cannot be fully brought home to an audience without the adjuncts of scenery, of costume and of atmosphere. It would be far better, indeed, to read them only in the study than to witness them amid the disturbing influences of a half-hearted attempt at stage illusion." If Shakespeare did not mount his plays in the same way as Charles Kean and Macready did, and Henry Irving and others do to-day, it was not because he would not, but because he could not, as he himself lamented. What I mean is, I cannot sympathise with any compromise between the two methods. It must be either the sketch or the finished picture; compromise, so dear to the British heart, is almost always a failure, at least, in the affairs of art. The man who drives in the middle of the road is apt to get caught in the traffic. Remember, too, that the theatre is for the multitude, and it is better to make Shakespeare clear and to play him to full houses than to make him obscure to empty ones. No. Compromise seems to be an over-rated element in the body politic. But I am wandering from the broad road of my speech into the by-ways of philosophic speculation. I will retrace my steps, and walk straight to my goal, and my goal is gratitude—gratitude for the honour you have done me to-day in asking me to sit down among you, the young spirits, and, I hope, the master-spirits of the coming age. I can wish you no better wish than that you should preserve that youthful spirit. To be young in heart, young in enthusiasm, young in scorn of worldliness—that is the secret of life. I drink to the younger generation and to the young Olympian Club, and I thank you again for the unforgettable privilege you have conferred on me to-night.

ELLEN TERRY AND THE GALLERYITES.

Miss Ellen Terry was the guest of the Gallery First Nighters' Club at Frascati's on Sunday evening, when the members extended hospitality to a number of actors and actresses, among whom were Mr. Lewis Waller, Mr. Oscar Asche, Mr. and Mrs. James Welch, Miss Sydney Fairbrother, Miss Grace Lane, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Irving, Mr. Farren Soutar, and Miss Edith Craig.

The loyal toasts having been honoured, the President, Mr. T. Brandon, who occupied the chair, in proposing Miss Terry's health, delivered a happy eulogy of her genius, and in reply the eminent actress, who was received with enthusiastic cheers, said:

Mr. Brandon and all Gallery First Nighters,—You who have perhaps seen me on the first night of a piece may have noticed that I am sometimes a little nervous, so I am sure you will sympathise with me when I tell you that no first night ever frightened me so much as a speech! If only you will not look upon it as a speech, but as an expression of my pleasure at meeting you all on the other side of the footlights, I should feel more at home in my part. I think, myself, that all speeches are a mistake unless they are written by Shakespeare; and my first idea, when it occurred to me that I ought to say something to you in return for all the kind and charming things that you would be sure to say about me, was that I would say it in Shakespeare's words. I still think a very good speech on any subject could be made by welding together quotations from different plays; but I tried, and found I was not the right person to do it! I was immediately discouraged, because on looking up "gallery" in my concordance I could find only two references to it in Shakespeare, and they didn't refer to the gallery of a theatre, but to the gallery of a house. One was, "Avoid the gallery!"—but please don't think Shakespeare would have said that of you. Had there been a gallery in the theatre in his day, I'm certain I should have found my concordance of more use. Shakespeare was not above writing for the playgoers who then sat on the ground, and answered more or less to our gallery. Had he written only for the Elizabethan stall public, his plays might have been different—how much more narrow their appeal, how much more precarious their hold upon our stage! The people themselves were Shakespeare's stage, and are so still. He knew how to amuse the groundlings, as he knew how to thrill them with pity and with terror. There is hardly a scene in Shakespeare which, if well acted, will not reach the gallery as easily as it reaches the stalls. Of some modern plays and some modern acting this cannot be said; but I doubt if the gallery loses as much as people who never see a play from the gallery assume. The best things "get there." I don't wonder at all that the intelligent playgoer prefers to see a play from the pit or gallery, even when, as sometimes happens, he could, if he chose, sit in the seats of the mighty diners-out. In the gallery and pit at the dear old Lyceum there used to be seen the faces of many men who had won, or were about to win, distinction in the world—the Burne-Joneses; the Justin McCarthys; Alfred Gilbert, the great sculptor; the late Oscar Wilde; the poet O'Shaughnessy; Walter Sickert, who founded the new English Art Club; the Forbes-Robertsons—all these and many such were gallery or pit enthusiasts at one time or another. On a first night I think all players feel that those who sit in the pit and gallery are their real audience. They have taken great trouble to get there; they come inspired by a true interest or a true enthusiasm; without you we should find a first night very dull. As this has not been a speech, you will not expect a peroration. Let me just say again that I am delighted to meet you all here to-night, and that I thank you for all the kind things you have said as much as for the warm and friendly greetings you have given me in the past when we have met in the theatre.

MISS JESSIE MORRISON'S CONCERT.

At Messrs. Brinsmeads' Galleries, Wigmore-street, on Saturday last, Miss Jessie Morrison gave a concert which was largely attended. The lady herself was most successful in Gounod's "Ave Maria," the obbligato for violin being charmingly played by Mr. Colnaur. Another of her successes was "If no one marries me." Some selections were given from an opera, The Archers, by Mr. Lansdowne Cottell, the first item being a song, "The Breezes," by Miss Edie Wynne. Mr. Clay Thomas also sang "Waiting for my love" from the same work, accompanied by the composer, who in the course of the evening rendered similar useful service for other performers. Mr. Carl Webb and Mr. Ernest Hoffstein were also to be credited with efficient assistance in the same department. Miss Jessie Morrison again won considerable applause in a song, "When Twilight Comes," by Stellar, Mr. Colnaur playing the violin obbligato skilfully. Other violin solos of great merit have to be referred to. Master Leopold Lustig was heard in a solo of Sarasate, executed with really remarkable talent, and Miss Maud Bryson, from the Royal College of Music, played with great delicacy and refinement a reverie of Dancla, of no great merit in itself, but rendered interesting by the talent of the player. Madame Lilith was successful in Arditi's "Il Bacio," and in Mr. Squire's genial song, "Three for Jacks," Mr. Clay Thomas was deservedly applauded. He has an excellent baritone voice, and we expect he will be heard of in the future. Miss Lilian Ingram sang Cowen's song, "The Swallows" with good expression. Mr. Eaton King sang "Patria" by Tito Mattei. "Under the Deodar," by Monckton, was rendered with much grace by Miss Florence Macphail, who was warmly applauded, and Miss Florence Julian was favourably greeted in "Crocuses upon the Green." The vocalists named were set down for other songs, and Master Leopold Lustig, the youthful violinist, displayed his skill in the Seventh Concerto of De Beriot, a brilliant composer for the violin who appears to have lost favour at the present day. The command of difficult passages by so youthful a performer was worthy of special commendation.

"The Era" can be obtained at any of Smith and Sons' bookstalls throughout the provinces.

We regret to hear that the father of Mendel, the blind pianist, died on Wednesday at his residence at Balham. The son is overwhelmed with grief, as the deceased gentleman acted as his cicerone, and did much to advance his career as a musical entertainer. The funeral takes place on Monday.

Presentation.—Mr. Fred Wood, of City Varieties, Leeds, presented Miss Vulcana with handsome gold and enamel medal, and with her name beautifully engraved thereon, in appreciation of her talents as an athlete and an artiste.

Signor Garcia, who attained his hundredth year on Friday, is not the only eminent musician who owes his being to the month of March. The celebrated violinist Sarasate was sixty-one on the 10th, and two days later Sir August Manns reached his eighty-first year. It was to Queen Isabella II. of Spain that Sarasate owed much of his musical education, while Manns prosecuted his earlier studies through the liberality of the burghers of his native city, to whom his gifts were apparent.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

NEW YORK, MARCH 1.—Miss Grace George began an engagement at the Savoy Theatre on the 21st ult., under the management of her husband, Mr. William A. Brady, appearing in a new play, called Abigail, a comedy of New York life, in four acts, by "Kellett Chalmers," this being the nom de plume used by Mr. Harrie K. Chambers, a brother of Mr. C. Haddon Chambers, the well-known dramatist. Abigail is said to be the first play from this author's pen that has seen the light, and if this be so he has certainly received every encouragement, both from the press and the public, to write another one. Abigail Stokes is a prim New England girl, who comes to New York to earn her living, and "locates" in Mrs. Mirabel's boarding house, the inmates of which are of the class known as Bohemian. Two of her fellow-lodgers are Sylvia McCann, an artist, and Theodora Robbins, a model. These young ladies play the piano on Sunday, and shock the straitlaced Abigail by their approval of a low-cut gown which Abigail's rich aunt has sent her. The aunt lives in the fashionable quarter, and, being afraid that some of her society friends may hear that she has a niece who works for her living, has asked Abigail to pay her a long visit, and sent her a suitable gown to wear. But Abigail declines the invitation, and gives the gown to Theodora, who has already inspected it on the sly, and offered to buy it at half-price. Miss Robbins and her friend, Miss McCann, initiate the unsophisticated Abigail into the mysteries of cooking a meal over the gas jet, this bit of boarding-house ingenuity being practised at the imminent risk of being discovered in the act and turned out of the house by an irate landlady, who has a good heart, but is strong on economy and propriety. Abigail finds herself in an unaccustomed atmosphere, but she gets used to it, and by-and-by she meets a young engineer named John Kent, and falls in love with him. Kent is infatuated with Theodora, and every day he sends her violets. But the friendly Sylvia places them on Abigail's dressing-table to remind her of the country, being all unconscious of the fact that concealed in one of the bunches is a tiny note bearing the magic legend, "I love you." Abigail discovers the missive, and in an ecstasy of delight confesses her love for Kent, who, after an agony of perplexity, tells her the brutal truth, and in the very act of telling it, discovers that Abigail is the one he really loves. He is on the point of saying so, when he learns that she has inherited a fortune, and believing that if he speaks now he will be looked upon as a fortune hunter, he takes a trip to South America. In the last act Abigail is staying at the house of her fashionable aunt, who has taken her up now that she is an heiress, and would like to see her married to the Duke of Gadsbrook. But Abigail gives society the go-by and visits the tenements, dispensing charity. She dismisses the Duke, and flies to the telephone to "ring up" John Kent at his hotel as soon as she hears that he has returned from South America. Then there is a delicious bit of love-making over the wire, and all ends happily, for Abigail takes care that there is no misunderstanding this time. "Afraid of being called a fortune hunter!" she cries. "That's a man's view. A woman doesn't care what they call her, as long as she gets the man she loves." Abigail is a rôle that is well suited to Miss George's personality. She depicted the frankness and honesty of a maiden unspoilt by the artificialities of city life in a delightful manner, and was generously applauded. Miss Louise Closser, as the artist, Theodora Robbins, contributed a clever characterisation, and Miss Selene Johnson gave a capital impersonation of the vapid and self-centred model, Sylvia McCann. Mr. Conway Tearle played John Kent in manly fashion, and Mr. Joseph Coyne gave a preposterous but amusing representation of the Duke of Gadsbrook. Mr. Chambers is to write a comedy for Mr. Coyne, who is always very funny when he represents an Englishman of the "silly ass" type. Next season he will "star" under Mr. Brady's management in the new piece, the title of which is to be A Duke at Large.

"WHO GOES THERE?" a farce in three acts, by H. A. Du Souchet, author of My Friend from India and The Man from Mexico, has made a hit at the Princess Theatre. The plot hinges on the efforts of Lieutenant George Washington Newman, familiarly known as "Toppy," to keep his brother officers out of trouble. He undertakes to look after their sweethearts when they run away from home to marry, and does so by passing off each one in turn as his wife. He also has to pose as Miss Samantha Lane, from Biddeford, Maine, and introduces the two young women as his nieces. On the trail of the elopers come an indignant father, and an equally angry guardian, while a rural constable and a gawky country girl of the Sis Hopkins variety also figure in the bewildering proceedings. At one time there are five rooms filled with persons who must not meet other persons in the house, and there is one man tucked away in the sofa. But the boarding-house where all this happens has more than the usual number of doors, and a French window, so the characters dodge each other successfully. Through posing as a "much married man" Toppy gets into trouble with his fiancée, but he satisfies her that he is still unattached, and the piece ends with the preparations for a triple wedding. Mr. Walter Perkins was very funny indeed as the bashful, blundering Toppy. Miss Gertrude Swiggett gave a clever impersonation of the country girl, and Mr. Wallace Hopper was very amusing as the constable.

MRS. FISKE has in reserve plays by Mr. J. Hartley Manners, the late Charles Coghlan, and other dramatists, but Leah Kleschna will undoubtedly occupy the stage of the Manhattan Theatre till the end of the season. Mr. McLellan's play has exceptional merit, and the chief parts in it are splendidly acted by Mrs. Fiske, Mr. Charles Cartwright, Mr. George Arliss, Mr. John Mason, and Mr. William Mack.

MR. WILLIAM GILLETTE will appear in a revival of Sherlock Holmes, at the Empire Theatre, on March 13, and will remain there for several weeks. Miss Hilda Spong will be seen as Madge Larrabee.

THE career of The Forty Thieves in Birmingham was brought to a close on Saturday, when a crowded audience was present at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, where a run of eleven weeks had been attained by the successful annual. Bouquets were bestowed on the leading artistes, and Mr. Graham heartily thanked his friends in front and those behind the footlights for the cordial way in which they had supported him. In the intervals Mr. Wilkie Bard conducted a sale of dolls for a charity, securing fancy prices for some dainty toys made by the lady artistes.

THE theatrical ball promoted by the pantomime artistes of the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, which took place on the 10th inst., proved very successful, Mr. Harry Randall and others journeying specially from London to be present.

SORE THROAT OR HOARSENESS
CURED IN A FEW HOURS.

Advice from Sir Morell Mackenzie, M.D., the world-famed Throat Specialist: "You cannot do better than gargle with 'Condy.'"

Dr. Walford Harris, in his book, "The Throat and its Treatment," says, "I have found the 'Condy' and cold water gargle excellent."

Condy's Remedial Fluid, sold by Chemists at 1/1½.

A Book containing Instructions by Eminent English Physicians, for the Treatment and Cure of Throat Ailments, is attached to every bottle.

Insist on having "Condy's." All substitutes are inferior in composition and in strength. [ADVT.]

THE fourth annual masquerade and fancy dress ball of the orchestra of the Theatre Royal, Dover, held at the local Town Hall, on the 9th inst., was very successful. There was a large attendance, and the costumes worn were very effective, many novelties in the way of fancy dress being displayed. Mr. J. D. Hunter's Aladdin company mustered in full force, and a number of speciality dances, including a golden shower waltz, were pleasing alike to dancers and spectators. The music was supplied by the theatre orchestra, under the conductorship of Mr. J. Cartmell.

1905—THE ERA ANNUAL—1905
The Most Complete
DRAMATIC DICTIONARY OF DATES
and
THEATRICAL TREASURY of KNOWLEDGE
ever brought before the Public.
Will also be found to be the most Interesting Annual of the year.
Office, "THE ERA" BUILDINGS.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1905.
Once again "The Era" Almanack makes a welcome reappearance early in the New Year, and recounts all that has happened in the theatrical world during the past twelve months. The register of plays produced in 1904 at the principal theatres of London, Paris, and Berlin is as valuable a feature in this most conscientiously kept record as ever, and though works of great importance are seldom given for the first time in the provinces, the information supplied concerning these productions is useful to playwrights when considering the vexed question of title. To the 1905 annual Sir Henry Irving contributes an amusing reminiscence of the days in which Shakespearean productions were certainly not overloaded with superfluous detail, and Sydney Grundy gives a graphic account of the time when he was a critic. It is further embellished by a number of photographs of popular players, together with their autographs, and a specimen of their literary attainments, which are often considerable. A melancholy interest attaches to the portraits of the dramatic artists who have passed from the scene during 1904; a goodly company, headed by that large-hearted actor-manager, Wilson Barrett. On beholding a work somewhat similar to "The Era" Almanack, the late Mr. Gladstone remarked that he was surprised to find that so many people were professionally engaged in the theatre; and if one of our leading actors were to discover how many people are professionally engaged in politics he would, no doubt, be equally astonished.—Court Journal, Jan. 21, 1905.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1905.
"The Era" Annual, 1905, is with us once again, and is very welcome. The usual stock features which make this Annual so valuable for reference have been compiled with the usual care, and the "incidentals" will favourably bear comparison with those of any former issue. They range from "Dundee Reminiscences," by Sir Henry Irving, to an endeavour to lay the "Foundations of a National Drama," by Mr. Henry Arthur Jones.—Referee, Jan. 15, 1905.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1905.
"The Era" Almanack and Annual for 1905, conducted by Mr. Edward Ledger, is the vade mecum of the dramatic and music-hall profession, containing as it does all an artiste desires to know in connection with the stage. A feature of the publication are the stories of adventure told by well-known artistes like Sir Henry Irving, George Alexander, Harry Pleon, John Le Hay, Constance Moxon, Walter Passmore, Fanny Wentworth, and John Lawson. Mr. Henry Arthur Jones discourses wisely on the "Foundations of a National Drama." The Annual is one that will interest and amuse not only the "professional," but the general public.—

THE ERA
SATURDAY, MARCH 18, 1905.

THE RUN ON "HAMLET."

By one of those curious coincidences which so often occur in theatrical history, quite a number of eminent actors seem to be struck just now with the idea that Hamlet is a fine play. The result is a list of forthcoming revivals of SHAKESPEARE'S tragedy, which are certain to be, in their different ways, interesting. Mr. BEERBOHM TREE, who presented the drama on Monday at Oxford, without scenery, will give one of his magnificent productions of it at His Majesty's in a week or so. At the beginning of April, Mr. OTHO STUART is going to revive the piece at the ADELPHI, with Mr. H. B. IRVING and Miss LILY BRAYTON as Hamlet and Ophelia; and Mr. MARTIN HARVEY, who has already essayed the rôle in the country, will appear as the melancholy Dane at the Lyric on May 17th next.

The popularity of Hamlet needs no explanation, except to those whose peculiarities make it useless to argue with them. As the late F. A. MARSHALL observed respecting the play, "for ordinary people, who have not emasculated their minds and passions, Hamlet has always had a strong interest. The extraordinary popularity of the piece as an acting play is full of instruction to two classes of persons; first, to those who are never tired of declaring that the taste of the present day necessitates a total separation between literature and the drama; secondly, to those who are always sneering, feebly and dyspeptically, at the actor's art—persons ravenously jealous of the applause which the actor receives, but which the public ungenerously withholds from them in any of their multifarious capacities.

"These latter may lay to heart the undoubted fact that Hamlet, the most poetic in some respects of any of SHAKESPEARE'S plays, could not have been written by anyone but a practised actor, familiar with the stage and all its ways; also this fact, scarcely less disputable, that all the reams of criticism which have been written on the character of Hamlet have not been able to bring home to the minds of men the real meaning of the character so clearly as a single performance of some great actor."

We frequently hear of entertainments on "floating palaces"; but one is hardly prepared to learn that one of the earliest and most interesting records of the performance of Hamlet is in the log-book of the ship "Dragon," on board of which, in 1607, the captain, whose name was not CUTTLE, but KEELING, had the "tragedie of Hamlett" performed to keep his crew from "idlenes and unlawfull games; or sleepe." PEPYS, who sometimes went very wrong indeed in his estimates of SHAKESPEAREAN productions, was delighted with BETTERTON'S Hamlet, and thought he "did the Prince's part beyond imagination." BETTERTON had the advantage of being coached in the rôle by Sir WILLIAM DAVENANT, who, according to DOWNES, got his "business" from a Mr. TAYLOR, of the Blackfriars' Company, who had been "rehearsed" by "the author, Mr. SHAKESPEARE." BETTERTON, by the way, acted Hamlet when he was over seventy. But, then, BETTERTON'S adherence to his profession was heroic—and fatal. Did he not plunge a gouty foot into cold water to enable him to get into a slipper and appear as Melantius in The Maid's Tragedy, thus driving the disease to his head, so that he was carried from the theatre to die? GEORGE III. complained of GARRICK that "he never could stand still—he was a great fidget"; and, somehow, one fancies that his Hamlet was not one of his very best parts. Both CHARLES LAMB and CHARLES MATHEWS liked JOHN PHILIP KEMBLE'S Hamlet immensely; what pleased them most about it being the ease with which the actor "assumed the relaxing levities" of the part. RICHARD SHARP, however, wrote that KEMBLE was, now and then, "as deliberate in his delivery as if he had been reading prayers, and was waiting for the responses"; and Sir WALTER SCOTT said the actor only expressed "the natural fixed melancholy" of the rôle. YOUNG was another exponent of the "mournful beauty" of the personage. EDMUND KEAN'S Hamlet was probably too unconventional and actual for the lovers of the pomp and ceremony of the earlier readings; and CHARLES FECHTER went to the extreme of freedom, and produced a very effectively theatrical performance, without the least dignity or distinction.

The popularity of the part of Hamlet with actors consists in the fact that it is a character into which it is possible to read a great many different meanings. It is a mirror in which the artist and the essayist reflect their own instincts. One of the most curious theories respecting the character of Hamlet was set forth in the Popular Science Monthly for May, 1880. The article was entitled "The Impediment of the Adipose"; and, according to the writer, the tragedy of the Prince's career might be summed up in the passage, "He's fat and scant of breath." By reason of these defects, it was urged, Hamlet lacked the energising temperament which should have fitted him for practical life. His procrastination was caused by the weight of "too, too solid flesh." His obesity, it was argued, was indicated in the speech of Ophelia:

> He raised a sigh, so piteous and profound,
> As it did seem to shatter all his bulk.

The fatal fatness of Hamlet is suggested, so said the author of the article, in the Queen's speeches: "Here, Hamlet, take my napkin, rub thy brows"; and "Come, let me wipe thy face." Can we not, says the originator of the Adipose Theory, as we read these lines, see the perspiration trickling down the broad, heavy cheeks? It was surely from experience that Hamlet spoke of "grunting and sweating" under the cares of life. Then, again, it is contended in the article how clearly is fatty degeneration indicated in the Prince's remark to Horatio: "Thou wouldst not think how ill all's here about my heart." The writer concludes:—"The fine spirit and the clear insight of the Prince of Denmark are hopelessly imprisoned in walls of adipose." In the days of pompous dignity, Hamlet became almost funereal in his gloom. He wore a customary suit of solemn black, he carried a skull as a plaything, and he habitually turned up his eyes and drew down the corners of his mouth. The ideal "heavy" Hamlet of that day reminds one of an undertaker's funeral, with velvet-robed stallions and nodding black ostrich-feathers. He was labelled "melancholy" in large letters; he had the typical Byronic sadness. We have, happily, "changed all that," and our modern Hamlets, whatever else they are, are human and comparatively cheerful. Hamlet is an individual of whom everything can be affirmed and everything denied. He is undoubtedly troubled with a trick of "thinking too precisely upon the event"; but, on the other hand, he is capable of leading a boarding party à la NELSON. He is nothing if not philosophic; but he is ambitious, proud, and revengeful—qualities quite unworthy of a philosopher. At one time he acts and talks with absolute sanity; at another he appears to be more than half the madman he is feigning to be. There have been many theories as to the real character of Hamlet, but none of them account for the affection which is universally felt for the Prince. By way of contributing to the general bewilderment, we add our explanation. We take it that the great charm of Hamlet is the inconsistency and imperfection of his character. He acts very much in the moody, uncertain, "impulse-of-the-moment" manner, in which nine men out of every ten conduct their lives. Most of SHAKESPEARE'S characters are either complete or unimportant. Hamlet is all-important, but not consistent—not "all of a piece." He is pitiably human; and that is, perhaps, the chief reason why he is beloved, not only by Horatio and Ophelia in the play, but by the pit, boxes, dress circle, and gallery in the playhouse.

"THE THREE DAUGHTERS OF M. DUPONT."

Comedy, in Four Acts, by Brieux, translated by St. John Hankin; produced at the National Sporting Club, on Monday, March 13.

Mme. Dupont	Miss KATE BISHOP
Courthezon	Mr. LEON M. LION
Caroline	Miss ITALIA CONTI
Julie	Miss ETHEL IRVING
M. Dupont	Mr. O. B. CLARENCE
Justine	Miss LOIS CRAMPTON
M. Mairaut	Mr. ARTHUR CHESNEY
Mme. Mairaut	Miss AGNES THOMAS
Antonin Mairaut	Mr. CHARLES V. FRANCE
Lignol	Mr. LEWIS CASSON
M. Pouchelet	Mr. G. M. GRAHAM
Mme. Pouchelet	Miss DORA BARTON
Françoise	Miss FLORENCE ADALE
Angèle	Miss GERTRUDE BURNETT

Of the power—the distressing, depressing, but undeniable power—of Mr. Brieux's domestic drama, which, in the form of a translation by St. John Hankin, was presented, under the auspices of the Stage Society, at the National Sporting Club, on Monday last, there can be no doubt whatever. Its strength is simply overwhelming. It takes hold of us by the throat with an iron grip about the beginning of the third act, and leaves us at the end of the fourth, limp, melancholy, and despairing. Its qualities render it admirably suited to production by the Stage Society, and decidedly unfitted for performance under the customary conditions. Nor is it only the subject matter which is strong. The piece is arranged in almost conventionally effective manner, with its great scene just in the right place, and its dénouement—a really dreadful and desolating dénouement—in the last. The Three Daughters of M. Dupont is a monument of pessimism and protest.

The doctrine preached by M. Brieux is that, as things go, a woman is bound to be a victim. Does she kick over the domestic traces, and take to fast life? Then she undergoes unutterable ignominy. Does she remain single, and earn her own living? Then, besides the slights which she has to endure when disposing of her labours at a low price, she is haunted by a sense of incompleteness and failure. And, if, in the desire to obtain a husband, she marries a man she does not love, she first discovers that it is utterly impossible to live with him; but, eventually, is induced, by comparing her fate with that of her suffering sisters who have adopted the other expedients of womanhood, to "make the best of a bad business," because even a loathsome marriage is better than a life of shame or a life of labour.

The mercenary marriage and the dot are severely satirised in the earlier acts of the play. M. Dupont has three daughters. One, Angèle, has "committed an indiscretion," and her father has promptly turned her out of his house. Another, Caroline, earns her living by painting on china; and, being a plain and unattractive girl, wastes her affections in a hopeless passion for an inventor who is living with a lady by whom he has two children. The third, Julie, is a girl of spirit and intelligence; and she has an equally bad time of it. She is sought in marriage, in the usual business-like French way, by young M. Antonin Mairaut, the son of a mean, grasping mother, who rules her little husband with a rod of iron. Julie is schooled by her parents in the methods of petty deception by which a husband may be "caught"; and, when she has been but five months married, she discovers that she is utterly miserable. Antonin is mean, tyrannical, and a ferocious egotist. Julie's detestation for him is worked up to a violent climax in the third act. One of Antonin's petty annoyances is ordering Julie, by way of assisting the success of his bank, to go to Mass, which she does not believe in There is a terrific "row" between the pair. Without any grossness of language, marital matters are discussed with absolute freedom; and the exact position of a wife who hates her husband, yet cohabits with him, is described with burning indignation. In the old times, says Julie, a wife was expected to be the housewife, and the mistress was kept separate. Now, a man expects the woman he marries to be a housewife and a mistress in one. The loathly Antonin, seeing the breach is growing too wide for his interests, tries cajolery, confesses his own defects, and taunts Julie with the deceptions she practised upon him before marriage. He succeeds in calming her to a certain extent; but her wrath blazes up again when he tells her that he has decided that they shall have no family. It was the hope of children, she cries, which chiefly made her get married. Never again, after this, can we live together as husband and wife." "We shall see," he says; and, in a fury, he seizes her and forces her backwards. We tremble for the proprieties; but he finally flings her on the ground, and rushes out.

In the last act Julie is at home, determined never to return to her husband. But Caroline and Angèle draw such painful pictures of what their sufferings have been in their respective careers that Julie is induced to reconsider her resolve. Antonin comes in with a formal apology, which the wife hopelessly accepts. "There, you see," says M. Dupont, "how well one gets on if one only does as everyone else does!" "Yes," says Julie, pensively, "but I wanted to do a little better."

There was a curious felicity in the way in which the piece was cast. Miss Ethel Irving was thrillingly real as Julie. The fact that, at the climax in the third act, she was completely carried away by her feelings only gave greater truth to her demonstrations; for the ultra-naturalness of the dialogue did not demand anything like conventional restraint. Miss Kate Bishop, as the amiable and obedient Madame Dupont, acted with her usual experienced ease, and played the part with consummate confidence and truth. Mr. Leon M. Lion gave a graphic little character sketch as the inventor, Courthezon; and Miss Italia Conti did not shrink, in the cause of art, from indicating the weakness, plainness, and general "dowdiness" of Caroline. Mr. O. B. Clarence's M. Dupont had all the necessary dry drollery and acid humour, and his performance was scathingly satirical. The exact type of the Duponts' servant was notably suggested by the demeanour of Miss Lois Crampton; and Mr. Arthur Chesney, as the hen-pecked Monsieur Mairaut, delivered his heroic little outburst in the last act with telling spirit and effect. Mr. Charles V. France was absolutely convincing as Antonin Mairaut, not over-doing the detestability of the mean bully, but giving a portraiture all the more impressive and incisive because of its moderation. Mr. Lewis Casson contributed a neat performance as Lignol; and the rôles of Mr. and Mrs. Pouchelet had excellent exponents in Mr. G. M. Graham and Miss Dora Barton. Miss Florence Adale was a smart servant; and Miss Gertrude Burnett spoke with terrible pathos the lines referring to Angèle's shameful sufferings. Very fortunately chosen was Miss Agnes Thomas, who, made up marvellously, acted with keen incisiveness as Madame Mairaut. If the production of The Three Daughters of M. Dupont has done nothing else, it has revealed the existence of an amount of hitherto hidden talent which was hardly suspected by the play-going public. For the piece to have a lasting effect upon the spectator, however, he must accept the idea which we have sketched at the commencement of this critique; and that is just what the majority of persons will decline to do. The three daughters of M. Dupont are not exceptional in their circumstances; but three young Englishwomen similarly tried would probably find another way out of their troubles than a cowardly and feeble acceptance of a pessimistic theory.

A GRUESOME GERMAN PIECE.

"SANNA."

Play, in Five Acts, by Hermann Bahr, produced at the Kleines, Berlin, March 10, 1905.

Der Statthalter	Herr NOLLET
Der General	Herr SAUERMANN
Furnian	Herr PAGAY
Frost	Herr VON WINTERSTEIN
Karoline	Fraulein WANGEL
Luise	Fraulein DURIEUX
Sanna	Fraulein HOFLICH
Hansi	Frau EYSOLDT
Nilius	Herr LICHO
Hascher	Herr EKERT
Fräulein Von Crippa	Fraulein KELLER
Die Baronin	Fraulein BRUCK
Dame	Fraulein WISMAR
Cenz	Fraulein HUCH
Ordner	Herr VON JACOBY
Pianist	Herr MANN
Alte Dame	Fraulein BLAU
Tobias	Herr HERZFELD
Zingerl	Herr STEINRUCK

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

Herr Bahr is an Austrian, and one of the most esteemed authors and dramatists in Vienna. His plots are usually of more than common interest, his satirical wit is one of his best features, while his characters are for the most part true to life, or, at any rate, appear to be so. Unfortunately, to appease the ever-continuous cry for something new and to tickle the jaded palates of the satiated, Herr Bahr has this time overshot the mark, and has given us a play which is gloomy and frequently revolting. We cannot deny the talents employed, neither can we help wishing they had been employed to better purpose. The plot is simple enough; there is certainly not sufficient action for five lengthy acts, and the result is very frequently boredom. Herr Trost is a Civil Service clerk, who, with a wife and three daughters dependent on him, has the greatest difficulty in making both ends meet and keeping up a respectable appearance before the world. Consequently a wealthy uncle, Hofrath Furnian, who lives with them, is allowed to have matters all his own way, and a very bad way it is. Furnian is an old sinner of eighty, partly cynical, partly imbecile, wholly reprobate, who tyrannises over the entire family, and makes nocturnal visits to Hansi, his youngest niece, a forward minx of sixteen. The eldest girl, Luise, has lost her lover through the tyrant's machinations, and has become melancholy in consequence. She is a pathetic figure, who is given to sitting for hours at the piano, playing the same melody. It is now Sanna, the second girl's, turn for martyrdom. Sanna is engaged to an officer, a young lieutenant with limited means, whom she loves devotedly. Austrian and German officers are not permitted to marry until they are in possession of a certain income, and it would be an easy thing for Furnian—whose natural heirs the Trosts are—to advance his niece the small sum necessary. He declines; it is his pleasure to feel his power, and Sanna snaps her fingers at him. The girl has full confidence in Erwin, her lover, and believes he will find some means to wed her. When Erwin, too, fails her, and the engagement cannot take place, she becomes desperate, and takes her life by throwing herself from the third-floor window. The last act, which shows us the Trost family mourning over Sanna's dead body, is the best. The mother, who, although she loves her children dearly, and is in despair at the terrible catastrophe, does not lose sight of the honour done to them by the arrival of his Excellency the Statthalter to condole; indeed, her first thought was, on seeing her dead child, the consciousness of the "disgrace" in the eyes of the world. The hypocritical Furnian comes in to pray by the corpse, and the silent Luise finds voice to fling a reproach at the code of morals in which she and her sisters have been brought up. A horrible figure is that of Schubrath Zingerl, an elderly, well-to-do admirer of Sanna's, who finds unnatural pleasure in gazing at the dying and the dead. Hansi, the cheeky, good-hearted, but wanton child abovementioned, is the only character which brings anything like life into the morbid play, and the part was admirably acted by Frau Eysoldt. The cast was good throughout—too good for a piece of this unhealthy type. The reception was not very cordial, hisses being freely mixed with the applause, and only the good acting and mounting prevented a failure.

DEATH OF MRS. CARSWELL.

We regret to record the death of Mrs. Carswell, the mother of Mrs. Greenwood, of Sheffield, and of Mrs. J. A. Winstanley, the wife of Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley, proprietor of the Royal Opera House and sole lessee of the Theatre Royal, Leicester, who passed away at the age of sixty-eight at her residence in Leicester on Wednesday, the 7th inst. The interment took place on Saturday last at Burngreave Cemetery, Sheffield. The staffs of the Royal Opera House and Theatre Royal assembled at the Great Central Station at Leicester to show a last tribute of respect to the deceased lady, who had greatly endeared herself to all with whom she came in contact. At the station a mortuary van and another compartment, filled with wreaths, were reserved, with saloons attached, which conveyed the mourners to Sheffield, and at Burngreave Cemetery the service was conducted by the Rev. L. D. Spencer, of Preston (nephew of Lieutenant-Colonel Winstanley), assisted by the Rev. Mr. Lenwood, of Sheffield. The grave was beautifully lined with violet and white draperies, and the arrangements for the obsequies were carried out under the direction of Mr. G. M. Slater, Colonel Winstanley's general-manager. Wreaths were received from the following:—Large broken column of violets, lilac, and orchids from "Her grandson, whom she loved so dearly, her disconsolate Willie," W. Monteith Winstanley; white cross of lilies and orchids, "Jack's last tribute to a good woman; heartfelt sympathy and love," from Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley; large harp, with broken string, composed of lilac, lilies of the valley, and orchids, "To one of the best and dearest of mothers, from her heart-broken daughter Annie," from Mrs. J. A. Winstanley; cross of roses and silver beech, "For Auld Lang Syne and loving friendship," from Mrs. L. Burton; large harp of red roses and white lilies, "With deep regret," from Mrs. Wortley; large harp of violets and white lilies, "In loving memory of our dear friend," from Mr. and Mrs. J. Noble; wreath of white lilies and pink roses, "A token of respect and esteem," from servants of Lieutenant-Colonel and Mrs. J. A. Winstanley; cross of white lilies, "In memory of Mrs. Carswell, with sympathy and regard, Requiescat in pace," from Mr. and Mrs. George M. Slater; wreath of white lilies and orchids, "With sincere sympathy," from Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Leigh; everlasting wreath of white lilies and roses, "In affectionate remembrance," from Mrs. W. Peak; anchor of violets and snowdrops, "In loving memory of a dear old friend," from Mr. and Mrs. Beason and family; wreath of violets and lilies, "Heartfelt sympathy," from Mr. and Mrs. Spell; large wreath of pink carnations and white lilies, "With heartfelt sympathy and in remembrance of many kind acts," from Mrs. Smith, Maud Smith, and Mrs. King; from the staff of the Royal Opera House, cushion of white snowdrops and geraniums; wreath of roses, lilies of the valley, arum lilies, and orchids, "With deepest sympathy," from Mr. J. C. Candler, the staff, and management of the Theatre Royal; anchor of white lilies and heliotrope, "With deepest sympathy; rest in peace," from Dr. Turner; and wreath of white lilies and lilac, "With sincere sympathy," from Major and Mrs. Crisp. Floral tokens were also received from Mrs. Spafford, "With deepest sympathy," Mrs. Standall, Miss De Pledge, Mrs. Greenwood (of Sheffield) and family, Mrs. Potter, and numerous other friends.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

PARIS, THURSDAY, MARCH 16.—We have had a week of rest, without premières at either theatre or music hall. Yet it cannot be said that the week has been uneventful, for there have been a few amusing incidents, passed over in silence by the Paris Press, and, for this very reason, worth recording.

INCIDENT number one was a somewhat serious dispute in a private room in a restaurant in the Boulevard des Thaliens, between a well-known owner of racehorses and an actor of renown. You need not take the trouble to chercher la femme, because she was not only present at the quarrel, but the cause of it. The clubman insulted the actor, who thereupon insisted on settling the dispute at the "point of the sword." When the actor's friends called on the clubman to make the necessary arrangements for the "meeting," the latter acquiesced to everything, but made it a condition that no account of the duel should be sent to the papers. "I am willing to fight your man," he said; "but do not want to advertise myself, and, still less, my opponent." The seconds took this answer back to their principal, whose bloodthirstiness then cooled down, and the meeting never came off.

AT the Gymnase, Le Retour de Jerusalem will disappear from the bill in a few days, to make room for M. Pierre Wolff's new piece, L'Age d'Aimer, wherein Madame Réjane will play the principal rôle. The remainder of the cast will comprise M. Felix Huguenet, M. Dumeny, M. Magnier, M. Luguet, Mdlle. Dorziat, Mdlle. Felyne, and Mdlle. Lantelme.

IT will seem strange to us, who, for so many years, have applauded Madame Réjane at the Vaudeville, to see her in a rival playhouse. At the time, however, I must again contradict the rumour that from the Gymnase Madame Réjane will return to the Vaudeville. The family trouble between M. and Madame Porel has nothing to do with the case. Even if a reconciliation was ever effected between them, M. Porel would never re-engage Madame Réjane, because, as manager, he wants to retain his liberty of action. And it is for this same reason that he preferred to pay a good round sum to Madame Suzanne Desprès to cancel her engagement with the Vaudeville. In other words, M. Porel objects to "stars." Having found them expensive and intractable, he has pinned his faith on smaller luminaries.

M. MAX MAUREY, manager of the Guignol, has accepted M. Hugues Delorme's new one-act comedy, Zénaïde ou les caprices du destin.

AT Antoine's, M. Maindron's play is now in full rehearsal, and will soon replace Les Avariés, to which the public do not take readily.

"RESURRECTION" is still holding its own at the Porte-Saint-Martin. The management having discovered that the public feel more interested in "disturbances" than in Tolstoï, supply their patrons with the necessary article. And the guileless strangers flock to that playhouse, whence they return with a wonderful story of how they heard France's ally cheered and trampled upon by hostile factions.

M. ALFRED SAIVIR, having written a play called En Mandchourie, our censor has consented to its production only on condition of the author transforming his Russians and Japs into imaginary people.

MADAME DUSE has puzzled us. In reply to the question whether she would appear here in Cavalleria Rusticana, she said that when she impersonated Santuzza the rôle was like an echo from her own life, but that now she no longer feels in touch with the play. "And the Doll's House?" was the next question. "I have done with that, too." "And Anthony and Cleopatra?" "It also passed out of my life!" In other words, Santuzza, Nora, and Cleopatra have passed out of Madame Duse's life; and we ask ourselves in astonishment the meaning of this extraordinary statement. Surely Madame Duse cannot set up the impossible theory that an actress can only interpret rôles that she has lived. This would lead rather far, inasmuch as an artist impersonating a repentant Magdalen could not personify a Hetaira unless she also altered her morals to keep pace with the change of rôles. All this is very absurd; and we were sorry that Madame Duse, on whose sound judgment we always relied, should have launched such indefensible theories.

THE revival at the Variétés of Miss Helyett has proved anything but a success. Curiously enough, although much younger in years, Audran's work appeared much older than any of the productions by Offenbach, Hervé, or Lecocq, recently resuscitated at this theatre. Moreover, it was a mistake to have entrusted the rôle of Miss Helyett to Mdlle. Eve Lavallière, who can impersonate any rôle except that of an ingénue. And Miss Helyett is above all things an ingénue. She may look ridiculous, but her mind is simple and pure; and the great charm in the piece is the sudden transformation of this young girl, whose Puritan ideas disappear under the influence of love. Mdlle. Biana Duhamel, who created the rôle, was admirable therein; whilst all Mdlle. Lavallière's efforts tended towards speaking with an American accent, efforts that were not crowned with success.

THE next novelty to be brought out at the Variétés will be MM. Feydeau and Desvallières' L'Age d'Or, for which M. Varney is writing the music. This latter piece of information will surprise nobody. For all that, I can but repeat that it is precious hard on young French musicians that M. Varney should hold a kind of monopoly for the manufacture of music for MM. Feydeau, Decourcelle, Desvallières, and other well-known dramatic authors. There is plenty of young talent here; and it would be but right to give them a chance. It will no doubt come in time, for, even the strongest organisations and syndicates cannot last for ever.

THE Comédie-Française announces for the 17th prox. the première of Le Duel, by M. Henri Lavedan, wherein the rôle of Docteur Morey will be taken by M. Duplos.

"LE FILS DE GIBOYER" was revived with great success at the Comédie-Française. Augier's fine play still keeps its hold upon the public.

THE death is announced, at the age of sixty-one, of the French actor "Père Berthelot," the jeune premier of the Théâtre Montmartre, the home of melodrama in Paris. Berthelot had played juvenile lead there for nearly forty years, and during his career had mastered some six hundred parts, involving the committal to memory of several million lines. M. Huguenet, M. Lerand, and M. Delmas have in their time worked with the old stager, who was wont to declare: "I have my own public, I have my own art, and I will never desert them. I am poor, though had I now but one sou for every line I have spoken I should be a millionaire. But I will never desert my public and my art." At a late period of his career M. Berthelot was awarded the violet ribbon of the "Academic Palms."

SIR HENRY IRVING will be the President and Mr. Beerbohm Tree the hon. treasurer of a fund which is about to be started with the object of assisting the widow of Mr. John Hollingshead. The late impresario was well known for his generosity throughout his life, and the public will now have an opportunity of offering a practical tribute to his memory. Among the committee will be Sir Squire Bancroft, Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. J. L. Toole, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. George R. Sims, Mr. George Edwardes, Mr. A. W. Pinero, Mr. Sydney Grundy, and Mr. Edward Terry.

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

There is every probability of a compromise being arrived at on the sketch question, and a conference to that end took place on Tuesday at the House of Commons between representatives of the London Entertainment Protection Society and the Theatrical Managers' Association. The interests of the theatres were watched by Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. George Edwardes, and Mr. Birch (of Manchester), and those of the music halls by Mr. Henri Gros, Mr. Henry Tozer, and Mr. J. L. Graydon. Captain Jessel, the member for South St. Pancras, who is in charge of the Public Entertainment Bill now before the House of Commons, presided over the deliberations.

Certain proposals were formulated with a view of reaching a modus vivendi that will put an end to the differences now existing between the variety and theatrical professions. After some discussion it was decided that a formal interchange of views should take place, in the hope of arriving at an amicable settlement. Should an agreement be arrived at respecting certain modifications, the Bill will be re-modelled on the lines suggested, and in this way opposition will be disarmed. It is hoped that a happy issue will be found out of the impasse created by the vexed controversy between the two great bodies of public entertainers.

East Ham, Tottenham, Lewisham, and Putney are to have their variety palaces. At the riverside suburb the L.C.C. has agreed to let to Mr. G. Warren Cooper for a term of 99 years a site at the junction of Gardener's-lane and High-street, Putney. One of the local representatives opposed this proposition strongly, and moved an amendment, pointing out that some of the Putney residents feel very strongly on the matter, but the amendment was lost, after some considerable discussion, and the original proposition carried.

That energetic fighter for freedom in amusements, Mr. John Hollingshead—Practical John—has left his widow very slenderly provided for. A fund is being organised by a number of prominent theatrical managers. There should be contributions, too, from music hall directors and proprietors, for the late brilliant manager and journalist was always tilting with all the force of an ironical and keenly incisive humour against the numerous absurdities in our complex licensing system both for theatres and halls. To John Hollingshead more than to any other was due the abolition of the absurd law which kept the West End theatres and music halls shut on Ash Wednesday. The restriction did not apply to the South of London, where audiences attained carnival proportions on the first day of Lent.

The members of the Terriers' Association and their friends will hold their annual dinner and ball at the Horns, Kennington, on Sunday evening. Dancing will commence shortly after midnight, and will be kept up till the neighbouring chanticleers "crow salutation to the morn."

Mr. Bransby Williams has kindly consented to give one of his famous Dickens character entertainments, preceded by imitations of popular actors, at 2, Egerton-place, S.W., the residence of Mr. H. F. Dickens, the popular K.C., and his wife, on Wednesday next, in aid of the Westminster Hospital. Several grandchildren of the great novelist will be among the audience. The young actor's future plans include pantomime, and Mr. J. Hickory Wood is writing for him a special part—the Baron in The Babes in the Wood for Christmas.

Mr. Chirgwin, who has been enjoying some excellent trout fishing near Abergavenny, writes as follows: "A gentleman has sent me a request for my autograph, and with it six stamps for any fund I like. Now, if other autograph hunters would take a lesson by this and enclose a few stamps to all artists, I am sure it would greatly increase the M.H.B. Fund and the M. H. Home Fund." Quite so, Mr. Chirgwin; but surely your autograph is worth more than sixpence!

Their Majesties the King and Queen greatly enjoyed their recent visit to the Palace Theatre. The main feature of the performance was the new operetta, The Knights of the Road, which was conducted by the composer, Sir Alexander Mackenzie. Horace Goldin's "illusions" seemed to particularly fascinate both the Royal visitors, who, with the assistance of their opera glasses followed the conjurer's every movement. Their Majesties also watched the bioscope pictures with great interest, especially those showing the ceremony of the German Emperor at the opening of the new Berlin Cathedral and the recent Naval operations at Devonport. At the conclusion of the performance the King personally congratulated Mr. Alfred Butt on the excellence of his programme.

The statement appearing in a contemporary that, until his recent visit to the Palace, King Edward has refrained from visiting a variety theatre, is not distinguished by accuracy; for his Majesty a year or two since visited the Alhambra, when he laughed very heartily at the funny entertainment presented by the Brothers Egbert, "the happy dustmen."

St. Patrick's Day (yesterday) was particularly honoured at Collins's. At the hall on Islington Green, that broth of a Hibernian comedian, Mr. Michael Nolan, was put down for special Irish songs that reflect the romance and patriotism of the Green Isle of Erin. A special stock of Shamrock was ordered, so that everybody who went to the pay-box had a sprig for buttonhole or blouse.

Miss Nellie Wallace will reappear in London, at Easter, at the Tivoli and other halls in two new songs, from which she expects great things, and which afford excellent scope for the eccentric comedy for which she is famous. One of these, entitled "They walked for miles and miles," is written and composed by Messrs. John P. Harrington and George Le Brunn; while the other is a "screaming" absurdity written specially for her by Messrs. John P. Harrington and W. H. Liddy.

The instantaneous success of La Sylphe in the new ballet, My Lady Nicotine, having demonstrated so distinctly the public appreciation of the unconventional in the terpsichorean art, the management of the Alhambra will on Monday introduce to an English audience for the first time the beautiful and accomplished Spanish danseuse, Carmen de Faya, who, fresh from her conspicuous triumphs on the Continent, will present her fascinating and entirely novel act, supported by Senor Aragon. Carmen de Faya's dancing is both poetic and eloquent.

Mr. Charles Beecham, the popular resident-manager of the Paragon, by the kind permission of his directors will take his complimentary benefit there on Thursday, April 13, when a special entertainment of a very attractive character will be presented.

One of Mr. Alec. Hurley's assistants in The Coster's Friendly Lead is that veteran vocalist Victor Liston, who bears his sixty-eight years lightly. Many would be glad to hear the old artist sing again his once-famous song, "Encore! Encore! Encore!" and maybe Mr. Hurley could arrange for its inclusion in his forthcoming new scena.

Mr. Charles G. Rembges, who has been for many years with Mr. J. L. Graydon at the Middlesex, has been appointed manager of the Empire, Middlesbrough, in succession to the much-lamented Mr. J. W. Thorlborrow. Mr. Rambges has many friends on Tees-side, who are pleased to learn that he has become a permanent resident in Ironopolis.

Barney Armstrong, since his retirement from the management of the Tivoli and Queen's, Glasgow, has been booked by Mr. G. A. Payne for seven dates at the Oxford and all other halls under that gentleman's control, also six dates for London, Collins's, &c. At present he is working four turns, and has quite settled down to the stage again.

The New Brompton Hippodrome, which has been most successfully run by Mr. T. G. Transfield for the past twelve months, has been purchased by a company, headed by Mr. Frederic Monti, the well-known sketch comedian, who, after extensive alterations and redecorations, will re-open the building on the 27th inst. The general manager will be Mr. W. J. Mackay.

The Brighton Town Council has done nothing yet in the matter of the Aquarium, in connection with which the Local Government Board refused sanction to borrow £16,000 in order that it might be repaired and let on lease. The institution is now closed. The Aquarium Committee recommends the Council to refuse the offer to purchase for £15,000. The Corporation acquired the Aquarium in 1901 for £30,000.

An unusual scene took place at the Grand Theatre, Bolton, at the Monday matinée, when the managing-director appeared behind the footlights to explain the advent on the stage of an extra turn, who was to follow. During his visit to a successful pantomime, Mr. Elliston, it appears, was struck by the volume and beauty of a voice in the pit leading the chorus of the principal boy's song. He discovered that the possessor of the clarion tones was a shipping clerk out of work, and immediately offered him an engagement. His success in "Whisper and I Shall Hear" was immediate and unqualified, and now Mr. Elliston is inviting suggestions for a stage name for the newcomer.

In his "Musical Life and Recollections" the late M. Jules Rivière recounts that he gave a series of promenade concerts at Manchester, in partnership with his old friend, Joseph Higham, the celebrated brass instrument maker in the town. This gentleman invented what he called the clear-bore cornet, which has been extensively copied by other makers, and was the uncle of Mr. Fred Higham, the well-known dramatic and variety agent. Mr. Higham's father, Thomas Higham, was also a manufacturer of instruments and an organ builder.

A matinée in aid of the funds of the North-Eastern Hospital for Children, Hackney-road, was given under distinguished patronage at the Hackney Empire on Thursday. A long and specially attractive programme was contributed to by a number of leading artistes. Mr. L. J. Stewart was the chairman and treasurer, and Messrs. J. H. Woolf and J. Christie acted as joint secretaries. The entire proceeds of the entertainment will be handed over to the treasurer of the hospital.

By kind permission of Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Percy Honri, the talented concertina player, and Mr. Frank Seeley, the smart comedian, who were last week performing at the Shepherd's Bush Empire, appeared at Professor Gough's fifth annual Bohemian concert, held at the Athenæum, Shepherd's Bush, on Friday evening, the 10th inst. Mr. E. H. Dobson, the popular manager of the local Empire, gracefully acted as chairman during part of the proceedings, a hearty vote of thanks being passed to him for his courtesy in arranging the two extra "turns" mentioned, and for his services in the chair.

At the conclusion of the successful run of Mother Goose at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, the charming and handsome second boy, Miss Margaret Radcliffe, will commence an engagement at the South Shields Empire, with Liverpool and Birmingham to follow, and after a week's rest will open at the Granville, Walham Green, and Palace, Camberwell. Mr. Fred Wyndham has already secured this smart young artiste for the next annual at the Shakespeare, Liverpool.

The ninth annual general meeting of the Warden, Limited, was held at the Palace Theatre of Varieties, Belfast, on the 9th inst., Mr. Hugh C. Kelly presiding, in the absence of the chairman, Mr. S. C. Allen. The report of the directors for the year ended January 28 last contained the following: The net profits for the year amount to £2,220 2s. 7d., to which is added the amount carried over from last account, £807 3s. 8d., making a total of £3,027 6s. 3d. Out of this there has been written off or provided for—outlay on scenery for the year, £194 11s. 8d.; transfer to furniture and fittings, renewal, and depreciation fund, £695 0s. 2d.; write down investments, £300—£1,189 11s. 10d.; leaving a balance of £1,837 14s. 5d., which the directors recommend should be disposed of as follows: Dividend on £35,000 preference shares, at 5 per cent. for the year ended January 31st, 1905, £1,750; carry forward to next account, £87 14s. 5d. During the earlier part of the year £2,442 7s. 2d. was expended in renovations, alterations, and for an extensive electric light installation, at the Theatre Royal. The report and statement of accounts were adopted.

Mr. William Henry George, of George's Minstrel Trio, died suddenly last week, aged 67, at his home, the Grantham Arms, Dyer-street, Leeds. Mr. George (whose proper name was Greenhough) was a native of Leeds, and in his early days he was money-taker at Hobson's Royal Casino, call-boy at the Princess's Theatre (now Tivoli), Leeds, and violinist in the orchestra of Gomersal's Old Theatre Royal. At various times he was proprietor in Hull of the Prince of Wales's Music Hall, and in partnership with Enderby Jackson at the Alhambra, his last managerial venture being the Gaiety Music Hall, Old Brompton, near Chatham. He toured a good deal as a negro comedian, and appeared in London at the Rotunda, the Winchester with Preece, the Mogul with Fox, and Cider Cellars with Paddy Green. He also toured with Paddock Jerome's "American War" Panorama, when he married Miss Marion Winter, and later, with her and their daughter, Miss Honor Bright, worked as George's Minstrel Trio, a combined black and white musical, vocal, and dance turn.

Harry Burns, the enterprising manager of the Empress Varieties, Hartlepool, has inaugurated a scheme in conjunction with the electric tramway people at Hartlepool, by which his West Hartlepool patrons may, by booking on the cars from West Hartlepool, and paying one penny more than the ordinary admission fee to the theatre, obtain a ticket which will take them by car to Hartlepool, admit them to the Empress, and take them back by car to West Hartlepool. The usual return fare between the 'Pools is fourpence. A saving of threepence is therefore made by those travelling. Mr. Burns says the scheme works quite satisfactorily.

Though Aberdare is in the heart of the country where the Welsh revival movement is rampant, excellent business is being done by Mr. Will Gregory at the Palace Theatre of Varieties in the town. Mr. Gregory puts on a good show, and people are turned away nightly.

Miss Marie Lloyd has now quite recovered from her serious illness, and desires to return thanks to her many friends, both among the public and the profession, for their kind inquiries. She has been deeply touched by many messages of sympathy.

Lovers of amateur theatricals have a treat in store in the shape of a musical playlet which Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter will shortly issue, and which is entitled Trixie in Search of a Title. The piece is in two short acts, divided into three scenes, which have been designed with a special eye to the resources of most private households. The "book" is by Mr. David Day, with lyrics by Mr. W. H. Phelan and Mr. Fred. Day, the latter being responsible also for the music.

The bright little work has been pronounced by critical experts well qualified to give an opinion to be a gem in its way. It is written for six characters, two of which are ladies, and with a little extraneous help or judicious doubling will be found easy of performance.

Mr. Ernest Cadle was announced to play Mr. Fred McAvoy, manager of the Euston, a game of billiards (25 up) in a den of Miss Ella's lions, on Friday evening, on the stage of the above-named theatre, at 10.30.

The secretary of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund has received the sum of £7 14s. 7d. from Mr. Frank Weeks, the result of his further efforts with the pence box at the South London Palace during the past month. The President and committee fully recognise the continued endeavours of Mr. Weeks to benefit the fund, in which he is taking such a lively interest.

Mr. Joe Elvin, who has produced more comical sketches than any other variety comedian, has discovered another "winner" in Out All Night, which has all the necessary farcical complications to make it a success. It has been delighting large audiences at the Camberwell Palace during the week, and it is unnecessary to state, perhaps, that it gives the only Joe every opportunity for exploiting his Cockney humour, which is of the best brand.

The house of Witmark seems very fortunate in always having a big song hit. Their number of successes would be too long to enumerate, but it is noticeable that as soon as the song, "Good-bye, Little Girl, Good-bye," which is the popular craze, was taken off at the Coliseum, it was replaced with another "Witmarkian" effort, entitled "Rosa Anna," in the rendering of which Miss Madge Lessing reminds us of her first great London success, "Rosy Posy." "Rosa Anna," evidently of the same family, has been excellently staged, and furnishes a delightful stage picture.

Mr. Cayley Calvert's sketch company in The Fellow that Looks Like Me," has occupied a prominent position in the bill of the Bedford during the week, and has won great favour there from crowded audiences. Nor is this marked success in any way undeserved, for the sketch teems with laughter-compelling situations, illustrated by dialogue of sparkling brightness and humour. Peter and Paul, twin brothers, have not met from boyhood—Paul having gone to Australia to seek his fortune. At the opening of the sketch, both are grown up. Peter, besides, is married, and has a house in London. He is, moreover, given to leaving his wife a great deal at night, and family bickerings are the result. To this house, whilst the volatile Peter is absent on a midnight excursion, comes Paul, who climbs the balcony, and enters unceremoniously through an open window to escape from a street row.

The likeness between the newcomer and Peter is so great that Mrs. Peter takes him for her husband returned earlier than usual, and the most amusing misunderstandings arise. These are straightened out after the audience has had its fill of laughter. Every praise is due to Messrs. Sydney and Ralph Lynn, who portray "exact presentments" of the twins with most stimulating dash and go, and to Miss Geraldine Holker, who impersonates the bewildered wife with great energy and sense of humour. The sketch is one of the liveliest that has been seen for some time, and should soon have a wide circle of supporters.

Miss Emmie Ames, after several months' illness with sciatica, is quite her own bright and fascinating self again, and resumed business on Monday at the Granville, Walham Green, where she was highly complimented by the manager, Mr. Jesse Sparrow. Miss Ames, who goes to Croydon on Monday, has been the recipient of many kind letters.

Miss Rachel Lowe, who returned to the Tivoli on Monday, is still delighting her admirers with the happily conceived "Lucky Duck" song. Miss Lowe, during her fortnight in the provinces, produced another number, which will be a valuable addition to her list of novelty songs. It is entitled "That's why Liza loved him."

The death is announced of Mr. Henry J. Hayes, who at one time held the position of manager at the Forester's, previous to the Macnaghten régime, and later went to the Bow Palace. He was responsible for several dramatic sketches, written alone, or in collaboration, and was an excellent stage-manager. The last months of his life were clouded by dementia, and he died on the 9th inst. at Bexley Heath Asylum, and was buried on Wednesday at the local cemetery.

Mr. Herbert Shelley returns on Monday to the London Pavilion for the fourth time. He will appear in two new costume songs of his own writing and composing. The many years spent on the boards in old English comedy tells in Mr. Shelley's favour, and he wears his rich suits with a distinguished air that is entirely his own.

Mr. R. A. Roberts, the quick-change actor, has found the labour of playing Dick Turpin twice a day at the Coliseum too much for him, and is now suffering from nervous breakdown. He intends taking a short sea-trip, and hopes to be at work again in about three weeks' time.

The American Comedy Four have made a decided success at the London Coliseum. These vaudevillians are exceedingly quaint, and their comedy is rich and rare. Their latest production, Ye Black Bull Inn, is a decided novelty; in this they are assisted by Miss Cecilia Florence, one of America's smartest comediennes. Their business is in the hands of Alfred Saker and Co.

Considerable interest is being roused in metropolitan sporting circles by the near approach of the club swinging match for the Endurance Championship of the World, between Tom Burrows, of Australia, and Charley Spinch, of Stratford. Both men are possessed of fine records, Burrows having swung 11lb. clubs for 45 hours 8 mins. at the Canterbury recently, whilst Spinch has a 44-hours swing with 2lb. clubs standing to his credit in Africa. The contest is to take place at St. George's Hall, S.E., on the 23rd, 24th, and 25th inst., and both men are in strict training.

Mr. Walter Keen, of Keen and Waller, the clever acrobats, now playing at the Lyceum Theatre, was married on Thursday to Miss Maggie Harvey (not in the profession), elder sister of the Harvey Boys, and niece of Mr. Frank Folloy. We wish the young couple many happy days.

A matinée was given at Mr. Richard Thornton's Empire Palace Theatre, South Shields, on Wednesday, in appreciation of the services of Mr. Geo. F. Thompson, the courteous resident-manager, who has been over a year in office. The crowds which gathered long before the opening of the performance quickly filled the house, hundreds being unable to gain admittance. Included among the artistes were Mark Sheridan, Harry Tate and company, Five Delevines, James's Strolling Players, Margaret Ashton, W. J. Ashcroft, Jake Friedman, Imro Fox, Virto and Irene, Josh Dixon, Harland and Rollinson, and other twenty-one star artistes. The performance was thoroughly staged in every detail, and Mr. Thompson in a neat speech thanked the patrons for their generous support.

Mr. Oswald Stoll will present on Monday next, at the London Hippodrome, Kronau's great military spectacular sensation, America's Lads in Blue. This production is strictly military, illustrating the life, work, and habits of the American soldier. The forty young men in the production are members of a military regiment in the State of Indiana, and are surprisingly well drilled and instructed in every detail of artillery, infantry, and coast defence practice. The miniature warship used has two armour-clad revolving turrets, and heavy guns that fire automatically, while smoke emanates from the three smoke-stacks. The exhibition fully illustrates the life, work, and habits of the American soldier. The curtain rises on a fortification, and the boys in blue are followed through shifting scenes to the evening bugle call.

Later an enemy's warship heaves in sight, and begins bombarding the fort. Excitement rises to fever heat, as the boys in blue rush to their guns, and anon the attacking ship is blown out of the water by Yankee torpedoes. Mr. Frank Parker, the Hippodrome's famous producer and stage-director, will, jointly with Mr. Leo. Kronau, produce this stirring spectacle. In the cast is Miss Gussie Fraenkel, who has been the leading soprano of Heinrich Conreid's Irving Place Theatre, New York. Her voice has a marvellous range, and is superbly sweet. Miss Fraenkel assumes the character of a Red Cross nurse, and introduces a new song speciality, "The Robe of Grey," written for this production.

Mr. Tom Leamore was absent on Monday and during the week from Collins's, not through illness, as stated, but through being restrained by Mr. Oswald Stoll. We are pleased to hear that Mr. Leamore is far from ill, as he has just passed the doctor's examination for a £1,000 life assurance policy. After an absence of six years, the popular comedian has been specially engaged at the London Pavilion, where he was one of the old favourites, having played for forty-seven weeks off the reel. He opens on March 27, when no doubt there will be a big welcome awaiting him.

Mr. Walter Leaver, the much-respected chairman of the Royal Albert, Canning Town, was given a complimentary benefit on Thursday evening, when a crowded house and a crowded programme testified to the regard in which he is held by the local public and the variety profession. For twenty-six years Mr. Leaver has presided at the Royal Albert, and he is one of the most interesting personalities in the theatrical world. He is now seventy-four years of age, has been a chairman for forty years, and is as active as many a man half his age.

Mr. Leaver may fairly claim to be a jack of all trades, but to his credit be it said that whatever he has put his hand to has been done well. The handsome chair upon which he rightly sits enthroned in honour is his own handiwork, as are also his movable mirror, which depicts the doings of the artists, and a number of useful accessories upon his table. He showed us the other night a pipe and a cigar holder which he had carved out of coal. The figures and faces round the bowls were most elaborately and artistically executed. We have in our possesion a sample of his art. In a few seconds he sketched upon the back of a visiting card a child's head and face, the little picture being most neatly drawn. We wish the veteran chairman many years of continued health and usefulness.

Although not on the printed programme at the Westminster, Liverpool, but simply put on as an "extra," the Ross Clyde Combination is this week arousing hearty laughter with their merry trifle, I Must Have It, with which they are deputising in place of David Poole.

Miss Lily Burnand, after a most successful time on the Stoll tour, is returning to London to renew her popularity at the Camberwell Palace, with the principal London halls to follow.

Mr. W. F. Frame, the Scot, who, like St. Patrick, was born on the banks of the Clyde, reappears on Monday next at the Glasgow Empire.—Mr. Tom Fancourt and Miss Jennie Rubie are by way of producing on Monday next a new comedy sketch, Our Liz, at the People's Palace, Tottenham.—Mr. Charles Grantley, the refined mimic and comedian, is in the sixth month of a successful provincial tour.—Jean Kram, the latest arrival in the comic juggling line, is fast booking the best variety houses under the guidance of his energetic agent, George Aytoun.

At a meeting of master music printers, held at Queen's Hall on Tuesday evening, it was decided to ask Mr. Balfour to receive a deputation with reference to pirated music. In a letter to the Prime Minister it was stated: "For some time past the orders received by us for printing copyright music have shown a serious diminution, with the result that for a considerable part of the year we have been compelled to put our employees (legitimate trade union workmen) on short time, and in many cases to dismiss them, while the machinery has been at a standstill."

Mr. Hamilton Hill's newest song, "Which sailor boy do you want?" by Messrs. Lawrance and Gifford, has been secured by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter. The same house has acquired Mr. Charles Cardow's song, "The Covent Garden Ball," written and composed by himself.

Mr. Malcolm Scott will be heard shortly in a song by Medley Barrett, entitled, "Buck up, Boys!" and has commissioned further songs from the same pen.

Striking as has been the success of T. W. Thurban's "Brooklyn Cake Walk," its popularity is likely to be exceeded by his latest composition, an "Indian Intermezzo" entitled "Irrawady." Mr. David Day will shortly issue the morceau. Mr. Thurban it was who accompanied on the piano Mr. Norman French and Mr. Harry Tate at the Duchess of Marlborough's recent house-warming, when their Majesties the King and Queen were present.

Mr. Billy McClain was taken suddenly ill during his opening performance at the Ardwick Empire, but the prompt assistance of a clever doctor enabled him to continue his engagament, and he has now completely recovered.

Mr. Leo. West, of the Palace, Bow, who is collecting for the Music Hall Home Fund, writes:—"I have collected 38s. 6d. in one week, and I want to get 8s. more to fill the card. Will those that give kindly see their names in next week's Era?"

The Automobile Show at the Agricultural Hall, which will commence to-day, and continue during the following week, will offer a new departure in automobilism, and exhibit a series of living pictures devised by Mr. Alfred Dunhill, of the well-known firm of automobile outfitters, Dunhill's, Ltd., illustrative of the various incidents in and about a motor-car journey, e.g., "Getting Ready," "Full Speed," "Exceeding the Limit," "His Licence Cancelled," "An Elopement," "The Honeymoon." This series of interesting pictures is produced and stage managed by Mr. G. Murray and Mr. Henry Austin.

"A Savage Encounter," a new farcical duologue, by C. Preston Wynn and Laurence Sterner, will be played by Mr. F. Lumsden Hare and Miss Frances Ruttledge at the Empire, New Cross, next week. Mr. Laurence Sterner is also the author of Off the Rank and The Water Cure, both now being played at the Strand Theatre, and The Club Baby, produced some time ago at the Avenue Theatre. The scene, which has been painted by Mr. Julian Hicks, is laid on a desert island.

Mr. F. Clifford Harris, the author of "The rain came pitter-patter down," "Fables," "So did Eve," and "The Story of a Clothes-line," is taking a trip to America for the purpose of gaining health and gleaning new ideas. Mr. Harris has been collaborating with Mr. James W. Tate for eighteen months.

The 397th meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Charles Edgar, vice-chairman of the committee, presiding. There were also present Messrs. Harry Freeman, Harry Wright, Jack Collinson, Will Edgar, Frank Gerald, George Gray, Charles Pastor, Bob Hutt, J. Finney, Paul Martinetti, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). A letter was read from Mr. F. Pedgrift declining the position of hon. treasurer pro tem., and it was decided to write and ask Messrs. J. W. Cragg and Joe Elvin, who are trustees of the Association, to act as hon. treasurers pro tem., until the annual general meeting. A letter was read from Mr. Douglas White, stating that he would hand over the books of the Association to any gentleman duly elected by the members of the Association. It was decided to write and ask Mr. White to hand over the books to Messrs. Cragg and Elvin should they accept. It was agreed not to appoint an agent in Salford. A letter was read from Mr. H. Griff resigning from the committee, and his resignation was accepted with regret.

A letter was read from Mr. Harry Mountford, and it was decided that the same should lie on the table indefinitely. The secretary was instructed to write and ask Mr. McCarthy, the accountant, to attend the next meeting in reference to the new books he recommended the committee to purchase. Mr. W. H. Clemart proposed that all the original members who now pay 2s. 6d. should be charged 5s. a year. After discussion, Mr. Clemart withdrew his proposition. Mr. Bob Hutt proposed that a general meeting of the members be called by the committee under Rule 27. Mr. Harry Wright seconded. The proposition was lost by eight votes against three. It was decided to send out the name of Mr. Wm. Lee for election as a member of the committee. On the proposition of Mr. Frank Gerald, Dr. Ryan, of Bradford, was appointed hon. medical officer to the Association. The secretary reported that 72 new members had joined since the last meeting, making a total number enrolled since the commencement of 11,490. The meeting was then terminated.

Mr. W. J. Churchill, doubtless emboldened by the sterling success he has achieved with his well-known song, "Girls wouldn't be wanted at all," by John P. Harrington and George Le Brunn, has this week purchased from the same busy firm two new songs, which he will produce at an early date. They are entitled: "Would you be down-hearted? No!" and "In the springtime of the year."

Messrs. C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton have sold the publishing rights of Mr. Morny Cash's successful song, "Beautiful, beautiful bed," to Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter. The song will doubtless be in great demand for next season's pantomimes.

Miss Agnes Molteno, the well-known soprano vocalist, appeared at Collins's on Tuesday evening in a song scena, The Daughter of the Regiment. This artiste has had considerable experience in operatic work, and her excellent voice was heard to advantage in the familiar melody. She also sang the popular song, "The Dream River," with charming effect.

Mdlle. Adeline Antonio, a high diver, narrowly escaped death recently at Coney Island, when she leaped from the summit of the Luna Park tower. The net broke, and the diver fell into an awning, and thence to the ground. The two obstructions broke the fall, and probably saved her life. As it was, her left leg was broken, and she was injured internally. The net was the one in which her partner, Meyer Antonio, met his death whilst performing in Calcutta last summer.

Mr. Frederick Bingham has organised a company for the performance of his playlet, Counsel's Opinion, at the variety theatres. This "legal episode," which was first presented in London on the occasion of the memorable Savage Club hospital performance at His Majesty's Theatre, commences its career on the halls at the Richmond Theatre, April 10. The principal characters will be played by Mr. Robert Ganthony and that promising young actress, Miss Clarisse Heney.

In consequence of several long-standing engagements, including that of Signorina Guerrero, who will make her first appearance at the Palace on Monday, the 27th, Mr. Butt has reluctantly found it necessary to shortly withdraw The Knights of the Road, but his experiment in the direction of operetta has been so encouraging that he is making arrangements for other productions of a similar character in the near future. The Palace Girls, who return to their London home on Monday, besides appearing in some entirely new songs and dances, will in another turn act as chorus to Miss Millie Lindon in an original topical song. The new features of Mr. Alfred Butt's next week's programme will also include the Yamamoto Bros. in their remarkable performance on the wire, which will be given for the first time in England, and O. K. Sato, the comic juggler.

An action was heard at the Westminster County Court, on March 10, when Mr. J. Laurie Graydon sued the Six Brothers Luck to recover £57, the balance of commission due. Mr. Walter Payne, instructed by Messrs. Amery-Parkes and Powell, appeared for the plaintiff, and Messrs. Noon and Clarke for the defendants. The plaintiff was instrumental in obtaining an engagement for the defendants to perform at the Palace, Manchester. The defendants signed a commission note to pay 10 per cent. on their salary, and, having paid 5 per cent., disputed the balance, it being alleged that at the time of signing the contract the plaintiff's manager stated that 5 per cent. had to be paid to the management of the hall. It was afterwards discovered that this was not the case, and that had it not been for this statement they would not have signed for 10 per cent. They also contended that 5 per cent. only was customary to be paid on contracts of large salaries. The plaintiffs denied any such statement as alleged, and also submitted there was no such custom. His Honour ultimately found for the plaintiff, and entered for the amount claimed, with costs.

THE LONDON MUSIC HALLS.

LONDON PAVILION.

The Brothers Zachs, who are fulfilling an interesting turn in Mr. Frank Glenister's scheme of amusement at the Piccadilly-circus pleasure resort, might well say with the poet: "Stone walls do not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage." In the presence of a committee, one of them is manacled, hands and feet, and placed in a square barred receptacle, which seems to be as strong and rigid as iron can make it. Previous to concealing this cage in a curtained cabinet, tapes are tied round portions of it, and the ends sealed. While Zachs, jun., is securing his freedom in the privacy of the cabinet, his partner fills up what would be a wait by giving some imitations—such as a cackling hen, a bull, the Russian bear, sawing wood, and other sounds more or less familiar. The performer in the cabinet having freed himself from handcuffs and anklets, comes boldly forth to face the astonished committee, and when the cage is wheeled again into view, it is discovered that the tapes and seals are intact. The brothers offer £50 to any person finding his way out of their "magic cage"—which is on view daily from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the pit entrance of the London Pavilion—without damaging it. The current bill is strong in dialect comedians. Messrs. Jordan and Harvey interest us in the absurdities of a couple of Hebraic gentlemen, who propound many amusing posers to each other. The great thing in stage conversations such as this pair indulge in, is for one to "get the bulge" on the other. This does not seem to happen to Jordan or to Harvey; and at the conclusion of their wrestling bout with the English language, honours are easy.

Neil Kenyon is another "dialectic"—if we may venture to use such a word in description of a laddie who hails from the north of the Tweed. Both the matter and the manner of his speech are exceedingly funny. He breaks his anecdotes gently, as it were, to his audience, who express their delight at his skit on the Scotch packman, and respond with whole-hearted laughter to his fund of whimsical stories. He concludes with a most amusing burlesque of the drama, with special musical and limelight effects. Mr. Kenyon has not too much accent, but just enough, and is a most acceptable droll, who knows how to advance a reputation which is already well established at the London Pavilion. It is a liberal education in the art of repartee to listen to the happily devised polite conversation of Foreman and Fannan, who return time after time to renew their favouritism in Piccadilly-circus; and Mr. Phil Ray fools around in his own inimitable way, both in burlesque recitation and patter. His abbreviated form of addressing his very kind friends in front has an informality that roots it in favour; and one's education in the art of polite conversation is not seemingly complete unless one is versed in Ray's modern, save-time methods. More talk of a most entertaining kind is heard when Mr. Arthur Prince arrives with his cabin-boy, Jim, and manages, as a smart naval officer, to completely mystify us by his remarkable ventriloquial powers. One does not detect any lip movement whatever, and the impassive expression of the features whilst Mr. Prince is voicing the figure is wonderfully preserved. Even more remarkable still is the way the young polyphonist talks whilst drinking and smoking.

A most agreeable novelty of the bill is the musical comedy skit, The Bazaar Girl, which is presented by that excellent comedian, Mr. J. J. Dallas, and pretty Miss Bessie Allayne. As a husband who is "going it" at a fancy bazaar without the knowledge of his jealous young wife, Mr. Dallas is amusingly alert and unctuous. He sings a capital song, "In his mind." Miss Bessie Allayne, as the young wife, who gets even with her gay Lothario of a husband by assuming the rôle of a gipsy fortune-teller, is well grounded in the art of musical comedy, and possesses much charm and a sweet and well-cultured voice. The Bazaar Girl is an airy trifle that should be an acquisition to any programme. Early in the evening Mr. Walter George entertains at the piano with "A funny world," which includes an elderly lady given to gushing songs of the question type; Mr. Will English dances in very quaint style; and the Three Cape Girls are long-boot dancers of a very lively pattern. The juggling act of Francis is exceedingly clever, as he toys both with light and heavy weights, and succeeds for a time in keeping going no less than seven tennis balls. He makes a feature of catching a heavy lead spheroid on the back of his neck, and takes himself quite seriously—an attitude that is completely justified by the real comicality of his assistant, who plays many fantastic tricks. The Lupino Brothers, as the poodle and the sailor, are responsible for laughter; and a youngster of the same clever family—Nipper L. Lane, to wit—is very smart indeed in his jodelling and dancing. La Belle Nello, contortionist, justifies her description, being both graceful and pretty; the Three Laurels have an original speciality on the ping-pong table, which is full of acrobatic surprises; Shawlene, a tuneful siffleur, is equal to the performance of a whole opera or a ballad; and other turns in the bill are submitted by Mr. A. Aldridge, tenor; Mr. Will Edwards, comedian; Miss Lily Seville; and the Eight Lancashire Lads. Mr. Bond Sayers directs an excellent orchestra here; and Mr. William Cobbett loyally assists his chief in front.

THE COLISEUM.

Mr. Oswald Stoll seems to be always ready with new scenas, and his double scheme of amusement at the Coliseum contains several novelties that were presented for the first time on Monday afternoon. The vocal and histrionic talents of Miss Winifred Hare, a distinguished member of the musical comedy sisterhood, are utilised to very great advantage in Japanese Rejoicings. The scene is a street in Tokio, and Mr. Cecil E. Hicks has designed a pretty street scene—one that breathes the spirit of romance. It is a veritable feast of lanterns, and the pretty toy houses, with their occupants at the upper windows, add to the vraisemblance of the spectacle. Miss Hare, as a young-looking Japanese mother, sings from an upper storey a lullaby, written by A. G. Hales and Hannan Swaffer, and composed by H. E. Darewski, jun. It is a pretty melody, and a dreamy, restful effect is produced by the music, which is admirably rendered both by the soloist and the choir. For the display of her voice, perhaps, Miss Hare has a greater opportunity in the song, "Banish sorrow," by the late Frederick Clay, which she introduces into "an incident in the days of Sweet Nell." At the opening of the scene, the locale of which we may suppose is St. James's Palace, the ladies and gentlemen of the Court of the "Merry Monarch" are dancing a minuet to the famous measure composed by Boccherini. Miss Hare, looking very much like the accepted portraits of the famous actress, sings the bravura air with great spirit and entrain, and the success of the scena is much enhanced by the dance and stage business so cleverly arranged by Mr. Will Bishop.

Miss Madge Lessing's ability finds an excellent outlet in a stirring military song scena, entitled A Little Boy Called Taps. The hero is a bugler of the C.I.V.'s, and the scene is outside Johannesburg, on the night before the battle. The reveillé is sounded, and a detachment of the British Army reserves strikes camp, and marches off to the strains of a military fife and drum band, in a way that shows very careful attention to martial details. Miss Madge Lessing cuts a gallant figure as the boy bugler; and the scena begets the heartiest enthusiasm. It is followed by "Rosa Anna," a lady of American origin, who has the daintiest of homes in a "bower of the purples." This is a "nocturne" in heliotrope. Sixteen dancers dressed in exquisite shades of the colour animate the scene with their harmonious movements, and open flower-bedecked parasols. Flitting hither and thither in the dim, religious light, they make up a tone picture of great beauty. As the heroine of the scena, Miss Lessing dances and sings delightfully.

Madame Alice Esty's engagement for excerpts from grand opera has proved such a complete success that her services have been retained in a scene from Mascagni's famous opera, Cavalleria Rusticana, which established the reputation of its composer as a worthy disciple of the modern Italian school. The scene chosen is the highly dramatic one where the peasant girl, Santuzza, seeks Turiddu at his mother's cottage, and, not finding him, tells the old lady of his unfaithfulness. A fine dramatic effect is produced when the solemn music of the Easter hymn, sung by the villagers, breaks in upon Santuzza's passionate outburst. Madame Esty, who has played the part of Santuzza some three hundred times, throws herself with great dramatic fervour into the character, and her fine voice completely fills the house. She is assisted by Miss Ambrose, who sings the few phrases incidental to the rôle of Mother Lucia, and the Coliseum choir and orchestra do excellent work under the direction of Mr. Walter Slaughter, the musical forces being heard to special advantage in the famous Intermezzo. It is quite certain that grand opera is a much appreciated feature of the Coliseum entertainments.

The incidentals of the bill include Mr. John Terry and Miss Mabel Lambert, who are responsible for a most entertaining musical comedy sketch, in which domestic differences, funny in their exploitation, are smoothed out in a harmonious arrangement of "Sally in our Ally." The Marlo and Dunham Trio are responsible for a fine exhibition of athletic skill on the horizontal bars, and nothing funnier could be imagined than the behaviour of the comic man in the trio of admirable acrobats, known as Keno, Welch, and Montrose. Roars of laughter are evoked also by the antics of the male partner of the clever couple, known as Barton and Ashley, who finish up with a humorous cake walk. Other items in programme No. 2 include the celebrated Derby spectacle; the scena, Miss Extravaganza; Mr. Walter Slaughter's tuneful song, "The Dear Homeland," tunefully rendered by Miss Mary Ambrose and choir; Professor Duncan's Royal Scotch Collies, who play "The Blue Bells of Scotland"; and Bella and Bijou, the smart society entertainers, in their latest entracte, Divorce.

COLLINS'S.

Amongst the well-known artists announced to appear this week at Collins's is Mr. Tom Leamore, but that popular comedian was absent on Monday evening, owing, we understand, to the operation of the all-important barring clause. Another absentee was Miss Marie Kendall, the cause of her non-appearance being, unfortunately, indisposition. The gaps thus caused were filled by special turns. One of these was a troop of a dozen boys and girls, who recently appeared in Mr. Tree's production of The Tempest at His Majesty's Theatre. The girls brought their dolls with them, and it was at once made evident that they had received an excellent training as vocalists. They sang several chorus songs with the most charming effect, and one of the girls, possessing a very good voice, gave with feeling the ballad entitled "Daddie"; which was greeted with much applause. Then another of the young ladies sang "Sammy"—a part that was taken by one of the lads, who assumed a shy, awkward attitude as the girls joined in the chorus, with fingers pointed at the much-adored youth. A coon song and dance were also included in the young people's programme, and a mild form of comic relief was introduced by the eldest member of the troop, who wore a page's suit, and pretended to be overcome by the words of a pathetic ballad. Altogether, the boys and girls gave a very good show, and at the conclusion they were recalled several times. Another special turn was that of Mr. Fred Lester, whose Chinese ditty was admirably rendered. He also contributed another song with successful results. Amongst Irish comedians Mr. Michael Nolan holds a high rank; and he shows a commendable discretion in his choice of songs. "The five pound which I never found" is a good specimen, but still more amusing is the ditty concerning Burke and the ineffectual efforts made to get him to do a day's work. The amusing complications arising from people being remarkably alike in form and feature have formed the basis of numerous plays, from Shakespeare's Comedy of Errors down to a modern farcical comedy, and in the sketch, Three of a Kind, which is being played at Collins's this week, the fun arises from the fact that three of the male characters bear a close personal resemblance, and are being constantly mistaken for one another. When it is stated that one is married, and the other two are not, but are engaged, the confusion which arises may be readily imagined. An irascible elderly gentleman takes a prominent part in the imbroglio, and causes additional laughter by his comic perplexity and confusion after successive interviews with the three men who are so wonderfully alike. This part is well played by Mr. George Abel, and the part of the wife of one of the three younger men is capitally embodied by Miss Ethel Arden. The other characters are smartly represented by the remainder of the excellent company. Mr. Edwin Brett and Miss Emmeline Orford also do well in their little musical duologue, called Two Love Birds, in which they introduce their very effective duet, "Sweethearts Still," and play the parts of the young lovers and the old man and woman whose affection for each other is just as warm as ever. Happy Fanny Fields' impersonation of a little Dutch girl wins for her general popularity; and Mr. W. J. Churchill, comedian, has some good songs. The Zenary Brothers, who appear in evening dress, greatly distinguish themselves as acrobats, performing some extraordinary feats. This week's bill also includes Miss Amy Bellwood, serio; Mr. Chas. Whittle, comedian; Harrigan and Holt; Miss Rosie Elliott, comedienne; Mr. Chas. Austin; and Professor Duncan's performing collies; and the Imperial Bioscope is also an attraction. In the management of this hall, Mr. Charles Hector is ably assisted by Mr. Harry Lyons.

EMPRESS, BRIXTON.

The sight of a dozen attractive young ladies "scroming" up as many swinging poles, and wrestling to force one another to terra firma is a remarkable one, and the audience get as much excited as if they were witnessing a great boxing contest or a football match. We are assured by the gentleman who introduces the fair contestants that six of them are the "original American wrestlers," and the others—well, they are the new English team. Anyhow, the struggle in mid-air is a keenly-fought affair, and the "blues" and the "reds" work like Trojans, to get the best of each other. Taken all round, honours seem to be fairly equally divided. The match is certainly of a novel character—rather, we should say, the way it is conducted is novel. The wrestlers, it should be added, are Madame Roma's troupe of aerial gymnasts. It is not often that one sees a lady playing the bagpipes, and, moreover, playing them well, as does the lady partner in the act of Boyd and Gilfain. Together they burlesque the old-fashioned drama, as well as other departments of stage work, their amusing remarks and attitudes being greeted with roars of laughter. Mr. Boyd has a fine tenor voice, and Miss Gilfain sings in pretty style, "When I was a waitress at a French café." Jimson's comedy animal act is one of the most entertaining dog shows we have yet had the good fortune to witness. We congratulate Mr. Jimson upon being the lucky possessor of a delightfully talented canine, and we congratulate the canine upon having a master who has trained him so well. Mr. Leo Dryden makes his last appearance here before leaving England for Australia. In very sympathetic strain he tells the story of the saddest part that David Garrick had to play—the part of a drunken man, which the famous actor is made to assume. Mr. Dryden exhibits high ability as an actor, and he knows, too, how to sing nicely. He puts a good deal of force and character into his rendering of the singing parts of "An actor and a man," as well as in his stirring song, "For Freedom and Japan." Brown and Robinson, who come on the stage dressed as working men, sing a couple of duets in quite concert platform style. Both of them have magnificent voices, their performance of "The Lost Chord" and "Genevieve" being a striking demonstration of their powers. In place of Miss Bessie Featherstone, whom illness has prevented from fulfilling her engagement at the Empress this week, Miss Gladys Huxley sang a couple of songs with a charm that won its way into the hearts of the audience, her "Lulu" being an especial favourite. Mr. Michael Nolan, the Irish comedian, treated us to a number of quaint stories relative to the doings of one O'Reilly, and Mr. Nolan's mannerisms greatly enhanced the subject matter of his remarks. Some comical pantomime business which takes place in a farmyard is what the Lyons Trio have to present. It is a cleverly worked out dumb show, in which an artist who is engaged in sketching a rural scene is made the butt of the eccentricities and practical jokes of a couple of yokels. This little sketch without words is highly diverting throughout. The Andreassen Brothers submit a variety of clever and neat acrobatic feats, and Datas, "the walking encyclopædia," refreshes our memories on the score of half-forgotten things, and tells us other things we had never heard of before. Lotto, Lilo, and Otto cause general amazement by their daring bicycle act, and graceful and pretty dancing is indulged in by the Glenroy Troupe. A delightful and interesting instrumental entertainment is offered by the Fenwick Brothers, and the Imperial Quartette present a first-rate demonstration of vocalism and dancing; while Mr. Will Musgrove's comicalities arouse enthusiasm throughout the house.

ROYAL ALBERT.

Anyone who paid his first visit to Canning Town would almost expect to find that the music hall habitués of that neighbourhood were not a very tractable lot of people. On the contrary, the frequenters of the Royal Albert Music Hall are most orderly, and would not discredit any variety theatre in London. Perhaps it is that our old friend, Mr. Walter Leaver, the esteemed chairman, sits facing his audience throughout the show, and the conduct of the "boys" is under his observation at the same time as the doings of the artists are depicted in the mirror confronting him. And everybody in Canning Town respects Mr. Leaver, and on Thursday night, when his benefit took place, folk turned up in their numbers to show that respect. There is much of interest in the ordinary programme this week. Mr. Harry Anderson has not lost his ancient power to entertain. This is proved by his singing of three popular songs, "Like the ivy that is clinging to the wall," "Let's have a holiday to-day," and "May you have the best of friends." In place of the Two Gems, who had been unable to turn up, Miss Daisy Silcott sings in delightful strain, "If that's what men call love" and "I let it alone," both of which win her distinction as a comedienne. Mr. Dudman Bromwich and company present a melodramatic sketch, entitled The Detective; or Trust to Luck, written by Harold Whyte. Miss Kate Neville is intensely comical as Sally Slapdash, the slavey, and her impudent whimsicalities bring forth roars of laughter. Mr. J. C. Aubrey makes a fine manly character of the hero-detective, and the playlet is well acted throughout. Miss Winnie Derson charms everybody with her rendering of "I know a coon," while her "Good old Irish jig" gives evidence of considerable versatility. Evered and Vaughan take part in a musical comedy sketch, bearing the name of Romance and Reality. It tells the story of a lady who has yearnings in the direction of the stage, and whose husband has yearnings which are quite contrary to his wife's desires. He disguises himself in a ridiculous make-up, pretending for the nonce to be a theatrical manager. His opinion of the aspirant's talents is expressively indicated by the word "Rotten!" and after a good deal of laughable by-play, he persuades the lady that she has no ability whatever. Very cleverly does one of the artists play the part of the woman, and the audience does not quite realise until, when leaving the stage, madame throws off "her" wig, that they have been deceived. Messrs. Evered and Vaughan are to be congratulated upon the funny situations they place before the house in their sketch. The Loma Trio have much that is agreeable, and at times exciting, to offer in the gymnastic line. Their beautifully electrically illuminated and adorned apparati afford a pretty spectacle in themselves, while the evolutions and feats they perform should give them a place of honour among their aerial confreres. Miss Edith Manley discourses in a pleasant manner about the doings and philosophy of a cabby—a rôle she assumes for the time being, giving colour to the character by wearing a long Newmarket overcoat and police badge. Then she invites her hearers to test her qualifications as an extempore vocalist, and Chamberlain, Buller, and other notabilities are put into rhyme, in addition to several old variety favourites, who have made their final exit from an earthly stage. Sport of the most rollicking order is well provided, while Ashley's American Circus occupies the boards. The unrideable mule and the spinning table again call forth merriment both spontaneous and demonstrative, and the prizes that are offered to local youths ensure zest in the competitions. Miss Daisy Byrnes submits a couple of songs, "Welcome home" and "Don't make those eyes at me," which are highly relished; and Alf. Davis is responsible for some enjoyable descriptive and character vocalisation.

CHELSEA PALACE.

"The stars are angel faces" sings Miss Florrie Cooper, and although astronomers may not altogether agree with that pronouncement, the idea is certainly a pretty one. And Miss Cooper sings the song in a pretty way. For the time being she is a little child who has lost her mother, and as she believes that the stars are angel faces, she pathetically asks her father to tell her which of the stars is her mother. The hearts of the audience are quite taken by storm with the sympathetic burden of the verses and the equally sympathetic treatment they receive in Miss Cooper's vocalisation. Her second song tells the story of two brothers, the elder of whom begs the other to go with him to a distant land to seek fortune. The younger man, however, decides to remain by the side of his aged parents, and wishes his brother God-speed in the quest for gold, which will ensure greater happiness and comfort to themselves and to the old folks. Miss Cooper renders the lines with suitable feeling, her efforts receiving marked approval at the hands of the audience. Mr. Dutch Daly is a great favourite down Chelsea way, as as he is down other ways, and his amusing remarks are followed with the keenest relish. He is a past master in the difficult art of entertaining, and, apart from that, his concertina playing is always worth listening to. A combination of whistling and singing is what Mr. E. J. Sheldon delights in, and in that delight he is joined by everybody in the auditorium. Mr. Sheldon knows how to explain sentiments by a whistle almost as well as by speech or singing. Upon his second appearance he dilates humorously upon the different constructions to which the word "changes" is applicable. Miss Fanny Robina gives utterance to a sweet childish appeal in her song, "Don't go away, Robin." It is Christmas time, and the redbreast has popped in at the window, and the little girl, who feeds him, beseeches him to stay. The theme is a tender one, and with exquisite tenderness is it presented by the charming vocalist. "I'm not tired of England" is Miss Robina's second number, and it seems that the raison d'etre of the title is that the "King of the castle is the baby." Grace and style characterise Miss Robina's performance of the song, a verse in which, in addition to the chorus, is sung from the gallery by a talented boy-singer. Mr. Neil Kenyon, the Scotch comedian, goes far towards repudiating the slur which has for generations been cast upon his fellow-countrymen because of their lack of the sense of humour. In his entertainment, which he describes as "The Scotsman and His Pack," we get many really witty phrases. Heads are seen shaking all over the house as he tells of the eccentricities of a Scotsman "whose presence of mind in danger was only excelled by his absence of body." Extremely laughable is his "Charge of the Light Brigade," as sung respectively by a London "johnny," a Walworth "bruiser," a Kilmarnock man, and a Jew. Truly, Mr. Kenyon's is a merry "pack." A cat of a very whimsical kind is Mr. Johnny Fuller, and that gentleman exhibits marvellous agility in the rôle of a feline, the little tricks he gets up to causing general merriment. Music and mirth is the stock-in-trade of Mr. Will Van Allen, whose professional storehouse—if we may use such a word—is excellently provisioned both as to quality and quantity. We cannot help thinking that Mr. Van Allen would feel quite at home if he were cast upon an uninhabited island, for his inventive faculty appears to be developed to a large extent, as is proved by the fact that he can extract "melody divine" out of dinner-table articles. Miss Grace Hawthorne and company appear in an interesting Dickens sketch entitled Poor Nance, in which Bill Sikes and Fagin figure, the little piece being splendidly played by the different artistes. Spry and Monti, in their now famous combination of wit and humour, and the Avrignys, Japanese jugglers, complete an admirable programme.

BATTERSEA EMPIRE.

The Wednesday matinées which have been instituted by Mr. Lennox Barry, the popular manager, still continue to be of a most successful order. So, too, with the evening shows. Each night the hall is packed, and the audience leave no doubt of their appreciation of the fare provided. The Motramos, musical speciality artistes, are one of the leading turns this week, and cause much fun with their whimsicalities. Herbert le Martine is an old favourite, and scores with his bâton manipulation. Talberto and Douglas provoke much laughter with their comedy acrobatic turn, the comedy part being more in evidence than the acrobatic. The Brothers Edgar receive a warm welcome with their clever cross patter, and the Lynchs, in their champion shooting act, are warmly applauded. Miss Rosie Cass is well received for her rendering of "Violets," the chorus of which is taken up in all parts of the house. Miss Ethel Dove gives a striking representation of a South American singing coon, and the bioscope, with some good pictures, completes a most varied and attractive programme.

"OUT ALL NIGHT."

Sketch, in One Scene, by Wal Pink, produced for the First Time at the Camberwell Palace, on Monday, March 13.

Jimmy Marble	JOE ELVIN
Ada	MISS FLORENCE HARCOURT
Bill Wuzzy	HARRY LOW
Police-Constable Notkins	KENNETH ALTAMONT
Police-Constable Potkins	HARRY GREGORY
Police-Constable Watkins	GEORGE BUDD

All that Mr. Joe Elvin touches turns to merriment. His admirers are ever prepared to laugh at anything he says or does, and when, as in the case of his newest production, he has excellent material to deal with, the result is laughter of the most spontaneous and lasting kind. Such is the effect of Out All Night, a new sketch with which Mr. Elvin has been entertaining Camberwellians this week, and in which he appears as a retired bookmaker, named Jimmy Marble, who, having spent two whole nights at his club, returns home, to find a burglar asleep in the chair. Mistaking him for his expected father-in-law, whom he has not yet seen, Jimmy is delighted with the way his relation partakes of the cigars and drinks which he offers him, and feeling sure he is a fellow "sport," displays a roll of banknotes, which constitute his winnings at the club. He places them in his overcoat pocket, which he hangs up at the side, and fearing his wife's wrath, goes out to arrange an elaborate plan with a police-constable, by which the latter is to pretend to arrest him, and so harrow the feelings of his better half that she will forgive and forget. The policeman duly makes his appearance, and prepares to take Jimmy prisoner. The wife, on the advice of her apparently terrified husband, gives the "peeler" a half-sovereign to depart. The constable, however, imparts his good fortune to his comrade, with the result that the performance is repeated by two other "bobbies." All would be well but for the fact that the three half-sovereigns which had been abstracted by Mrs. Marble from her husband's coat were all bad, and the limbs of the law return breathing threats against Jimmy and covering him with ignominy, while the burglar, who has been in hiding, stalks out disguised in the silk hat of the master of the house, and carrying in his pocket Jimmy's winnings at the club. Mr. Elvin has seldom had a part more fitted to his style than that of the retired bookmaker, and he brought all the wealth of his comic resource to bear upon it. The drolleries of dismay and the eccentricities of exultation were contrasted with ever-increasing effect, and the audience fell willing victims to the clever comedian's influence. Miss Florence Harcourt made a bright and charming young wife; the burglar was strikingly played by Mr. Harry Low; and the peculiarities of the force were admirably depicted by Messrs. K. Altamont, H. Gregory, and G. Budd. An excellent set scene of the interior of a room has been provided by Mr. Syd Cook. Mr. Geo. Le Brunn has furnished the music for the sketch, at the conclusion of which Mr. Elvin was enthusiastically recalled.

THE annual ladies' night of the Playgoers' Lodge of Freemasonry, which took place on Saturday at the Hotel Cecil, was successful in every degree. The health of Worshipful Master Mr. Louis Harfeld, who presided, was proposed by Mr. Isaac Cohen, I.P.M., and a most enjoyable concert formed part of the proceedings.

ELEONORA DUSE, now playing in Paris, has, for the encouragement of Italian playwrights, offered £240 for a piece, the same amount being added by Signor Chiarella, the owner of several theatres. The competition will remain open until the end of January next, when a jury will make a selection of the plays sent in, which Signora Duse will produce at Turin, and the piece which pleases the public most will gain the prize.

MISS BERTHA DUCKETT has been scoring a big hit at the Pier Pavilion, Southport, in a new and original song written and composed specially for her by Mr. Fred D'Albert, entitled "The Tobacco Girl."

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

For the benefit of our showmen readers, now that the business season begins, we will deal with the vexed question of restrictive bye-laws. First of all, we would have it clearly understood that no local authorities other than Counties, Cities, or Boroughs have power to make bye-laws. For example, no Parish Council, Urban District Council, or Local Board has any power to make or administer bye-laws touching show or fairground entertainers. All that these small local authorities can do is to bring the County Bye-laws into operation, where such laws exist, by the co-operation of the County Police.

We advise every showman when working small towns to firmly insist on seeing the bye-laws, and also testing the authority of any official, or officious person, other than an officer of the county authorities. Such persons as the Clerk to the District Council, the Surveyor, and even the Rate Collector are all too ready to assume an authority that the law does not allow them, and it will do some of these would-be important officials good to point out the limitations of their office. The County Police has the duty of administering the County Bye-laws, and not any self-elected person.

One more point of importance with regard to these small authorities, and we have done. The county has no power to delegate any of its administrative work to Local Boards, Parish Councils, or Urban District Councils. For example, if a Parish Council makes its own bye-laws, and says that the County Council has sanctioned the local regulations, all such bye-laws are illegal, and to be resisted.

Now to show at a glance where bye-laws do exist, and their nature, will be good work done for the travelling showmen. For the whole of London, Birmingham, and the County Borough of Bootle (Liverpool), also in the counties of Derby, Cornwall, Devonshire, Worcestershire, Kent, and East Sussex, the following is the bye-law, governing, as will be seen, private as well as fair business:—"(a) No person shall in any street or on any land adjoining or near thereto, use or play, or cause to be used or played, any steam organ or other musical instrument worked by mechanical means, to the annoyance or disturbance of residents or passengers. (b) No person shall in any street or on any land adjoining or near thereto, keep or manage, or cause to be kept or managed, a shooting gallery, swing-boat, roundabout, or any other construction of a like character, so as to cause obstruction or danger to the traffic in such street." Showmen carrying on their business in these towns and counties must remember that the local authorities have these drastic powers at their command. Since the year 1898, when the Showmen's Guild took up the work of opposing unjust bye-law proposals, no such bye-law has been sanctioned by the Home Office or the Local Government Board. In every case that the Guild has taken in hand the local authority has had to alter its proposals, and to make the bye-laws just and equitable.

So great is the advance in public opinion since this necessary work began, that the Cumberland County Council is now seeking to modify its unjust bye-law by adding a special saving clause concerning fairs, fêtes, and all public holidays. Will our readers remember to send at once copies of the local papers to the Guild Secretary, care of The Era, whenever they get information of bye-law proposals by local bodies?

Our second list of places includes the Cities, Boroughs, and Counties having bye-laws with the fully saving clause, making the time of the fairs, feasts, and wakes exempt from its operation. This is the bye-law: "No person shall, to the annoyance, disturbance, obstruction, or danger of the residents or passengers in any street, keep or manage, or use or permit to be used, a shooting gallery, steam roundabout, steam organ, or other like thing, provided always that this bye-law shall not apply to any fair or feast lawfully held." This is the list of places it governs: Bedfordshire, Isle of Wight, Lancashire, Leicestershire, Leicester (Borough), Lincoln, Middlesex, Norfolk, Suffolk, Staffordshire, Surrey, Warwickshire, Yorkshire, Croydon, and Norwich.

In Manchester fairs are entirely abolished in the area covered by one mile in every direction from the Town Hall. No other bye-law is in existence. Northampton has a regulation requiring permission of the authorities before exhibiting wild animals. Exeter city has a bye-law enacting that twelve hours' notice be given in writing to the Chief Constable previous to any procession of circus, wild beast, or other exhibition. Liverpool has bye-laws relating only to roundabouts, and Birkenhead the same. Middlesbrough has bye-laws under an old Statute, making it necessary to obtain the permission of the proper authorities before opening.

The following Counties, Cities, and Boroughs have no bye-laws affecting fair ground business:—Anglesey, Barrow-in-Furness, Bath, Berkshire, Breconshire, Bolton, Blackburn, Bristol, Burnley, Cardiganshire, Cambridgeshire, Cheshire, Cardiff, Durham county, Dorsetshire, Denbighshire, Gateshead, Gloucester, Herefordshire, Hull, Huddersfield, Halifax, Lincoln (parts of Lindsey), Merionethshire, Montgomeryshire, Monmouthshire, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Northamptonshire, Northumberland, Nottinghamshire, Oldham, Pembrokeshire, Shropshire, Somerset, Sunderland, Swansea, West Sussex, Westmorland, Wolverhampton, Sheffield, and North and East Yorkshire.

In this list without bye-laws will be found the important towns of Chester, Coventry, Dudley, Hanley, Ipswich, Gloucester, Grimsby, Lincoln, Reading, Rochdale, South Shields, Southampton, Stockport, St. Helens, Walsall, Wigan, and Great Yarmouth.

Mr. W. J. Humber, of waxwork fame, has opened large premises in George-street, Aberdeen. The place is elaborately fitted up with fine groups and tableaux, including all the prominent people of the present century. The Royal Family, in their gorgeous costumes, form a distinguished crowd. A great feature of the exhibition is Eagle Davis and Wild Bess, the great Mexican knife and tomahawk throwers, who are giving their performance with great success. A large stage is specially constructed for the exhibition of freaks and novelties.

Arthur Burgess, of Smart's-place, Upper Edmonton, was recently summoned by the Edmonton District Council for erecting certain temporary buildings before applying to the Edmonton Council for permission to do so. Mr. Jas. Edmondson, assistant in the clerks' department, said that he visited the land on 18th Feb., and saw some wooden and canvas structures—one was a shooting gallery and one a sort of peep-show. The buildings remained there until the 3rd March, and two had since been removed. Defendant called at the offices on Feb. 20, and asked for a copy of the bye-laws, which was given to him. Mr. Eachus, engineer, said no plans of the structures had been deposited, as required. Mr. Burgess called on him with respect to the erections on the 20th, and was referred to the section of the bye-laws governing the case. Mr. Butland, sanitary inspector, said the defendant admitted to him that he was the proprietor of the shows.—The defendant argued that he was not the proprietor of the structures; he was only the proprietor of the land, for which he paid rent and sublet it to another person named Bailey, who erected the structures upon it. He further said the shooting gallery consisted of a van on four wheels, and from which a cover was run out on a wooden framework. The other structure was a similar contrivance. The Bench held the defendant liable, and imposed a fine of 20s. and costs or seven days.

The above case is an example of the way in which local authorities turn and twist building bye-laws, quite necessary and just in their original intention, into a weapon of persecution against travelling amusement caterers. There can be no doubt that, as originally sanctioned by the Local Government Board, shows and temporary erections of a similar nature were never meant to be brought within their scope and operation. We are strongly of opinion that Mr. Burgess would have been well advised if he had asked the Magistrates to state a case for a higher Court. It is intolerable that building bye-laws, framed in the public interest to secure safe and sanitary buildings of a more or less permanent character, should be applied to the business apparatus of the travelling showman.

In our report in our last issue of the benefit performance, under distinguished local patronage, at Salford for the funds of the Showman's Guild, we did not make it clear that the chief organiser of the benefit was Mr. Edwin Clegg, of the showmen's headquarters for Manchester and district, the Black Lion Hotel. We make this amendment more readily because of the unfailing generosity, kindness, and courtesy of both Mr. and Mrs. Clegg.

Ashington's Marionette and Variety Theatre is still at West Melton, Yorks, and continues to draw crowded houses nightly.

The Great Town Moor Fairground at Newcastle-on-Tyne, the ground of the Tynesiders' great fair, was let by tender to Mr. Grant, of Glasgow, for the sum of £675, a reduction on the sum paid for it last year of £150. £675 is quite too much too pay for it, when we take into consideration the speculative elements involved in the show business. One wet day will so affect the takings all round as to make high rents commercially unsound and eminently unjust.

Many of our readers will tender, with us, sincere condolence to the bereaved family of that estimable fairground caterer and roundabout proprietor, John Greatorex, of Wrexham. He died on Saturday last, and was interred at Wrexham, where the Greatorexes are highly respected. The funeral was accompanied by many tokens of public sympathy. Amongst the showmen at the graveside were Messrs. Simon, John Fossett, and John Cordwell, old business colleagues of the deceased.

At Carter's Wonderland, Belfast, we have this week Galatea Illusion, introduced by Zarmo; W. C. Ugo, in Mirthful Mystery; Prof. Dempster, Scottish orator; Sylvia Vigor, Mexican armless queen; Grapho, lightning sketch artist; Frisco, tattoo artist; and Prof. Buckley, phrenologist. Business is good.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

Tickets for the third annual dinner of the Heads of Departments Association are now ready, and may be obtained from members of the Association and from the honorary secretaries, Messrs. Wm. Barbour and Wm. Johnson, 29, Wellington-street, Strand. Among those who have promised to be present to support Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree, who will preside, are Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. Charles Cruikshanks, Mr. William Telbin, and Mr. Cecil King. The dinner will take place on Sunday evening, April 2, in the Hotel Cecil. Mr. H. R. Kimpton is arranging a programme of music for the evening.

The Good Friday Concert Committee announce that tickets will be ready in a few days. Among those who have already consented to contribute to the programme are The Two Kings, Mr. Harry Helmsley, Miss Augusta Page, Mr. Harry Huntley, Miss Ethel Walker, and Mr. Chris. Hylton.

Mr. J. Johnstone has been appointed master carpenter to The Tempest company from His Majesty's Theatre, which opens at the Theatre Royal, Hull, to-night. Mr. S. Linnett is the property master with the company. A duplicate of the ship used at His Majesty's Theatre, 31ft. long and 9ft. beam, is carried. It has been made by Mr. Ashburner, master carpenter of the Broadway Theatre, Deptford.

At a meeting of the Newcastle branch of the N.U.T.S.E., the following nominations were approved for the general officers of the Society:—President, Mr. James Cullen; vice-president, Mr. G. H. Dyball; general secretary, Mr. Wm. Johnson; trustees, Messrs. C. Thorogood and Wm. Barbour.

The Glasgow branch of the National Society are making every effort to establish an institute. The formation of a club and institute has often been alluded to in these notes, and we can well believe that a club in every theatrical centre would offer many advantages to the local and travelling members of the working staff. If, as is to be hoped, the Glasgow stage employees succeed, London men may be encouraged to give the matter more attention than they have done so far. It may be mentioned that Mr. George Alexander has offered to furnish the first room of such an institute for London, where, it cannot be doubted, it is greatly needed. We recommend the Glasgow proposal to the consideration and help of the working staff generally.

The special matinée to be given at the St. James's Theatre, in aid of the Mansion House Fund for the unemployed, will, we assume, receive the support of members of the working staff, so far as their gratuitous services can be utilised. Considering all the circumstances, there should be no difficulty in getting volunteers from various theatres, if necessary. The stage managers at the theatres to be represented at the matinée may possibly afford facilities for members of their staff to help in any way their services may be needed at the St. James's Theatre. We have reason to believe that many members of the working staff would be glad to help in such a cause, and out of regard for Mr. George Alexander.

Mr. A. W. Matcham, manager of the Empire, Birmingham, gave on Sunday an excellent concert in aid of a local charity, for which over £30 was realised. The City of Birmingham Military Band, under Mr. J. H. Whittaker, conductor of the Empire orchestra, gave selections, and all the items of the programme were greatly enjoyed.

Mr. Eugene Woodhams, the American baritone, who is giving his first London concert at the Steinway Hall, on March 29, was born in Michigan, in 1876, his parents being English. At the early age of 15 he became organist at a church in Michigan, and later, after studying singing, toured the U.S.A. in opera, afterwards appearing in Australia for two years.

The great attraction this week at the Tunbridge Wells Opera House (Mr. F. E. Manton), has been the flying matinée of Mr. George Alexander and concert party. The evening bill has been filled by Mr. J. D. Hunter's pantomime company in Aladdin, the title-rôle having a charming representative in Miss M. Sadie, while Mr. Hunter was a most amusing Widow Twankey. Among the specialities Mdlle. Bartenelli, the clever contortionist, was cordially received.

CHAT WITH MR. ST. JOHN DENTON.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

If there were really no serious business to transact, what an amusing time a dramatic agent would have! Mr. St. John Denton, for instance, has no need to visit a theatre for the purpose of entertainment. Every day in the week he gets a diverting musical comedy in his offices at Maiden-lane. The music is supplied by the aspiring young ladies and gentlemen who are certain they ought to go upon the stage, and who prove it—to their own satisfaction, be it whispered—by strumming upon Mr. Denton's piano. As to the comedy—well, that comes from the same source, but it is of the unconscious order, and finds expression in imbecile remarks and long, imploring letters. Of course, not all the aspirants are gifted that way. Some have pronounced ability, and no one knows better how to weed out the chaff from the grain than Mr. Denton.

200 CALLERS DAILY.

It has long been the complaint of the honest, hard-working members of the theatrical profession that the stage is regarded as a sort of accommodating waste-paper basket for the doubtful element in all grades of society. Does the Honourable Adolphus run through his patrimony, he goes on the stage. Does Mary Jane weary of her house flannel and pail, she goes on the stage. Does a lady of reputation yearn to show her diamonds, she goes on the stage. To put the matter in Mr. Denton's own words, "If a man or woman fail in everything he or she touches, the stage is looked upon as a last resource. I reckon to interview some two hundred people daily, and I think I am in a position to speak on this subject.

PANTOMIME THE DECEIVER.

"Every pantomime season," says Mr. Denton, "brings one thousand fresh people into the business. At least three-quarters of them ought never to go upon the stage. The deception of pantomime lies in the fact that no girl's voice is trained for the chorus, and when the pantomime comes to an end the girl imagines that she can easily get an engagement in musical comedy or otherwise. At Christmas there is always a great demand for decent-looking girls, histrionic talent and good voices being quite a secondary consideration. Pantomime, however, is becoming more and more like musical comedy, and possibly that may lead to a better condition of things in the former class of entertainment. Now, there is always a call for young and pretty girls who can sing and dance, and there is also an opening for comedians. In spite of what I may describe as the comparatively easy conditions of stage life to-day, the demand for suitable people far exceeds the supply. These remarks do not apply to melodrama, in which, with a few notable exceptions, there is a big slump. Drama does not draw the crowds it used to do, and people nowadays only laugh at sensational posters. Yet, in spite of that, a few of the good old pieces are still doing good business.

"I make a rule of testing the abilities of every applicant for histrionic honours," resumed Mr. Denton. "I give all the attention I can to my callers, yet for all that I find that there is a great dearth of real talent.

DEARTH OF TALENT.

"Yes," resumed the interviewee, reflectively, "the stage is certainly not overcrowded with talent, because the latter commodity is most difficult to find. This statement applies more to musical work than to anything else. We want good voices, both male and female. We want clever, bright girls, who can sing and dance, and possess the necessary youth and appearance. And we want brainy comedians. I can practically guarantee to find engagements for suitable people, and I tell you candidly that I consider myself lucky if I chance upon one decent singer and dancer among a hundred applicants willing to enter the profession. So far as the provinces are concerned, I should say this spring is about the worst ever known. At the same time, I think that things look more hopeful for the autumn, more specially as regards musical comedy. I have already on my books vacancies for any number of people for principal parts in all lines of musical comedy, the difficulty being to find the suitable people.

"I think the stage gets over-flooded with young men and women who answer miscellaneous advertisements inserted by people who offer tuition and an appearance in return for a sum of money. Ninety-nine per cent. of these offers are a delusion and a snare.

"The tendency of the British play-going public—except in the case of big stars and well-known musical comedies—is to patronise the cheaper forms of entertainment, where they can smoke and see a musical comedy, a sketch, and a variety show in one evening for half the money they would be called upon to pay for admission to a legitimate theatre."

ENTER—AN ASPIRANT.

"Wait a bit," he said, as the message was brought in for the third time that a young lady in the adjoining room was impatiently demanding an interview.

"And you've come all the way from Wales to go upon the stage?" remarked Mr. Denton to the fair aspirant, as she was shown into his presence.

The girl smiled assent, and proceeded in a business-like manner to remove her cloak and fur boa, while the young lady who accompanied her extracted a few sheets from a music-case and placed them upon the piano rack. Six stern male eyes could not help admiring the utter sangfroid of the aspirant as she coolly adjusted a few wavy strands of golden hair and perched upon the piano stool with a determination and pertness which inspired in the minds of the three mere men the patriotic reflection, "Gallant little Wales!" Then she sang a verse of a song, what time she played her own accompaniment. "That will do," remarked Mr. Denton, with that persuasive gentleness which he has acquired by long association with amateurs. One admired his charitableness for withholding the brutal truth from the young lady. He merely contented himself with asking for her name and address and telling her he had nothing to offer her for the moment.

"When will you have something?" asked the damsel, confidence gleaming from her eyes.

"Not until the autumn," came the reply.

"Well, suppose you just write to me when you're ready, and if I've nothing else on at the time, I daresay I might consider an offer." Even the lady's companion smiled at the hauteur and refreshing sauciness of this self-considered prima donna.

Mr. Denton quietly suggested that the girl should communicate with him later—if she cared to do so.

Exit "Gallant little Wales."

MR. DENTON'S CAREER.

Mr. Denton started life as a solicitor, but never practising. Turning his attention to the boards, he became an actor, appearing with the late Mr. Wilson Barrett in Claudian. Two years at the Adelphi Theatre in Harbour Lights followed, Mr. Denton taking small parts; then afterwards at the Globe, in The Doctor. For a time he acted as private secretary to Miss Cissie Grahame at Terry's Theatre, during the run of Lamps Grow Old. Later he became assistant manager at the old Olympic, when Messrs. Yorke Stephens and E. S. Willard produced Christina. His last experience with the footlights was at the Pavilion, Mile-end-road, where for a couple of years he appeared in all manner of characters. Then began his connection with the agency business. For a year he was with Blackmore's, for a similar period at a branch of Didcot's in Garrick-street, and some fourteen years ago commenced business on his own account. Since he has been an agent, Mr. Denton has produced and run on his own responsibility over forty pantomimes in different parts of the country, as well as in London.

Mr. Denton thinks that theatrical artistes are the pluckiest lot of workers in London. There are no grumblings, no complaints, as week after week they hear the same answer—nothing to do. "Well, better luck to-morrow—don't forget me," is their only comment, and, needless to say, Mr. Denton does not forget them. Many an artiste in a big position on the stage to-day has to thank the subject of this interview for their first leg-up. So far from discouraging artistes, it is the aim of every agent to discover real talent. There are plenty of instances, more especially in pantomime, where a performer has risen from practically nothing to a high position in a short space of time.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

(SPECIALLY REPORTED FOR "THE ERA.")

ELECTION OF CHAIRMAN, &c.

Mr. E. A. Cornwall was, on the motion of Lord Welby, seconded by Sir W. Collins, elected chairman of the Council for the ensuing year. Mr. Evan Spicer was elected vice-chairman, and Colonel Probyn, deputy chairman.

THEATRES AND MUSIC HALLS COMMITTEE.

The following were appointed members of the Theatres and Music Halls Committee for the ensuing year:—Sir W. J. Bell, Right Hon. Sir A. E. West, Lieut.-Colonel A. Rotton, and Messrs. J. Brandon, T. Davies, H. J. Greenwood, I. H. Mitchell, B. S. Straus, A. M. Torrance, D. S. Waterlow, Howell Williams, W. B. Yates (chairman), and F. P. Alliston, ex-officio.

LEWISHAM PALACE OF VARIETIES.

The following report was received from the Theatres and Music Halls Committee:—The Council, on 8th November, 1904, approved plans, subject to certain conditions, of a music hall proposed to be erected at the corner of High-street and Limes-grove, Lewisham. One of the conditions imposed by the Council was that Limes-grove, which is a cul-de-sac, should be converted into a thoroughfare by being continued through to Clarendon-road. It having been found impossible to comply with this condition, amended plans have been submitted by Messrs. Owen and Ward. The amended plans show the music hall as to be erected upon the same site as that shown on the original plans, but instead of continuing Limes-grove through to Clarendon-road, it is now proposed to form a footway, 20 feet in width, on two sides of the music hall. The formation of this footway was sanctioned by the Council under the London Building Act, 1894, on Jan. 24, 1905. The premises will accommodate a seated audience of 1,637, and ample means of exit is shown to be provided for this number. The plans comply with the Council's regulations, and we recommend:—That Messrs. Owen and Ward be informed that, provided the works shown on the eight plans submitted by them with regard to a building to be known as the Lewisham Palace of Varieties, and to be erected at the corner of High-street and Limes-grove, Lewisham, are commenced within six months, the Council will be prepared to grant a certificate under section 12 of 41 and 42 Vict., cap. 32, to the owner of such building, on being satisfied that the premises have been completed in accordance with the plans referred to and the regulations of the Council, and that the following conditions have been complied with:—(1) That the seats in the back row of the stalls be made to tip up automatically, and be so placed as to leave a gangway 3ft. 6in. in width. (2) That the system of ventilation be arranged in all respects to the satisfaction of the Council. (3) That drawings be submitted to, and approved by, the Council with regard to the construction of the fire-resisting curtain. (4) That all doors, other than exit doors, leading from the auditorium and exit-ways, be made to correspond exactly in colour and decoration with the adjoining walls, and be made self-closing. (5) That each of the hydrants in the flies be mounted upon a 2-inch pipe carried up from the stage level, and that the outlets of such hydrants be 1½ inches in diameter. (6) That all hydrants be of the L.F.B. pattern, and that bib-cocks for filling buckets be fitted in connection with all hydrants, except those in the flies. (7) That three buckets filled with water, or their equivalent, be hung clear of the headline near each hydrant. (8) That all hydrants, including the fittings and hose in connection therewith, and all small fire appliances, be completely recessed. (9) That the hydrant shown in the 9-inch wall of the exit staircases from the back of the pit to Limes-grove be fixed in the angle next the store on the prompt side in the position marked upon the plan. (10) That the heating and electric lighting arrangements be made to comply with the Council's regulations. (11) That, in connection with the proposed drainage arrangements, any floors below the level of the crown of the sewer be provided with horizontal and vertical damp courses of asphalte. That the attention of Messrs. Owen and Ward be drawn to the necessity for complying with the by-laws made under the Public Health (London) Act, 1891, in the provision of lavatory accommodation at the theatre, and that they be further informed that this intimation must not be deemed as in any way derogating from the Council's powers, under any Act of Parliament or otherwise, or from the powers of the district surveyor, or of the local authority, or of any other authority to deal with the building under any powers by statute or otherwise vested in them; and, further, that it will not preclude the Council from considering on its merits any application which may hereafter be made with reference to the licensing of the building for public entertainments.—The recommendations were agreed to.

LONDON EXHIBITIONS.

The Committee had considered a plan submitted by Mr. A. O. Collard showing the arrangements in connection with a photographic and picture postcard exhibition proposed to be held at the Princes' and Ducal Halls at the London Exhibitions, from the 16th to the 30th March, and they recommended that Mr. Collard be informed that the Council had no objection to the arrangements.—Approved.

LYCEUM THEATRE.

The Committee recommended that Messrs. Oldroyd and Co., Limited, be informed that the Council had no objection to the arrangements shown on the plan submitted by them with regard to the additional rollers proposed to be fixed to the frame of the fireproof curtain at the Lyceum Theatre.—Adopted.

MR. SEYMOUR HICKS'S THEATRE.

The Committee reported:—The Council, on March 29, 1904, approved plans submitted by Mr. W. G. R. Sprague, on behalf of Mr. Murray Carson, of a theatre proposed to be erected on a site at the corner of Aldwych and Drury-lane. Mr. Sprague has since submitted to us, on behalf of Mr. Seymour Hicks, amended plans showing a theatre on the same site. The total number of persons for whom seating accommodation is proposed to be provided is 1,178 persons, and for this number the means of exit shown on the plans submitted are quite sufficient. The Council, on March 7, 1905, on the recommendation of the Improvements Committee, approved of the design for the elevation of the building. The arrangements shown on the plans submitted appear to be satisfactory, and we recommend:—That Mr. Sprague be informed that, provided the works shown on the thirteen plans submitted by him with regard to a building to be erected at the corner of Aldwych and Drury-lane are commenced within six months, the Council will be prepared to grant a certificate under section 12 of 41 and 42 Vict., cap. 32, to the owner of such building, on being satisfied that the premises have been completed in accordance with the plans referred to and the regulations of the Council, and that the following conditions have been complied with:—(1) That before the work of erecting the fire-resisting curtain is put in hand, plans and particulars of the proposed arrangements be submitted to, and approved by, the Council. (2) That all doors, other than exit doors, leading from the auditorium and exit ways, be made to correspond in colour and decoration with the walls in which they occur, and be made self-closing. (3) That openings 3ft. 6in. wide be formed in the barrier between the stalls and pit and be hung with gates opening towards the pit. (4) That the hydrants in the flies be each mounted upon a 2-inch pipe connected up from the stage level, and that the outlets of such hydrants be 1½ inches in diameter. (5) That all hydrants be of the L.F.B. pattern, and that bib-cocks for filling buckets be provided in connection with all hydrants, except those in the flies. (6) That three buckets filled with water or their equivalent be hung clear of the headline near each hydrant. (7) That all hydrants, including the fittings, and hose in connection therewith, and all small fire appliances, be completely recessed. (8) That the heating and electric lighting arrangements be made to comply with the Council's regulations, and that plans showing the proposed arrangements be submitted to, and approved by, the Council.—Agreed to.

WALDORF THEATRE.

The Committee had considered a plan, submitted by Mr. W. G. R. Sprague, showing the fire-resisting curtain proposed to be provided at the Waldorf Theatre, Aldwych. Subject to the provision of an arrangement for pouring water on the surface of the curtain, they considered the proposal satisfactory, and recommended that Mr. Sprague be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the plan submitted by him with regard to the proposed fire-resisting curtain at the Waldorf Theatre, provided the undermentioned conditions be complied with:—(1) That an arrangement be provided for pouring water on the surface of the fire-resisting curtain next the stage; that the gearing in connection therewith be in duplicate; that one set of gearing be fixed on the proscenium wall, in close proximity to the releasing gear to the fire-resisting curtain, and that the other set be operated from the stage doorkeeper's office; that the sprinkler be provided with stop and drain cocks, and that the stopcock be sealed open. (2) That the gearing to the fire-resisting curtain and sprinkler be suitably protected, and that indicating plates be provided.—Approved.

VOTES OF THANKS.

The Committee reported that they had passed cordial votes of thanks to their chairman, Mr. Walter B. Yates, and their vice-chairman, Mr. H. J. Greenwood, for their services during the past year.

THE ACCIDENT AT THE WALDORF.

The Building Act Committee reported as follows:—Our attention has been drawn to the collapse on March 1, 1905, of an electric derrick crane used in the erection of the Waldorf Hotel and Theatre, on the west side of Aldwych, at the corner of Catherine-street, Strand. The crane, which was supported on a lofty timber gantry within the outer walls of the building, at present about fifty feet high, and was designed to carry three tons, was being used to hoist a block of Portland stone, weighing about two tons, from a van in Catherine-street, when the base of the vertical mast was wrenched from its bed, causing the jib to fall outwards towards the street, with the result that the block of stone fell into the roadway and the jib was broken across the top of the scaffolding, the head being only held in position by the hoisting tackle. The damage done to the building and scaffolding appears to have been slight, but one of the workmen employed on the building was injured. The accident may form the subject of legal proceedings, and we do not therefore think it advisable to say anything at the present time as to the probable cause. We would, however, point out that there is no provision in the London Building Act, 1894, for the inspection of building plant or scaffolding by any public authority, but that Clause 173 of the London Building Acts (Amendment) Bill, would, if the Bill were passed, give the Council power to appoint inspectors, and to require the removal of such plant as might be likely to be a source of danger, and it is probable that such a provision would reduce the number of accidents of the kind now under consideration.

Mr. Cecil Kingsley has been specially engaged by Mr. Charles Macdona to play Edgar Verney, the artist, in his company of The School Girl.

Brown's Bronchial Troches.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of Brown's Bronchial Troches. People troubled with a hacking cough, slight cold, or bronchial affections cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious pulmonary and asthmatic affections. AMUSEMENTS IN PITTSBURG.

PITTSBURG, PA., 4TH MARCH, 1905.—Mr. Robert Mantell, supported by Harry Davis's stock company, produced Othello at the New Alvin Theatre during the week, and scored a great success in the title-rôle. Although his cruel Richard III., and his crafty Richelieu were much admired, his reading of the part of the Moor far surpassed them. Encouraged by the flattering reception given to his performance, Mr. Mantell has decided to produce Hamlet next week. Mr. Robert Haines's Iago was a conscientious piece of work. Miss Marie Booth Russell was seen to great advantage in the rôle of Desdemona.

THE Gaiety Theatre was occupied by Williams and Walker's company in the second week engagement of In Dahomey. The visit was a success in every sense, the house being crowded every night of the week by an enthusiastic audience.

"PEGGY FROM PARIS," a musical comedy written by George Ade, music by William Loraine, was the Duquesne Theatre's offering. The plot deals with the doings of a lively Illinois girl, who returns from Paris and passes herself off as a Parisian, thereby captivating the hearts of all the rich men of the place. When she has at last succeeded in winning the right man's heart, she makes her little device known to the people she has cajoled; then it is too late to talk of revenge, and she is readily forgiven. The comedy abounds in amusing situations, clever dialogue, catchy songs, and good jokes. Peggy Plummer was played with nerve and esprit by Miss Grace Belmont, while Mr. E. H. O'Connor took the opposite lead.

A MUSICAL comedy, founded on the quid-pro-quos arising out of the doings of two cousins, who resemble each other like the Siamese twins, and bearing the suggestive title of Two Johns, amused the Empire Theatre habitues during the week. A good company under Mr. C. G. Allen's direction handled the play with knowledge, and extracted all the fun from it that it contained. The two Johns were cleverly played by Messrs. Edward Begley and Albert Rice, a well-matched pair of 200-pounders.

"THE QUEEN OF THE WHITE SLAVES," a four act melodrama by Arthur J. Lamb, has proved a great attraction to the Bijou Theatre playgoers. The play tells of the struggle between a clever detective and a band of San Francisco Highbinders, known as "The Terrible Nine," who make it their business to abduct attractive girls and sell them to libertines. There are several thrilling scenes in the play, one being a collapsing steel chamber, in which the victim is to be crushed to death, and another the cutting adrift of a man upon a raft in mid-ocean; both remarkable for their mechanical ingenuity and verisimilitude. Mr. Al. Phillips made a Sherlock-Holmes-like detective, while Miss Aileen May made a desirable Queen of the White Slaves.

THE chief attraction at the Grand Opera House was Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shanon in that dainty one-act comedy entitled Journeys End in Lovers' Meeting, written by John Oliver Hobbes and George Moore. The artists have received a very warm reception for their finished and refined performance. Miss Shanon was a very attractive Lady Carew, and Mr. Kelcey's Sir Philip was excellent. Mr. David Proctor handled his small part as Major Armstrong with taste and moderation. Miss Grace Cameron, a dainty comedienne, sang, among other things a "catchy" song, entitled "Dolly Dimples." Miss Lloyd's troupe of Siberian wolf hounds were much admired; Trovollo, ventriloquist, manipulated six different dummies very skilfully, giving clever imitations in speech and song; Geo. H. Wood's patter was entertaining; the Attros Family did some novel acrobatic and juggling work; the flying banjo act, presented by Howard Bros., came in for much applause, and they also gave a good imitation of a phonograph in operation that was decidedly 'cute.

T. W. DINKINS'S Utopians, on their re-appearance at Harry Williams's Academy, played two comedies, Broke and Broken and The Yellow Dog, as well as their vaudeville acts, which were much enjoyed and applauded.

FOOTBALL.

BLACKPOOL COLOSSEUM.—SEASON 1905.
Situate at the junction of the Blackpool and Lytham Tramways, on the Marine Parade, opposite the Manchester Hotel, in the heart of Blackpool.
The Building (which is 127ft. in diameter, 41ft. high to the eaves, and 83ft. to the Lantern) is Lighted by Electricity, and as a place for Animal Entertainments is unique, it being the only building in Blackpool that, in consequence of its being free from pillars and other obstructions, affords the necessary height and space for Diavolo's performance of "Looping the Loop."
The Walls are covered with the World-renowned picture "Niagara" painted by the great artist Phillipoteau.
For the last eight or ten years Blackpool has been extending around and for miles south of the Colosseum in a marvellously rapid manner. Thousands of houses have been built and are occupied, and there has not been any place of Public Entertainment provided for the Masses of the People south of the Tower.
The Colosseum provides a long-felt want in this New and Populous Neighbourhood.
The Authorities estimate that about Four Million Persons visited Blackpool last Season.
The great Popularity of the Colosseum is shown by the fact that, although only partially occupied during a part of a Blackpool Season, upwards of 100,000 paid for Admission during the remaining part of the season.
Offers for the 1905 Season on Sharing Terms should be made to the Undersigned, who will furnish any further information.

ELEVEN GOOD HOUSES IN PALACE AVENUE, nearly new.
The property has a frontage to the main street from the Railway Station to the Sea of about 125 yards.
The gross Annual Rental of the Houses and Shops, all of which have been recently reduced, is £428, and £12 per annum is also received from advertising panels on wall in front of the Palace.
These rents are quite exclusive of the Palace itself, the Grounds and Excise Licence, so that it is capable of producing more than double the amounts above mentioned.
All the properties are Freehold and in the very centre of the Town (which is rapidly rising in popularity), and would form a very desirable investment.
For further particulars apply to the Auctioneer, Mr. WILSON, Marshall Avenue; Messrs. RICHARDSON & SON, Solicitors, Bridlington; Miss MORGAN, The Palace, Bridlington, or to W. KITCHINGMAN, Secretary, Aquarium, Scarborough.

To Brewers, Publicans, Music Hall Proprietors, and Speculators.
Practically without Reserve.
Sale of Valuable Licensed Premises and Music Hall, with Possession.

Messrs. KNIGHT, FRANK, & RUTLEY will SELL by AUCTION, at the Mart, Tokenhouse-yard, E.C., on Wednesday, April 12, 1905, at One o'clock precisely, the Important Property known as the situate facing one of the entrances to Victoria Park, adjoining the Regent's Canal, and in the centre of a large and populous neighbourhood. The Property is of an imposing elevation, and has a frontage of 66ft. to the Old Ford-road, and is held for an unexpired term of 35 years at a ground rent of £130 per annum.

ROYAL VICTOR HOTEL & MUSIC HALL,

Full particulars from Messrs. JENNINGS, SON, and ALLEN, Solicitors, 69, Leadenhall-street, E.C.; or from the Auctioneers, 9, Conduit-street, W.

A CINEMATOGRAPH SHOW.

THE

ONE THOUSAND POUNDS
FOR TWENTY-FIVE SHILLINGS.

TO THE PUBLISHER, "THE ERA."

Sir,—
It may possibly interest you to learn that a Quarter-Column Advertisement in "The Era" (One Insertion) resulted in over £1,000 Bookings for an Entertainment with which I was connected some little time ago. The Entertainment was entitled

"THE CRUISE OF THE OPHIR,"

Cinématograph Show, and the Bookings were effected within a week.

Yours faithfully,
H. GOLDSMITH-WHITTON,
Late Manager, West's "Our Navy," &c.
